SYMPATHY OF THE HUB

With the Cause of Boers and Those Who Are Struggling For Liberty.

Envoys Deny That Transvaal Was the Aggressor.

Would Have Willingly Submitted to Deprivation of Rights to Prevent War.

Boston, June 1.—In Boston's temple of liberty, Faneuil hall, the Boston public gave a warm reception to the Boer envoys last night. The sympathy was even deeper in the shadow of the latest news, and many in the audience shed tears, moved by the eloquence of the speakers and the knowledge that perhaps after all it was too late.

But even though the independence of the two South African republics seems now farther away than ever, the sentiment of Boston as represented by an attendance that crowded the hall to its doors was unanimous that the two little states should be free by the laws of nations and the laws of God.

Thomas J. Gargan opened the meeting with a brief speech. He spoke of the present fighting by the Boers as "the pluckiest and most gallant fight of any people on the face of the earth." He enumerated the demands of England, and said he discriminated between the British government and the British people. He then introduced Thomas W. Higginson, the chairman of the evening.

Colonel Higginson referred to the many things which America owes to England, and expressed his belief that the majority of the English people were opposed to the present war. He referred to Kossuth and how he had seen his country liberated, and said: "If there was a resurrection of Hungary there may yet be a resurrection of the South African republics. And if it takes 20 years, what are 20 years in the life of a nation?" Edwin D. Mead and Franz H. Krebs also made addresses, both denouncing England's claims in the present war as hypocrisy.

When Mr. Fischer, chairman of the Boer deputation, was introduced, the whole audience rose and gave many hearty cheers. Mr. Fischer said in part: "I came to America to plead our cause. I think now that one of our mistakes was in thinking that it would be necessary to plead our cause here. In the American citizen of today and tomorrow we have those who will not misunderstand us, and they might well be left to judge us for themselves. Our difficulty in speaking is not what to say, but where to begin and where to end. We have asked for a fair hearing in England and it has been denied us. England is afraid to face the issue. Before the war broke out, when the British and Boer representatives met to discuss the affairs of the republics, we yielded point after point to the high commissioner of England. We were willing to sacrifice a great deal to preserve peace.

"Finally the British high commissioner, after refusing our proposal, submitted an alternative proposal, which, although it deprived us of many of our rights, we were willing to submit to to prevent war. We accepted this, and then it was that Mr. Chamberlain denounced the commissioner's own proposal as an insult to Great Britain. Yet we are called the aggressors. And when we, after deliberating about a week, accepted this proposal, we were told it was too late.

"We have never known why, and Mr. Chamberlain has not blushed—I don't suppose he can—to say that the reason will never be known. And before our last conference the commissioner sent word to England that there was no way to settle the difficulty but by force. This was after we had offered to submit the matter to a board of arbitration to be appointed by British and Boers, and yet we are called the aggressors. Finally we were forced to fight to defend our country. The time came when, if liberty was to mean anything more than an empty name to us, we must take up arms to maintain it."

Mr. Fischer denied the charges of slavery among the Boers, and declared that when the war broke out the blacks all begged to be allowed to fight for the Boers and contributed voluntarily more than they could have been justly assessed for.

Mr. Wolmarans made a brief speech in Dutch, Mr. Fischer acting as his interpreter. He reiterated the arguments of Mr. Fischer, dwelling especially on the charge of slavery in South Africa.

The final speaker was Mr. Wessels who, although not very familiar with the English language, gave a graphic picture of the situation in South Africa during the war, describing the loyalty of the men and devotion of the women.

The resolutions were then read by Richard Heard. They expressed the sympathy of the meeting with the cause of the Boers and with those who were struggling for liberty in all lands, and called upon the government to let England know that this is the sentiment of the American people as a whole. They were adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

At the conclusion of the meeting the audience crowded around the platform to shake hands with the envoys, with tumultuous applause. The delegates expressed themselves as highly pleased with their reception here.

SUGGESTS AN INVESTIGATION.

Jones Says Appropriation For Paris Fair Has Not Been Properly Accounted For.

Washington, June 1.—Senantor Jones of Arkansas yesterday made a vigorous attack upon the administration of the Paris exposition under Commissioner General Peck. Up to Jan. 1, 1900, he said, Mr. Peck had accounted for less than $400,000 of the $1,400,000 appropriated for exposition purposes. He believed that an investigation of the matter ought to be made in order that the people might have the facts.

At the conclusion of a session lasting eight hours the senate last evening passed the sundry civil appropriation bill, which has been under consideration nearly a week. The amendment providing for an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition, to be held in St. Louis in 1903, was continued in the bill.

The passage of the sundry civil bill leaves only two general appropriation bills to be acted on by the senate, the military academy and the general deficiency measure. It is expected they will be passed by Saturday night.

The house, under a special order adopted after an exceedingly hot debate, in which the leaders on both sides charged each other with playing to political galleries, entered upon the consideration of the resolution reported from the judiciary committee proposing a constitutional amendment to lodge in congress the power to define, regulate, control, prohibit or dissolve trusts, monopolies or combinations.

Under the terms of the order the vote is to be taken at 5 o'clock today without opportunity to amend. Saturday is to be devoted to the bill to amend the Sherman anti-trust law. The Democrats charged that the proposed constitutional amendment was objectionable in every way; that it was a mere political pretext; that it was unnecessary, and was proposed at the end of the session for election purposes in the coming campaign. The Republicans repudiated the charge of bad faith.

A constitutional amendment requires a two-thirds vote to adopt, or 236 votes with the present membership of the house. The Republicans have only 236 votes, 50 less than the requisite two-thirds.

Courageous Work of Nurses.

Newton, Mass., June 1.—Fire broke out in the Newton hospital Thursday, and Miss MacDowell, the matron, and her nurses rescued 13 scarlet fever patients in a daring manner. The fire was discovered by a nurse as she was passing through the contagious ward, and before the alarm could be given the corridor which afforded the only means of escape was ablaze. The ward was filling with smoke and the fire was rapidly gaining headway. One by one the sick patients were taken out of their cots and lowered through the windows to the ground, where they were removed to safety. Not until all had been taken out did the nurses seek safety themselves, and as they were overcome the firemen gave them assistance. The firemen confined the fire to the scarlet fever building and to the corridor connecting it with the main building. The loss is $1500.

To "Keep Tabs" on Appraisers.

Indianapolis, June 1.—The plant of the Neely Printing company of Muncie, seized by the United States marshal on an attachment of the government, on the ground that C. F. W. Neely has an interest in the property, was authorized by the United States court here yesterday to keep running until the appraisement is completed. Judge Baker, in delivering his orders, said to the United States marshal: "Have the appraisers placed under oath and see that they do not Neelyize anything."

More Filipinos Surrender.

Washington, June 1.—The following dispatch was received at the war department from General MacArthur at Manila: Small surrenders continue department of northern Luzon. Corino, Fugitive Governor Benguet, rich, active friend of Aguinaldo, captured near Kabayan; important. White scouting May 29, Captain Roberts and two privates were captured. Sergeant Gallen and two privates killed; one wounded.

Found For the Plaintiff.

Hartford, June 1.—Judge Robinson has handed down a judgment in the suit brought by Louis Emerson against Sternglarez & Baumgarten. He orders that the defendants pay $1374.01 to settle the claim of $2700 made by the plaintiff. The suit was over a shirt contract at the state prison, the plaintiff claiming that a large number of material purchased by him had not been turned over.

Indictment Found Against Taylor.

Frankfort, Ky., June 1.—Judge Cantrill has directed Circuit Court Clerk Ford to issue a bench warrant for the arrest of former Governor Taylor. The warrant is based on an indictment secured several weeks ago, charging Taylor with being an accessory to the assassination of William Goebel. A warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Suter.

Adopting Precautionary Methods.

San Francisco, June 1.—The board of health reports that the plague situation is unchanged, no deaths or new cases having been reported. The house to house inspection by the board is being carried out. It has been decided to install at once a temporary crematory for the burning of garbage from the infected districts.

IS ANXIOUS FOR NEWS.

Wu Ting Fang Professes Ignorance as to the Situation In China.

Officials Puzzled by Action of the Empress Dowager.

Landing of Big Force of Foreign Marines May Drive Boxers Into the Interior.

Washington, June 1.—The Chinese minister, Wu Ting Fang, called at the state department yesterday to talk with Secretary Hay. He had no information from his government as to the critical situation in China and was anxious for news.

WU TING FANG.

Resident representatives of nearly all of the other nations interested in the Chinese situation were among Secretary Hay's callers yesterday. But as in the case of the Chinese minister none of them had received any information from his own government bearing upon the situation.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, who is leaving the United States for a visit to Europe, and called to say good-bye to Secretary Hay, is decidedly of the opinion that much unwarranted anxiety has been excited as to the actions of the "Boxers." He feels confident that there is little danger to the life and property of foreigners in China to be expected from the present uprising. There are, of course, he said, always disorderly elements in a great city like Pekin, quick to take advantage of any public excitement, so that it was probably a wise precaution on the part of the foreign ministers resident in that capital to call for marine guards for their respective legations, the presence of these small but splendid organizations having a wholesome effect upon the would-be turbulent elements in Pekin.

Mr. Nabeshima, the charge of the Japanese legation, who also was among Secretary Hay's callers, was likewise disposed to minimize the dangers of the Boxer uprising. He pointed out that at all times in Chinese history the secret societies were fomenting trouble, and the present disturbance growing out of the operations of the Boxers was not nearly so formidable as many preceding ones.

In official circles the hope is expressed that the determined stand by the American and other foreign governments may cause the Boxers to flee to the interior. The action of the empress dowager remains an enigma and is not known whether to credit her with a sincere desire to bring about the end of the trouble or of secret sympathy with the outrages. At any rate it is felt that she has been very slow in taking steps to save the property of foreigners from molestation and their people from peril and the loss of life.

Today's advices from Tien Tsin announce that a special train started for Pekin yesterday afternoon with the following forces: Americans, seven officers and 56 men; British, three officers and 72 men; Italians, three officers and 39 men; French, three officers and 72 men; Russian, four officers and 71 men; Japanese two officers and 24 men. The foreign contingent also took with them five quick-firing guns.

It is rumored at Tien Tsin that foreign troops will be opposed at the first gate of the Chinese capital, outside the wall.

In the Interest of Science.

Berlin, June 1.—For the purpose of ascertaining how long a balloon will remain aloft, the largest airship ever constructed is now being built here. It will contain 9000 cubic centimetres and will carry 12,500 pounds. Five aeronauts will ascend July 15, planning to remain aloft for six weeks and to descend wherever finally carried.

Many Exposed to Scarlet Fever.

Augusta, Me., June 1.—The whole neighborhood in the vicinity of the Bolton Hill school has been exposed to scarlet fever, and the school is closed. Many people in this city are also exposed, as one of the patients who was taken sick yesterday mingled freely in the crowds in town Wednesday.

To Exhibit Defeated Enemy.

Caracas, June 1.—General Davila, commander of the government troops in the victorious engagement with General Hernandez, which resulted in the capture of the latter, has brought the insurgent leader to Caracas, and will exhibit him in the streets of the capital

New Advertisements Today.

Wanted—Young Lady Stenographer.

Good Afternoon.

Young America was enthused today at another victory for the Boston base ball club. They are no longer tail enders, but in percentage have moved up two. Yet another victory is needed however, to hold the place today. The Philadelphias have won just twice as many games.

As the Coddington street corner is wanted for something else we would suggest that the land between the new Sea street boulevard and the cemetery be annexed to the cemetery, and that a generous portion of it be reserved for the Soldiers' monument. The present lot is small, and in a crowded section of the cemetery, so that all the surrounding lots are trampled upon on Memorial day, and then people are unable to gather near enough to hear the addresses and other remarks. Now the monument is hid in a hollow, whereas if it was located on the knoll near the "Unknown lot" it would command the attention of the thousands who will ride on the new boulevard. A few years ago it was suggested that the monument be relocated, but no good site was suggested. The site we now suggest seems to have many advantages and now is the opportunity. If the move is postponed the land will be cut up into cemetery lots.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ If the proposition to solve the Negro problem by repealing the fifteenth amendment was thrown out by the Alabama conference as a "flier," it may now be taken in again and laid away for the consideration of another generation. It has fallen utterly flat.—Syracuse Herald.

☞ The average person looks upon the census enumerator with dread and with possibly a tinge of dislike. But the census enumerator is a harmless creature, his questions are wholly innocent, and the co-operation of the people with him results in the presentation of information of very great interest and value.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ There is one social feature of the divorce that is yet lacking. We are informed that in a recent case extraordinary precautions were used to keep the affair secret, as if divorce in fashionable society were something to be ashamed of. Why not have a swell divorce as well as a swell wedding? It is true that divorces take place in court, whereas marriages are celebrated at home or in church, but a suitable provision could be made to cover this rather plebian process, by employing a fashionably dressed messenger to bring the decree to the party assembled at the recent home of the separated party, when congratulations and presents would be in order. The occasion would be made doubly interesting by the presence of the "best man" and "the bridesmaid" in the persons who had been selected as the future partners of the dissolved husband and wife respectively. Thus two weddings could be made to succeed one, and society would have its diversions increased. Marriage is decreed by law to be a civil contract. Why not have the contract made to meet the new fashion? If fashionable couples could decide at the outset exactly how long they could endure each other, the time for its expiration could be fixed in the document. Then the happy couple, in preparing their reception invitations, could have them printed something like this: "At Home, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Limited." — Brooklyn Chronicle.

Ledger Places Quincy Population at That Figure.

Today the enumerators who are taking the United States census started out all over the country, and are expected to complete the work in about two weeks. Ward One, Quincy, has three enumerators, C. H. Johnson, Henry W. French and Mr. Martin, and the other wards average as many. Estimates of the population of the city are now in order, and we should be pleased to publish them.

The Ledger's prediction of the census of Quincy for today is as follows by wards and total, and is compared with the census of 1895:

	1900.	1895.
Ward One,	4,252	3,562
Ward Two,	2,949	2,741
Ward Three,	5,876	4,696
Ward Four,	5,784	4,964
Ward Five,	3,949	2,669
Ward Six,	3,070	2,080
Quincy,	25,880	20,712

In 1895, the cities a little larger than Quincy were:

Waltham,	20,876
Fitchburg,	26,409
Taunton,	27,115
Newton,	27,590
Gloucester,	28,211

While we issue a challenge to the above, Waltham is probably the only one we can overtake this time.

Quincy must at the same time brace up to keep out of the way of other enterprising cities. The following are pressing us:

Pittsfield,	20,461
North Adams,	19,135
Everett,	18,573
Northampton,	16,746
Chicopee,	16,428

Everett is probably our most dangerous rival in population, but to her we say, come on.

HUGGING CHARGED.

Alden Also on Trial for Assault on Woman.

Gustavus Alden, the alleged "Hugger" who has been terrifying young women for some weeks past, was before Judge Humphrey this morning, upon three complaints charging him with assault upon as many young women.

The young women who it is alleged are his victims, were: Ida Anderson, Margaret Frazer and Gertrude Englund. This morning a more serious charge was brought against him, alleging an attempt to criminally assault Minnie Curtin.

The story of the young women is that when they were passing Swithin's sheds on Granite street he would jump out and seize them and hold them until some one approaching would frighten him away.

In the case of Miss Curtin, it is alleged that he attempted to drag her behind the sheds; that he drew a knife and threatened her if she made any outcry.

The young women are positive in their identification of Alden as the man who assaulted them.

The hearing is being held in private, and as a large number of witnesses are sworn, the case will occupy the larger part of the day.

Russell A. Sears represents the government and John W. McAnarney the defendant.

Among the important witnesses are: Margaret Frazier, Bridget Doran, Michael Gunnerson, Maragret Connilly, Ida Anderson, William E. Morrissey, Minnie Curtin, Gertrude Englund, Hattie Jones, Nora Shea, Inspector Ferguson and Officer Bradley.

A Dear Old Flag.

On our way to West Quincy Memorial day we noticed a well worn, faded forlorn looking flag, stuck to a large tree in front of a residence. We thought the owner could afford a new one to celebrate our Memorial day, but on inquiry we found that the owner, Mr. John Evans, values that old faded emblem of victory, peace and prosperity very highly. He claims that it was the first "Old Glory" raised in Quincy on our declaring war with Spain. He was called by many a crank at the time, for beside the flag he had a sign printed on it, reading thus: "This banner will wave till Cuba is free from the clutches of Spain." Many remarked that it would be worn out before that would happen, but the dear old flag looks as proud as ever and has witnessed not only Cuba, but the Philippines, Porto Rico, Guam and other islands of the sea wearing the same ensign. Long may she wave.

—"Talk about prosperity," remarks the Cincinnati Commercial. "Why, from one small township in Kansas five farmers have gone to the Paris Exposition, and taken their families along."

—The loudest speakers in Congress are Senator Tillman and Representative Brosius, Mr. Brosius speaks with a long, deep roar, while Senator Tilman, when fairly wrought up to his subject, speaks in spasmodic shrieks.

IT IS DEPLORABLE.

So Says H. H. Faxon of the Council Expenditures.

Quincy, May 31, 1900.

Editors of the Ledger:

For the purpose of enlightening the taxpayers in regard to the recent action of the City Council in appropriating $1,000, for a concrete sidewalk on Water street, from Franklin to Quincy street, I have carefully investigated the matter with the following results:

There were thirty petitioners for a concrete sidewalk, who represented that they were "citizens and taxpayers" of Ward Three. Of this number, fifteen pay only a poll tax of $2, each, seven are not assessed for even a poll tax, and the remaining eight property owners pay a tax (including poll assessment) of $370.60.

Eight remonstrants, comprising all the abutters, pay a property tax in Ward Three of $1,509.25, and if any special benefits were to have been derived, these citizens surely would not have objected to anything that would increase the value of their property. The fact is, there are but few sidewalks in the city which are in better order than the one in question; while there are many where the travel is heavy that are not in nearly as good condition.

It surprises me, that in view of the opposition of those who are directly interested, a committee with ordinary intelligence should make a report in favor of so extravagant an expenditure of the people's money, and I cannot believe that they ever examined the premises. Equally astonishing is the action of the Council, even after the Committee's report, in passing the order with but two dissenting votes and this unwise expenditure and arbitrary proceeding further receiving the approval of the Mayor.

My father pastured sheep, and I well remember hearing him say that an old bell-wether would never lead the flock over a fence or wall in the pasture unless he could see that the landing on the other side was safe. If the members of the Council were endowed with as much instinct in financial affairs as the bell-wethers exhibit in caring for the safety of their flocks, the interests of the taxpayers would be better guarded than they now are.

It is deplorable that the great business interests of our city are so poorly represented in the Council. The ambition of a majority of the members of this body is centered in themselves or their rotten parties. There are many councilmen whose chief desire is to pose as the lion of their own Ward, as a passport to further political honors from their constituents.

In order that the Ward Three real estate owners may realize the burdens upon their visible property, I herewith submit a statement in regard to the net income which I receive from an estate which is located upon said Water street, where good sidewalks are to be torn up and replaced by concrete.

Burglars at Wollaston.

For the last fortnight there has almost been an epiemic of burglaries at Wollast. These have all taken place at about noon and have been the work of one or two sneak thieves, who have evidently made that place their headquarters for the time being. The burglaries have all taken place within a small radius. Mr. Samuel P. Hanson's house on Elmwood avenue was entered in the day time while the occupants were absent and a quantity of jewelry, etc., was taken. Then come the McKeon burglary and later the one at the Dunn place on Newport avenue; at the latter place the burglars secured $60 in cash besides other valuables. On Thursday noon an attempt was made to enter Charles H. Backus' house on Arlington street, but the thief skipped before he could be apprehended.

—Illiteracy in North Carolina is increasing, particularly among the whites. By the census of 1870 there were 33,111 illiterate white voters in North Carolina; in 1880 44,420, in 1890 49,570—an average increase of 800 illiterate voters a year, and a total of 21 per cent. of the entire white voting population.

Witness—"Never, your honor; but I've seen him when I strongly suspected he'd been at it."

SUBSTANTIAL STYLES.

Lasting Satisfaction In Standard Articles of Dress.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, May 8.—I have just come home with my mind full of the loveliest things that were ever made, it seems to me now, and doubtless will until I stumble across something else. The seeker after new things is always falling in and out of love with novelties, and it is only the solid and sterling goods that last, and their latter days are better than the first. There is keen delight in seeing new and beautiful things, but there is lasting satisfaction in having a good and standard article of dress that does not weary the owner as the novelties are so apt to do. These lovely new things took the shape of silk crape in many new shades of color and weave. The crape is double width so as to cut the present shapes with advantage, and the principal colors are a new pink of the delicate shade that one finds in the inside of a shell and the new turquoise which has a distinct green cast. Besides these there are sunshine yellow and any number of pale blues and helios and creams that grow into golden brown as the different tints are developed. This crape is woven with all the soft and heavy feel that makes it the most graceful of all kinds of stuff.

The crape is intended for elegant gowns for grand functions in the fall. Few will see it before then, as it has not been shown at retail yet. The surface has the regular weave of the material, but over this is a series of the daintiest of tiny flowers, all in the same tint, but this is beyond measure lovely. It is called the Ophelia crape, and it is not often that a name fits so well.

Of all the made up things just now the lace dresses and the fine black woolen dresses are the most remarkable in every point of view. The black skirts are the swellest of them all, and they may be made with a jacket and shirt waist of some kind. A full line of the finest and most elegant black silk warp and all wool goods has been provided, some of them being really more stylish than silk. There are several new weaves of black crepon, but these have rather smaller figures than those of last year. They gain in appearance. Skirts of this are handsome. A black all wool poplin with a barege cord is a novelty that will take, I am sure, as it drapes like an angel. There are several entirely new weaves in all wool fancies, the designs in small figures, such as dots, lozenges and chevron stripes, besides many pretty, small dots interwoven with rings and stripes.

The ever beautiful drap d'alma is shown in a new and finer quality, if such a thing could be. This makes a most beautiful costume and can be tailor treated, like cloth, and has the advantage of being lighter, and it never loses its luster, no matter what disasters may befall it. The soft and glossy silk warp melrose also has something new and more perfect, and the fine silk warp whipcord and diagonal weave and the beautiful silk warp eudora cloth are softer, finer and more lustrous than before, and nothing in silk and wool ever has or ever can compare with eudora.

White is for summer, and when made after the design of the dress shown in this illustration could scarcely be improved upon. This very dainty gown is made of Russian net with a large and rather straggling pattern in lace applique. Around the bottom is a Dewey flounce, bordered and headed by a pretty edging of the lace. In point of fact, this lace is made by sewing into the design the tape lace made for the purpose, and then stitching in the centers. There is no limit to the lovely things a clever girl can make with a little patience and the tape lace, which can be bought for a trifle, and the net is not costly. It is handwork that costs. It is understood that the dress is lined with oriental silk or taffeta, as one will. The waist is lined but half way up, and the sleeves not at all. The pattern of the applique is the same on the waist, only smaller, and it is simply made, but exceedingly effective. A new fad is to have a belt made of the lace and fastened in front by a fancy gilt or jeweled clasp.

WOLLASTON CUP.

Is Won by A. G. Lockwood of Allston Golf Club.

Although out-of-town golf clubs had but six or seven entries out of 27, in the open tournament of the Wollaston golf club, one of these half dozen won the Wollaston cup. In the semi-finals Smith fell his victim by a score of 4 up and 2 to play, while Atherton defeated Wellington.

In the finals the first round was halved. Lockwood led at the 11th hole, but it was again a tie at the 12th which Lockwood made in 2. From that out Atherton fell behind and Lockwood was a victor.

The summary:

Rideout's Case.

The case of William S. Rideout, a former resident of Malden and Quincy, was called for trial Thursday in the Hudson county court of general sessions New York on an indictment for bigamy. His lawyer, James S. Graybill, entered a plea of non vult and asked for the clemency of the court. Rideout several months ago left his wife and family in Malden, and eloped with Miss Winifred Alden. Col. Graybill promised the court that if sentence was suspended Rideout would return to Malden and provide for his wife and family.

Judge Blair said he would look into the case and give a decision next Thursday.

Blue Flame Oil Stoves For Summer Use.

These stoves appeal to the woman of the house, who bears the burden of cooking. They are the most wonderful invention of the age. Contrast if you will, working in an over heated kitchen over a red hot stove, and cooking in a kitchen as cool as any room in your house. With one of our Blue Flame Stoves you have a fire piping hot in a twinkling, ready to bake, roast, boil or fry. No dust, no ashes, no coal, no wood. A purified, clear blue flame like gas, made from common oil. They are as unlike the old style oil stove, as night is unlike day. Think if you will for a moment, the economy and comfort in using one of these stoves.

It will please us to show you how they work.

There are two ways of securing a duck.
The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.
We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.
Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than
Kincaide's Way.
He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it
Is Superior.
It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

QUINCY DELIGHTFUL.

A Field Lesson in Geology in the City of Granite.

"Some years ago," said a gentleman, riding out of Boston by the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine Railroad, "some years ago, I stood on the capstone of Bunker Hill Monument unsupported."

For a moment the shock of breathless terror produced by the thought of such an experience prevented those who heard the statement from making any inquiries. When, however, astonishment gave way to curiosity, they eagerly asked for the details of his adventure, and at length drew forth the information that at the time referred to the capstone lay on its native ground in the quarry at West Quincy.

Long before the events that made Bunker Hill Monument possible, the beautiful, dark-colored, hornblendic granite at Quincy had recommended itself to the colonists as a building stone. They were, however, very apprehensive lest the supply should become exhausted. Hence when the larger King's Chapel was built about the small house of worship first constructed it was enacted in legislative assembly that no stone should be taken from the Quincy quarry for other puroses than the building of King's Chapel until the chapel should be completed.

It is also related that at the time the monument was being built a church was in process of construction in Quincy and that the citizens, in alarm lest there should not be enough stone for themselves and their neighbors, refused to allow blocks to be cut for the monument until the church was done.

One looking over the surface outlined by the derricks today and down into the pits where men are working 120 feet or more below the surface can fully appreciate the absurdity of these early fears.

Quincy granite is composed of a dark grayish orthoclase and a still darker smoky quartz. It contains no mica, but a moderate amount of hornblende as an accessory mineral. The crystals of this latter mineral are quite perfect, those of orthoclase much less so, while the quartz has but irregularly filled the interspaces. It is a typical plutonic rock, and at one time was covered by 10,000 feet perhaps of sedimentary rocks.

The rugged hills formed of this granite, the relics of crosion or the destructive agency of the solar forces rise in bold contrast to the smooth, rounded drumlins which thickly scattered about, remain to attest the constructive power of ice action.

Horizontal jointing appears here as at Fitchburg. According to the usual explanation that the joints are joints of expansion caused by the heat of the sun's rays, the thickness of the layers should increase with each removal from the surface, and such very often is the case. At Quincy, however, where the jointing was most evident, the reverse was true

Five or six series of vertical joints are also found here. These are joints of contraction, and are supposed to be the result of tortion.

Although the jointed stucture of the granite facilitates weathering along the lines of fracture, still it is of great advantage to the workmen who remove the blocks of stone from the mass for the most part as nature formed them.

Undoubtedly the largest block taken from the West Quincy quarry was cut for the New Orleans Custom House. It was forty feet long by five wide and thick. No lighter could support it, and for years it lay unused near the quarry. Finally a short time ago it was split into three pieces and thus removed.

As a building stone this granite has proved its durability through long exposure to or New England climate, so unkind to most stones. It also receives a high polish and thus is very desirable for ornamental purposes. In the process of polishing the blocks, smoothed a little from the first rough cutting are subjected to friction under a powder of chilled steel, which being in the form of tiny globules resembles poppy-seed as much as anything; they are further smoothed with a powder of carborundum; and at last polished off with felt and a fine slicious powder. The cost of polishing, which a few years ago as five dollars a square foot, has been reduced to less than a dollar.

The quarrymen are paid according to the amount they do, and earn from three to four dollar a day.

Glacial phenomena in the form of roches Moutonnees and striations are abundant about the quarries. One particularly fine groove, however, is fast disappearing under the hands of the workmen.

Another interesting feature is the side of a large dike of diabase exposed for a considerable distance by the removal of enclosing granite. The rapid weathering of the diabase was noticeable in contrast with the durability of the granite and especially along the line of contact.

The views from the height, the wildwood paths leading along the sides of the hills, the abundance of early spring flowers and particularly of the dogwood which is just now in the prime of its luxuriant beauty, contribute much to make this day at Quincy a feast of delightful remembrances.—Boston Transcript.

MILTON.

The old stone house on Granite place, which has been a landmark in this section of the town has been torn down. The house was built in 1837, the year the Quincy Patriot was established, by a man named Flanders. From him it passed into the hands of John Bates, and was known far and wide as the Bates house. Upon the death of Mr. Bates, the estate passed into the hands of A. A. Brackett. Mr. Brackett has built a number of houses in this section, and the demolishing of the old building was made necessary by contemplated improvements.

A billiard and pool tournament is in progress at the Unquity club rooms.

The new organ at the Mission of Our Saviour church will be used for the first time at Sunday's services.

The State is rebuilding Granite avenue.

The fire department was called out on still alarms for slight fires last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Christopher Graham has recovered from his recent injuries, and is at his store again.

The regular business meeting of the Thursday Evening club was held this week.

Special Memorial day services were held Sunday at the East Milton churches.

The lawn about the East Milton fire station has been trimmed and cut and looks nicely.

Surprise at Downs.

About one hundred of the friends of Miss Carrie Saunders tendered her a surprise party at her pleasant home on Vassal street, Norfolk Downs, Tuesday evening. While Miss Saunders was absent the house and surrounding lawn had been decorated with Japanese lanterns and settees had been scattered here and there, making a pretty effect. A hurdy-gurdy furnished the music for dancing, and games, with vocal and instrumental music, made the evening pass all too quickly for the merry party. During a lull in the fun Mr. Clarence Seaman escorted Miss Saunders to a prominent place in the parlor, where he presented her with a handsome gold watch on behalf of her friends, making a witty speech. Miss Saunders replied, thanking them one and all in her own pleasant manner, and expressing a wish that all should enjoy the evening, which it is needless to say that they did. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at an early hour.

Monday Evening Club.

At the annual meeting of the Atlantic Monday Evening Club the retiring board of officers was elected for the ensuing year, viz:

President,—Rev. J. Holland Whitaker.

Vice President,—Mr. Charles A. Hall.

Secretary,—Miss Isabel F. P. Emery.

Treasurer,—Mrs. Charles L. Coe.

From the Secretary's report, it was learned that the club closed its season with a membership of two hundred and twenty-seven and the average attendance had been one hundred and fifty-one and four-tenths.

Withal the club had every reason to consider the year a prosperous one, its machinery had worked without friction, it had a good balance in its treasury, and its outlook for another year seemed to be very encouraging.

In the Inner Circle.

The Taunton Daily Gazette shows up a book agent who has worked Quincy as well as Taunton, as follows:

There are people in this city who agreed to pay $34 for a set of letters and messages from the President. They fell victims to the smooth wiles of a man who made them think that they were admitted to an inner circle. The tale he told was that a limited number of the books have been presented to prominent citizens of the district and this concern has acquired the plates and rights by gift of congress and he has been allotted a limited edition to pass around among a selected list of citizens. The family of suckers does not decrease with the lapse of time.

—The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs of the Legislature has reported a bill to transfer custody and control of Nantasket avenue and other public ways to Metropolitan Park Commission.

ADVERTISING IN THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER BRINGS GOOD RESULTS.

OLD COLONIAL STYLE.

Design For a Simple Yet Beautiful Cottage—Costs $2,000.

The old colonial style of architecture is unsurpassed for simplicity and beauty, for it is founded on principles approaching perfection. This style is especially adapted to cottages 1½ stories in height. By a careful study of the plans and perspective view here shown it will be seen that all available space has been well utilized, while the exterior is attractive enough to suit the most fastidious.

The arrangement of the principal rooms in the first story is convenient and sensible and could not, for the same space, be improved. The staircase hall is of fair size and communicates with the parlor on the right by means of sliding doors. The parlor in the same manner is separated from the dining room, all arranged so that the three rooms may be practically thrown into one when desired.

The chimney which carries off the smoke from the parlor fireplace is built partially on the outside of the house, thus making a picturesque feature of the exterior without taking up any space in the parlor. In the arrangement of the kitchen, pantry, closets, cellar stairs, etc., there is nothing especially new. The veranda railing is made close by first studding up and sheathing and shingling the same. The top of this railing is capped by a heavy plank, upon which the columns which support the story above rest.

In the second story the floor extends over this veranda, thus giving ample space for three good rooms, hall, bathroom and closets for all. The front and rear chambers and bathroom are lighted by windows in the gables, and the middle chamber and hall are lighted by large dormer windows. A small attic space for storage is obtained above the second story ceiling and is reached by a stepladder in the hall, in which a scuttle hole is arranged.

A cellar extends under the main building and has a concrete floor in the usual way. The walls of the foundation are of stone laid up in cement mortar. The veranda piers and chimneys are of hard brick laid with what is called "a water joint." All walls and end ceilings inside are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar. The building is balloon framed and the side walls sheathed with tongued and grooved boards, with roof covered with shingle lath, all papered with waterproof sheathing paper and shingled both on the sides and roof. All exterior finish is of white pine painted in two coats.

The triads and visers, newels, handrail and balustrades of stairs are of oak finished with a wood filler and three coats of varnish rubbed smooth. The floors are of kiln dried yellow pine. All other inside finish, including the doors and sash, is of white pine. The woodwork of the first story and the hall and bathroom in the second story has an oak finish. The woodwork of the other rooms in the second story has two coats of paint. In painting the woodwork of rooms there is a fashion or tendency toward light and delicate colors, which are weak and void of decorative effect. Use strong colors, with draperies and furniture in keeping with the tone, and the effect will be rich and harmonious. In one of the most charming chambers the writer has ever seen the woodwork was painted venetian red. The hardware in the first story is of bronze; in the second story jet knobs and copper bronzed ware. The building is heated by a hot air furnace. This house can be erected complete for $2,000.

Stick to One Style.

It is generally conceded that the most beautiful of all home architecture is the old colonial. Don't adulterate it though; don't set out with a colonial plan and add and trim with gable, turret, eaves, until your house is as bad a sum total as is the man in silk hat, round coat and carpet slippers. The beautiful home must first and of all things be perfect in its congruity.—Exchange.

The Old Maid

"Auntie, you promised me that when I was 18 you would tell me why you never married. I am 18 today."

"Very well, dear. I was just about your age when I 'came out,' and for months past I had looked forward to a London season and thought my first ball would never come. But the much looked for night came at last, and, when dressed and ready to start, I thought it the happiest moment of my life, but it was nothing to what followed. The flowers, the music, the lights, the bright dresses and the gay people wandering hither and thither—all dazzled me and put me in mind of fairyland. I did not lack partners and danced till the small hours of the morning. Every one said I had been a success, but I paid little attention to any of their remarks. I had enjoyed myself wildly. What more could I want to make me happy? I was very young.

"Soon after I met Mr. G. I remember it was almost my first dinner party, and, having sufficiently recovered myself from a fit of shyness, I looked round at my next door neighbor, and there, on my left, were two blue eyes laughing at me. He must have noticed my shyness, I fancied, and, with the pride of youth, I deeply resented it. After that I found the blue eyes nearly always smiled when they looked at me, and I got to love that smile, and even that evening I realized that only foolish 18 could take offense at such a trifle, so we laughed and made friends. All through dinner he talked to me a good deal, and I forgot my shyness and became communicative.

"After that evening we met frequently, danced together, rode together—in fact, hardly a day passed without our meeting, till at last I began to look for him, whether in the park or at a ball or concert. At that time life was brimming over with happiness. I had no very definite idea of the future, and the present was so sweet that I preferred not thinking of a change of any sort.

"The first spot on my happiness was at one ball, where I had expected to find Mr. G., and, though I was not enjoying things a bit, I did not want to come away. Perversity of human nature! And only in the carriage did I confess to myself that I had staid on in the hope of his turning up late. Well, he didn't, and it was with a somewhat heavy heart I went to sleep that night, but by next morning the cloud had passed away. Were we not going to meet and ride together?

"Could his presence make any difference to my enjoyment? At first I laughed at the idea, but soon found it was not to be laughed at. Where he was, there my enjoyment was complete, but where he was not I seldom cared to stay. Naturally people began to talk about us, and, as is the way of the world, speculated as to what would come of it: if it would be a good thing or not. Well, let them talk. What cared I? I was so certain he loved me that I smiled when people told me that Lady Dallas was doing all she knew to catch him for her daughter. Poor Alice Dallas! Why, he never so much as looked at her when I was near! How soon was pride to have a fall!

"The summer was nearly over, and people began to hurry away from London. We met again in the country and spent long days together, and again people began to wonder why he did not propose. Perhaps I was the person who wondered least, for was I not sure that sooner or later he undoubtedly would? Then, one Sunday evening, we parted, to meet again the following week, but somehow that meeting never came about. In the long months that followed I remembered him as I saw him last, waving his handkerchief from the carriage window.

"Then one day I heard he was engaged to Alice Dallas. At first I would not believe it, but when belief was forced upon me my grief knew no bounds. Till that day I hardly realized how fond I had grown of G., and the prospect of a long life without him appalled me. I cried as if my heart would break, and then pride came to my rescue. Full of courage and firm resolve, I took up the thread of my daily life and hoped not only to hide my feeling, but to still the dull, aching pain by plunging wildly into reckless excitement. It was all very well for a bit, but the reaction was bound to come, and I discovered that I must try some other remedy.

"We met several times after the engagement was announced—as friends—and I talked and laughed as in the old days, save perhaps for a touch of bitterness, which then I had never known, and the sound of my voice seemed hollow and unreal, perhaps because tears were so near the surface. Then came the wedding and subsequent congratulations, and I was among the first to offer mine, and was it fancy that I thought the bridegroom looked at me a little wistfully and was hardly as radiant as the occasion warranted? But, then, no one thought it was a love match! Had not Alice herself given out that she did not care for him? And he? But, then, why had he taken this step?"

Miss Daneby paused, and in the now fast gathering darkness Miriam could discern a silent tear, while she herself was not unmoved.

"Auntie," said the girl, slipping her hand into the old lady's, "when people love like that do they ever forget?"

"I don't think they ever quite forget, but time softens all grief and often leaves one the better for its mark. When I found that excitement could not heal my wound, I began, in a small way, to try to find some work to do, even if it were only helping those who were suffering around me. And when the first feeling of blank and utter loneliness had worn off I was able to settle to more regular occupation."

Miriam was silent; then slowly, as if touching on an almost sacred subject, "Auntie, is he—are they alive?" she asked.

"Yes, dear."

"And was there some mistake?"

"That, dear, I never now think of. Only One knows, but some day we, too, shall see face to face."—Exchange.

His Idea of Brutus.

A well known dramatic reader was making a tour of the west, and one evening he read "Julius Cæsar" to an audience which received it with evident delight. At all events, at the end of the evening they all insisted on shaking hands with their entertainer. Finally it came the turn of the local schoolmaster, who stepped up with that look of triumph which betokens the appropriate remark to come. "Ah, sir," he said, "while you were reading I could just see Brutus standing there in his flowing gown of purple, trimmed with the royal ermine."

A clean, vigorous shampoo, with an abundant lather of Ivory Soap, is delightful and refreshing. It cleanses the scalp, removes dandruff and leaves the hair glossy and clean.

REPEATING A GOOD STORY.

She Was Not a Drinker and Missed Its Point.

"My wife has just heard that old story about the man on the train and the corkscrew," said my neighbor. "The story goes this way: Man rises in a car and says, 'Is there a man from Bangor, Me., in the car?' 'Nother man gets up with an inquiring look on his face. 'I'm from Bangor,' says he. 'Well,' says the first feller, 'let me take your corkscrew.'

"My wife thought the story was pretty good. The other night I was out in the sitting room reading, and she was in the parlor talking with the woman from over the way. I had to stop reading and listen to this:

"'Oh, say,' says my wife, 'I heard an awfully funny story the other day. Now, let me think a minute. Can't be that I've forgotten it. Let's see. Oh, yes. This is it. The other day on the train a man got up in the car rail at once and shouted just as loud as he could, "Is there a man from Bangor, Me., in this car?" Every one jumped and looked at the man. One person down near the door stood up and said, "I'm from Bangor, sir." The other man then said, "Will you be kind enough to let me take your screwdriver?" There! Isn't that funny?'

"'He, he, he,' snickered the other woman a little easy. 'Yes, that's a real cute story; just as funny as it can be. But what did he mean? I guess I don't understand what it is about.'

"I could almost hear the wife thinking. Then says she: 'Well, my gracious, that doesn't sound so funny now. I wonder what the trouble is with it? Guess I didn't tell it right. But no matter. Oh, you were going to tell me about that new ribbon cake that'— and then I continued with my literary studies."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Result of McGowan Courtmartial.

Washington, June 1.—The naval court-martial which has been trying Captain McGowan on charges of scandalous conduct and neglect of duty in connection with the killing by him of a Filipino while in command of the Monadnock in the Philippines, has found the captain guilty of the charges and specifications and sentenced him to be suspended from duty on half sea pay for two years and to be reprimanded by the secretary of the navy. There is, however, a unanimous recommendation for clemency.

WAR VIRTUALLY OVER.

Occupation of Pretoria Will Mark Military Collapse of the Boers.

Kruger Has Fled and Left the City In Citizens' Charge.

Johannesburg Already In the Hands of British and the Capital Soon Will Be.

London, June 1.—Lord Roberts' troops entered Johannesburg yesterday; Pretoria has made all arrangements to open its gates to him when he pleases to rap; President Kruger has fled, notwithstanding his statement that he would meet the British when they came on his front door stoop; Buller's troops have occupied Utrecht and are moving on Vryheid preparatory to a turning movement on Laing's Nek, said to be held by 10,000 Boers; Baden-Powell and Hunter are moving toward the heart of the Transvaal from the west, and Carrington undoubtedly is performing his part from the north. Under these conditions it seems safe to assume that, unless the Transvaalers choose to fight a battle between Johannesburg and Pretoria, or at Lydenburg, to maintain their military honor, the war virtually is over.

Belated messages from Pretoria confirm the reports of the departure of President Kruger with his cabinet and staff officials Tuesday night and the selection, at a meeting of citizens, of a committee to administer the city provisionally.

Since these telegrams left on Wednesday nothing apparently has reached Lourenzo Marquez by telegraph from Pretoria. Possibly the wires have been cut. Possibly the Boer censorship at some intermediate point intercepts telegrams.

Although the war office has not received a word about it, no one in London harbors the idea that the Boer capital is not already in the hands of the British or about to be there. The possession of Johannesburg, at all events, as Lord Roberts has telegraphed, is a fact. States Attorney Smuts did not depart with President Kruger, but remained in Pretoria.

The present seat of the Boer government, according to a dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez, dated yesterday, is Middleberg, but it will probably be shifted further east.

The Boers lately confronting Lord Roberts appear to have gone eastward also, toward the Lydenburg region. The defenders of Laing's Nek, when their position becomes too perilous, will probably trek straight northward toward Lydenburg. When this concentration takes place there will be possibly 20,000 men, who may hold out for a time, with scattered bands of guerillas elsewhere.

The press dispatches from the headquarters of Lord Roberts give no estimate as to the number of Boers who were fighting General French and General Ian Hamilton Monday and Tuesday, but they all agree that the Boers retired, and that the British casualties were slight.

A dispatch to The Morning Post from Germiston, dated May 30, says: The enemy fought a rear guard action, retiring from the south to the north of the town with their pompoms and artillery in the morning, and withdrawing their riflemen through the town in the afternoon. We captured nine engines and over 100 wagons. Two trains are leaving tonight for the Vaal. We succeeded in cutting the line in three directions and imprisoning all the rolling stock in Johannesburg. It was a splendid piece of work. The enemy were astounded at the rapidity of our advance.

Some discussion is going on in London as to what will be done with President Kruger if he is captured. One idea is that he will be sent to St. Helena, another that he will be tried for treason.

Goes on Record as a Draw.

Chicago, June 1.—The six-round bout between Kid McCoy and Tommy Ryan at Tattersal's last Tuesday night, which Referee Hogan awarded to McCoy at the end of the sixth round, has now been officially declared a draw. Immediately after the fight Ryan protested against the decision. The Tattersal's Athletic association last night officially rescinded the decision.

A Plunge to Death.

Wilmington, Del., June 1.—George Huggins and J. R. Cunningham, while returning home in a buggy from a festival, plunged into an open canal draw. Huggins was instantly killed and Cunningham was fatally injured. The horse was killed and the buggy broken to pieces. The drop from the top of the abutment was about 90 feet.

New York, June 1.—Simon Kelly, for many years the almost absolute ruler of Weehawken, Hudson county, N. J., died last night from peritonitis. He was a member of the Democratic county committee for 27 years. So powerful was his influence in politics that he was known as King Simon.

Nihilists Quieted by Troops.

Vienna, June 1.—A correspondent at Warsaw sends an account of a rebellion of peasants in three Russian provinces. The rising is supposed to have been organized by nihilists. Martial law was proclaimed, and large bodies of troops quickly suppressed the insurgents.

TROOPS TO LEAVE PHILIPPINES.

An Early Return Home Necessitated by Provisions of the Army Bill.

Washington, June 1.—It has been decided by the war department that the movement for the return of the 34,000 volunteer troops now in the Philippines will begin in December. This date, which seems early, is necessitated by the fact that under the provisions of the army reorganization bill passed by the last congress all these troops must be returned to their recruiting places by June 30, 1891, and it will require six months at least to bring them home. There are now in the Philippines, in addition to these 34,000 men, about 31,000 regulars. The remainder of the 100,000 troops now comprising the army, including 1000 volunteers now in Porto Rico, are in the United States, Cuba, Hawaii and Porto Rico. Of the 31,000 regulars in the Philippines, 21,000 must also return by July 1, 1901, leaving but 10,000 troops of any kind there after that date.

Most of the 17,500 regulars who will fill out the complement of the army of 87,500 men after July 1, 1901, will probably be sent to the Philippines. But even with, say, 10,000 of these regulars sent there, the total force in the Philippines one year hence will be but 20,000.

The situation emphasizes what Chairman Hull of the house committee on military affairs said last Saturday, that we must have a new army bill and at least as large an army as we have now if we expect to hold the Philippines, even if we have no urgent need of additional troops in any of our other insular possessions and if the Indians remain peaceful. The war department of course expects that a new army bill will be passed and that 20,000 men, with only about 17,000 available for service, will not be left to fight for supremacy with the Filipinos.

Several firemen received bruises or cuts, but their injuries were not serious. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A DUEL AT CLOSE RANGE.

St. Louis Policeman Shot by a Striker, Who Is Killed by Another Officer.

St. Louis, June 1.—Albert Koenig, a union man, emptied the contents of a shotgun into the body of Police Officer Crane and was himself instantly killed by a bullet from the revolver of Officer Maher on Broadway, near the Southern Electric power house, late last night.

It seems that Koenig was walking back and forth in front of the power house with a shotgun on his shoulder, declaring that he was a union man and defying the Transit company and its non-union employes. Officer Crane approached him and asked him to take his gun home. Koenig replied in vehement terms that he would do nothing of the sort, and when the officer grappled with him in an effort to disarm him the man brought his weapon to his shoulder and, aiming it at Crane, pulled the trigger. The officer sank to the ground unconscious.

Maher was near by and, running up to Koenig, demanded his surrender. Koenig made a threatening movement and Maher shot him, killing him instantly.

Crane is dying. Much excitement prevails in the neighborhood where the tragedy occurred.

Adverse Action on Indian Claim.

Washington, June 1.—The claim to extensive portions of the Chicago lake front, valued at $150,000,000, put forward by a band of the Pottawatomie Indians, was adversely acted upon by the house committee on Indian affairs. The claim was set up under the old titles of the Indians as the original occupants of this section. The committee decided that even if the tribe had an interest in the lake front, this particular band setting up the claim has no interest in it, as the band separated from the tribe in 1833, and has since been a detached body in Michigan.

ROBERTS STILL SILENT.

Suspicion That Boers May Strongly Resist His Entry Into Pretoria.

Peace Party May Have Been Overruled by War Element.

Reports as to the Whereabouts of Kruger Are of a Most Conflicting Character.

London, June 2.—There is a great scarcity of news from the front, and the story of the operations which resulted in the taking of Johannesburg has not yet come through. It seems idle to speculate on the immediate future with the information at hand.

Lord Roberts continues silent regarding Pretoria, probably because he cannot wire events from his own knowledge. Lourenzo Marquez, where all the news from the Boer side is relayed, cables that communication with Pretoria is now suspended.

Messages by courier have reached Lourenzo Marquez, but none of later date than Wednesday. They assert that the burghers are in a state of panic and that Pretoria is being controlled by a vigilance committee. Lourenzo Marquez again sends the report that President Kruger has been captured.

This news gives rise to a suspicion that the citizens' committee at Pretoria may not have been able to carry out their plan for securing the peaceful entry of Lord Roberts and sparing the city the horrors of a siege. The peace party appeared to be in the ascendant and, as soon as President Kruger and his cabinet left Pretoria to organize a new capital, the citizens' committee persuaded the commandants of the forts to withdraw some of the troops from the defenses, perhaps with the view of keeping order in the town. If messengers were sent to the British, or if the British, being two hours march from Pretoria on Wednesday, entered it, then or at any time prior to Friday noon, Lord Roberts would certainly have telegraphed this fact. Hence it looks as though there was a Boer force between Pretoria and Johannesburg.

These soldiers falling back toward Pretoria, some of them fresh from the fight with General Ian Hamilton, would have brought a new element into the situation and would probably overrule the peace committee, taking the direction of affairs out of their hands. If this happened, the British may, as The Daily Chronicle says, see some "hard fighting before the British flag flies over Pretoria," for even if the Boers held only three forts standing close together on the hills south of the town, they would be in a position to stand a siege.

The Boers, according to a special dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez, have reentered the northeastern territory of the Free State and are engaged with the British near Ventersburg and Harrismith.

It is reported from Amsterdam that the best rooms at one of the principal hotels there have been engaged for President Kruger's occupancy from Junen 25.

General Buller is moving slowly against the Boer flanks.

The Times has the following from Lourenzo Marquez, dated June 1: Reports of the most conflicting character are current here, due to the activity of the Boer agents. While one section declares that President Kruger has returned to Pretoria for the purpose of arranging terms of surrender, another asserts that the British have been repulsed outside of Pretoria. Nothing authentic is known here regarding Mr. Kruger's whereabouts or the situation in the Transvaal.

General Warren, with 700 men, occupied a strong defensive position at Fabersput on May 29. At dawn he found that he was surrounded, and he was fiercely attacked by 1000 rebels. The horses were stampeded, but the force concentrated and the Boers were repulsed. A small party in a garden continued to fight tenaciously, but evacuated as the charge began, leaving a number of wounded. The British lost 15 killed, including Colonel Spence, and 30 wounded.

Various German newspapers take exception to the terms of the proclamation which it is said Lord Roberts will issue on the occupation of Pretoria by the British troops, especially regarding the treatment of non-combatants as opposed to combatant burghers. The Vossische Zeitung says:

Were the Boers who have honorably fought for their country to be punished after the conclusion of peace the civilized powers would have cause to protest. Any detention or trial of President Kruger would be contrary to the traditions of international law, a general amnesty being the logical result of peace.

Gold Medals For Record Breakers.

Amherst, Mass., June 2.—The second annual meet of the New England Tri-collegiate Athletic association was held here on Friday and was won by Williams, with 62 5-6 points. Amherst scored 47½ and Wesleyan 24 2-3. Twelve records were broken. Williams college receives the tri-collegiate banner, and the men who broke records will each receive a gold medal.

Concord, N. H., June 2.—A local establishment filled an order on Friday for six police wagons for the municipality of Havana. Another concern shipped a $1000 order of plumbers' supplies to Moscow.

TRUTH SHOULD BE KNOWN.

Havana Postmaster Would Have Rathbone Tell All He Knows—Reeves Under Arrest.

Havana, June 2.—The Post, replying editorially to the statement of The Lucha that Mr. Rathbone would not submit much longer to the slights being put upon him, says:

This suggestion is as daring as it is insinuating. If the fact be that Mr. Rathbone has been extravagant to a reprehensible and even criminal degree, and if he had authority from any quarter for so doing, it in no way lessens his responsibility to allege that he let himself as a party to the wrong; nor will it excuse him in the least to add to that crime the offense of concealing another. If he knows anything discreditable, no matter how high it touches, he should make it public.

The people are willing to believe Mr. Rathbone guiltless until the contrary has been proved; but let there be no games of bluff, and no insinuations that whatever crime has been committed is to be condoned because authorized by those higher in office.

A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of former Deputy Auditor Reeves, who was lodged in jail, his bail being fixed at $1500. It is now believed that Reeves in his so-called "confession" only gave half the truth. Indeed, the delay in placing him behind the bars was largely due to the desire of the officials to obtain the remainder of his information regarding Neely's evolutions.

A very important feature relates to an allegation that Neely gave another man $15,000. This, if true, can only be established in the United States; and an inspector will leave Havana shortly to investigate. Reeves asserts that heavy mortgages were lifted from the property of the accused individual by funds that could not have been obtained in any other way than through Neely.

Looks Bad For Alden.

Quincy, Mass., June 2.—Affairs took rather a more serious turn yesterday for Gustavus Alden, in the local court, where he has been under arraignment for assaulting young women on the streets after dark. There was a number of women who testified against Alden. Miss Minnie Curtin alleged that Alden grabbed her and attempted to assault her, at the same time announcing that he would stab her if she made any outcry. An additional warrant was served against Alden on this complaint, alleging attempt at criminal assault, and his bail was increased to $800.

Burglars Busy In Maine.

Buckfield, Me., June 2.—A series of bold operations by burglars, which began with the attempt to rob the South Berwick National bank, last week, and which included the destruction of the safe in the postoffice at Mechanic Falls, last Wednesday night, when $4000 in money and stamps was stolen, was continued here early Friday morning, when a gang of five men broke into the postoffice and after blowing off the outer door of the safe were fired upon by a citizen whom they had awakened. The burglars fled without having secured any booty.

Boer Envoys Start Westward.

Springfield, Mass., June 2.—The Boer envoys arrived in this city yesterday afternoon on their way to Albany and were given a cordial greeting and much applause. Mayor Hayes extended the city's welcome at a public reception. One thousand people gathered to hear Mr. Fischer's speech of appreciation of the kindness of America. Mr. Wessels said at the reception that the fall of Pretoria by no means ends the war. The visitors left for Buffalo last evening.

Maguire Indicted by Grand Jury.

Boston, June 2.—The federal grand jury was called in yesterday for the case of Edward M. Maguire, the Waltham letter carrier who is charged with abstracting the contents of a letter from the mail. An indictment was returned against Maguire and he was brought into the district court and pleaded not guilty. He was held in $1500 bail for the next session of the court.

Bonner Whipped by McCoy.

New York, June 2.—Kid McCoy added another to his long list of victories last night by defeating Jack Bonner in 13 rounds. Bonner's seconds were forced to throw up the sponge in order to save their man from being knocked out. Bonner proved to be game to the core, and it took all of McCoy's cleverness and hard hitting capabilities to bring the big miner down.

Printing Plants to Amalgamate.

New York, June 2.—The Times publishes the following: It was admitted at the office of the Martin B. Brown company yesterday that negotiations are pending looking to the amalgamation of a number of large printing plants here and in Albany. No details were given except that the combination is being arranged by an English capitalist.

Moors Marching on the French Posts.

Paris, June 2.—A dispatch from Oran says that the latest information from south Algiers foreshadows grave events. Several thousand armed Moors are marching to attack the three chief French stations of occupation, including Igli. The French are reinforcing all three points and strong outposts have been established.

Loss Not So Heavy as Expected.

Boston, June 2.—From examinations it appears that the loss from the fire at the store of the Pitts-Kimball company Thursday night will not exceed $125,000. This is covered by insurance. It was figured just after the fire that the damage would reach $250,000.

Triple Fatality on a Steamer.

Key West, June 2.—As the steamship Bolivar was preparing to sail from this port yesterday an explosion occurred in the boiler room. Engineer Thompson, Fireman Peal and a boy named Hancock were scalded to death

TO SEIZE A POSITION.

Activity of Boxers May Be Due to the Scheming of a European Power.

Americans Gave Movement an International Aspect.

Anti-Foreign Society Has Apparently Set the Whole of Northeast of China Aflame.

Washington, June 2.—It is hinted in diplomatic circles here that the sudden increase of activity on the part of the Chinese Boxers is nothing more than part of a well-conceived plan by one of the great European powers to secure a permanent lodgment in Pekin and to seize a position, giving it full control of the great Pei Ho river, the approach to the Chinese capital.

It is further intimated that the plan has proved abortive owing to the alertness of the other European powers represented in Chinese waters, but particularly because of the readiness of the United States minister, Mr. Conger, and the American rear admiral on board the Newark, which at once gave the movement an international aspect, and so tended to prevent the particular nation concerned from aggrandizing itself at the expense of other nations. There it is assumed that the excitement will rapidly abate, and the Boxers will disperse, temporarily at least.

Twenty-three warships are now at Taku—nine Russian, three British, three German, three French, two American, two Japanese and one Italian.

In addition to their crews, the Russians have on board their warships 11,000 troops from Port Arthur, with field equipment. Fourteen thousand Russian troops are held in readiness at Port Arthur.

The Boxers began their raids in October last, and their movement has grown till they seem to have set the whole of northeast China aflame. The Boxers are avowedly an anti-foreign society. The society covers a wide area, being strongly organized in Hunan and other central provinces on the Yang Tse river as well as in Shan-Tung and Pe Chi Li provinces in the northeast of China proper.

If the report is true that a force of the Boxers of Hunan are on their way north to reinforce their brethren in Pe Chi Li, it may be said that the anti-foreign activity of this society now extends through China on a line that is 850 miles long. The scenes of their numerous murders and outrages within the past eight months extend over a territory that measures 350 miles north and south, from southwestern Shan-Tung to the neighborhood of Pekin. The width of the territory in which outrages have been reported varies from about 75 miles in Shan-Tung to about 170 miles in the latitude of Tien Tsin.

In other words, as near as can be estimated from the reports as to the localities where the Boxers have murdered native Christians and destroyed their property or that of the mission stations, this series of outrages has extended over an area of about 3000 square miles, and the area has been increasing very rapidly within the past few weeks.

The most recent report says that the Boxers have killed eight Methodist missionaries. No definite details with regard to these alleged murders have been received. If the report is true they have departed from their policy, which has been to let the missionaries alone. To be sure, a small party of Boxers in December last murdered Rev. Sydney Brooks in Shan-Tung, but this crime appears to have been committed without the approval of the leaders of the movement.

The Boxers did not desire early in their offensive operations to incense the powers so far as to cause their direct intervention for the restoration of order, and so they have waged their war upon foreigners only by killing native Christians and destroying mission property at out-stations, while stopping short of shedding the blood of white men.

Charges Against a School Principal.

Lynn, Mass., June 2.—At a special meeting of the school board last night to hear any charges that might be preferred against Principal Russell of the Lynn classical high school, it was decided to hold another meeting for the same purpose on June 8. At a previous meeting of the board E. H. Brock opposed the renomination of Mr. Russell and made certain charges against him, the result being the calling of last night's meeting.

Weavers Withdraw From Parent Body.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 2.—At a meeting of the Blackstone Valley Weavers' association it was voted to withdraw from the National Federation of Textile Operatives. The future of the Blackstone valley association is in doubt, as many of its members have gone to other places. The association will either disband or join the Socialist Trades and Labor alliance.

Explosion In Kodak Factory.

Rochester, N. Y., June 2.—A heavy explosion occurred in the chemical room of the Eastman Kodak company's works here yesterday afternoon. George R. Tracy was struck on the head by a piece of flying wood and instantly killed. Frank Maynard was painfully injured and seven other men escaped with minor injuries. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Said Work of Burglars.

Des Moines, June 2.—The savings bank at Sheldahl was blown up by four robbers last night. They secured $1600 and escaped after holding 50 or more citizens at bay with rifles while they looted the wrecked vaults.

COMMISSIONER PECK UNDER FIRE.

American Exhibitors at Paris Exposition Allege Unfair Discrimination.

Washington, June 2.—The state department has received a letter from Delegate Flynn of Oklahoma, transmitting a complaint from an American exhibitor at the Paris exposition alleging that space for exhibits in the American section is being openly disposed of for a pecuniary consideration. As was done in the case of other allegations received at the state department touching administration of the American exhibit these particular charges have been referred to United States Commissioner Peck at Paris for report.

F. W. PECK.

Representative Levy of New York yesterday introduced the following bill in the house:

"That on and after the passage of this act the power vested in the commissioner general for the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900 to employ experts and other necessary officers or clerks and to disburse appropriations incident to the participation of the United States in said exposition is hereby transferred to the secretary of state, who shall make such appointments and disburse such money as may be now or hereafter appointed.

"The commissioner general for the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900 is hereby directed to render a monthly report to the secretary of state of the number of employes, their occupation and salaries. That the report authorized under the act of June 30, 1899, giving the results of the exposition shall be prepared under the direction of the secretary of state."

Berlin In Need of Purification.

Berlin, June 2.—The Berlin synod, now holding its annual session, yesterday discussed Berlin immorality and methods of combating it. Rev. Dr. Von Asch asserted that Berlin contained 50,000 professional prostitutes, besides a "large number of school girls practicing immorality at their parents' urging." The synod resolved to lay the fact before the imperial officials, with a request to bring about a "better system of supervision and prevention."

Oleo In Undertaker's Cellar.

Waterbury, Conn., June 2.—Nearly two tons of oleomargarine in tubs was found yesterday by dairy officers in the cellar of the undertaking establishment of Martin Bergen & Son. The officers obtained a warrant for the arrest of Proprietor Farley of the Boston butter house, which is located in the same building with the undertaking room, and to whom, the officers believe, the oleomargarine was consigned.

Looks Like a Boycott.

Lynn, Mass., June 2.—There was a parade last night of the Retail Clerks' association and representatives of other labor organizations, followed by a mass meeting, at which a certain retail dealer was denounced for not closing his store early. A resolution was adopted declaring the intention of the clerks and other labor organizations to withdraw all their trade from the dealer in question.

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

Good Afternoon.

The Bostons have lost but seven more games than the leaders, of the National base ball league, the Philadelphias. They have scored five successive victories.

It is important that every citizen of Quincy, whether absent or at home, should be recorded by the census enumerators, that the city may take its proper rank. Everyone in the household — babies, domestics, and boarders—should be included. Some are not so sanguine as the Ledger, that the population now is over 25,000, but we would not be surprised if it went over 26,000.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There is no need of a lobby, and it ought not to be endured, and if there were no corruptible legislators there would be no corrupting influence.—Lynn Item.

☞The Methodists of the country in general assembly have honored themselves by refusing to pass resolutions in condemnation of President McKinley because he saw fit to uphold the decision of the attorney-general with respect to the canteen law. Many of the criticism hurled at the president because of his attitude upon this question have been childish in the extreme.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞The legislator who attends to his duty and whose acts are thoroughly open and agove board has nothing to fear from the press. Differences of opinion there may be as regards the proper disposition to be made of certain measures; but the honesty of the legislator stands in no danger of being impugned unless his own conduct creates the suspicion of wrongdoing.—Brockton Times.

☞The American system of education soon to be established in the Philippines will have great influence in giving the islands balance and in preparing them for the measure of self-government which the United States is anxious to give them when they show they are prepared for it. The American school is going to revolutionize matters in Porto Rico too as will be quickly seen. Here will be some triumphs of peace which will be as notable as any which the United States has won in war.—Milford Journal.

☞One of the remedies proposed in San Francisco for overcrowded street cars is half fare for passengers who cannot obtain seats. This will be no help. On the contrary it will give car crowding a legal standing, and so tend to perpetuate the nuisance. Plenty of passengers will be willing to stand for the sake of half their fare. If they alone were concerned, we do not know that anybody need greatly care. But beside them are the people who stand because they have to stand. They are entitled to some consideration. In the summer particularly, when the open street cars are used, the standing passenger is a miserable object from any point of view, not to be encouraged by any inducements in the way of half fares.—New Bedford Standard.

HUGGER SQUEEZED.

Sentenced and Also Held for the Grand Jury.

The young women of Quincy who have occasion to be about evenings unattended will be glad to learn that at least one of the men who have the habit of suddenly making their appearance from behind fences and buildings and insulting them, will not do so again for a time. For some weeks past, young women who frequent Granite street, have been annoyed by "the Hugger," and Officer Bradley, who was detailed to look up the matter, has worked diligently to bring the offender to justice.

Circumstances led him to believe that Gustavus Alden was the man wanted, but owing to the natural feeling of modesty, it was difficult to get the young women to consent to appear against him, on account of the publicity which must follow.

As there was no other course left, Ida Anderson, Margaret Frazier, Gertrude Englund and Minnie Curtin consented to appear against the fellow whom they had pointed out to Officer Bradley as the man.

When the case was called Friday the witnesses were examined separately, and no question of Alden's counsel could shake their testimony. As a result Alden was found guilty on the three assault cases, and was held for the grand jury upon the attempted assault case.

The women of Quincy, as a whole, owe the young women their thanks for appearing in court, and to Officer Bradley is also due thanks, for he certainly merits great credit for the thorough manner in which he prepared the case for the government's counsel.

Now International.

The Quincy local of the Retail Clerks International Association which includes salemen in all branches of the retail trade, clothing, dry goods, groceries, hats, shoes, drugs, provisions, hardware, millinery, furnishings, stationery,—excepting the liquor trade—met Thursday evening in French's hall and elected by ballot the following officers for the next ensuing term:

First Vice President, Peter Ford.
Second Vice President, Henry J. Matthews.
Financial Secretary, John H. Guynon.
Treasurer, Albion J. Dixon.
Recording Secretary, Fred Prout.

Trustees, James Daley, Albion Dixon, Will J. Howard.

New Bridge.

The Norfolk County Commissioners Tuesday passed a decree widening the bridge over the Neponset River, between the town of Milton and the city of Boston, commonly known as Adams street bridge, at Milton Lower Mills, on the grounds that it is too narrow and that public necessity and convenience required the widening. The superstructure of the new bridge is to be of iron and steel attached to and supported by stone work. The bridge is to have a sidewalk eight feet wide, with plank floor and neat iron railing, on the west line of Adams street The work is to be done by the town of Milton, within six months, and the town is also to bear all the expense of making the alteration.

Installed at Newport.

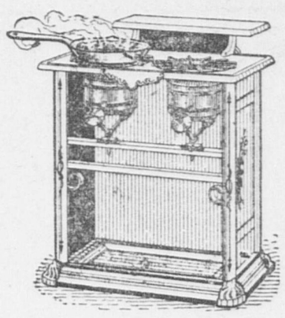

The Rev. Charles H. Porter, Jr., son of ex-Mayor Porter of this city, was installed last evening as minister of the Channing Memorial church at Newport, R. I., having been unanimously called to succeed Rev. George H. Cutter. The services were largely attended, including parents and friends from Quincy, and clergymen of various denominations in Newport.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Paul B. Frothingham of the Arlington Street church, Boston. The Rev. William Reed of Cambridge offered prayer and read the scriptures, the Rev. George H. Badger of Boston gave the charge to the minister, the Rev. Alfred R. Hussey of Taunton, the right hand of fellowship, the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, secretary of the American Unitarian Association, the charge to the church. The new pastor pronounced the benediction, and at the close of the services held an informal reception.

—The Pitts-Kimball Co.'s big department store in Boston was completely ruined by fire, smoke and water on Thursday evening. Loss estimated at $250,000. Several hundred employes will be affected. The Park theatre and Gould's hotel adjacent on Washington street suffered by water damage.

Blue Flame Oil Stoves For Summer Use.

These stoves appeal to the woman of the house, who bears the burden of cooking. They are the most wonderful invention of the age. Contrast if you will, working in an over heated kitchen over a red hot stove, and cooking in a kitchen as cool as any room in your house. With one of our Blue Flame Stoves you have a fire piping hot in a twinkling, ready to bake, roast, boil or fry. No dust, no ashes, no coal, no wood. A purified, clear blue flame like gas, made from common oil. They are as unlike the old style oil stove, as night is unlike day. Think if you will for a moment, the economy and comfort in using one of these stoves.

It will please us to show you how they work.

Knowledge and Wisdom, far from being one,
Have oftimes no connection. Knowledge dwells
In heads replete with thoughts of other men;
Wisdom in minds attentive to their own.
Knowledge, a rude unprofitable mass,
The mere materials with which Wisdom builds,
Till smooth'd and squared, and fitted to its place,
Does but incumber whom it seems to enrich.
Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.

The Institut National de Dance of Paris is without question the greatest of the kind in the world, being under the supervision of the French government. She creates and arranges her own dances, coaches the fancy dancers and corps de balles, and often leads the orchestra during their manipulations. How Would You Have Said It?

There is much in the way a thing is said. "Your cheeks are like roses," said Aunt Flora when Lois came in from a January walk, glowing from the cold and exercise. Lois smiled and looked lovingly at Aunt Flora. Aunt Margaret entered the room a minute later and glancing at Lois as she stood by the fire said: "My! Your face is as red as a beet!"

The red grew deeper on Lois' face, while unconsciously she turned petulantly away from Aunt Margaret, who prides herself on being "plain spoken." Aunt Flora's way is best. She can say the right word at the right time, too, even the word of admonition and reproof, but she says it in such a manner that one can think only of the Scriptural "apples of gold in pictures of silver."—Ada C. Quincy Point Bridge Bill Engrossed by Senate.

In the senate yesterday, says the Journal Senator Fales of Norfolk County offered an explanation of the bill for the rebuilding of the Quincy Point Bridge over the Weymouth Fore River, between Quincy and Weymouth.

Senator Lawrence of Plymouth moved an amendment to limit the expenditure to $100,000, saying that the case of the Fairhaven Bridge was a warning against passing legislation not definite in character.

Senator Chamberlain of Plymouth claimed that the bill was unjust, unfair and inequitable. He moved the amendment substitute "city" for "cities," and "county" for "counties," thus exempting Boston and Brockton and Plymouth and Suffolk Counties.

Senator Chamberlain reminded the Senate that this bridge is entirely in Norfolk County; that if it were not for the big shipbuilding plant in Quincy a replanking would be all that would be necessary for ten or fifteen years. This was as wicked, he thought, as the Fairhaven bill, which assessed a poor county to add to New Bedford's magnificence.

Senator Woodsum of Norfolk favored the bill, opposing the argument that the bridge was not unsafe. It is an old, tumble-down structure.

Senator Post said the Court would appoint high-grade men like Senator Chamberlain on the commission to assess the expense.

After further debate by a vote of 6 to 24 Senator Chamberlain's amendment was rejected, and the bill ordered to third reading by a vote of 19 to 9.

Hospital Work.

The finance committee of the Hospital Trustees met at the residence of Dr. Gordon this week and organized by the election of Dr. Gordon as chairman and Albert Keating as secretary.

The second Sunday in October was fixed upon as Hospital Sunday, and the week following as Hospital week.

The principal part of the evening was devoted to adopting a plan or system to collecting of the amounts usually subscribed by the citizens.

For the past few years almost continued solicitations has been practised. That the trustees are very much opposed to, and now hope to have all subscriptions for the year made in Hospital week. The past has proven that the people see the need of, and are very willing to contribute liberally to the maintenance of so useful and so beneficial an institution as our City Hospital.

The trustees feel assured that if some system can be adopted whereby the citizens could contribute an amount at a given time, once, and for all, for the year, much better results would be obtained.

Different methods were suggested, but as yet none has been settled upon. One plan presented was, to have every employer of help in the city, constitute himself or herself a committee of one to collect something, however small, from everyone in their employ during Hospital week. Other meetings of the committee will be held in the meantime and the best will be adopted.

Milton Fire.

The Milton fire department was called out at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a lively blaze in the house of Alden Briggs on Willard street near the Quincy line. The fire started from some unknown cause in the cellar of the house under the L, and worked up through the floor into the kitchen. It then came through the outside and had reached the roof before it was extinguished. At no time did the fire reach the main house.

Mr. Brigg's daughter, Hattie, who discovered the fire, was quite badly burned about the face. She was in the kitchen at the time and smelling smoke opened the door leading to the cellar, to investigate. As she did so the flames burst into her face. Her screams aroused the family, who gave the alarm.

The loss was not large, perhaps $300.

GOD'S ACRE.

I like that ancient Saxon phrase which calls
The burial ground God's Acre! It is just.
It consecrates each grave within its walls
And breathes a benison o'er the sleeping dust.

God's Acre! Yes, that blessed name imparts
Comfort to those who in the grave have sown
The seed that they had garnered in their hearts,
Their bread of life, alas, no more their own!

Into its furrow shall we all be cast,
In the sure faith that we shall rise again
At the great harvest when the archangel's blast
Shall winnow, like a fan, the chaff and grain.

Then shall the good stand in immortal bloom
In the fair gardens of that second birth
And each bright blossom mingle its perfume
With that of flowers which never bloomed on earth.

With thy rude plowshare, death, turn up the sod
And spread the furrow for the seed we sow;
This is the field and acre of our God,
This is the place where human harvests grow!

A VAIN RETREAT.

A Story of the Indian Plague.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Lawson had come up to the Peak hotel for a month at least. They had a delightful white square villa with a deep veranda and a garden full of tropical shrubs and wavy bamboos down in Hongkong at the foot of the hill, much nicer in every way than the bare rooms at the Peak hotel and the bare rocks surrounding it.

Mrs. Lawson shuddered as she contrasted the ugly wall paper and regulation clock with a stiff image on each side that adorned her sitting room at the hotel with her own pretty drawing room, and she shivered in the long matted corridors, so straight and guiltless of anything like comfort. Her husband was a partner in a firm of American solicitors in Hongkong and getting on very well. It was not yet hot enough to migrate to the Peak, only the beginning of April, and the morning mists lay thick and heavy on the towering cliffs till late in the day. It was very cold there too. Still, they had all bustled up—Mr. and Mrs., the boy of 10 and the baby of 18 months.

The plague was again claiming its weekly victims in steady numbers. The year before had been a very bad one for it. Then during the winter it died out, only to recommence in March. Mrs. Lawson had been getting very nervous. Every day a kind friend told her of new cases in the bazaar, in the fish market, in all quarters of the city, but the climax had been reached the day before, when the bank manager's cook had died of it in his kitchen. The bank manager's garden joined the Lawsons' bamboos.

"Let us go to the Peak directly, Walter," said Mrs. Lawson excitedly directly her husband came in from the office.

"If you really wish it, of course, my dear," said her husband crossly, "but it's no earthly good flying away from the thing. Ann Lung got the infection from some of his own relatives no doubt or down by the harbor. He is not likely to have contracted it here in Jeffersons house."

"How do you know that?" said Mrs. Lawson, nearly crying from fright. "You people here in Hongkong don't seem to care how near the plague is to you, and yet think what a fuss they make about it if it even comes to the next country in Europe."

"And much good their fright does them," said Mr. Lawson contemptuously. "Fright won't keep it off." His real reason for objecting to the Peak hotel lay in leaving his cook, a Chinese artist in stews and soups. The cooking at the Peak was very doubtful. However, he concluded he must put up with it and resignedly packed his portmanteau.

Last summer he had been out in Hongkong alone and for many years before that had managed a branch of the firm at San Francisco. Mrs. Lawson thought Hongkong a poor exchange for the Golden Gate. Still, up to now it had been healthy, and the crisp, cold weather was even colder than she was accustomed to. Every day during the winter they had had a huge coal fire lighted at 4 o'clock in the drawing room and dining room, then again in the early morning. She had her own tidy arrangements about milk and butter and fresh rolls. What a pity to upset all this and go away to a hotel!

Still, it could not be helped. She must get away from this dreadful plague that was creeping about all around her. So, having wrung a very reluctant consent from her husband, the very next morning saw all their household goods packed up, the servants dismissed with the exception of the ayah and Mr. Lawson's "boy" and the whole family setting forth to the station of the electric railway up the Peak. People in the streets looked calm and unconcerned as ever.

"How can they look so interested in all about them," said Mrs. Lawson impatiently, "when, so far as they know, they may be dead of the plague by tomorrow, or, if not they themselves, their nearest relatives may?"

"In some cases, my dear," said Mr. Lawson philosophically, "a Chinaman would not count that a loss, especially if he got some money by the departure of his relatives. One go, another come on—he thinks the survival is to the fittest should the survivor be himself."

Mr. Lawson really felt deeply injured as he got himself and his family out of the train at the top of the hill at the slanting station. The heavy mist was wet and penetrating, and there was not a gleam of sun to be seen at 9 o'clock.

"Let's go into the hotel at least," he said grumpily and stalked on in advance of his family up the stairs cut in the rocks and under the glass awning to the hotel. A few wretched geraniums shivered in ornamental pots along the side of the passage and in the glass covered veranda outside the hall door. He had wired up for rooms the night before, so they went up to them at once—a stiff sitting room on the first floor with cane furniture and a big bedroom down stairs, one side of it close to the rock; in fact, one of the windows was entirely blocked up by rock not a foot off. But it was well furnished and even had electric light, which their sitting room had not.

The children's rooms were far off down a long corridor on the first floor and fronting the sea toward Kowloon, with a wretched bathroom; cold, cracked, whitewashed walls that looked as if a very small earthquake would bring them down instantly. The ayah was sulky and made the worst of everything. Not till Mr. and Mrs. Lawson and Pat were seated at a little round table in the dining room and having breakfast did the family's spirits begin to revive. Pat thought it very good fun to come to a hotel and attacked the many dishes on the menu steadily one by one, ending up with oranges and bananas.

The head waiter was a Chinaman, of course. All the waiters were Chinamen, but the head man was a very dignified person, with an india rubber kind of face and a peculiar way of taking stock of each guest as he entered.

Only to a favored few did he attend himself. The captain of an English ship in harbor and a judge of the high court were among the recipients of his attentions. Ordinary casual customers he relegated to his satellites, who slipped about actively in black shoes and very white socks, short blue trousers, tight fitting round the ankle, and loose blue collar. A little round black cap surmounting their pigtails completed this costume, the usual one for house servants in China. For late dinner they all changed to spotless white.

The large dining room was crowded with little round and square tables; the sun came out from the fog—altogether it looked very cheerful and bright. Mr. Lawson recovered his temper, aided thereto by some excellent prawn curry.

"Perhaps, after all, my dear, you were right to come up here," he said. "You see more of your fellow creatures at any rate and can't sit moping by yourself all day long and imagining you have every disease under the sun."

"I do nothing of the sort, Walter!" cried his wife indignantly. "If it were only a question of myself, I would stay down below."

Mr. Lawson grinned unbelievingly, but said no more about it.

"I must hurry up to catch the 10 o'clock train," he said, looking at his watch. "By Jove, I had no idea it was so late!" Many other men hurried off at the same time to their work in the town, and the dining room was left principally to women and some few globe trotters who had no fear of an office below to hurry them over breakfast. Captain Lowry of H. M. S. Dispatch came up and sat at Mrs. Lawson's table to have a little conversation.

"Have you heard of my wretched luck?" he said laughingly. "Seriously, though, it is no laughing matter for me."

"No. What is it?" said Mrs. Lawson.

"Well, when I was dining on shore last Friday," said Captain Lowry, "my ship somehow cut a junk in half just outside the harbor, and the Chinese authorities are making no end of a row about it. The owner of the junk says his favorite wife was on board and was drowned, and he values her at $5,000."

"Dear me," said Mrs. Lawson, "what a bore for you! Was she really drowned, do you think?"

"I don't believe she was on board at all," said Captain Lowry contemptuously; "these men are such liars. My sailors saw no signs of a woman when the junk was run down. Still, it was getting dark, and the truth of what he states is just possible. In any case, true or not, I am afraid the naval authorities will make me pay up."

"But you were not on board," cried Mrs. Lawson. "What a shame! I dare say the Chinaman wanted to get rid of his wife, too, or he would not have sent her out in a junk so late."

"Oh, she was going over to some relatives at Kowloon, he says," replied Captain Lowry carelessly. "How long are you going to stay up here, by the way, Mrs. Lawson? Isn't it rather early to come up?"

"It is because of the plague," said Mrs. Lawson, coloring rather guiltily. "There seems so much of it about, and I am so afraid of it."

"I believe there is a good deal in the town," said Captain Lowry, "but Europeans do not as a rule take any notice of it."

"No; I know," said Mrs. Lawson. "So my husband says."

Captain Lowry laughed. "I expect he doesn't like leaving his comfortable house. I'm sure I shouldn't in his place. Well, goodby, Mrs. Lawson. I must be off too."

Mrs. Lawson felt on the whole relieved at her fears being laughed at. "There can't really be so much danger," she said to herself, "or they would think more of it." So she went up to the public drawing room on the floor above, which was just then tenanted only by a lady in a red blouse. She and Mrs. Lawton spent quite two hours in animated conversation, though they had never seen each other before.

About 1 o'clock Pat came in and went up to see his mother.

"I've been looking for you everywhere," he said. "I want you to come and see the ayah. She looks awfully hot and odd."

Mrs. Lawson hurried off with him at once. The baby was comfortably asleep, but the ayah looked half mad and had a dull crimson flush on her brown face.

"Me velly ill," she said wildly as soon as she saw her mistress; "got dreffful pains."

"What's the matter with her, mother?" said Pat. "Do you know?"

"Only just an ordinary attack of fever, I expect," said Mrs. Lawson nervously, "but we will have a doctor at once."

"No, no," cried the ayah still more wildly; "doctor put me in plague hospital! I die directly, quick!"

"Nonsense!" said Mrs. Lawson. "Why should they put you there? You have not got the plague."

The ayah returned no answer, but only sank groaning on the floor. Mrs. Lawson was more than miserable. If she told the manager the ayah was ill, he would probably insist on the whole family leaving at once on the chance of their having brought infection to the hotel. Yet how was she to get a doctor? Hastily picking up the baby and telling Pat to follow her she hurried away to her own room down stairs.

"Do you think she really has the plague, mother?" said Pat. "If she has, baby's pretty certain to get it."

"Oh, Pat, how can you say such things?" said his mother in an agonized voice. "No, of course it isn't. It can't be the plague."

"I don't know," said Pat wisely. "She looks very odd, and I know it begins with fever. She said she had pains too."

"Oh, do be quiet," cried his mother, "unless you want to drive me out of my mind. I must send a note to your father at once, telling him to come up!"

She wrote it hurriedly, and then rang for the boy to take it. He came, peaceful as ever, without a shadow of expression on his yellow, flat face, though, as Pat informed his mother, he had been with him and the ayah all the morning.

"Run, quick, John," said his mistress, "and bring an answer back."

John bowed.

"And now, what next, mother?" said Pat, with gusto. "We ought to go and attend to the ayah now."

"Good heavens, no!" said Mrs. Lawson. "Pat, you must not go near her on any account. Do you hear?"

"Well, the poor thing wants looking after, mother," said Pat disappointedly, "especially if she has got the plague. I want to see what happens next."

However, he consented to wait in the sitting room till his father came. Mr. Lawson arrived in about half an hour very hot and cross and burst into the sitting room.

"What rot is this, Alicia?" he said angrily. "How am I to get through my work if I am to be continually interrupted by senseless messages? Ayah got the plague indeed! Much more likely overeaten herself."

"Come and see her yourself, Walter," said Mrs. Lawson, rising. "I do not say she has the plague, but she evidently fancies she has it herself. I think she should see a doctor."

"Come along, then," said her husband. Then, as Pat prepared to follow, he pushed him back. "No, no, young man," he said kindly; "we don't want any more complications."

They went down the passage in silence and waited a minute outside the door of the room in which the ayah had been left. A faint moaning could be heard. Mr. Lawrence opened the door and walked in.

The ayah was crouched on the floor in nearly the same attitude as when his wife had left her, only she seemed more stupefied or insensible. She did not seem to understand the questions Mr. Lawson asked her, but staggered up when he attempted to lift her and remained leaning against the wall. Then they could see an immense bluish swelling below her arm. Mr. Lawson spoke to her kindly and, putting a pillow for her on the floor, made signs to her to lie down; then he left the room with his wife.

"It's the plague, no doubt," he said in a low tone as he closed and locked the door. "The question now is, What are we to do with her?"

"Oh, Walter, the children!" gasped his wife.

"We must hope for the best," said her husband kindly. "You must remember Europeans very rarely get it."

"But they have been close to her all day," said Mrs. Lawson miserably, remembering her long conversation with her friend in the drawing room. "I ought to have seen after her before Pat fetched me, but she seemed so disagreeable I thought it better to leave her alone."

"What has already happened cannot be helped," said her husband. "You must keep both children with you now of course. Luckily your other rooms are a long way off this one, and I must go to Dr. Brown at once and report the case."

"What will be done with the poor thing?" asked Mrs. Lawson. "She has such a horror of going to a hospital."

"It is the only place she can possibly go to," said Mr. Lawson. "We shall be lucky if we have not all to get out of here as well. However, I will try and arrange things with the manager."

Mrs. Lawson and the children remained in their room and heard nothing of the doctor's visit or other arrangements. Pat was only told that the ayah had fever and had gone to her own home, and Mrs. Lawson had a hospital nurse in to assist her with the baby and also in case of further illness. The poor ayah went down to the plague hospital and died the next day.

Strange to say, none of the Lawsons had the plague. For days they watched nervously for every dangerous symptom, but time passed on and nothing happened. So it is with this curious disease; you may be close to it and have every possible chance of taking it, yet you do not, and, again, you may not have been near it to your knowledge and yet it descends on you—from the air, in the bites of insects, in infected food, how or from where no one can tell.—Boston Traveler.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 3—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—How to be a good neighbor.—Luke x, 25-37.

THE PARABLE.

The parable of the good Samaritan was called forth by the question of a lawyer, not necessarily a malicious question, as to eternal life. Christ asked him the law. He replied, "Love God and thy neighbor as thyself." This was approved, and he was told to do it and he would have life. Trying to evade the personal application of the law, he asked, "And who is my neighbor?" The reply was this parable, in which the true spirit of neighborliness rather than the definition of a neighbor is set forth. Christ taught the lawyer what it was to be neighborly rather than who a neighbor was. A certain man, probably a Jew, fell among thieves on the dangerous road from Jerusalem to Jericho and was left half dead. This was not an unusual occurrence, and Christ may have related what actually occurred. A priest appears, sees the dying man and passes by on the other side. A Levite comes, looks upon the man, which aggravates his selfishness, and also passes by. Then a Samaritan appears upon the scene. He is of different nationality and religion from the injured man. He belongs to a race who have no dealings with the Jews and between whom there is mutual hatred. But he thinks not of this. He sees before him not a Jew, but a fellow being in need of his sympathy and his help, and "he has compassion on him." His compassion is practical. He provides for his present and future needs. In answer to Christ's question the lawyer acknowledged that the Samaritan was neighbor to him who fell among the thieves. "Then Jesus said unto him, Go and do thou likewise."

THE INTERPRETATION.

The explanation of this parable as applied to man is easily made. But many of the church fathers and reformers have been wont to see in the good Samaritan a higher than man, even Christ Himself, and not without reason. Man overcome by satan in the garden of Eden is well typified by the man who had been left half dead by the thieves. The priest and the Levite represent the law which could not save the half dead man. Then Christ comes along—the true Samaritan—has compassion upon fallen humanity, and at great sacrifice—the sacrifice of Himself—He rescues and saves him—a beautiful picture of Christ's neighborliness and one that should inspire the true spirit of compassion and benevolence in us. We should do unto others as Christ has done unto us.

THE APPLICATION.

This parable teaches us most forcibly "how to be a good neighbor." It does not define the word neighbor so much as it tells us how to be a true neighbor. It teaches us to see in every needy man whom we can help a neighbor. It utterly disregards caste, whether national, religious or social. It obliterates all idea of distance, color or position. If we see a man in need, in want, and we can help him, we are not to inquire, "Is he of my family, my church, my nation, my color, my society?" but we are to see in him a fellow human being in need and are to ask, "What can I do to relieve his need?" And if this is true of the physical wants of men how much more it should be true of their spiritual wants! Millions are still out of Christ and spiritually half dead and dying. Their very helplessness appeals to us. They are our neighbors, whether in China, Africa or America. Are we playing the part of a Samaritan toward them or the part of the priest and Levite?

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the leader explain the parable and then have an open voluntary discussion of the topic.

BIBLE READINGS.

Lev. xix, 18; Prov. iii, 27-29; Hab. ii, 15; Math. v, 43-48; vii, 12; xxii, 36-39; xxv, 31-46; Rom. i, 14-17; xiii, 7-10; Eph. iv, 25.

Christ's Yearning For Souls.

As Christ's life on earth is studied nothing else makes a deeper impression than His ardent, ceaseless, tender longing for the salvation of men's souls, and not only that they might be saved from sin and its consequences, but also that they might learn to appreciate their wonderful powers and opportunities and to do justice to themselves and to enter into that rich and blessed experience which only the redeemed can know. Something of this longing for souls is visible in every true Christian. It is more evident in some than in others, even when equally intense, because of differences in our temperaments. But in Jesus it was supreme both because of the absolute, flawless righteousness of His own character, the ineffable purity and holiness of His own soul and also because He knew, as no other man ever has known or can know, what a human soul actually is and can become.—Congregationalist.

A Man's Right to His Opinion.

Few people stop to question the assumption, often held with tenacity, that "a man has a right to his own opinion," and yet a little reflection ought to enable one to see that an opinion has no value to its possessor or to those to whom it may be vociferously presented unless it is based on knowledge or a sane power of discrimination or a disinterested and adequate view of the matter under consideration. What right has a man who is ignorant and prejudiced with regard to a certain situation in which facts and argument are involved to have any opinion at all? He may have a right to his suspicions, guesses, fears or even his whimsical, baseless suppositions, but none of these can be said to rank as an opinion.—Central Christian Advocate.

POLITICAL SPEECHES

Indulged In by the Members of Both Branches of National Legislature.

Congress Will Not Have Power to Regulate Trusts.

Indian Famine, South African War and Armor Plate In the Senate.

Washington, June 2.—The house yesterday resumed the debate on the resolution proposing an anti-trust amendment to the constitution, and after a lively debate the resolution was defeated. It requires a two-thirds vote under the constitution to adopt an amendment to the constitution. The vote stood: Ayes, 154; nays, 131. The affirmative vote therefore was 38 short of the requisite two-thirds, 192.

Five Democrats, Messrs. Campbell (Mont.), Naphen (Mass.), Scudder (N. Y.), Sibley (Penn.) and Thayer (Mass.) and one silverite, Mr. Newlands (Nev.), voted with the Republicans for the resolution, and two Republicans, Mr. Loud (Cal.) and Mr. McCall (Mass.) with the Democrats against it. These were the only breaks from party lines. The Populists voted solidly against the resolution.

The debate preceding the vote had a strong political flavor throughout, and was at times very personal. The features were the closing speeches of Mr. DeArmond (Mo.) and Mr. Littlefield (Me.) for their respective sides and the short speech of Mr. McCall (Mass.) against the resolution. Mr. McCall has distinguished himself before during this session in opposing the action of his colleagues on the Porto Rican bill.

The senatorial debate yesterday was caustic and as warm as the weather outdoors. At times the exchanges between senators bordered on personalities. Much of the discussion was of a political nature, although in themselves the questions involved were not essentially political.

Soon after the senate convened a memorial was presented from the people of California asking that the government provide some relief for the starving people of India. Mr. Hale, with this as a text, severely arraigned Great Britain for expending hundreds of millions of dollars in crushing liberty and freedom in South Africa instead of caring for the helpless and dying people of England's chief colony.

Mr. Aldrich charged Mr. Hale with making political speeches on irrelevant matters and a little later, when Mr. Hale reported a further disagreement on the naval appropriation bill, an exciting dscussion arose over the armor plate question.

A sharp political twist was given to the debate by a speech which Mr. Hanna delivered in favor of leaving the whole matter in the hands of the senate conferees and of conferring discretionary power upon the secretary of the navy, in accordance with the house proposition. He became involved in a controversy with Mr. Tillman and Mr. Allen over the government's ability to manufacture armor satisfactorily.

Mr. Teller, Mr. Allen and Mr. Pettigrew replied to Mr. Hanna, all speaking in political vein. The bill finally was returned to conference.

The senate agreed to amendments to the military academy bill making General Miles a lieutenant general and General Corbin a major general.

Parkhurst on the Ice Trust.

New York, June 2.—Just before sailing for Europe Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst wrote a letter to Mayor Van Wyck inquiring whether he owned stock in the American Ice company. Inasmuch as Mayor Van Wyck did not go on the witness stand, H. V. Parnell, on behalf of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, has just made the letter public. The letter inquires of the mayor whether he owns stocks in the ice company, yes or no, and says "the ice trust is a devilish scheme for wringing shekels out of the pockets of the poor."

Police Are Investigating.

New York, June 2.—Mrs. Emily Wells, 40 years old, was found dead last night in her elegantly furnished apartments on Broadway. The body lay on a couch in the parlor. There were some blood stains in one ear. The police have taken the case in hand. Death may have been due to natural causes, or the woman may have taken poison. Mrs. Wells was employed by several families as their "purchasing agent." She did shopping for women.

Slugged With Hammer.

Lawrence, Mass., June 2.—George Ferris, a Syrian, has his skull fractured and is in a precarious condition. His alleged assailant, Cornelius Connors, is locked up. Ferris was assaulted in front of his house Friday night, the fight growing out of Ferris resenting disparaging remarks concerning "Dagoes" made to his son. In the mixup Ferris was struck with a hammer. The physicians are doubtful as to his recovery.

New Corporation at Worcester.

Worcester, Mass., June 2.—Worcester men have formed a company to be known as the Citizens' Telephone and Telegraph company, and will incorporate under the laws of Massachusetts with a capital stock of $300,000. It is the intention of the incorporators to join forces with the Independent Long Distance company, which has petitioned for a right of way through the city.

Payments Far Exceed Receipts.

Washington, June 2.—The division of customs and insular affairs of the war department made the statement yesterday that the total receipts of the Porto Rican treasury for the month of April, 1900, were $105,869.18. The total payments for the month were $186,510.77, which shows a deficit for the month of $80,641.59.

OF A FAVORABLE NATURE.

Bradstreet's Does Not Find Much to Complain of In the General Business Situation.

New York, June 2.—Bradstreet's says: Readjustment of price quotations to meet the changed conditions of supply and demand are still the leading features of general trade. In volume the business doing is of a between seasons' character, improvement in some lines being counterbalanced by increased dullness in other branches. That the basic conditions of the trade are in the main of a favorable nature, however, is proved by the continued good railroad earnings returns which come to hand.

The general trade situation, in fact, is not really as poor as has been reported in some quarters, nor, on the other hand, is it as good as was expected. Some further liquidation has been noted in cotton, and the price has sunk to 9 cents. In textiles the situation is rather depressed, although some improvement in re-orders for dry goods is noted at leading jobbing centers.

Manufacturers of woolen goods are out of the market for raw wool, and the outlook at present favors the light weight woolen season opening at lower values.

Boots and shoes are dull; and a number of eastern factories are short of orders. Calfskin leather has been in good demand at the west, but harness and sole leather are rather weaker and hides are also lower.

The hand-to-mouth domestic demand for iron and steel continues, but the number of small orders received is taken to indicate that consumers are practically bare of stocks, and any general shutdown for a month's time, such as is proposed, might lead to a scramble for supplies. Export business continues good, though limited by the scarcity of freight room.

Relatively the best trade reports still come from the Pacific coast, where Alaskan outfitting and the Asiatic trader are reported active, and where the crop situation is also exceptionally good.

Business failures for the week number 135, as compared with 167 last week, 128 in this week a year ago, 178 in 1898, 192 in 1897 and 236 in 1896.

Lieutenant Hazzard a Deserter.

Washington, June 2.—By direction of the president, First Lieutenant Samuel C. Hazzard, First United States artillery, has been dropped from the rolls of the army for desertion. Lieutenant Hazzard was stationed at Tampa, Fla., and disappeared from that post Feb. 28 last, since which time nothing has been heard of him. It is reported that before his departure he cashed a number of worthless checks and borrowed a large sum of money; also that he was short in his accounts. Another allegation was that he had run off with a woman from whom, it is said, he borrowed $5000. He leaves a wife and family in New York. He graduated from West Point in 1898.

Held For the Grand Jury.

Concord, Mass., June 2.—Charles Howard, charged with an attempt to kill Peter Larsen of Stow, on May 1, was before Judge Keyes on Friday. He waived examinantion and was held in $5000 for the grand jury. The charge is assault with attempt to kill and breaking and entering. The only cause for assault by Howard given is because he was angry at Larsen for filling the position from which Howard was discharged.

Trouble Brewing In Barbadoes.

Kingston, Jam., June 2.—The financial condition of Barbadoes is very bad and the government and people are seriously exercised over the situation. The revenue and trade are steadily shrinking, and a law has been hastily passed increasing the tariff. Want of employment among laboring classes is anticipated and the consequences are likely to be very serious.

Princess Aribert Visiting America.

New York, June 2.—Traveling incognito and attended only by a lady in waiting, Princess Aribert of Anbalt, eldest daughter of Princess Christian and granddaughter of Queen Victoria, arrived here on the Majestic. She and her lady in waiting will visit Washington and later Canada.

Didn't Poison Her Husband.

New York, June 2.—Mrs. Emma K. Sutton, who has been on trial at Morristown, N. J., for the past week, charged with having murdered her husband, Charles Sutton, by administering strychnine, was acquitted yesterday.

Forbes Quickly Disposed Of.

Chicago, June 2.—Oscar Gardner knocked out Harry Forbes last night at the Fort Dearborn Athletic club in the first round of what was to have been a six-round go. Time, one minute and a half.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Charles W. Bickford has been elected superintendent of the schools of Manchester, N. H., for the ensuing two years at a salary of $2300.

While at his work, Bartholomew Collins, an employe of the Salem, Mass., health department, was overcome by the heat. He died shortly afterward. He was 49 years old.

A New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad train struck and instantly killed an unknown colored man at Boston. The man's head and an arm were severed from the body.

While driving at Boston, Daniel F. Kennedy was overcome by the heat and fell from the wagon, the wheels of which passed over his body, fracturing his ribs and causing other internal injuries. His condition is critcal.

Biscoe Hingman of Louisville was elected commander-in-chief of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Alfred McLain, who passed the night with a party of friends on a sailboat on the river at Bath, Me., was missed in the morning, and it is thought that he has been drowned.

The death is announced of Rev. John C. Lowry, D. D., at East Orange, N. J., one of the foremost missionary workers in the Presbyterian church. He had been confined to his bed but a few days.

Lieutenant Colonel Webb C. Hayes, Thirty-first volunteer infantry, son of ex-President Hayes, is no longer connected with the army. An order has been issued by the war department announcing his honorable discharge.

PERILS OF GYMNASTS

THE RISKS THEY RUN WHILE GOING THROUGH THEIR ACTS.

A Fall Even Into the Net Which Is Spread Beneath Them Is Liable to Result In Serious Injury—Nerve and Confidence Necessary.

It doubtless appears to the onlooker at the circus that the midair gymnasts—"aerialists" in the vocabulary of the arena—are quite safe from injury so long as they have the broad, soft net spread beneath them. They may swing from bar to bar, as high as the roof of the tent will permit, or toss a child from hand to hand through long, perilous distances, and all the while the blase spectator observes with the mere suggestion of a thrill, assuming in his inexperience that there is no real danger in what is called with greater truth than color "this marvelous feat of daring." As a matter of fact, however, the aerialists are in imminent danger of broken necks through every working moment of their "turn," which becomes evident indeed when it is said that the nerve strain cannot possibly be borne through two seasons without a long period of rest between for what may be called nerve recuperation.

A famous gymnast who is the head of a family of performers said that the midair gymnast branch of circus work, which appears so easy and safe of accomplishment, was so full of danger as to be fought shy of by faint hearted people, who preferred "ground work" and smaller salaries to its risk. Safety lies wholly in self possession, attention and nice, practiced calculation of distances through which to leap or turn or throw. There are four in this family, and the safety of each depends, not only upon the individual, but upon the nerve and skill of the others. When the family is in action, it becomes at once a machine, and each member moves and turns and even smiles with mechanical accuracy. If one part should fail, the whole would for the moment be in danger of destruction.

"Now," said the gymnast, "we are merely human. We can't all be perfect in action all the time, so from time to time the machine goes to pieces, but we are so well schooled that we soon put it together again. When there happens to be a fall—as there does frequently—three hearts pretty nearly stop beating upon our bars until the fourth of the family rises from the net. It wouldn't be possible to continue our act if every one of us didn't know how to fall. That's the secret of it, and the danger lies in the loss of nerve when the fall takes place. Men in our branch seldom break legs. They break their necks or backs and quit the business once and for all. You've seen a fall, no doubt. Well, did you notice how the boy doubled his legs up and got his face as close to his breast as he could? If he failed to do that, he would never survive the fall. He'd break his leg or his back sure. It's a terrible time for me as the head of the 'family' every time there's a fall."

The gymnast has a high fall to dread. The acrobat, on the other hand, has to guard against a fall through but two or three feet.

"There's as much danger in our work as in any circus," said a certain star, one of the best acrobats in the business and a good and trustworthy man out of it. "In the tumbling particularly a man is liable to break his back any minute or dislocate his ankle in landing badly. My 'family' (of six, two of whom are boys) is so well trained that it works perfectly. So just now I have an easy mind. Last season, though, I had two bad accidents and had to discharge a man. He didn't catch my apprentice one time, with the result that the poor boy dislocated his shoulder. The fellow looked at the audience for an instant, and then the trouble came, so I lost confidence in him and let him go. In our business, you know, every one has to have confidence in every one else—perfect confidence. If you can't get that condition, you can't work, that's all. You can't keep your nerve. Our accidents are nasty ones too. It may be a fall of three feet and a broken back come from it. You can't tell when accidents are going to happen either. They come so unexpectedly that they knock you out. The head of the 'family' has to bear the worry, though. He's responsible for his apprentices, and the 13 I've taught have brought me gray hairs pretty early in life."

This man is thoroughly conscientious in the training of his boys morally as well as in their work. He regards his care of them as a high duty, and he watches them in the circus ring as carefully as a mother might. Hence they are saved from many an accident. He always breathes easier, too, when the day's work is over. Watch as carefully as one may, he said, the business is such that accidents are bound to happen.

"How can you accept an apprentice with an easy conscience, then?" he was asked.

"Well," he replied, "there's danger wherever you go. No matter what your business may be, if you are careless the chances are that you will get hurt. I train my boys and men in attention and accuracy. That's the best safeguard they can have. It's like this: If a man throws a baseball at my head, it will strike and hurt me if I don't stop it. I've got to take care, and it's the same in every walk of life. It is very dangerous work, the acrobat's, but then"— The acrobat shrugged his shoulders to complete the sentence.

Thought of Him.

Papa—Are you sure that you and mamma thought of me while you were away?

Grace—Yes. We heard a man kicking up a great row about his breakfast at the hotel, and mamma said, "That's just like papa."

Quincy has got a "Jack the Hugger," who embraces girls on the streets evenings. Street car conductors are noticing a great increase of travel by Brockton girls to the Granite City since the above news got abroad.—Plymouth Memorial.

We have been asked to correct a misstatement in the report of the annual meeting of the Home Science Association printed in last Monday's issue. Where the report stated that the Association had now on hand $31.85; it should have read $318.85, which will cover expenses for the kindergarten work during the coming summer. It is the financial policy of the Home Science Association each year to reserve a sum sufficient to meet all expenses of the Free Kindergarten work for the summer following.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued cases against Gustavus Alden came up for sentence. He was found guilty upon all four complaints. Upon the three complaints for assault he was sentenced to three months each in the house of correction, and on the complaint for attempted felonious assault he was held in $500 for the grand jury. He appealed.

Peter and George Healey were arraigned for assault on Michael Allen at South Weymouth. Peter was fined $20, and George $10.

The continued cases against Robert J. Marrow and William Crehan of Weymouth, for keeping a liquor nuisance, was heard. Marrow was discharged and Crehan was fined $5.

The case of Amos O. Sprague of Weymouth, for neglect to support his minor child, was heard. During the hearing it came out that Sprague married his step mother, which was an illegal marriage, and the child was therefore illegitimate. The court ordered the child given to the care of the State Board.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system: The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15c. and 25c.

It was a great help to the society last year and it is hoped to make it even more useful in the future than it has hitherto been.

Monday last Rev. F. H. Palmer and party of sixteen were in Southern Pines N. C., to watch the total eclipse of the sun. We are told that they were favored with fair weather, while in Braintree it was cloudy and showery. Mr. Palmer arrived in Braintree yesterday, after enjoying much the eclipse, the trip, and the company.

Philadelphia, June 2.—The coroner's jury yesterday held William A. Lantell, a switch tower operator employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, responsible for a freight wreck on May 12, which resulted in the death of two men. Lantell admitted sleeping at his post. He was held in $1000 bail for the grand jury.

Hartford Strike a Failure.

Hartford, June 2.—The strike of the journeymen plumbers, which has been on in this city for nearly a month, will be declared off and the men will return to work next Monday. Many workmen have deserted the ranks of the strikers and returned to work, and it is to this that the strikers assign their failure.

Isabelle, the flower girl of the Jockey club, a Parisian notoriety of the second empire, died recently in a Paris hospital in great destitution.

Miss Helen Gould has been made an honorary member of this year's senior class at Wellesley and has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the class at its commencement exercises.

The first lady to run an automobile in Stockholm is Mrs. Edward D. Winslow, who is the wife of the United States consul general. Her machine is of American make and is propelled by electricity.

Mme. Ristori retains all her faculties and was vigorous enough to make a speech at the recent dramatic congress in Rome. She goes to all the "first nights." Ristori is now 79 years old.

Minnie Hauk is still singing. During her recent pleasure tour through the East Indian tropics she gave a few concerts in Batavia, Soerabaja, Singapore, etc. The prima donna, we are informed, was most enthusiastically received by English and Dutch alike and won flattering triumphs by her singing.

Mrs. Leland Stanford on the anniversary of her son's birth delivered over to Bishop Grace the deed of the old Stanford mansion, which is henceforth to be known as the Stanford-Lathrop Children's home. At the same time the transfer of $75,000 was made, which is to serve as an endowment fund for the home.

She is 30 years of age and the divorced wife of Count Konrad von Wartensleben, by whom she had a son, now 9 years of age. She was a Baroness von Andrian-Kerburg before marriage, and her mother was the daughter of Meyerbeer, the composer.

While Mlle. de Stael, daughter of the Russian embassador to Great Britain, was being married to Count Alexis Orloff-Davidoff in London according to the Russian rite, with the Prince of Wales, Lord Rosebery and a church full of notables looking on, her bridal veil caught fire from the lighted taper she held in her hand and blazed up. She kept still while the bridegroom put out the fire with his hands and others pulled off the veil, and the ceremony went on.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Fowls half fed are never in good condition for market.

Too much linseed meal given to the hens will make them fat.

If chickens are allowed to go on the roosts too young, their breasts often get crooked, and their appearance is spoiled.

Ducks are so much clumsier than chickens that they should not be reared in the same apartment. Give them a place to themselves.

Grease closes the pores of eggshells, which prevents their hatching. For this reason do not grease the sitting hens or the nests they occupy.

The water troughs of fountains need thorough cleansing occasionally. The better plan is to scald them thoroughly with strong soapsuds. A filthy drinking fountain will breed disease sooner than anything else.

In sending poultry to market at this time feed and water them well before putting into the coops. Send the hens in coops separate from the roosters. Have the coops sufficiently high so that the fowls can readily stand up. Be careful not to crowd too many into a coop.—St. Louis Republic.

IMPERTINENT PERSONALS.

Mr. Gates of the Steel and Wire company is not afraid of earthquakes. It is said that he can stand quite a jar.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

When Kitchener was last heard from, he was trying to think of some way in which he could get his name past the censor again.—Denver Post.

A lady up in Vermont wants to be nominated for vice president on the same ticket as Admiral Dewey. But Mrs. Dewey has her eye on that position.—Mexican Herald.

Julian Ralph threatens to return and lecture against Webster Davis, and the worst is yet to come. Richard Harding Davis hasn't declared what he will lecture on when he takes to shirt waists again.—St. Paul Dispatch.

If the persons to whom is intrusted the selection of a profile to adorn the new half cent coins have an eye to harmony and the eternal fitness of things, they will give Uncle Russell Sage's face their careful consideration.—Denver Post.

PAINTERS AND WRITERS.

Olive Schreiner has a book on the South African situation nearly ready for publication.

Ernest Seton-Thompson, the artist-writer, has been elected an honorary member of the Rowfant club of Cleveland.

Bliss Carman, the poet, is making a study of old French Canadian folk songs and stories for translation into English verse.

Stephen Phillips, the English poet, has completed the first rough sketch of the metrical play he is writing for Richard Mansfield, but to all inquiries maintains a rigid silence as to its theme.

Edwin A. Abbey's contribution to this year's Royal academy exhibition will be a large painting of Catherine of Aragon and Henry VIII before the court assembled to decide as to the validity of the royal marriage.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A piece of heavy unbleached muslin neatly hemmed should be placed over the flour barrel under the lid to keep out insects and dust.

A few grains of alum in tepid water will relieve those whose hands perspire very much. Wash the hands in tepid water and then place in the alum solution for a few minutes.

In selecting a chair for the hall avoid upholstery or any gilt trimmings. A little flat leather trimming is permissible if the style of the chair demands it, but preferable even to this is the chair or bench all of wood in a simple, severe style.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

WHIT SUNDAY.

Church services are inserted in this paper without charge, but none will be accepted to run until further order. A notice should be sent each week even though it is but a renewal. Give subject and special services when possible. Let all churches be represented—Eds.

Castle Square Theatre.

The Castle Square Theatre management announces another strong attraction for the coming week in the production of Mr. James W. Harkins' thrilling melodrama "The White Squadron." The opportunities for effective stage pictures given in this play will be fully improved, new scenes having been built and painted especially for this production and the regular stock company enlarged materially to fill the large cast of characters, over one hundred people appearing in some of the tableaux. The cast arranged is as follows:—Victor Staunton, John Craig; Demetrio De Romacio, J. L. Seeley; Deodora De Fonsica, Edward Wade; Horatio Doolittle Fritters, Tony Cummings; Harry Marlinespike, Marian Chapman; Bacho, Lindsay Morison; Onesta De Silveria, Lillian Lawrence; Therese De Romacio, Maude Odell; Miss Martha Higginbotham, Leonora Bradley. The usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

Keith's Theatre.

The programme at Keith's Boston Theatre for the week commencing Monday, June 4, will include the following entertainers: several of whom are new comers to this house; Chas. T. Aldrich, the amusing tramp juggler and eccentric comedian; Rio brothers, a trio of wonderful performers on flying rings; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, in a funny farcical sketch; Laura Comstock, who sings coon melodies; Mlle Marzella, the noted bird trainer, with her marvelous cocatoes, macaws, parrots, pigeons, and ravens; Everhart, who does a novel whoop-spinning specialty; the Four M Emperors of Music, vocalists and comedians; O'Rourke & Burnett, dancing specialists, and Flatow and Dunn, blackface comedians and vocalists. The new pictures in the biograph and steropticon will be of an unusually interesting character. It should be noted by intending patrons that the doors of the theatre will not be opened hereafter (except on holidays) until 12 o'clock, noon, instead of at 10 o'clock A. M. as hitherto. A change of prices to 75 cents for orchestra seats; 50 cents for orchestra circle, and a scheme for reserved seats in both orchestra and balcony, will also go into effect.

Clothes Transformation.

In these days of uniformed employees there are to be found means whereby a uniform coat may quickly and easily be changed in its appearance to that of an ordinary civilian. This is done simply by changing the buttons. There are different kinds of buttons for this purpose. Some are made with a shank that goes through an eyelet made in the coat, where commonly a button would be sewed on, this movable button being fastened at the back. Buttons of this kind are changed bodily—one kind removed and the other kind put in its place.

There is another kind of transformation button in which a black button of ordinary appearance is sewed on to the coat in the usual manner, there to remain, the gold button in this case consisting of a cap which screws or is otherwise fastened right over the black button, which it covers. Screwing on these caps would put a man into uniform; taking them off would put him back into a blue coat such as might be worn anywhere.

The device of a silk band that may be put in a moment around a uniform cap is familiar. It covers up the gold braid there, which is, after all, likely to be the most conspicuous thing about a uniform, more so than the brass buttons on the coat.—New York Sun.

The Way to Live.

"If anybody needs artificial exercise," said a well known doctor, "it is because he is not leading a natural life. It is better to come back to nature than to do something that takes up time and produces nothing. Stout people are always told to exercise. I tell you, they cannot exercise safely to themselves. Brain workers should avoid all extra exertion. Thin people can take all the exercise they want to."

The speaker prescribed air, water and food as the real culture. He pointed out that New England housekeepers through their fashion of shutting up their "best rooms," especially after a death, had caused the deaths of a succession of the future occupants of such apartments. To this he attributed the rapid decrease of the old New England stock.

"Pure water is a rejuvenator. If we could get it absolutely pure, we should scarcely grow old," he declared. Boiled water he condemned and lauded the lettuce leaf as food above beefsteak.

"Breathe correctly, stand correctly, make a natural use of your muscles in daily life and eat uncooked animal food," is his recipe for longevity.—New York Journal.

His First Dress Suit.

He was a very youthful looking man, and he wore a natty opera hat and a lengthy paddock coat, which caused him to be the cynosure of all eyes in a North Thirteenth street trolley car.

It was probably the first time he had ever worn a dress suit, and as he walked into the car his embarrassment was painfully noticeable. Many smiles flitted over the passengers' faces, and the young fellow noticed each one and blushed deeply.

But more trouble was in store. At Jefferson street two redheaded Irish servant girls boarded the car. They crowded into a seat and began to talk volubly.

"Yis," said one, "th' mistress wint to a widdin, and she"—

She paused here, as her wandering gaze rested on the conspicuous young man in the corner.

"Say, Ellen," she said loudly and with a giggle, "how would you like that for a feller?"

The young man left the car hurriedly before it had reached the street where he wished to alight.—Philadelphia Call.

No Interviewers Then.

The number of letters written by the fathers of the country during the Revolution and the first 20 years of government under the constitution seems amazing at the present time. Letter writing appears to have occupied the place now taken by the public press. Letters of great length were constantly passing from one leader to another. It speaks volumes for the industry of the men of the time, for their letters were all in handwriting.

Those of Washington alone fill seven large volumes, and throughout his political career Jefferson was even more active with his pen. Sometimes when his letters were printed he must have wished he had not been so free. Throughout his residence in France he wrote most voluminously to congress, his writings forming a running history of the time in Europe. After his retirement to Monticello he continued to write letters of great length to his friends in all parts of the Union, and in this wise his influence remained nearly as great as when he was in office.—Chicago Tribune.

Story of a Yeomanry Officer.

They are telling a delicious story in Edinburgh just now at the expense of a certain yeomanry officer, an immensely popular man, whose one weakness is his belief that the making of a great general was lost when he went into the business of keeping a shop. The militia regiment garrisoning Edinburgh castle in the absence of the Gordon highlanders contains some choice spirits, and the other day, after a laying together of heads among the officers, a stripling rushed into the establishment of the officer in question. "Oh, Colonel So-and-so," he called, "have you heard the news? You are ordered off for active service immediately!" The colonel started to his feet. "Great heavens," he cried, "has Roberts been killed already?"—M. A. P.

Rivalry.

"Pa, what is commercial rivalry?"

"Well, commercial rivalry is the way your mother tries to spend what I make faster than Mrs. Dash, next door, spends what her husband makes."—Chicago Record.

Springtime

Is the sweetest season in human life, as it is in Nature generally. It is the time of promise. As the young girl draws near to that mysterious line "Where womanhood and girlhood meet," her whole destiny is in a measure being determined. How often the sweet young girl, under the influence of the change, withers and droops like some blighted bud. Nature generally needs some little help at this critical period, and this help in its best form is contained in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, and gives the vigor of perfect health to the womanly organs. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

Miss Emma Lee, of Williford, Sharp Co., Ark., writes: "I was suffering severely and tried several doctors' remedies, but received only very little relief; therefore, I feel it my duty to write and let other sufferers know what your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' have done for me. I took eight bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' six vials of the 'Pellets,' also one bottle of your 'Compound Extract of Smart-Weed.' As soon as I had taken the first bottle I could see that the medicine was helping me. I had disease of internal organs with bronchitis and catarrh. I also used the local treatment you suggested."

The sluggish liver can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

EDUCATIONAL.

I believe commerce and industry in their highest ranges to be eminently intellectual pursuits; and I know no other intellectual calling for which a professional school is not now provided. To deny that young men be systematically trained for industry and commerce is to assert that industry and commerce are merely imitative arts, to be acquired only by seeing other people do the tricks and then practising them. In industry and commerce all things are become new, and new methods of preparing young men for these occupations must be invented with discriminating foresight, established with prudence and maintained with liberality.

President Eliot.

On a few fundamental principles, all men will probably agree. Named in the order of their importance, these principles may be stated as follows:

1. The primary object of all schools, as of all institutions for the benefit of youth, is the development of character.

2. A secondary object is the aquisition of knowledge which shall be useful to the pupils in after life.

3. In brief, schools exist to inspire their pupils with the purpose to be, to know, and to do, and to give every possible opportunity and every right incentive for the acquisition of knowledge and power.

In this formulated statement character means strength of will, high ideals, power to do.

What do the schools contribute to this prime end of education? What ideas do they furnish? What growth in lofty purpose do they foster? What resisting strength do they give?

Their greatest contrition must ever be the personality of the teacher. No stream rises above its source; no school rises above the standard of its teacher. The living example of strong and righteous living which the teacher supplies is in every school its essential quality, the personnel of the teaching force is the most important characteristic of every system of schools.

George E. Gay.

The history of the past fifty years in the State of Massachusetts is alone a conclusive answer to the contention that education begets crime. In 1850 the jails and prisons of that State held 8,761 person;—while in 1855 the number had increased to three times as many (26,651). On the surface, therefore, crime had greatly increased. But analysis of the crimes shows that serious offenses had fallen off 40 per cent. during this period, while the vigilance with which minor misdemeanors were followed up had produced the great apparent increase in crime. While drunkenness had greatly fallen off in proportion to the population, yet commitments for drunkenness alone multiplied from 3,341 in 1850 to 18,701 in 1885. The commitments for crimes other than drunkenness were 1 to every 183 of the population in 1850 and 1 to every 244 of the population in 1885. In other words, as has been pointed out, persons and property had become safer, while drunkenness had become more dangerous—to the drunkard.

Prof. Butler.

Some time since, twenty bad boys in a certain city were chosen for the sense test, and it was discovered that every one of them was defective in vision or hearing, or both. Twenty good children were selected, and it happened that all were perfect in both senses. It would be dangerous to generalize from this that all physical defectives are morally defective, or that all perfect nervous systems are morally without reproach, but that the tendency of each is here emphasized there can be no question. A sound mind in a sound body means more than that the body should be healthy; it means that every part of the physical organism should be continuously and efficiently performing its proper function. There are notable cases of individuals, physically defective from birth, attaining to great mental power and spiritual excellence, but at what cost few people can imagine.

A. R. Taylor.

The returns showing the status of drawing in these schools yielded, as usual, subsidiary information not to be ignored. One superintendent reports having "a member of the school committee who forbids drawing in 'his' schools!" A school committee man reports, "We pay no attention to Drawing of eny amont." Another says, "Our Mountain Schools are ruined now by forced Study and Noveltys." In reply to these questions: (1) "Is drawing taught regularly in your schools? (2) What course forms the basis of instruction? (3) Is a supervisor or teacher of drawing employed?" one man said, "at interavls on general principuls. No we do not mak any." In reply to the question as to the teacher's preparation for teaching, he wrote: "From Nature." To the inquiry concerning manual work, one reply came thus: "We do not need any only from Nature." From one of the hill towns ame this testimonial to Mr. Sargent, in reply to the question as to special teachers: Occasionally we have Mr. Sargent. He fills the Bill. No others need apply." The answers from one man are sufficiently definite and truthful to serve as models for many a turn: Drawing is taught in a rudimentary way. The teacher's taste forms the basis of instruction. The ordinary teacher teaches it." From one town of nearly 5,000 inhabitants, with more than 600 children in its schools, the sheet of inquiry was returned with "NIT" stamped upon it twelve times as a reply to every question. Such returns lead one to conclude that drawing is not the only subject demanding attention in some sections of this enlightened Commonwealth.

From the State Report.

Every school has three grades of capacity, especially in music and drawing, spelling and arithmetic. The fewest have talent in music, and the least number are without capacity in arithmetic. There are so many who cannot sing solos that no one thinks of making a promotion or graduation depend upon it. Most public school exercises in music are in concert. This avoids humiliating those who have no ear for music. In spelling, the most important school branch, perhaps, we pity those who are deficient, but we rarely blame them or deny them promotion. In arithmetic so few are absolutely deficient that we often push and punish those who are, hold the whole class back, use sarcasm cruelly, and often refuse promotion because of incapacity. Children who are "born short" in arithmetic actualy suffer more in school than they would if the shortage was in music, drawing and spelling combined, whereas after leaving school they rarely care anything for their deficiency but suffer for life from incapacity to spell, and regret always inability to sing or draw. The mere fact that a person is deficient in one great activity is usually indicative of talent in some other, so that, as a matter of fact, to be mathematically deficient is a reommendation for a boy or girl unless he seeks a position that requires the use of figures.

DOUBLE HOUSE PLAN.

Dwellings Are Semidetached and Are Neat and Convenient.

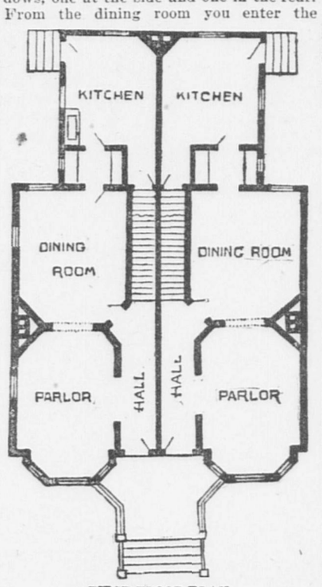

This design shows the plans of a handsome double house, semidetached and really two houses under one roof, and suitable for erection in town or country. The plans are almost exactly alike, with the exception of the variations in the form of the bay windows in front, which make the building very attractive in appearance. A cellar extends under the entire building and has a concrete floor 3 inches thick.

FRONT ELEVATION.

In this case the entrances are close together and sheltered by a handsome gabled porch, which harmonizes with the chief characteristic feature of each house. From the porch you may pass into either hall. On each side of the halls are the parlors, with an archway separating the latter from the former; also one between the parlor and dining room, arranged to be hung with pretty portieres, which always give a rich effect. There is a door communicating with the hall and dining room, which is a most desirable feature. The main staircase, at the back end of the hall, leads to the second story. This staircase is 3 feet wide, with a neat hand rail firmly secured on one side. A staircase which passes up between two partitions costs less than an open stairway, although it is not as handsome in appearance.

The dining room is lighted by two windows, one at the side and one in the rear. From the dining room you enter the kitchen through the pantry. Underneath the main staircase are the entrance and stairs to the cellar, which are convenient and lead directly from the kitchen.

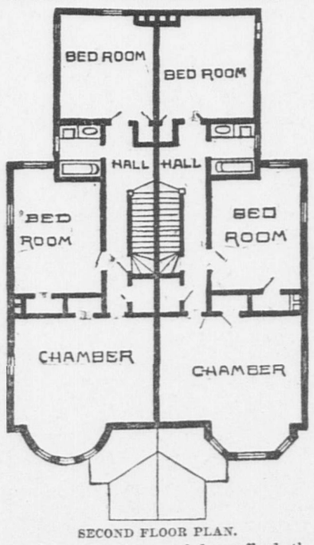

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The kitchen is equipped with a portable range, to which are attached a "water back" and hot water boiler, which supplies the kitchen sink and bathroom in the second story with an ample quantity of hot water, a very necessary item for the comfort and convenience of the household. In this case the usual stationary laundry tubs are omitted, although they could be placed alongside of the sink in the kitchen if desired. The pantry is lighted by a small window and fitted up with shelves in the customary manner.

In the second story of each house is a splendid chamber in front, one with an octagon, the other with a semicircular bay window, which gives a fine view of the street in either direction. Two large bedrooms, a bathroom, hall and closets for each complete the accommodations to be found in the second story.

Above the second story is an unfinished open attic, which may be utilized as a storeroom. A substantial stairway inclosed by a partition and door affords the means of reaching this necessary apartment. The halls are lighted from skylights in the roof at the back.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The foundations may be either of stone or brick. The building above the foundations is of wood, with the usual balloon frame, sheathed and papered; clapboarded in the first story, with sides, gables and roofs covered with white pine shingles; all other exterior finish of white pine. Floors of yellow pine, newels and rails of stairs of cherry; all other inside finish of California redwood, fitted, varnished and rubbed smooth. Doors are of white pine, stained to match color of the inside woodwork. The walls and ceilings inside are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar and well seasoned lath. Bronze hardware in first story; japanned ironware in second story. These buildings can be erected complete, with a furnace for each, for $3,000.

The "Ivory" is a favorite shaving soap because it makes a profuse rich lather, which softens the beard to be removed and leaves the skin unharmed.

It costs about one-fifth as much as the so-called shaving soaps and many who have used it for this purpose for years, will not have any other.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe or unsatisfactory.

The London Graphic says that the betrothal of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands to Prince Wilhelm zo Wied will not be officially announced until she has attained her twentieth birthday in August next, but that after that the marriage will not be long delayed.

The London Graphic states that the king of Denmark will probably shortly resign his crown to his eldest son. The last ministerial crisis greatly shook him, and since the death of Queen Louise, two years ago, his health has been deteriorating. If the political situation does not ameliorate soon the king's decision will be officially announced.

AUTOMOBILE BOOM.

SELF PROPELLING VEHICLES IN OUR RURAL DISTRICTS.

An Influence In the Cause of Good Roads—Various Kinds of Motive Power—Hauling Farm Produce to Market—Cheaper Machines.

[Special Correspondence.]

TOPEKA, May 7.—Is the horse as a farm animal doomed? This question is being seriously asked by many people. It is more than probable that the growing use of self propelling vehicles will effect many changes in agricultural communities. The horse will remain, however, but the faithful beast will have less important work assigned him than at present.

Many millions of dollars are now invested in the manufacture of automobiles. This term is applied to any self moving conveyance. Thus a trolley car or a locomotive is in reality an automobile. In a strict sense, however, the word automobile is used only in connection with self propelling conveyances for road use. The number, variety and cost of these modern chariots are legion.

Air, steam, oil, gas, gasoline and electricity are the principal powers used to run automobiles. For obvious reasons oil, gasoline and steam are best adapted for running automobiles in the country. Water may be secured with little inconvenience. Oil and gasoline can be procured at small cost in every city, town and hamlet.

Automobiles require comparatively good roads. Thus, in rural districts the coming of automobiles will mean improved highways. Granted this condition, it seems certain that a few years will witness the rapid and extensive use of automobiles all over the land.

In all large American cities and also in England and on the continent deliveries of packages and parcels are made by means of automobiles. The United States government utilizes automobiles in transferring mail in different portions of New York city. A celebrated French firm has just finished a serviceable delivery wagon. A gasoline motor runs the wagon, and the weight of the conveyance, with a full supply of fuel, is about 4,000 pounds.

A wealthy New Yorker owns a farm in New Jersey and proposes to cart his produce to the railroad station and through neighboring towns in automobiles. The farmers in the neighborhood do not like the prospect. They think customers will be pleased to purchase fruit and vegetables in this novel manner and they will lose trade. The problem for the New Jersey farmers to solve will likewise perplex other parts of the country.

What place will the automobile take in farming localities and in suburban towns in the future? The query is worthy of consideration. In a short time milk will be transferred from farms and creameries to railroad cars in automobiles. Produce of all kinds will likewise be carted in self propelling wagons. Steam thrashers, reapers and plows are already in use.

Then, too, farmers will speed over the country in light pleasure vehicles. Quick and frequent deliveries of mail will be made at all country homes in automobiles. The boys and young men will take more interest in mechanics. Machinery will be studied, and the repairs and renewals will be made at home with the same skill and ease that bicycles are now kept in good condition.

The original cost and expense of maintaining automobiles are important points. Electric carriages are very expensive and are not adapted to the country, as it would be impossible in most cases to get the battery recharged.

One company has turned out over 800 automobiles, which are used in all parts of the world. The Chinese minister in Washington has one and will have it painted white and yellow. Andrew Carnegie has six of these light road conveyances. They are also in use in South America, Japan, Honolulu and in many parts of the British empire.

Light automobiles may be purchased as low as $750. They will ascend Mount Washington. Steam and gasoline are used to propel them. The company referred to is experimenting with automobile trucks and delivery wagons. The price of automobiles is being constantly lowered. Like bicycles, automobiles will soon be within the reach of all people.

Automobile stages will some day run through the country districts. Automobile clubs are being formed, and tours and runs are being arranged. Country runs will be popular, and clubhouses in the country are being built. The farming element in the United States will be benefited by these innovations.

Sympathy Wasted.

A little girl of 5 or 6 years, with big blue eyes that were full of tears, came to Bellevue hospital, New York, the other day, says Leslie's Weekly. She carried a cat in her arms. The cat had been wounded by a street car, and one leg was badly mangled. At the gate the girl told Tom, the big policeman, that the cat was hurt.

"I want a doctor to he'p it!" she said.

Tom took her to the receiving ward, where there was a doctor who had nothing else to do.

"Here's a case, doc," said the policeman.

"I ain't a"— the doctor began. Then he saw the girl's eyes. "Let me see," he continued.

"Pretty bad," was the doctor's comment. Then he got some knives, a little bottle of chloroform and some bandages. "You must help me," he said to the girl.

She aided bravely, though it made her very pale to see the sharp knives amputating the leg. In a few minutes it was all over and the cat was partly recovered from the anæsthetic.

"Now you can take your kitty home with you," the doctor said.

"It ain't mine," the girl said. "I des found it. Now oo take care of it. Doodby."

The policeman and doctor made faces at each other, then sent the cat to the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

An Early Morning Episode.

The gray light of the morning was stealing through the windows of the Brown home. Solemnly the clock on the mantel chimed the sleepy hour of 5. Suddenly the doorbell clanged with a wild, fierce shriek. Again and again it re-echoed to its wildly reverberating tremulousness.

"Fire at the store!" thought Brown, turning pale.

"A telegram saying that mother is ill!" thought Mrs. Brown, with a strange fear tugging at her heart.

Brown hurriedly dressed, in his excitement not forgetting to upset a few chairs, thus adding to the fear of Mrs. Brown, who breathlessly awaited the return of her lord.

She heard him open the door. Then a muffled exclamation reached her ears, and the door shut with a bang. Then a volley of sounds, which are generally described as making the air turn blue, reached her ears. The sounds came nearer and nearer until Brown had finally climbed the last step and stood outlined in the bedroom door.

"A telegram, John?" inquired Mrs. Brown in a terrible suspense as she clutched the covers and awaited the worst.

"A what?" roared Brown. "A what? Heavens and earth, no! That neighbor's boy brought back the umbrella his mother borrowed yesterday!"—Indianapolis Sun.

Submerged.

At the conclusion of service the minister of a certain Nonconformist church went down the aisle, as was his unvarying custom, to greet the strangers in the congregation, says The Scottish-American. "I don't think you are a member of our church," said he to one as he warmly shook his hand.

"No, sir," replied the stranger.

"Well, you will not think me unduly curious if I ask to what denomination you belong?" asked the minister.

"I suppose," responded the other, "I'm really what you might call a submerged Presbyterian."

"A submerged Presbyterian!" exclaimed the minister. "I should be glad if you'd explain."

"Well, I was brought up a Presbyterian, my wife is a Methodist, my eldest daughter is a Baptist, my son is the organist at a Unitarian church, my second daughter sings in a Church of England choir, and my youngest goes to a Congregational Sunday school."

"But," said the minister aghast, "you contribute, doubtless, to some church?"

"Yes; I contribute to all of them," was the answer. "That's what submerges me!"

Colony of Crows.

For many years Coldwater has had a colony of crows varying in number from 800 to several thousand. The dusky feathered tribe assemble in what is known as Seeley's park, a tract of several acres thickly covered with evergreen and oak trees of large size. About sunset each day the crows return by hundreds and before "retiring" for the night devote about one hour to a caucus of the situation. After this all remains quiet in the settlement until early the next morning, when they take flight, probably in search of food. What they subsist on during the winter months is a mystery. One feature regarding the rather singular encampment is that the colony is rapidly growing, although no one has been able to find their nesting places. The place they have pre-empted is almost in the heart of the city. No one disturbs them, even the small boy respecting their claim to the wooded park.—Grand Rapids Herald.

Taste In Presents.

"Some people, men especially, acquire reputations for excellent taste in selecting presents, when in reality they haven't the slightest idea what is being sent," said a salesman in a fashionable street jewelry store. "They just don't want to be bothered with making a selection themselves. Several regular customers who have accounts here invariably come to me when they receive wedding invitations or have to give presents of any kind, and tell me to use my own judgment in making a selection. Of course, they tell me how much they want to spend, give me the name and address, together with a card to be inclosed, and go about their business. They haven't the slightest idea of what their gift is until they receive a note of thanks."—Philadelphia Record.

The Fortune Teller

There were nine of us—four couples and an odd one—gathered in Mary Brown's pleasant parlor. We had all come together quite by accident.

"Well, I declare!" said wild Ned. "We've just time to go over to the woods and have our fortunes told before sunset. What do you say?"

"Oh, let's go!" cried Alice and I in a breath. "It will be such fun!"

And so we coupled off—Mary and Carl, John and Nellie, Peter and Alice, Jack and I, and Ned, the odd one, as guide. After much stumbling over underbrush and a few torn dresses we reached the place and presented ourselves before the sibyl—a wild, dark and sufficiently hideous old hag to satisfy us all that she was the veritable gypsy who told dreadful truths to heroes and heroines in novels.

"Draw out your dimes," said Ned in a whisper, and then aloud to the gypsy, "Madam, having heard of your wonderful skill in reading the future, we humbly present ourselves before you,' hoping to profit by the words of wisdom that fall from your respected tongue."

"Aye, I can read the future, as ye say, my laddie," said the woman. "Will ye gi' me yer hand?"

"I give place to my betters," said Ned, pushing Carl Owen forward.

The sibyl pocketed the proffered coin, and then took the young man's hand and examined it intently.

"A bright and glowing future, lad—a bright and glowing future I read for ye; wealth and honor and distinction. Men shall bow before ye, and a world shall sing yer praise. And all this is near to ye. I can tell no more. Go."

"A very good beginning, old lady," whispered Ned. "Now, Mary!"

And Mary held out her palm for inspection. The sibyl shook her unkempt locks.

"A sad life and a lonely one, my lassie! Ye will never wed: yer life will have many crosses and yer eyes shed many tears, and men will woo, but ye will never be a bride!" She dropped her hand, and Carl drew Mary back by his side with a contemptuous grimace to the gypsy. Alice came next.

"Ah, ye will wed, my lady!" cried the gypsy. A fair young lord, with eyes like sleeping lakes and hair like spun gold, is on his way even now. And he will woo, and my lady will not say nay, but will hie wi' him to a palace home."

"Not if I can help it," I heard Peter whisper as he stepped forward.

"The line of life is long. Yer days are many. But ye will meet with sorrow. Ye will win a fair lassie, and she will die and leave ye all forlorn to wander o er the world." And Peter's hand was dropped and John's taken.

"Ye will wed the maid of yer heart. Ye will be happy in her love, but no children will ever bless yer life. This will be the only sorrow of yer life."

"And ye," taking Nellie's soft hand, "ye will be a childless wife, I ween. Many will be yer tears."

It was Jack's turn now.

"Ye will wed a great princess and ride in a chariot of gold, but life will be a burden for all that. And yer princess will turn all the sunshine of yer life to darkness. Go." And Jack went and I came.

The sibyl sighed.

"The lines of life are short. Yer days are few, my lassie, for those red cheeks. A worm gnaws at yer heart, and ye will fade and die ere three moons."

I turned away shuddering.

"And now, young man, ye are the last," she said, taking Ned's hand. "And a brilliant future awaits ye. Ye will go through much of poverty, mayhap, and sorrow, but will sit in the president's chair at last. Long life and happiness are at last thine."

And then she vanished into the hut, and we all went home, sadder and, oh, how vastly wiser!

That was ten years ago, and let us see how the gypsy's prophecies terminated.

I waited three months, and, being still alive, Jack insisted upon my becoming Mrs. Brown.

"If you don't, I shall go and marry that princess," he threatened.

"Then I shall surely die," I said, and a month afterward prevented the possibility of such a thing.

At my wedding I heard Peter pleading the question with Alice.

"But, Peter, I have got to marry a lord with golden hair and eyes like lakes; and you are dark and not a lord," answered Alice.

"But you must really marry me."

"Well, if he doesn't come in a month I will."

As he did not she married Peter.

Mary is the happy wife of Farmer Carl, who hasn't found his wealth and honor yet, but is very happy without them. And as for John and Nellie, you have only to go within hearing distance of their home, and the sounds you hear will convince you that the gypsy failed there too.

Ned Wilder is at present, I believe, in the jockey business. But he says there are dark days, and he is expecting the nomination for the presidency. I hope he'll get it, for the gypsy's sake.—New York News.

The Convivial Bannister.

Charles Bannister made his first appearance in London in a piece called the "Orators" in May, 1762. In this he gave musical imitations, but the performances taking place in the mornings his convivial habits overnight precluded him from shining as he might have done, a fact which was noticed by Foote, the manager. To this Bannister replied, "I knew it would be so; I am all right at night, but neither I nor my voice can get up in the morning."

He was invariably in difficulties on the death of Sir Theodosius Roughton, the topic of the hour in 1781, as he was said to have been poisoned by laurel water. Bannister said: "Pooh! Don't tell me of your laurel leaves; I fear none but a bay leaf" (bailiff).

Once, when returning from Epsom to town in a gig, accompanied by a friend, they were unable to pay the toll at Kennington gate, and the man would not let them pass. Bannister immediately offered to sing a song and struck up "The Tempest of War." His voice was heard afar, the gate being soon thronged by voters returning from Brentford, who encored his effort, and the turnpike man, calling him a noble fellow, expressed his willingness to pay "50 tolls for him at any gate."

MEN OF MARK.

William J. Bryan, Congressman Williams and Richard Yates were members of the same class at Illinois college.

Rev. Dr. Norman Fox, a retired Baptist clergyman, has been elected mayor by the Republicans of Morristown, N. J.

General Cronje appears to be thriving in exile. Since his surrender he has gained 30 pounds of the 40 he lost in his recent campaigning.

Senator Tillman said recently, "I have two colored men in charge of my plantation, men who think the world of me and to whom I would trust everything I own."

J. W. Robinson of Butler county, Kan., owns a farm of more than 10,000 acres, of which he works 4,500 acres himself. "In my 15 years' residence in Kansas," he says, "I have never known a year that I did not make money."

Dr. Edson Fessendon Gallaudet, head coach of the Yale crews and an instructor in physics, will resign at the close of the present rowing season to accept a place with the Cramp Shipbuilding company of Philadelphia.

Julius Fleischmann is one of the youngest mayors of a large city in this country. He is but 28 years old and is the mayor of Cincinnati. When only 20, he was made a colonel on the staff of President McKinley, then governor of Ohio.

A New York paper is authority for the statement that Thomas B. Reed is growing more portly and that he uses the fact as the basis for a claim of extraordinary politeness, because he is able to give two ladies a seat by standing up in a crowded car.

James J. Clark, once a prosperous restaurant owner of New York, who made $50,000 a year from the Bijou cafe alone until that notorious resort was shut up by the police, has opened a clam chowder stand at Coney Island. At one time Clark was rated as a millionaire. He lost his money in speculation.

Half of the 22 dukes who sit in the British house of lords have no sons to succeed them. The dukes who are without heirs apparent are the present Duke of Argyll and the Dukes of Beaufort, Hamilton, Devonshire, Leeds, Manchester, Newcastle, St. Albans, Somerset, Wellington and Westminster.

Two years ago Louis Patnaud resigned his place as assistant postmaster of Everett, Wash., to try his fortune in the Klondike. Three of his friends made up $400 as a "grub stake" for him. No word came from the recipient until he returned to Everett a week ago, when he divided $11,000 among the three friends who had helped him.

Nineteen years ago Lord Roberts received the thanks of both houses of parliament for his march from Kabul to Kandahar. He is the only man living entitled to wear two Victoria crosses. His own he wears on his left breast, but—according to army regulations—the cross earned by his son he is not only allowed but commanded to wear on the opposite side.

The Rand is the real objective of the campaign. When the British gain possession of that, they will have gained all that the uitlanders desire to inhabit and all of which they can make any present use.—New York Times.

The star of Baden-Powell is now in the ascendant. He is the one English soldier who has made a popular record in the South African war thus far, and, as he seems to be level headed, he is likely to improve his great opportunity.—Buffalo Courier.

THE CYNIC.

A dollar will buy a lot of necessities, but few pleasures.

Premeditated smart sayings nearly always contain poison.

Your best friend is the one to whom you gossip about all the others.

When a man appears with new clothes, all his friends try to be funny.

A man never stammers or hesitates over what to say next when he is talking about his grievances.

There is no denying there is a sigh of relief when the guest who frowns down all attempts at gossip puts on his hat and leaves.

The men attending political conventions will soon be returning home to call their wives "gads" for attending church societies meeting next door.

A great source of mortification to a woman is that when she has the preacher to dinner and he asks a blessing her husband and children will not behave as if they were used to it.—Atchison Globe.

THE DOMINIE.

St. Patrick was voted into the calendar of saints in the English prayer book recently by the convocation of York.

The Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D., pastor of the Manhattan Congregational church of New York, has just been appointed Southworth lecturer at Andover Theological seminary for next year. He will deliver a course of six lectures next winter upon "The Church of Today."

The report of the churches in the Chicago presbytery, just issued, gives a total church membership of 20,349, a decrease of 814 on last year's report. This is said to be due to a severe pruning of the rolls. The money raised for missionary and philanthropic purposes during the year amounted to $559,243, compared with $528,538 the previous year.

THE ART OF WAR.

High angle fire is that from guns at all elevations beyond 15 degrees.

A steel plate three-sixteenths of an inch thick which cannot be drilled or pierced by a Lee-Metford bullet has been produced by a Sheffield (England) firm.

Promotion in the Russian army is exceedingly slow. It takes from six to seven years for a captain to become a lieutenant colonel and four for a lieutenant colonel to become a colonel.

MY BEAUTIFUL BABY BOY

Weak Women Made Happy by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Letters from Two Who Now Have Children.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It was my ardent desire to have a child. I had been married three years and was childless, so wrote to you to find out the reason. After following your kind advice and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I became the mother of a beautiful baby boy, the joy of our home. He is a fat, healthy baby, thanks to your medicine."—MRS. MINDA FINKLE, Roscoe, N. Y.

From Grateful Mrs. Lane

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote you a letter some time ago, stating my case to you.

"I had pains through my bowels, headache, and backache, felt tired and sleepy all the time, was troubled with the whites. I followed your advice, took your Vegetable Compound, and it did me lots of good. I now have a baby girl. I certainly believe I would have miscarried had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had a very easy time; was sick only a short time. I think your medicine is a godsend to women in the condition in which I was. I recommend it to all as the best medicine for women."—MRS. MARY LANE, Coytee, Tenn.

MY BEAUTIFUL BABY BOY

Weak Women Made Happy by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.—Letters from Two Who Now Have Children.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It was my ardent desire to have a child. I had been married three years and was childless, so wrote to you to find out the reason. After following your kind advice and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I became the mother of a beautiful baby boy, the joy of our home. He is a fat, healthy baby, thanks to your medicine."—MRS. MINDA FINKLE, Roscoe, N. Y.

From Grateful Mrs. Lane

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote you a letter some time ago, stating my case to you.

"I had pains through my bowels, headache, and backache, felt tired and sleepy all the time, was troubled with the whites. I followed your advice, took your Vegetable Compound, and it did me lots of good. I now have a baby girl. I certainly believe I would have miscarried had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had a very easy time; was sick only a short time. I think your medicine is a godsend to women in the condition in which I was. I recommend it to all as the best medicine for women."—MRS. MARY LANE, Coytee, Tenn.

GOOD HEALTH BICYCLES.

The kind that make you forget all cares and troubles, make you breathe fresh air in your lungs, require just enough exercise riding to make you healthy, hungry and good natured.

Yes—there's a great difference in bicycles. Some with flashy enamel on the outside, listed high in the catalogue, that work like a tread mill and spend half their time in the repair shop just like a dollar watch. Then there is the ORIENT, CLEVELAND, IVER JOHNSON and PIERCE kind like $100.00 watches, built by skilled mechanics. They bring endless comfort and pleasure to those who ride them.

If you want the best that American brains can make—come here. Prices to suit your notion.

Boers Left But Three Behind When They Departed From Johannesburg.

Situation at Pretoria Is Regarded as Enigmatical.

Boers East of Roberts' Advance Making Attempts to Head Off the British.

London, June 4.—Lord Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, has received the following from Lord Roberts, dated Orange Grove, June 2:

"Johannesburg is quiet. The people are surrendering arms and ponies. Only three Boer guns were left in the fort. The Queenslanders captured, May 30, a creusot, with 11 wagons of stores and ammunition. Commandant Botha of Zoutpansberg, his field cornet and 100 prisoners were taken in the fighting around Johannesburg, some belonging to the foreign contingents and the Irish brigade. The Thirteenth yeomanry were attacked, May 29, between Kronnstad and Lindley. There were some casualties."

There is no direct news from Pretoria of later date than Thursday evening. General French's cavalry were then at Irene, eight miles south of Pretoria, and firing was heard there. Lord Roberts' messages about the secondary operations elsewhere and the situation at Johannesburg, dated at Orange Grove, a farm four miles northeast of Johannesburg, show that on Saturday, at 9:10 p. m. he was 25 miles from Pretoria.

The correspondents with Lord Roberts have not got through a line about the operations after the occupation of Johannesburg. Official messages continue to come through; but press telegrams are held up, probably to avoid their giving even a hint as to what may be the pending operations. From the other side there filters through Lourenzo Marquez a mass of statements, some contradictory and others obviously improbable.

The revival of the Boer fighting power east of Lord Roberts' advance, although fruitless, is a symptom that the Boers are not yet crushed. In General Rundle's attack on the entrenched Boers, seven miles east of Senekal, May 29, the British did not see a Boer all day, so completely were they screened. The British infantry did not get within 1000 yards of their riflemen. The 182 losses wired by Lord Roberts were suffered by the Grenadiers and Scots guards while advancing over a level from which the grass had been burned. The Britishers in khaki were a conspicuous target against the black background.

General Rundle withdrew his whole force at sundown to Senekal, having succeeded in drawing the Boers from Lindley, allowing the threatened force to get away safely. The Boers sent to the British for medical help, saying that Commandant De Villiers was seriously wounded. General Rundle sent a doctor, with a bottle of champagne and his complements, as well as a message that he would release all the Boer prisoners at Senekal.

In the advance of the Grenadiers Colonel Lloyd led in the face of a deadly fire. He was hit, but struggled on, only to be disabled by another bullet. Lieutenant Murray, falling, cried: "Forward, Grenadiers." The blinding smoke of the veldt hampered the operations. Lieutenant Seymour, on offering to go back to direct the artillery, was wounded. The order to retire was given and executed under a screen of smoke. The Boer fire was kept up until dark.

According to a dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Newcastle, dated Saturday, the Boers exhibit no signs of leaving Laing's Nek.

Newspaper commentators here generally regard the situation at Pretoria as enigmatical. They rather expect news of the British occupation today. An odd consequence of the impending extinction of the Transvaal is that its coinage is at an enormous premium in Cape Town, pennies bringing 50 shillings.

Invited to Republican Convention.

Washington, June 4.—The suggestion that the survivors of the first national gathering of Republicans, held at Pittsburg on Feb. 22, 1856, and later at the convention held in Philadelphia on June 18 of the same year, be specially honored with invitations to this year's convention has met the approval of Senator Hanna, who has sent a letter to each of the surviving delegates assuring them a most cordial welcome.

Killed by Shock and Fall.

Boston, June 4.—Thomas Sabine, a lineman, was at work on a pole at Cambridge when he touched a live wire. For several minutes he hung there, groaning in torture, but no one could render him any assistance. Finally he dropped to the ground, a distance of 40 feet, the fall resulting in his death from numerous injuries.

RICHARDSON MYSTERY SOLVED.

Missing Worcester Man Was Traced to Buffalo and Finally Found In Canada.

New York, June 4.—After a disappearance of nearly two months from this city, Charles A. Richardson of Worcester, Mass., a road builder, bank official and member of a big Boston corporation, has returned and is at the Hoffman House under the care of a physician and a professional nurse. He is suffering from nervous prostration and is unable to leave his room.

After the police of this and many other cities in the state and several private detective agencies, stimulated by the offer of a large reward, had followed clew after clew to no purpose, Mr. Richardson was finally traced to Buffalo, where he had been under medical treatment. When the searching parties had reached Buffalo he had again disappeared, but the trail led to Hamilton, Ont. There one of his business associates found him a few days ago, broken in health, and conducted him to this city. Mr. Richardson's physician is hopeful that he will be able to leave the hotel some time this week.

One theory of Mr. Richardson's disappearance was that he had gone to Porto Rico, where he had some business interests, but his father-in-law, Horace W. Wilson, was inclined to the opinion that he had feared to face a business crisis. Mr. Richardson had been persuaded to involve himself in a business deal which he finally convinced himself would be a failure, but when he tried to withdraw, others interested in the affair used pressure, intimating that he had gone too far to back out.

Likely to Die From Fractured Skull.

Boston, June 4.—Nothing has been learned that furnishes the slightest clue to the assailant of an unknown 16-year-old lad who was found lying in the bushes near the Brookline town line Saturday night suffering from a fractured skull. He has not regained consciousness and it is the opinion that he will die without being able to tell the story of the assault. The condition of the boy's body indicated that he had lain where found for a considerable time, and scratches on the side of his face would seems to indicate that he had been dragged from a distance.

A Prosperous Mackerel Season.

Gloucester, Mass., June 4.—Not for many years has the southern mackerel fishery been such a success. This season is now practically ended, and the mackerel are working up on to the New England and Nova Scotia coasts. The schools are showing from No Man's Land to Nova Scotia, and from Georges banks to the coast. The receipts of mackerel to date have been about 23,000 barrels, as against 3000 barrels in 1899, and this shows in a marked degree the conditions existing.

Was Not Badly Hurt.

Lawrence, Mass., June 4.—George Ferris, the Syrian, who was sent to the hospital with injuries thought to include a fractured skull, sustained in a fight, has been discharged from the institution. He was not seriously hurt. Cornelius Connors, who, it is claimed, struck Ferris with a hammer, was held for assault in $1000 bail.

Exeter Boys Won.

Exeter, N. H., June 4.—After battling for over three hours the athletes of Phillips Exeter academy won the 11th annual dual meet with her rival, Phillips Andover academy, by a score of 57½ to 46½. Andover excelled in the track events, and held a safe lead until the field events, in which Exeter proved far the stronger.

Two Victims of Live Wire.

Fairfield, Me., June 4.—Elden Foss and Bethman H. Osman, two employes of the Somerset and Kennebec Pulp company, were killed by contact with live electric wire on the premises of the plant on Saturday evening. William O'Brien was seriously injured, but may recover.

Sugar War Ended.

New York, June 4.—As a result of the agreement between the sugar combine and the Arbuckles, over 500 sugar workers were taken back to work today in the big Mollenhauer refinery in Brooklyn. This refinery has been shut down completely for six months.

Boston Woman Hangs Herself.

Boston, June 4.—In a fit of despondency over her poor health, Mrs. Minnie Colpitts committed suicide by hanging on the Brookline side of Jamaica pond, her body being found Sunday. Mrs. Colpitts had been under treatment for nervous trouble.

Two Laborers Murdered.

Atchison, Kas., June 4.—W. D. Ranier, a quarryman, shot and instantly killed James Burgett and Carl T. Oathout, laborers. The men had quarrelled over a keg of beer.

Along the New England coast the winds will be fresh from north to northeast.

JUSTICE WILL PREVAIL.

Generosity and Clemency to Be Shown Toward Filipinos Who Surrender.

Will All Be Heard as to Policy to Be Pursued.

Commission's Work Is to Be Confined to the Regions Where Peace Prevails.

Manila, June 4.—The United States transport Hancock arrived here Sunday with the members of the Philippine commission. At noon the commissioners landed and drove to the palace. At the palace the commissioners were welcomed by General MacArthur in a short address. After Judge William H. Taft, president of the commission, had replied, the commissioners returned to the Hancock.

Judge Taft, speaking in reply to a representative of the Associated Press regarding the powers and future work of the commission, said:

"We have full instructions and extensive powers. The latter we shall not exercise until we have had ample time to acquire sufficient knowledge of the situation to enable us to proceed to enact legislative changes and reforms, preliminary to the establishment of a stable, civil government. Until we assume authority, General MacArthur will continue to perform the duties and exercise the powers formerly performed and exercised by General Otis, and, even after we take active and full part in the government, General MacArthur will continue as the executive head until, upon our recommendation to President McKinley, it shall seem to the president that the time has arrived for the appointment of a civil executive and for making the military forces merely auxiliary in carrying on the civil government, to be available only in cases of emergency for the suppression of lawless violence too formidable to be overcome by the regularly organized police.

"We are aware that there are several issues of deep interest to the Filipinos upon which it is our duty to take action. Some of these involve judicial investigation and decisions upon legal rights. Others call for the careful exercise of political power in order to secure equitable adjustments. Upon the latter class of issues we cannot now speak.

"Representing the sovereignty of the United States in the Philippines, which it is the purpose of our government to maintain, we are here to do justice to the Filipinos and to secure for them the best government in our power and such a measure of popular control as is consistent with the stability and security of law, order and property. We are civil officers, men of peace. The field of our work is necessarily confined to regions where the armed enemy have ceased operations. We cannot deal with armed men. General MacArthur and the army will do that.

"When those now in arms have laid them down, relying, as they certainly can, upon the justice, generosity and clemency of the United States, we shall give them all a full hearing upon the policy to be pursued and forms to be initiated. We propose to inaugurate as comprehensive a school system throughout the islands as circumstances will allow. I am surprised that Manila has not received news regarding the Spooner bill, a measure calculated to help us greatly in our work here."

Body Penetrated by Pickets.

Woonsocket, R. I., June 4.—About 2 o'clock Sunday morning Miss Kate Kelley, aged 72, who lived with relatives at 72 Cato street, either fell or jumped from a second story window, landing upon a picket fence, the sharp pickets penetrating her body and bowels in two places. The family knew nothing of the affair until they were awakened by Miss Kelley's moans. Her injuries are probably of a fatal character. Miss Kelley cannot tell how the accident happened.

Cuspidor Used For a Weapon.

Plaistow, N. H., June 4.—This town is considerably excited over an assault committed on Ralph B. Huntress at the Union House, and the probability is that he will not live. Harry Green was arrested in Boston Sunday evening on the charge of committing a murderous assault on Huntress. It is alleged that Green struck Huntress over the head with an iron cuspidor early Sunday morning, and that the blow caused concussion of the brain.

Won't Leave Cuba Just Yet.

Havana, June 4.—Rumors having reached the authorities that Mr. Rathbone intended to leave Cuba, he was notified that his presence was absolutely required in Havana until the investigation into the postal affairs had been completed. The postal officials now in charge state that there are most cogent reasons why Mr. Rathbone should remain in Cuba, even if they were compelled to resort to force to keep him here.

Stole $77.000 From the City.

Elmira, N. Y., June 4.—The expert accountants who have for several weeks been at work on the books of former City Chamberlain Bundy, now serving a term in Auburn prison for grand larceny, announce that Bundy's shortage in the city accounts is a little over $77,000.

Ended Their Troubles Together.

Chicago, June 4.—The dead bodies of John R. Halden and his wife were found under a tree in Edgewater yesterday. The man and woman had committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. It is said the man had been despondent owing to financial difficulties.

Good Afternoon.

We suppose if the voters of Boston could decide by vote whether they would pay any taxes this year that they might vote no. Only a small portion of the voters of Boston are taxpayers. Why should Mayor Hart's tax bill be submitted to them.

In Waltham the aldermen took it into their own hands and decided what the salary of superintendent of schools and individual teachers should be, but they evidently exceeded their authority.

Drift of Opinion.

☞New conditions develop their own words. This is a curious fact in the progress of language. At present the government is extending the excellent rural delivery service of the post office. That is a pretty long term to use and the "immediate delivery" of words calls for something briefer to convey the idea. Consequently out from Washington comes the expression "ruralizing." We get the news from there that it is proposed to "ruralize" a considerable number of country towns. This ruralizing the country seems certainly to be feasible. It hardly calls for government intervention.—Hartford Currant.

☞'Tis not so much that many men who seek political preferment are incompetent in many ways, and of a temperament that is not desirable in public servants, as it is that most men—even those who succeed—would be far better off in the end in purse, and more contented in their lot in life, by following their profession or trade than in public life. Serving the people is not, ordinarily a bed of roses. An office holder must take a good deal of "back talk" that humiliates him without "talking back" and if he holds an office to which he seeks re-election must "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee" and fawn until he has belittled himself in his own estimation.—Nashua Press.

☞In the last Republican national convention held in Philadelphia, President Grant was unanimously renominated, as President McKinley will be in the next one. On that occasion the convention chose its vice-presidential candidate from Massachusetts in the selection of Henry Wilson. It would be a curious coincidence, if after 28 years, the party assembled in Philadelphia, should once more recognize the old Bay state on the ticket.—Portland Express.

☞There are many who regret the fact that the People's Co-operative Shoe Manufacturing company is considering the propriety of giving up business through the failure of the project to meet expectations. A manufacturing business that is not plentifully supplied with capital has a hard road to travel these days of sharp competition, and when manufacturing in all lines is conducted on such a large scale. Many watched the career of this company as an experiment in co-operative work.—Brockton Times.

GRAND RECEPTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Rice Congratulated by Hundreds.

At the home of Mrs. Lois M. Manson of Ashmont, on Saturday evening was solemnized the marriage of her daughter, Miss Fannie Austin Manson and Mr. Harry Lee Rice of Quincy. Only the immediate families of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Charles T. Whittemore of All Saints Episcopal church, Ashmont. The bride was given in marriage by her brother.

Following the ceremony the bridal party came to Quincy to Grenwold, Adams street, the home of Mr. Rice, where a large reception was held from eight until ten. Mr. and Mrs. Rice were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Manson the bride's mother and Mr. Frank C. Manson her brother, and Hon. and Mrs. William B. Rice the groom's parents. The ushers were: Mr. Henry Eaton, Mr. George B. Dewson, Mr. Walter Rice, Mr. Charles A. Price, Mr. Albert F. Schenkelberger of Quincy and M. John Talbot of Milton.

The bride's gown was of white crepe de chene, with tulle veil and she carried an immense bouquet of fragrant lilies of the valley. The floral decorations were very artistic, broad white satin ribbon wound with asparagus vine was festooned from the chandelier in the parlor and carried to the corners of the room, while above the bridal party was a handsome wedding bell.

Asparagus vine and cut flowers were used in the hall, and supper room. Although the house is a spacious one, the broad piazzas were inclosed and a large supper room added in the rear, to still further add to the comfort of the large number of guests, while outside, the grounds were brilliantly illuminated with electric lights.

From eight until ten the bridal party were kept more than busy receiving their host of friends, nearly a thousand being present from Quincy, Dorchester, Boston and surrounding towns.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice will spend their honeymoon traveling in Europe, and on their return in the fall will reside at Grenwold, where they will be at home to their friends after October 1.

School Attendance.

Out to Sea.

Quite an exciting event took place at Wollaston beach on Saturday. Masters Arthur Thomas, Samuel Barnes and Fred Mehaff were paddling around on a small raft, and before they realized they were much beyond the depth, and as the wind blew they were making straight for sea. At this the boys were very much frightened and the people on the shore were afraid they would jump off in their excitement, before they could be reached. Finally, Clarence Cleaves with the assistance of Harold Winslow and Fred Sadlier succeeded in launching a boat and the boys were once more landed on the shore where ten minutes before they had little hopes of being.

Lawn Party.

Next Saturday evening, June 9, there will be a lawn party on the grounds of Mr. W. M. Chase, foot of Davis street, Wollaston Park. As this party will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Council, an auxiliary of the Wollaston yacht club, a good time is assured. Clam chowder and coffee will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock, after which there will be appropriate games, also a gypsy tent where fortunes good, bad and indifferent will be told. A first class hurdy gurdy will furnish music. The usual ice cream and cake will be served.

☞St. Louis millionaires and other business and professional men cannot understand why they should have been summoned to join the posse comitatus instead of the militia being called out to aid in the preservation of law and order. It may gradually dawn upon them that it is the more civic way of dealing with such situations, although they may not be personally fond of that method of maintaining the public peace.

ANOTHER CUP.

Races Under Q. Y. C. Auspices for Algonquin Trophy.

That Quincy is a leader in yacht racing is further illustrated by the announcement in the Herald that members of the Algonquin club have given a silver cup to be sailed for by Hull's Own 25-foot class under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. There will be three races for this trophy, June 16, July 4, and Sept. 1, dates already set for Quincy regattas for this class. The championship is to be figured on a percentage basis, 100 points for first place 60 for second place, and 30 for third place, no points to be given for a walkover, and the total number of points won to be divided by three to get the percentage of each boat. The craft with the best percentage to have the cup. The decisions of the Quincy Yacht club judges are to be final on any further questions that may come up.

This giving of an Algonquin club up under Quincy Yacht club auspices, adds the Herald, is a neat compliment to that first-class racing organization, and it makes another trophy for the "Hull's Own" class which has now more races and prizes offered for it than any class under association auspices. It is quite possible that some of the other 25-footers will try to get into these Algonquin Quincy cup races, but if they do they will have to be first taken into the "Hull's Own" class and sail under third signal. In this respect it might be said that the 25-footer Cygnet, which has had to take out 800 pounds of ballast in order to get into the 25-foot-cabin class of the association, might do well to try and be taken into the "Hull's Own" class, where she would perhaps be allowed to carry the proper amount of ballast for her best trim. It is also said that some of the other clubs that are to give open races at City Point will make special classes for the "Hull's Own" boats.

On Wednesday the Empress, Messrs. Hayden and Parker's new boat, in the "Hull's Own" 25-foot class, was given her trial trip. While she was sailing round Quincy bay she met the Al Kyris, Mr. Brown's boat of the same class. The pair had a little rub together, just enough to show that they will make very close racing when they get at it.

Commenting on the few entries in the South Boston race last week the Herald says: No yachtsman will for a moment contend that the members of the Quincy Yacht club have not the best interests of the blue ribbon sport at heart, when they wisely broke away from the M. Y. R. A. They tried to sail races for their challenge cup under the M. Y. R. A. rule, but the handicap was so great that the Quincy club was obliged to withdraw. Then followed the enactment of the narrow rule made by the association by the votes of some clubs whose delegates should have refrained from voting because of the non-giving of races by their clubs.

The open regatta of the Quincy club, which is outside the association, will be "open" in all that word implies. The regatta committees of clubs need only to take a glancing look to see the trend of matters. If they shut out boats, the result can be foretold. The girth and restricted rules, the non-employment and non-encouragement of the American skipper and crew have already injured the sport, and a face-about is demanded. The giving of races, on narrow lines, the melting away of club individuality into an organization which acts for the few as against the many, tends strongly in the direction of having club floats become sort of quasi private landings. The South Boston Yacht club has always stood for the fairest of play, and last Wednedays regatta and its outcome are not of its caliber, and do not represent the serious thought of the members.

Steamboat Line.

A. P. Lane, New England agent of the Clyde Steamboat line, and Capt. T. Tupper of the steamer Gov. Sanford of Brunswick, Ga., were in Quincy on Saturday, and in company with Henry P. Kittridge visited Houghs Neck, Quincy Point and the plant of the Eastern Dock and Construction Co.

The visit of these gentlemen was to look over the wharves at these places as the Clyde line contemplates putting on a line of steamers this summer between Quincy Point and Boston, calling at Houghs Neck. The line between Quincy Point and Boston is practically assured but whether the line will call at Houghs Neck depends upon what arrangements can be made for a pier and landing.

The Clyde line has made a success in running the steamers Frederick DeBarry and the City of Jacksonville from Boston to Bass Point for the past ten years which is a sufficient guarantee that they will give first class service.

IRON BEDS
For Hot Summer Nights.

Half the people in the world can not sleep well on a hot night. They roll and toss and get up in the morning fully as tired as when they go to bed.

Now it costs but a trifle to own one of our sanitary iron beds. They give a free circulation of air around the body, inviting sleep, something which is impossible to secure in the ancient high posted wooden bedstead.

These beds are cool, restful, absolutely clean, with no wooden corners where disease germs can lurk, and when fitted with one of our famous $5 00 Victor Mattresses, you own a bed with SLEEP ALWAYS ON TAP.

Yes, by all means own one of our iron beds, the sooner you do, the happier you will be.

Pompano Under Sail.

The Globe says, W. E. C. Eustis appears to be stealing a march on his fellow challengers for the Quincy cup, for the Pompano is being sailed steadily in Buzzard's bay while the Lookout and the Tashmoo are still in the shops of their builders. Those who have seen the remodelled Pompano under sail believe that she will be much faster and better than she was last year, and that she will give the other boats a most interesting race. Carl Hodges will probably again be her skipper, which is a guarantee that she will be well sailed. Great sport may be expected at Quincy the week of July 16.

The annual fields sports of the Quincy High school were held Saturday afternoon on the lower field at Merrymount park. There was quite a good attendance, although it was largely made up of pupils of the school. Principal Harper wore the school flag, which was of red and blue, with the letters Q. H. S. worked upon it.

Many of the misses also wore their class colors as a sort of inspiration to the representatives of their class who were to contest for honors. Gold and black denoted the class of 1900; orange, green and white the class of 1901; blue, gold and white the class of 1902. The class of 1903, known as the freshmen have not reached that point yet where any particular color had been selected. Some of this class, however, wore the school colors.

There was quite a heavy wind and the track was not in the best conditins, and taking these into consideration the time made was very good. The vigor with which the boys entered into the several events gives promise of some good material for future athletes.

The judges were C. P. Slades, Charles Magnuson, L. Estabrook; referee A. T. Murphy, Jr.; timer, T. Greenough.

The 100 yard dash which came first Lewis '00 finished easily in 11 2-5 seconds. The other places were hotly contested.

In the 220 yard Lewis also won in 24 4-5 seconds. As the men rounded the corner for a ninety yard sprint for the finish, Pitts '00 and Anderson '01 came into collision and though the former finished second, his place was given to Anderson. The 440 was the most exciting. Anderson led all the way but the rest of the men were right at his heels. As they neared the finish Miller '03 made a tremendous spurt and beat out Pitts for second place; the time 62 seconds.

In the mile Pitts was a sure winner. He started off at a rapid pace covering 1-5 of the distance in 50 seconds leaving the others well behind. There was much speculation that his pace would kill him, but he demonstrated his staying powers by increasing his lead and finishing a half lap ahead of his nearest competitor, in 5.17 1-5, which would probably have been much less had it not been for the headwind, one hundred and fifty yards to the lap.

The field events were very succesful though the crowd made it a little difficult for the jumpers to reach the takeoff in safety, having only a path about three feet wide.

Six records were broken: Lewis, '00, lowered the 100 yard, from 11 4-5 to 11 2-5 seconds; also the 220, from 26 3-5 to 24 4-5.

Pitts, '00, lowered the mile, from 5.2 to 5.17 1-5.

Keyes, 00, increase of the high jump from 4 feet, 8 inches, to 4 feet, 9 inches; also the shot put, from 24 feet, 2 inches, to 25 feet, 6 inches, and the hammer throw from 80 feet, 6 inches, to 84 feet, 8 inches.

A record for the 440 was established by Anderson, 01, 62 seconds.

The two records not broken were the broad jump, 17 feet, 10 inches, and the running hop step and jump 38 feet, 9 inches. These are both held by A. Murphy '99.

The best individual scores were as follows: Keyes, '00, 23; Anderson, '01, 17; Lewis, '00, 16.

The summary by events and classes was:

Not a Yachting Sunday.

Saturday's warm weather gave promise for nothing more serious than perhaps a thunder storm during the night. With that possibility in mind many yachtsmen made unusual preparations for an outing Sunday. Judge then, the surprise of those who not rudely disturbed in the night by the cold easterly wind accompanied by rain found the sky shut out by clouds and a torrent of rain falling and the bay lashed into a foam, when they awoke from peaceful dreams of their anticipated pleasures. The flutter of white sails about the floats, the pretty girls with their latest summer shirt waists and other up-to-date "fixings" were not to be seen, as anticipated.

This freak of New Enlgand weather had changed it all. A few old wet rusty looking sails took the place of the beautiful white wings and while the "shirt waists" were left undisturbed at home, their places were filled by the undaunted and true yachtsman with his yellow suit of "skins."

To the latter it was sport, true and unadulterated sport. Some went out with one, some with two and some with three reefs. The Vitesse had two reefs and with Capt. Coombs and crew of three, she actually skippped over the water.

Mr. Lewis's yawl Erie showed her seaworthiness having on board beside Mr. Lewis, Secretary Chase of the Wollaston club and his son "Tony."

Commodore Fenno was seen coming into the bay very comfortably in his yawl, the "Brant."

But the surprise of the day, when it was blowing and raining the hardest, was the performance of the old Swampscott boat, on which your correspondent got wet.

Visit to Plymouth.

Over one hundred pupils of the Washington School under the care of their master, Mr. Pollard, and the Rev. Mr. Anderson, pastor of the Point church, visited Plymouth on Saturday. They left Quincy about 9.30 in the morning and returned in the evening, seeing and learning many things in beautiful historic Plymouth.

June Magazines.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's paper addressed to college girls, in the June Ladies' Home Journal, should have the widest possible reading. It is the viewpoint of a scholar and physician on "When the College is Hurtful to a Girl." The social, domestic and business life of Hetty Green is strongly pictured in "The Richest Woman in America," and "The Passion Play This Year" tells of the performances and of the players who take the chief roles in the great religious drama given every ten years at Oberammergau.

The June Woman's Home Companion contains a number of good stories, with serials by Mrs. Burton Harrison and Hester Caldwell Oakley Ward, together with plenty of household hints and articles on a wide variety of social and domestic topics; in short, everything that goes to make up a high-class popular magazine. Ernest Van Dyke, the celebrated opera tenor, contributes the leading article, detailing the principal events of his career.

SATAN'S RED EYE

She was a strange looking old woman, as handsome as an old woman can be, rather elegantly dressed and with the air of one who belonged to good society.

She was sitting next me in the waiting room of the railroad station, but outside her horses were being fed and watered, and she was waiting to rest.

When the whistle sounded, she stopped her ears with both her hands and shuddered violently. When the engine came in sight, she looked at it as one might regard a hideous monster and muttered to herself in a way that made me fancy her not quite in her right mind.

Then of a sudden she turned to me with a little bow and said:

"You are traveling by rail, madam?"

I answered yes.

"How can you?" asked my interrogator. "Wherever I go I go in my carriage. Those cars are so terrible, especially the tunnels."

"But if one is not blessed with a carriage?" I asked.

"Then you must go behind that terrible creature, I suppose," said the old lady, looking toward the engine, "but I'm sorry for you."

"Do accidents often happen in tunnels?" I asked, with an involuntary shudder.

"Accidents!" she cried. "Worse than that. I'll tell you what happened to me in a tunnel. There's time enough, if you don't mind listening."

I bowed. She put her handkerchief to her face for a moment and went on:

"You see that white house on the hill up there? That is mine. There my husband died; there my son married. It was after he married, when I was 60 years old, that this happened. Sixty! Just think of it—a time when life ought to run on without any event whatever—and then romance came to me—romance for the first time in my life, because, you see, I had married without any thought of that a very good man—but so old—at 16.

"Well, as I said, at 60 he fell in love with me. I think he was 25, and, oh, but he was handsome! I was sitting on my porch when he rode by, and his horse shied at something and threw him at my feet. He seemed to be dead. I had him picked up and brought in, and the doctor and I restored him to life.

"Do you know what he was? I'll tell you. He was a rider at the circus close by, not a gentleman, they said, but his voice was so soft and his way so pleasant that he seemed one, and then what did that matter? He called me his good angel; he kissed my hand. At last he told me that he loved me.

"It was strange to hear. I would not listen to him at first, but at last he knelt at my feet, and I—ah, I was a woman still—I kissed him on his forehead, and I promised to be his wife.

"When my son heard of it, he was furious. He said terrible things. 'Mother,' he said, 'if you marry this impostor, who only wants your money, you will rue the day you were born.'

"I did not care for my son's wrath, nor that my friends all turned coldly from me. I married Adolphe, and we were very happy.

"As soon as we were married he began to talk of Europe and of the happy life one led in Paris. So I said, 'We'll go to Paris.'

"We made ready to go. Of course, we needed money. I had bank notes and checks to a large amount—a little fortune indeed—in my great wallet. I also had my diamonds. Adolphe took care of all these things. To reach the city whence our ship started we were obliged to go in the cars. Even then I hated and was afraid of them.

"I talked and laughed like a girl as we whirled over the country, but he grew more silent, and by the time we reached the tunnel very grave. I remember going into it. Adolphe took my hand and kissed it.

"I sat still. The cars rattled, the darkness grew deeper. I felt a little frightened and reached my hand to touch Adolphe. He was not there.

"I said, 'Adolphe.' There was no answer. I called, 'Adolphe!' again. Oh, it was so terrible—no answer, and the darkness like the darkness of death!

"At last it began to grow lighter. I could see shadow forms, but no shadow of Adolphe. I asked for him. At last they helped me and made search—he was not on the train. No one ever saw him again; he vanished in the tunnel.

"People tried to make me think ill of him. I would not—I, who felt his kisses on my hand still. Satan is envious of happiness, and"— There the old lady lowered her voice. "That thing with the red eye there is satan, though people don't know it. Don't go into the tunnel with him—remember what I say, and don't go into the tunnel"—

"Madam, your carriage is ready," said a middle aged woman, entering just then, and the old lady hurried off, shaking her head as she went and muttering to herself.

"She's been talking about the tunnel, ma'am?" asked the middle aged woman, with a courtesy.

"Yes," I said.

"She never had good sense, I think," said the woman, "and at 60 she married a foreigner younger than her son. He managed to put half her fortune into checks and such things and ran away with it after they had been married a month. He jumped off a train in a tunnel and got off unhurt.

"He was a rope dancer and good at jumping, or he'd never have done it, and he's living now with some bird of the same feather in Europe. She don't know it or don't believe it, poor old lady! Her wits ain't right, and she thinks satan carried him off. Goodby, madam. The old lady is in a hurry, and I must go to her."

At a Belgian Wedding.

A visitor at Brussels writes home describing a wedding there:

Two marriage ceremonies, the civil and religious, are gone through with in the morning, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the nuptial repast begins. There are endless dishes—creams, jellies, fruit, cakes, meringues, sweets, as well as heavier refreshments—and fresh relays of food are brought on continually.

The feast lasts until 9 o'clock—six hours—with speeches going on all the time.

The bride went around the room and got every one present to write in pencil his name or hers on the train of her bridal gown. This is to be embroidered over afterward and kept as a memento of the occasion. She divided her bouquet among almost all present.

THE VERDICT.

If we ever do open fire on Constantinople, we will make the famous old city look like a scrambled alphabet.—Wichita Eagle.

Maybe Russia is led to put an end to the horrors of exile in Siberia because of England's revival of competition in that field at St. Helena.—St. Louis Republic.

A good many Americans could very appreciably improve their English by giving close study to the Chinese minister's after dinner speeches.—Boston Transcript.

If the government will kindly make an appropriation, the armor plate makers will endeavor to provide an armor that will shed the new soft nose projectiles.—Omaha World-Herald.

Another British concession made to Ireland is that the red halfpenny postage stamp shall hereafter be green. The change has the merit of not costing anything.—San Francisco Examiner.

The largest American flag ever manufactured will float from the top of the Eiffel tower in Paris on the Fourth of July. Its broad stripes and bright stars measure 50 by 26 feet. Hurroo!—Boston Herald.

Everybody in creation wants to come to America, and we can't blame him, but this country ought not to be a dumping ground for the lame and halt and blind, and something should be done to limit immigration.—New York Herald.

Who will say that hearts are no longer stirred by verse to actual deeds? The handling of Kipling's "Absentminded Beggar" has produced the astonishing sum of $485,000 for the families of the men fighting in South Africa.—New York Press.

Oleo consumers will be obliged to take it straight. While it may not appear as appetizing as when colored to resemble butter, the virgin article will be just as healthful, even though it be embarrassing when "company calls."—Pittsburg Commerical Gazette.

That the system of registering letters by mail carriers has proved successful is evident from the fact that it has just been extended by the postal authorities to 163 postoffices. Less than 100 cities having free delivery are now without the house registry system.—New York Herald.

BEE BUZZES.

The body of the drone bee is hardly so long as that of the queen, but it is much thicker.

It is bad management to place and replace frames, using the full set in the hive at the same time.

One of the greatest hindrances to large honey crops is allowing the bees to run short of stores at this time.

When brood rearing is carried on extensively, more water than usual is required. Supply it conveniently.

Fertile workers are workers' bees that lay eggs that will hatch, but they hatch only drones and never worker bees, and the drones are smaller than the drones produced by the queens.

In nearly all cases when a bee is crippled or diseased in any way from any cause it crawls away from the cluster out of the hive and rids the community of its presence as soon as possible.

To keep honey with unimpaired flavor it must not be subjected to dampness. If water condenses on the surface of the comb, it soon dilutes the honey, and then it sours and spoils.—St. Louis Republic.

TRUST THRUSTS.

Congress is talking about controlling trusts; mind you, only talking.—Buffalo Times.

The sun of publicity will shine hot enough to melt the ice trust yet.—New York World.

There is a movement on foot to organize a banana trust. It will require no supreme court to take the hide off that.—St. Paul Globe.

It is most desirable that monopolizing corporations should be convinced that it does not pay to be too greedy. That is a lesson which the American Ice company seems to be in the way of learning.—New York Times.

The czar of Russia does some things in a refreshing manner. He learned that the Standard Oil company, which operates in Russia, was doing the "gouge act." Thereupon he appointed an auditor of the trust's accounts. Now that auditor allows the trust a fair profit, and the rest goes into the imperial treasury. And the price of oil in Russia is not fluctuating to any noticeable extent.—Omaha World-Herald.

The weight of all the air on the globe would be eleven and two-thirds trillion pounds if no deduction had to be made for space filled by mountains and land above sea level.

An English physician writes in The Lancet that he believes the time is approaching when the study of diet will do away with the need for most medical and surgical treatment.

The government of New Zealand has requested proposals for lighting Wellington by electricity from Kartari falls. A scheme is already under way for using the water power from these falls for a cordite factory now building in the vicinity. The idea is to combine the two schemes.

FRENCH CAPERS.

Fortunately this country is not under bonds to engage in all the wars cut out for it by the Paris papers.—Minneapolis Times.

Paris seems to want to use Uncle Sam as a catspaw with which to pull its chestnuts out of the fire.—Ridgewood (N. J.) News.

Paris has another pipe dream. Now it is that Germany is sidling up to England, so it will sit out while William the unsilent does up the United States and scoops South America. This vision has all the spectacular earmarks of Cannabis indica.—New York Press.

THE ARCHITECT.

It is believed that nothing short of an earthquake could destroy the Washington monument, so solid is its foundation.

The stairway leading to the tower of the Philadelphia city hall contains 598 steps and is said to be the tallest continuous stairway in the world.

The highest point of the new Montgomery Ward building in Chicago is 385 feet, while that of the Masonic temple is only 322 feet. The Auditorium tower is 270 feet high.

A CREDITABLE RECORD.

First Session of the Fifty-Sixth Congress Has Been a Fruitful One, Survey of Important Work It Has Accomplished.

But Few Instances of Notable Legislation Left Over For Action at Next Session.

Washington, June 4.—The first session of the Fifty-sixth congress will adjourn this week. In work actually accomplished and started toward accomplishment the record of the present session stands well in comparison with the most energetic congresses.

Our new territorial possessions have received much attention, and while there has been no definite action as to the Philippines or Cuba a form of government and a means of raising revenue has been provided for Porto Rico and a comprehensive territorial form of government has been given to Hawaii. The financial act has made important changes in the laws relating to the parity of the metals, the bonded indebtedness, national banks and the security of the treasury by a gold reserve. The Nicaragua canal bill has passed the house and is on the calendar of the senate, ready for attention when congress reconvenes. The anti-trust bill is similarly advanced; the anti-trust constitutional amendment has a defeat recorded against it. The Pacific cable measure has passed the senate and is awaiting final action in the house. The exclusion of Mr. Roberts from a seat in the house because of his polygamous status, the refusal of the senate to admit Mr. Quay on the appointment of the governor of Pennsylvania and the sensational charges, investigation and developments in the senate in the case of Mr. Clark of Montana, have added some exciting personal phases to the session.

Investigation has been prolific, including the inquiry intno the Couer d'Alene mining riots in Idaho, the various inquiries on polygamy growing out of the Roberts case, and more recently the investigation of the postal and other irregularities in Cuba.

The total of appropriations cannot yet be stated with exactness, as five bills are pending, but it is approximately $700,000,000 for the session.

The senate in executive session has been occupied to a considerable extent with important treaties. Of these the with important treaties. Of these the treaties with Great Britain and Germany closing the tri-partite government in Samoa and awarding to the United States the Island of Tutuila, with its valuable harbor of Pago-Pago, has been ratified, while the commercial reciprocity treaties with France and the British West Indian islands and the Hay-Pauncefote treaty concerning the interoceanic canal go over without action.

Of the legislation actually accomplished and now on the statute books, the financial act is regarded as the chief achievement of the year. The noteworthy feature of the debate on this measure in the house was that party lines were broken to some extent, a number of Democratic members from the eastern and New England states joining with the majority in passing it. In the senate, also, party lines were not entirely regarded, Senators Lindsay and Caffrey voting for the measure and Mr. Chandler against it.

Next in importance in the accomplished work of the session is the act "to provide a government for the territory of Hawaii." The debates on it in the senate and house aroused little division save on matters of detail.

The Philippines and Cuba have occupied much attention in the way of debate and the adoption of resolutions of inquiry. The Spooner bill formed the basis of the senatorial debate on the Philippines, but was fruitless of action. The only legislation as to Cuba is of a comparatively minor character, relating to Cuban shipping.

The extradition bill, applying to all insular possessions and dependencies, has passed both houses and doubtless will become a law. It is designed mainly to reach cases like that of Charles F. W. Neely.

The Nicaraguan canal bill and the shipping subsidy bill are notable instances of legislation partly advanced during the present session, but not enacted into law. The canal bill has passed the house and has been made the special order in the senate beginning Dec. 10 next. The shipping bill is on the calendar of each house with favorable recommendation from a majority membership of the senate and house committees.

Anti-trust legislation has come prominently into attention in the house at the close of the session, the house having passed a new anti-trust bill and defeated a constitutional amendment.

The senate has passed a bill for a cable to the Philippines and beyond, to be constructed and maintained under government control, but no action has been taken on it in the house. The restriction of eleomargarine has been productive of considerable agitation, mainly in committee, and a radical restrictive bill has been reported in the house.

The general pension laws have been materially changed by the present congress largely as a result of the efforts of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Considerable general legislation is carried on appropriation bills.

The Alaska code bill, giving a complete civil system of laws to the territory, has passed both houses and undoubtedly will become a law. Other measures which have passed one house or the other, but are still pending, include those for the election of senators by the people, authorizing the president to appoint a commission to study commercial conditions in China and Japan, for increasing the efficiency of the army by making service in the staff corps temporary, extending the eight-hour law, increasing the annual allowance to the militia of the country from $400,000 to $1,000,000.

DEATH RATE OF NINETY PERCENT.

Story of Terrible Famine and Disease Conditions In Bombay Presidency.

Bombay, June 4.—After traveling through the most sorely smitten portions of the Bombay presidency, Louis Klopsch of New York, publisher of The Christian Herald, makes the following statement regarding his observations:

"Everywhere I met the most shocking and revolting scenes. The famine camps have been swept by cholera and smallpox. Fugitives, scattering in all directions and stricken in flight, were found dying by the roadside, in the fields and ditches. The numbers at one relief station were increasing at the rate of 10,000 a day.

"At Godhra there were 3000 deaths from cholera within four days and at Dohad 2500 in the same period. The hospital death rate at Godhra and Dohad was 90 percent.

"The condition of the stricken simply beggars description. Air and water were impregnated with an intolerable stench of corpses. At Ahmodabad the death rate in the poorhouse was 10 percent. Every day I saw new patients placed face to face with corpses. In every fourth cot there was a corpse.

"The thermometer read 115 in the shade. Millions of flies hovered around the uncleansed dysentery patients. I visited the smallpox and cholera wards at Virigam. All the patients were lying on the ground, there being no cots. Otherwise their condition was fair.

"I can fully verify the reports that vultures, dogs and jackals are devouring the dead. Dogs have been seen running about with children's limbs in their jaws.

"The government is doing its best; but the native officials are hopelessly and heartlessly inefficient. Between the famine, the plague and the cholera, the condition of Bombay presidency is now worse than it has been at any previous period in the 19th century. Whole families have been blotted out. The spirit of the people is broken and there may be something still worse to come when the monsoon breaks."

Innocent Lad Fatally Shot.

St. Louis, June 4.—A riot of small proportions, during the progress of which a boy was fatally shot, and a dynamite explosion occurred Sunday. As a car was passing the corner of Twelfth and Calhoun streets a crowd of strike sympathizers began throwing stones at it. An unknown man fired a revolver from the car. The bullet sped over the heads of the mob and lodged in the breast of Peter Frank, aged 16, who was sitting in the doorway of his father's house. A detachment of police dispersed the rioters. An explosion of dynamite shattered the cable conduit and switches in the Olive street line at the intersection of Maryland and Boyle avenues. No one was injured.

Rioters Making Serious Trouble.

Chalon-Sur-Saone, France, June 4.—The strike here has reached a critical stage and the city resembles the besieged, so thickly is it studded with soldiers. The trouble began Saturday afternoon, the strikers throwing sticks and stones at the police. When night came the street lamps were extinguished, and missiles of all sorts were thrown at the cavalry and police, who fired, killing one of the rioters and wounding 20, some of them seriously. Fifteen police and two cavalrymen were injured. Reinforcements quelled the disorders, but the trouble is not yet considered ended.

Terrible Encounter With a Jaguar.

New York, June 4.—Louise Maurela, an animal trainer, entered a 50-foot circular cage at Newark, N. J., to train a new jaguar and snapped her whip and stamped her foot to urge the animal to get up. The jaguar sprang at Mme. Maurela and his forepaws landed on her shoulders. She tried to shake the brute off, but he knocked her down. Her screams brought help, and she was found to have been shockingly mutilated. It is not believed that she was fatally injured.

Balky Horse Caused Two Deaths.

Norton, N. B., June 4.—Mrs. Bartley Graham and her 17-year-old daughter started for church yesterday in a single carriage. They started to cross a railroad track a safe distance ahead of a train but the horse balked and stood still with the carriage on the rails. The women sat in the carriage and frantically urged him on. The engine struck the vehicle and Mrs. Graham was instantly killed and the young woman died a few hours later.

Another Cotton Mill In Alabama.

Huntsville, Ala., June 4.—Arthur E. Lowe, president of the Parkhill Manufacturing company of Fitchburg, Mass., has secured 60 acres of ground about a mile from Huntsville and will erect a 5000 spindle cotton mill, bleachery and print works. The ground was donated by citizens and the industry will be free from taxation seven years.

Another Missionary Murdered.

Tien Tsin, June 4.—Six men and two women, French and Belgian refugees from Pao-Ting-Fu, have arrived here. Nine are still missing. It is reported from Pekin that Mr. Stevenson of the Church of England mission at Yem-Ching has been murdered and that Mr. Norman of the same mission is missing.

Boers Will Fight Forever.

Berlin, June 4.—Dr. Reitz, the Transvaal state secretary, says in the Cologne Gazette that England will require a permanent garrison of 50,000 soldiers in the Transvaal and that "rebellion may be expected for centuries." He believes that many Boers will trek to German South Africa.

Clemency Granted McGowan.

Washington, June 4.—Secretary Long has accepted the recommendation to clemency of the courtmartial in the case of Captain John McGowan and has reduced the sentence of suspension on half pay from two years to six months.

An Army of Census Takers.

Washington, June 4.—The exact number of census enumerators now at work is 52,631. Pennsylvania leads the list with 4676; New York comes next with 4492. Alaska has only two and Nevada 53.

FILIPINO OFFICER BROUGHT DOWN.

Indications That It Was Either Aguinaldo or His Right-Hand Man.

Vigan, Luzon, June 4.—Major March, with his detachment of the Thirty-third regiment, overtook what is believed to have been Aguinaldo's party on May 19 at Lagat, about 100 miles northeast of Vigan. The Americans killed or wounded an officer, supposed to be Aguinaldo, whose body was removed by his followers.

Aguinaldo had 100 men, Major March 125. The American commander reached Laboagan, where Aguinaldo had made his headquarters since March 6, on May 7. Aguinaldo had fled seven hours before, leaving all the beaten trails and traveling through the forest along the beds of streams. Toward evening, May 19, Major March struck Aguinaldo's outpost about a mile outside of Lagat, killing four Filipinos and capturing two. From the latter he learned that Aguinaldo had camped there for the night. Although exhausted and half starved Major March's men entered Lagat on the run. They saw the insurgents scattering into the bushes or over the plateau. A thousand yards beyond the town, on the mountain side, the figures of 25 Filipinos, dressed in white, with their leader on a gray horse, were silhoutted against the sunset. The Americans fired a volley and saw the officer drop from his horse. His followers fled, carrying the body.

The Americans, on reaching the spot, caught the horse, which was richly saddled. Blood from a badly wounded man was on the animal and on the ground. The saddle bags contained Aguinaldo's diary and some private papers, including proclamations. One of these was addressed: "To the civilized nations." It protested against the American occupation of the Philippines. There were also found copies of Senator Beveridge's speech, translated into Spanish and entitled, "The death knell of the Filipino people."

Major March, believing that the Filipinos had taken to a river which is a tributary to the Chico, followed it for two days, reaching Tiao, where he learned that a party of Filipinos had descended the river May 20 on a raft with the body of a dead or wounded man upon a litter, covered with palm leaves.

There Major March reviewed his command, shoeless and exhausted, and picked out 24 of the freshest men, with whom he beat the surrounding country for six days longer, but without finding any trace of the insurgents. The Americans pushed on and arrived at Aparri May 29.

The officer shot was either Aguinaldo or his adjutant; and as the horse was richly caparisoned it is a fair presumption that it was Aguinaldo.

Party and Creed Eliminated.

Chicago, June 4.—The organization of the advisory council of the national civic federation is completed and announced. The local organization has promoted four national conferences on the subjects respectively of industrial arbitration, municipal reform, foreign policy of the United States, and combinations and trusts. The plan provides for an executive committee of 30, an advisory council of 500 and a large membership throughout the country composed of representative, practical men of affairs, irrespective of party or creed.

Sleepy Police Were Outwitted.

Newmarket, Ire., June 4.—Two hundred police were sent here Saturday evening to suppress a prohibited United Irish league meeting called for Sunday. While the police were asleep Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock J. E. Flynn and E. Crean, members of parliament, slipped in unobserved, addressed a meeting of 200 and burned the proclamation prohibiting the meeting. The meeting dispersed amid cheers as the police appeared upon the scene.

Probably Inspired by High Officials.

Halifax, June 4.—A cable from Newfoundland says the Bond government, the members of which have always opposed confederation negotiations with Canada, has suddenly inserted political union with the Dominion as a plank of its platform at the approaching general elections. Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are both believed to have been consulted.

Machinists Want Shorter Day.

Philadelphia, June 4.—The union machinists of this city have decided to demand of their employers on Labor day, Sept. 3, that they reduce the hours of labor from 10 to 9 a day with a minimum of wages of 28 cents an hour. Where the demands are not granted a strike will be inaugurated. There are about 6000 machinists in this city.

Drink and Suicide.

Manchester, N. H., June 4.—The body of a man found in Merrimack river at Litchfield has been identified as that of Herman Serbser of this city, who disappeared from his home on the evening of May 21. Serbser had drank heavily, had neglected his family and had threatened to jump in the river.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

William H. Knight, for about 40 years identified with the retail drug business in Boston, died after a protracted and painful sickness.

Three of the building contractors of Lawrence, Mass., have agreed to grant the eight-hour day demanded by the union carpenters of that city, and 300 men are on strike to compel the other firms to give what the employes want.

The stable of L. M. Dolloff at Malden, Mass., together with five horses, several express wagons, carriages, etc., was burned. Loss, $3500.

Charles A. Naulty, 21 years old, murdered his stepmother, Mary Naulty, aged 30, while the family of three was sitting down to their evening meal at their home at Newark, N. J. The tragedy was the result of a quarrel.

The British ambassador has applied to the state department for the extradition of Julian B. Arnold, reputed son of Sir Edwin Arnold, who is held under arrest in San Francisco on a charge of breach of trust and embezzlement committed in England.

The strike of the railway car repairers and railway freight handlers at Buffalo has been formally declared off.

ANIMALS AS BESIEGERS.

Their Patience and Strategy Indicate Power of Ratiocination.

There are plenty of garrisons and sieges and reliefs in wild life, and some of them very pluckily sustained. Short rations, sorties and assaults tread on each other's tails, and the besiegers do not always get the best of it.

The champion besieger is a wild pig called the peccary, which is about the most frightful beast alive and lives in herds in the South American forests. You cannot discourage a peccary; you can only kill him. These beasts have a particular dislike to monkeys and frequently watch for an opportunity to cut one off from the main woods. Now and then the herd will manage to surprise a party of monkeys near an isolated tree or clump. They make the most of the chance.

The pigs rush forward, and the monkeys skim gayly up the trees out of harm's way. But as the clump is isolated from the forest there is no escape via the branches, and they dare not come down and run for it. The peccaries surround and invest the tree clump, and there they will sit patiently for any length of time, while the monkeys chatter angrily aloft. If a monkey comes to the end of the rations within reach and becomes so desperate through hunger that he tries to run the gantlet, he is torn to pieces by the tusks of the besiegers in a few seconds. The only chance of escape is that some of the prowling jaguars—a kind of leopard—in the neighborhood may get to know of the siege. If they do, they will come to the rescue, not for the monkeys' sake, but because they are fond of peccary. Then the beleaguered garrison escapes while the relieving column is tackling the investing peccaries. But these pigs are so fierce that even jaguars will not attack a really big herd of them.

The most formidable of besiegers are the wild buffaloes of Central Africa. These will imprison even a panther if they get him in the open. The panther generally makes for a high rock, but as the buffaloes can browse on the grass around, they will hold out any length of time, while the panther starves. They form a big, irregular circle round the rock, the sentinels keeping an eye on the besieged beast while they browse. Often a man gets treed in this way. His only chance, unless a party of horsemen relieve him, is to set the dry grass alight on the lee side of his rock. This will fire half the district if there is any wind, and it always scares the buffaloes off.

It is on the sea bottom that some of the queerest sieges occur. If two or three lobsters or fighting crabs come upon any weak and soft water beast hiding in a hole, they frequently join forces and besiege him. But the usual sufferer is a hermit crab—the small, soft bodied crab that lives in an old whelk shell, with his hard claws hanging out. The other crabs surround this belligerent and try to starve him into surrender. They sit down in a circle round him and wait, but often one of the bigger lobsters will try to crack the whelk shell with his claw. This seldom succeeds, for such shells are very tough. The hermit can walk slowly, pulling the shell with him, but when he tries to do so the besiegers bustle him and grab at his protruding legs. He has to draw them in and remain still. Sometimes the siege is raised by the arrival of larger sea prowlers, who attack the investors, but more often, as the besiegers grow hungry and find the hermit still holds out, they begin fighting among themselves, and the besieged hermit escapes in the confusion. Sometimes, however, the siege succeeds, but the hermit dies at his post. He is then hauled out and eaten.

In hard times rats are apt to band together in raiding parties, and nothing comes amiss to them. Field mice exist in colonies, burrowed an inch or two below the surface of the ground. If the marauding rats can find a fairly lonely colony—one that is not connected with half a dozen others, that is—they mount guard over the outlets and try to starve the mice out. The besieged are no fighters and merely sit and cower, and though they sometimes make a sortie and get promptly eaten they more often frustrate the rats by dying underground.—London Answers.

Wire Nails and Old Nails.

Careful experiments are said to show that, first, cut nails are superior to wire nails in all positions; second, the main advantage of the wire nail is due to its possessing a sharp point; third, if cut nails were pointed, they would be 30 per cent more efficient in direct tension; fourth, wire nails without points have but one-half their ordinary holding power; fifth, the surface of the nail should be slightly rough, but not barbed. Barbing decreases the efficiency of cut nails about 32 per cent.

The pointed end enables the nail to enter wood without breaking its fiber excessively, thus preserving its grip. A serious defect of wire nails is their readiness to rust. They are made generally of a sort of soft steel, and steel rusts more readily than some other forms of iron. In some parts of the country, it is said, shingles put on with wire nails drop off after six or eight years.—Baltimore Sun.

A Russian Prize.

The Academy of Sciences of Russia holds in trust a fund of 1,500,000 rubles which, with accumulation, is to be bestowed as a prize in 1925. It represents the principal and interest of 50,000 rubles left in 1833 by General Arakczeijew, who provided in his will that at the end of the first quarter of the twentieth century three-fourths of the sum should be given to the writer of the best history in Russian of the reign of Alexander I. The other fourth is to be spent in printing the work in having it translated into French and German and for a prize for the author of the second best work.

PRETORIA STILL SAFE.

No Official Intelligence as to What Is Transpiring Outside the Capital.

Boers Are Said to Have Recovered From the Panic.

Their Columns in Minor Theatres of Hostilities Are Seriously Threatened.

London, June 5.—Pretoria is invested by the British, but has not yet fallen, and it is still uncertain as to whether or not the Boers intend to make a last desperate stand at the capital, at Lydenburg or in Magatoland, a district abounding in natural fortresses. General Botha, commander-in-chief of the Boer army, was in Pretoria Thursday, after three days' and nights' hard fighting with Roberts' cavalry. If his views are accurately reported, the main Boer army is in a state of demoralization. Should the Boers permit the British to occupy Pretoria without a struggle, a brief respite from military movements on a large scale seems likely to follow.

Of official intelligence regarding what is transpiring outside Pretoria there is little or nothing today. Lord Roberts is silent. Nevertheless, by piecing together items from various correspondents, it would seem that Lord Roberts' immediate army is all employed north of Johannesburg, except one brigade, which is at Johannesburg, and that six columns are converging on Pretoria.

An undated news agency message from Pretoria, via Lorenzo Marquez, June 4, says: "Pretoria is now invested by the British. No resistance will be offered. The city will be surrendered by the burgomaster as soon as a formal demand is made."

This message purports to come in cipher. President Kruger commands the telegraph eastward from Pretoria, and telegraphic news from Pretoria to Lorenzo Marquez has ceased; but the messengers of newspaper correspondents continue to pass to and fro on the railway. The latest to arrive at Lorenzo Marquez brings events at the Boer capital down to a late hour Friday night. At that time, according to these sources of information, the military leaders had quite recovered from the panic and had determined to defend the town.

One message, which is dated June 1, says Pretoria is full of strange burghers, but most of the commandos are laagered outside. A great war council of generals has just concluded its deliberations. The decision as to the future military course has not been made known. Louis Botha and Delarey sat in the council.

The news from the minor theatres of hostilities is less cryptic. The Boer operations to break Lord Roberts' communications have been completely baffled, and the Boer columns are in danger of being surrounded by the British forces at Ficksburg, Senekal, Heilbron and Lindley. General Rundle, instead of throwing himself against the Boers entrenched at Bedulphberg, moved toward Ficksburg and established communication with General Brabant. The Boers marched parallel with Rundle, intending to seize a strong position on the Ficksburg road, but Rundle got there first.

The 1500 Boers who were in this movement are now reported to be going elsewhere.

The correspondents with General Rundle continue to point out the hardness of the fight of last Tuesday, but they believe that it will be the last real resistance. Colonel Lloyd was thrice wounded.

General Buller's guns throw a shell or two toward the Boer positions in front of him occasionally. General Baden-Powell is still at Mafeking. General Hunter's column is marching unopposed into the Transvaal beyond Lichtenburg.

Death of Professor Park.

Andover, Mass., June 5.—Professor Edward A. Park of the Andover Theological seminary, one of the best known theologians in the country and an extensive writer, died at his home here Monday, after a short illness. He was 91 years old. Professor Park had been connected with the seminary for over 55 years, retiring from active work in 1881. He was born in Providence.

Divorce Case In High Life.

Newport, R. I., June 5.—The petition of James Brown Potter of Newport for a divorce from his wife, Cora Urquhart Potter, the actress, was granted in the appellate division of the supreme court, sitting here. The decree is absolute, and Mr. Potter is given the custody of his daughter, Fifi Potter. The divorce is based on the ground of desertion.

Police Are Investigating

Haverhill, Mass., June 5.—John Cronin, a street laborer, was found in an unconscious condition in a telephone conduit trench Monday, and the police are endeavoring to ascertain whether he fell in accidentally or was the victim of an assault. His skull is probably fractured.

They Want Long For Vice President.

Boston, June 5.—The Republican club of Massachusetts will send a committee to the Republican national convention at Philadelphia to do whatever it can for the nomination of John D. Long for vice president.

QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER.

Colored Woman In a Suburb of Boston Stabs Her Husband to Death.

Boston, June 5.—Lewis Buckner, colored, living in Milton, was stabbed and killed by his wife, Emma, during a family quarrel Monday afternoon. Buckner was janitor of the Thatcher school and also a call man in the Milton fire department. Mrs. Buckner is under arrest.

According to the investigations of the police the couple had not been living happily together and frequently had altercations. Monday afternoon Buckner came home in a quarrelsome mood, but his wife attempted to make peace. Her advances, however, were repulsed, and during the argument between the two Mrs. Buckner claims that she was knocked down.

This so aroused her wrath that she seized a knife and plunged it into her husband's breast. The first blow struck the man just above the heart, while the second was nearer the throat. He fell to the floor bleeding profusely, while his wife went to a neighboring fire station, from which point the police were notified by telephone. When they appeared Buckner was dead and the woman was immediately locked up. Later she claimed self-defense. Two physicians were sent for and later Medical Examiner Sturtevant was called.

Buckner was 38 years old and his wife 25, and they had one child, a boy 4 years old, who was with his aunt during the affair. Mrs. Buckner confessed that she had stabbed her husband, but she did not know what to make of it later when he was dead. Buckner lived in a small community of colored people. He had borne a good reputation. Mrs. Buckner will be arraigned in the Quincy court on the charge of murder.

John Sherman's Wife Dead.

Mansfield, O., June 5.—Mrs. John Sherman, wife of the ex-secretary of state, died at midnight, Monday, aged 72 years. She was Miss Margaret Cecilia Stewart, only child of the late Judge Stewart of this city. She was married to Mr. Sherman Dec. 31, 1848. They had no children. She was born here and will be buried here.

MRS. SHERMAN.

Horses and Dog Provided For.

Worcester, Mass., June 5.—The will of Mrs. Ella M. Amerman was filed in the probate court here Monday. Mrs. Amerman is best known by her association with Rev. Joseph K. Dixon, former pastor of a Baptist church at Boston. Mr. Dixon was with Mrs. Amerman at the time of her death. The sum of $10,000 is left in trust, the income to be used in taking care of her horses and a dog. Rev. Mr. Dixon is named as custodian of the animals, and he is directed to look after their welfare. Another will has been filed in Scranton, Pa., and it is said that the parents of Mrs. Amerman will contest the will filed here, on the ground of undue influence.

Power Houses Heavily Guarded.

St. Louis, June 5.—Every power house and car shed of the St. Louis Transit company is being guarded by Sheriff Poplemann's posse commitatus. In all about 900 men are on duty. Fifty to sixty men have been stationed at each power house. Members of the posse are armed with Winchester repeating shotguns, and shells loaded with buckshot will be used in case of a disturbance. None of the deputies will be used to guard the cars, the police being retained for that service.

No Clemency For Murderers.

Hartford, June 5.—Henry Mead, for burglary, and John W. Gardner, for rape, were pardoned by the state board of pardons Monday. Norman Stevens, for assault, and John Lester, for forgery, were paroled. The petition of Charles R. Cross for commutation of sentence to hang to life imprisonment was denied, as was also the petition for pardon of Kate Cobb, under sentence of life imprisonment for murder.

Count Must Go to Canada.

Washington, June 5.—Having withheld action out of deference to the request of counsel as long as possible in the case of Count Lautrec, Secretary of State Hay has issued to the British embassy a warrant for the surrender to the Canadian officials of that nobleman for return to Montreal, where he is wanted to answer a charge of embezzlement.

Eight Contractors Have Yielded.

Lawrence, Mass., June 5.—The carpenters who are striking for an eight-hour work day held a meeting Monday night. Twenty-five new members were admitted. Eight contractors have acceded to the demands of the men, and the strikers feel confident of victory.

Claims Shooting Was Accidental.

Boston, June 5.—Fritz Taylor, who was shot in the abdomen in a Salvation Army barracks Thursday evening, died at the city hospital Monday. Frank E. Thomas, who lives at the barracks, was arrested. Thomas claims the shooting was accidental.

THE LIST COMPLETED.

New Appointments Give Porto Rico a Complete Government.

Congress In the Last Gasps of Its Long Session.

Pettigrew Presents a Mass of Matter to Let People Judge of Dewey's Veracity.

Washington, June 5.—The remainder of the list of Porto Rican appointments were sent to the senate by the president at 2:45 yesterday. They are as follows:

Jose S. Quinones of Porto Rico, to be chief justice of the supreme court of Porto Rico; Louis Sulzbacher of Missouri, Jose C. Hernandez of Porto Rico, Jose M. Figueras of Porto Rico and Rafael N. Abeille of Porto Rico, to be associate justices of the supreme court of Porto Rico.

William H. Holt of Kentucky, to be United States district judge for the district of Porto Rico; Edward S. Wilson of Ohio, to be United States district marshal for the district of Porto Rico.

Noah B. K. Pettingill of Porto Rico, to be United States district attorney for the district of Porto Rico.

Joseph F. Daly of New York, Leo S. Rowe of Pennsylvania and Juan H. Lopez of San Juan, to be members of the commission to compile and revise the laws of Porto Rico.

Jose C. Barbosa of San Juan, Rosendo M. Cintron of Ponce, Jose de Diego of Mayaguez, Manuel Carmunas of Fajardo and Andreas Crosas of San Juan, to be members of the executive council of Porto Rico.

Martin G. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania, to be commissioner of education of Porto Rico.

Congress is in the last gasps of the long session and its expiration apparently is to be quite perfunctory. Unless something extraordinary occurs no further general legislation of national importance will be enacted before final adjournment.

The senate was in session more than 10 hours yesterday, nearly four hours of which were spent in executive session. The only features of the day's session were the speech on the Philippine question by Mr. Teller and the effort of Mr. Pettigrew to obtain consideration of the anti-trust bill passed by the house last Saturday.

At 8 o'clock the senate reconvened, Mr. Pettigrew taking the floor on the Philippine question. He sharply criticised the administration for not having given congress and the people full information concerning affairs in the Philippines, and said that most of the information received had come through a "censored press" and private letters. Speaking of some of the information furnished by Mr. Spooner to the senate, he said it was supplied only to "administration senators" and "was not available to those of us opposed to the administration's imperialistic policy."

At great length Mr. Pettigrew argued that the Filipinos were allies of the United States. He said he had no desire to impeach the veracity of Admiral Dewey, but since the admiral had denounced as false his (Pettigrew's) statement that the admiral had recognized the Filipinos as allies and had saluted their flag, he (Pettigrew) felt it incumbent upon him to present the facts and let the American people judge as to the admiral's veracity.

He presented a mass of matter in support of his contention, but nothing new except a letter from the executive officer of the Olympia (Admiral Dewey's flagship), who wrote that while no naval salute was made to the Filipino flag, the Olympia's flag was dipped to the Filipino colors. This, Mr. Pettigrew contended, was a salute to the Filipino flag.

The house yesterday agreed to the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis. There was not a word of debate on concurrence in the amendment.

Owing to the lateness of the hour and the overwhelming majority of the house in its favor, the opponents of the fair appropriation did not even make a show of opposition. They contented themselves with demanding a rollcall, which resulted 127 ayes to 75 noes in favor of the appropriation.

The house also agreed to the senate item for the Mississippi river, reducing the appropriation to $2,250,000, and adding a provision for the preparation of a comprehensive report on the levee system by the Mississippi river commission.

With these exceptions the items of the sundry civil bill still in dispute after the adoption of the partial conference report were sent back to conference.

Executive Action Postponed.

Albany, June 5.—Governor Roosevelt, after a lengthy consultation with Attorney General Davis, decided not to take executive action just yet in the matter of the American Ice company and the charges against New York city officials until the attorney general has had ample time in which to go over the points of law involved and decide upon the mode of procedure to be taken.

GOOD HEALTH BICYCLES.

The kind that make you forget all cares and troubles, make you breathe fresh air in your lungs, require just enough exercise riding to make you healthy, hungry and good natured.

Yes—there's a great difference in bicycles. Some with flashy enamel on the outside, listed high in the catalogue, that work like a tread mill and spend half their time in the repair shop just like a dollar watch. Then there is the ORIENT, CLEVELAND, IVER JOHNSON and PIERCE kind like $100.00 watches, built by skilled mechanics. They bring endless comfort and pleasure to those who ride them.

If you want the best that American brains can make—come here. Prices to suit your notion.

Good Afternoon.

A wedding without Officer Murary would not be complete, and one may always count on seeing the handsome and popular officer there. He and Officer Barry are a full team on these occasions.

It was Representative Sprague who changed his mind in the Legislature yesterday, but no one would charge him with corruption.

It is said that the carriage arrangements at weddings in Quincy are superior to those at many Boston weddings. Mr. John Hall, Jr., and Mr. C. H. Penniman have both made it a business to master the details, and with the assistance of local police either can handle a large number of carriages in a surprisingly short time. Of course there are impatient one who are vexed at slight delays, but they should not be the judges.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The man who is always busy seldom has any time to think what a tiresome old place this world of ours is to live in.—Somerville Journal.

—It has happened but once in the history of the nation, and it may not happen again, that both father and son are given the high honor of presiding over the affairs of the nation. John Adams was the second president and John Quincy Adams, his son, the sixth president of the United States. And only once have grandfather and grandson served in this office. William Henry Harrison was the ninth president and Benjamin Harrison, his grandson, the 23d president.—Globe.

☞The state legislature surrendered basely to a cabal when it passed a bill to compel railroads to carry bicycles as baggage. It might with equal propriety and justice compel them to carry automobiles. The rescinding of the municipal order compelling wheelmen and wheelwomen to carry lantern while riding in the parks was a wicked invasion of municipal rights as well as a wanton removal of a safe-guard against accidents.—Boston Beacon.

☞The Holyoke School Board prefers married men for Grammar School principals because it thinks they give better results, and has thus made itself solid with one young woman of that city, she having become engaged to a bachelor principal that took the committee's tip. There are not enough of them single in the paper city to create a heavy large matrimonial boom, however.—Lynn Item.

☞I deprecate war as strongly as any one possibly can. I have witnessed its horrors, and I know something of the fearful misery it entails. But with the world constituted as it is, and the baser passions of men holding sway as they do, I believe with all my heart that war is the only effective remedy yet devised for the correction of certain evils, and for the establishment of some of the principles underlying eternal truth. At the same time we may look forward with hope to an era when human nature shall be so modified by the spirit of Christ that wars shall cease upon the earth. That will be a time when nations shall be knit together by the ties of intimate brotherhood, and when selfishness shall cease to be one of the controlling motives of men.—Chap. Hoes, in sermon to Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

Frye, Superintendent of Schools, announces that all the preparations for the journey of the Cuban teachers to the United States are well forward. The teachers, by the order of Gen. Wood, will be paid their salaries at the port of departure, a total of $96,000. Almost exactly half the entire number of teachers have applied to go, namely, 1750. Only 300 have been refused, as no more than 1,450 can be accommodated. The transport Sedgewick will carry 75 women; the Crook, 325 men; and three other transports will take both men and women. About 825 of the latter and 625 of the former are going.

— It hardly seems possible that any great quantity and depth of snow could remain so late in the season, but a report recently received from the top of Mount Washington says that snow to the depth of ten feet covered the platform about the summit House, and the porch leading to the office was completely buried.

—One of the greatest, and perhaps the largest, wharf terminal in the county is that vast territory adjacent to Boston in the Charlestown district, known as the Mystic Terminal of the Boston & Maine Railroad. An idea of the magnitude of the place may be gained from the statement that in area the terminal covers over one hundred acres, or is more than twice the size of Boston Common, and has a water frontage of about a mile.

CHURCH WEDDING.

Boston Gentleman Marries Daughter of Quincy Councilman.

Christ church, Quincy, was prettily decorated in green, white and gold with palms, ferns and marguerites, Monday evening, at the wedding of Miss Susan Adams Packard and Mr. Charles Lewis Greene. The decorations were from the greenhouses of Col. A. B. Packard and were very tastefully arranged by Mr. C. C. Bradford.

Both the bride and groom are prominent in church circles, the bride's father being for many years one of the wardens of Christ church, while the groom is organist and choirmaster of All Saint's church, Dorchester.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the rector of Christ church, was assisted by Rev. James Benton Werner, rector of the Church of Our Redeemer, at Lexington, and Mr. E. Landis Synder was organist.

There was a maid of honor, but no bridesmaid. The bridal party was met at the door by the large vested choir of the church, led by Mr. Abner Packard as crucifer, and escorted to the chancel. The ritual of the church was strictly adhered to, and no selections from operas were played while the bridal party were present. The choir as they entered sang Barnby's "O perfect love," and for the reccessional, Bishop Doane's Marriage Hymn.

The charming bride, gowned in a white duchesse satin en traine, was escorted by her father.

The bridesmaid, Miss Daisy Lowe of this city, was gowned in a green silk muslin with a picture hat. At the chancel the bride was met by the groom and his best man, Alfred Edward Taff of Freeport, Ill.

The invited guests completely filled the church and stood during the entire service.

A grand reception followed the wedding ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, Councilman and Mrs. Elisha Packard, at the corner of Elm and Bigelow streets. Here also the decorations were of green, white and gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Greene were assisted in receiving by their parents and the maid of honor.

The ushers both at the church and house were: Mr. Joseph Smith Sylvester and Mr. Edmund Quincy Sylvester of Hanover, Mr. Charles Dunn of Dorchester and Mr. Conrad H. Young of Bridgeport, Conn.

Cook of Boston was caterer and served salads, ice cream, sherbets, etc.

Shortly before ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Greene started over the road to Boston, and stopped at Hotel Essex. Their future residence will be at 46 Malvern street, Dorchester.

Richards—Bradford.

Mr. Lysander S. Richards, a native of Quincy and for many years a resident of this place, was married yesterday, June 4th, to Mrs. Joanna B. Bradford of Marshfield Hills. They left immediately after the nuptial for the White Mountains for a wedding tour of two weeks.

The Garbage Pail.

In conversation with Dr. Garey this week, upon a by-law that that Board of Health can enforce, regarding house garbage, he said, it is supposed all will be careful to use tightly covered buckets or pails to hold the waste from the table; that their own comfort will not allow their vessels to remain uncovered. This is not the case. Ignorance, indifference and carelessness which is reelly the fault of the housekeeper, allow garbage to fill up and run over, butter firkins, wooden boxes and swill pails which having covers are still left open. Sickness, abundance of flies and great untidiness are the result. The recent visit of diphtheria from whatever cause, should make us very careful in hot weather.

The last regular meeting of the season of Adams Chapter, D. R., was held at the John Adams birthplace Monday afternoon and was largely attended. At the business meeting all bills were approved and the Chapter will enjoy its summer vacation free from debt. Rev. Mr. Whitaker of the Atlantic Memorial church read from Elbert Hubbard's book, "Little journeys to historic homes" of a visit to the cottage of John Adams, and he was listened to with the closest attention. The John Adams birthplace will be open to the public all summer.

Ex-Mayor C. F. Adams acknowledges the receipt of $60,159.03 for the expenses of the Cuban teachers.

☞The ladies of the Presbyterian church, corner of Quincy and Water street, will hold tonight their summer sale of useful articles, ice cream, plants, etc. Don't fail to call on them.

☞It would be a great thing if somebody would organize an institution for the care of the tired. Nobody in the world needs help more than the sufferer from this malady. All of us know what it is—to be tired physically and mentally and know of no special reason for being so.—Greenville (S. C.) News.

IRON BEDS
For Hot Summer Nights.

Half the people in the world can not sleep well on a hot night. They roll and toss and get up in the morning fully as tired as when they go to bed.

Now it costs but a trifle to own one of our sanitary iron beds. They give a free circulation of air around the body, inviting sleep, something which is impossible to secure in the ancient high posted wooden bedstead.

These beds are cool, restful, absolutely clean, with no wooden corners where disease germs can lurk, and when fitted with one of our famous $5 00 Victor Mattresses, you own a bed with SLEEP ALWAYS ON TAP.

Yes, by all means own one of our iron beds, the sooner you do, the happier you will be.

— No girl can afford, either for her own surest happiness or for the comfort of mind of him whom she marries to wed a young man during the formative period of his life, which is between twenty and twenty-five. And she who withholds from a young man her consent to marriage until he has reached the first year of the beginning of wisdom is a mighty sensible little body, and acts in a manner which she will never have cause to regret as long as God gives her and her husband life. —Edward Bok, in the Ladies' Home Journal.

SUDDEN ILLNESS.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern Seized at Braintree Town Meeting.

At the adjourned annual town meeting at Braintree held in the Town Hall last night the new code of by-laws were under consideration, and a part of same adopted.

By a motion made by Elmer E. Abercrombie, the meeting if in session at ten o'clock would then adjourn until Monday evening, June 11, at 7.45.

John Kelley, the East Braintree orator, was unable to see how the word days in section nine of article one, included the evening, as day and night were not the same.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern arose and said that perhaps Mr. Kelley did not believe in scripture, but would call his attention to the first chapter of Genesis.

About an hour later at 9.40 Mr. Crathern was taken with convulsions; he was promptly cared for by Dr. T. H. Dearing and others.

The meeting was at once adjourned. When Mr. Crathern regained consciousness he was conveyed to his home. He improved sufficiently to help himself to retire.

Norfolk Conference.

The spring meeting and one hundredth session of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held Tuesday, June 12, at 10 A. M. and 2.15 P. M., with the Church of the Unity, Randolph, Mass., Rev. William Safford Jones, minister. The program includes: Historical sketches of the Norfolk conference by the secretary and Rev. Henry F. Jenks; paper by Mrs. Clara B. Beatley, "The work of the church, what to do, and how to do it"; Devotional service, with sermon by Rev. James De Normandie, D. D., of Roxbury; "The Sunday School"—Rev. W. Hanson Pulsford, of Waltham, is expected to lead the discussion; Address Rev. Tomoyoshi Murai, of Tokio, "Our Unitarian cause in Japan."

Pennant Won.

The John Hancocks won the grammar school base ball pennant for 1900 by defeating the Willards Monday 25 to 3. The Coddingtons are a close second, and the complete summary is:

—A mixture easily prepared is excellent to rub up dressing table silver, particularly those articles with with which soap and water cannot be used. To a pint of wood alcohol add about a third of a pint of chalk precipitate, shake well and let it stand over night, when it is ready to use. A little applied with a soft woolen cloth cleans and polishes silver excelently. The caution is empahasized that wold alcohol is very inflamable and must be used with care.

HELD FOR MURDER.

Milton Colored Woman Arraigned at Quincy.

Mrs. Emma Buckner, the Milton woman who killed her husband Monday, by stabbing him, was brought into court this morning, and arraigned before Judge Humphrey, upon a warrant charging her with murder.

When Clerk Churchill read the warrant she burst into tears and murmured, "I didn't intend to kill him."

Chief of Police Pierce asked for a continuance until Thursday to give the District Attorney an opportunity to look into the case. The request was granted, and Mrs. Buckner was held without bail until that day.

J. J. McAnarney was retained by Mrs. Buckner as counsel.

Dr. Pierce in Favor.

Again at an adjourned conference of Republicans of the Tenth Congressional district Monday evening, at Hotel Essex, Boston, Dr. George Pierce of Milton was the favorite. Both W. W. Towle of Ward 12 and ex-alderman Milton C. Paige of South Boston have a small following. Quincy was not represented; it was the only section of the district that was not, and W. C. Sears, a Shaw man was surprised thereat.

It seemed to be the desire of a majority of those present to secure the strongest candidate, one who was a vote-getter. Many complimentary things were said about the candidates suggested, and some uncomplimentary things. Dr. Pierce seemed to get his share of the former, and to escape the latter, which was greatly in his favor. Representative Republicans of Quincy should be invited to attend the next conference, if one is held, that this city may be heard from.

On a Serious Charge.

Sometime between 6 o'clock Saturday night and Sunday morning the safe at the Greenleaf, which was closed on what is known as a short lock, was opened and the $132 in money which it contained was taken. Suspicion was fastened on Ernest N. Ditson, who has until recently had charge of the billiard room of the hotel, and a warrant was issued against him. The Boston police were notified and the young man was arrested by Station 16 officers Monday afternoon and turned over to Inspector Ferguson, who brought him to Quincy. He appeared in court today.

Violets For Polly.

For other girls the beauty rose,
Rich with its regal splendor;
For her, the sweetest flower that blows,
Fragrant with meaning tender.
For some the hyacinth and pink
Or pansies' velvet glory,
But there's a little flower, I think,
That tells a dearer story!

Like clustering thoughts the blossoms speak
Of happy words unuttered,
When blushes bloomed upon her cheek
And downcast glances fluttered,
When in the dance her hand I pressed,
In love's divinest folly,
For other girls the rose is best,
But violets for Polly!

'Tis not because the flower I prize
For its dim purple sweetness,
Like to the heaven of her eyes,
Crowning my life's completeness.
Her lightest wish my memory haunts,
E'en though my purse regrets it,
For Polly knows just what she wants
And usually gets it.

About the Right Material.

"Have you formed or expressed any opinion concerning this case?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," replied the talesman, "I have. I said to Dave Hunslaker the other day, s'z I, 'Dave,' s'z I, 'if they summon me for a juror,' s'z I, 'I want you to understand right now,' s'z I, 'I've got my opinion,' s'z I"—

No Regret.

We found the wan, hectic schoolgirl partaking of her frugal luncheon of slate pencils and pickles.

"Why is it," we asked, coming at once to the subject we had been fiercely debating with ourselves, "that you never skip rope until you fall dead any more?"

"Why should I?" demanded she brusquely. "Scientific calisthenics are less showy as regards immediate results perhaps, but they are far more ladylike."

If she felt any regret for the old order of things, she did not show it.—Detroit Journal.

A Spring Idyl.

When I met her, my heart began leaping,
Assailed by the wildest of fears,
For I saw that my love had been weeping;
Her sweet eyes were brimming with tears.
"Oh, tell me, my sweet," I entreated,
"What is it distresses you so?
Can't you tell me, my dear?" I repeated.
She tearfully shook her head "No."

Ah, then in this heart that adored her
Welled a terror as deep as the sea.
I begged and besought and implored her
To speak. Was she weeping for me?
But at length she cried halt to my chatter,
Interrupting in petulant mood,
"If you really bust dough what's the batter,
I took off by fladdels too sood."

Maud's Regret.

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Raked the meadow sweet with hay;
And as she raked, now here, now there,
The hayseeds fluttered from her hair.
She knew amid the show tents brown
Her brother loitered in the town,
While down the glen in bushes thick
Her dad was fishin in the crick.
"Ah, me," she cried, "what lots of joy
I've missed because I ain't a boy!
An, oh, I'm madder than ole sin
To think, alas, it might of been!"

CRUELTY TO HORSES.

TORTURES WHICH FASHION INFLICTS UPON THE ANIMALS.

The Operation of Docking and How It Is Performed—It Is an Extremely Painful Ordeal—The High Check Rein and the Double Curb Bit.

"See this curiously shaped instrument?" said a dealer in horse goods to a reporter. "Well, it is called a docking knife, though it is very much unlike a knife in shape."

The dealer held up an instrument with strong wooden handles, about 16 inches in length and working on the leverage principle, not unlike a large pruning knife. In the lower handle was a concaved space about the size of a coffee cup cut in a cross section, into which projected, when the instrument was closed, a convex steel blade with a very sharp edge.

With the handles extended the blade leaves the hollowed out space in the lower handle. This fits under the tail of the horse snugly. The blade, which is raised several inches above the top of the animal's tail, is then brought down sharp on the upper surface of the tail at some point between the vertebra bones, and with a quick, hard pressure of the extended handles of the knife the joints of the vertebra are lopped off as the limb of a tree between the sharp edges of the gardener's pruning knife.

The operation is, of course, extremely painful, especially as most horses are docked when they have attained full growth, the tail being simply the elongation of the animal's backbone. To the bleeding stump is applied the end of a redhot iron to cauterize the wound or, as horsemen say, "to stop the flow of blood." The excruciating suffering of the animal during and following the amputation and the infliction of additional pain by the application of the redhot iron to the raw surfaces of the lacerated bone can best be imagined.

"Dealers in horse goods and horsemen do not maintain these practices, however. It is 'the style,' and as long as it is such the horse must be the unhappy victim of man's cruelty, because the fashion is implacable. If society all over the land should agree as a unit that from a certain date it would be 'fashionable' to drive carriage horses without docked tails, high checkreins and murderous curb bits, then the milennium in the horse world will have come. But society will do nothing of the kind.

"Docked tails, curb bits, high heads and stiff checkreins, curved necks by reason of these curb bits, and clanking chains have been in vogue for so long, and the people are so used to having such a combination as the acme of horse fashion, and the onlookers from the sidewalk have envied these equipages for so long, that the style has become a recognized part of society's get up. The horse doesn't enter into the matter.

"If one state has a law against docking, the adjoining state probably has not. Horses may be operated upon in the latter and shipped into the former. The only way occurring to me by which a positive stop might be put to the practice, since the people themselves refuse to take the initiative, would be to make it a misdemeanor to have a docked horse in one's possession. This Arcadian epoch, however, will never be reached.

"It is common to find horses whose tongues are grooved with a deep cut, hard and callous by years of constant pressure of the curb bit. A horse's tongue is soft and smooth; it is not rough as a cow's, and it is very sensitive. The torture of a high checkrein and a double curb bit, with the reins in the lower ring, must be very great. This is the reason why a horse 'champs' the bit and tosses his head up and down from side to side. By these motions, which appear 'so stylish,' he obtains momentary relief from the pressure of the bit, curb chain, checkrein and head harness gear pressing upon his flesh and irritating his nerves.

"On the underside of these large curb bits for carriage horses will be found a series of ridges or convolutions cast in the steel. These ridges, as they press down upon the horse's tongue by the pressure of the reins, hurt it. A smooth curb bit is bad enough, but the ridged one hurts just that much more. They are called 'severe' bits and are supposed to keep the horse in restraint. They will be found in 99 out of 100 sets of harness used by fashionable people.

"The most 'severe' bit used is the Spanish curb. It has in the center a raised part like an inverted U. Attached to this is often seen a little wheel which gives forth a clicking sound as the horse rolls it on his tongue, which he does all the time when he is at rest with bridle on, and this motion of the animal's head and the clicking sound are a delight to the Spaniard or the Mexican, but it is hard on the horse when the slightest pressure is exerted. A horse's jaw can be broken by one of these Spanish bits.

"The checkrein could be prohibited by law if legislatures would pass such a measure. A law affecting curb bits would meet with stronger opposition, as it would be urged that these bits were necessary for the proper and safe control of horses."—Washington Star.

Barrie In the Chair.

Mr. J. M. Barrie some years ago was persuaded to take the chair at a Burns celebration in Scotland. He was extremely silent and stole away at the earliest opportunity. Next week appeared in The National Observer a humorous article, entitled "Mr. Barrie In the Chair," in which Mr. Barrie's lack of social tact was held up to ridicule. Many people thought the writer had gone too far and protested. But the author was Mr. Barrie himself, according to The Temple Magazine.

The czar's question whether it would not be advisable to limit or entirely stop the banishment of criminals to Siberia has been answered in the negative by most of the heads of departments. Among the reasons given is that lynching would become more frequent if the culprits were not exiled.

A Four-Round Battle.

New York, June 5.—Patsey Sweeney, the Manchester, N. H., lightweight, came within an ace of having to accept the loser's end of the purse in his bout with Eugene Reardon at Brooklyn last night. Reardon was up good and fresh for the fourth round and after putting a few good wallops to the jaw Reardon sought the floor, where he remained until counted out.

IS PRACTICALLY OVER.

War in Philippines Confined Mostly to the Lower Class, Says Otis.

The Islands Are of Vast Commercial Value.

Americans Can Stand the Climate Better Than the Filipinos.

San Francisco, June 5.—After five days in quarantine, Major General Otis, who arrived last Wednesday from Manila, was allowed to land yesterday. Because of several cases of smallpox on board the transport Meade, General Otis and all on board had to submit to vaccination. General Otis spent the afternoon receiving callers and preparing for his departure east. It had been decided to receive General Otis here with full military honors, but for some reason this ceremony was omitted.

When seen by a representative of the Associated Press General Otis, in response to a request that he make a statement of the situation in the Philippines, said that he could not comply with the request, as such action, in his judgment, would be inconsistent with his duty as an officer of the army.

Asked what would be the effect on the war if the report of Aguinaldo's death were true, General Otis said that the war was practically ended; that Aguinaldo's followers were deserting fast, and those who now remained with him were generally of the lower class. Most of his officers had left him, though some still remained in touch with him. Some of those who had left him were now engaged in business in Manila and others were hiding in the mountains. Many of his closest followers, the general said, were very friendly toward the United States, and as soon as the natives in general gained confidence in the friendly offices of the Americans there would be little difficulty in bringing them to terms. Asked as to the commercial value of the islands, the general said that they were vastly rich, especially in hemp, sugar and tobacco, and as soon as the situation became more quiet business of all kinds would increase tremendously, as it was doing now.

General Otis would not state whether or not he favored the retention of the islands by this country. In response to a query he said: "We have got them now. What are we to do about it?"

Regarding the number of troops and the condition of the soldiers, General Otis said: "There are 55,000 effective troops scattered among the islands now engaged in the protection of the people from guerilla warfare, which is rampant in some sections. The general health of the troops is exceedingly good, the percentage of the sick for the month of April being but 10 percent. The Americans can stand the climate better than the Filipinos, and especially during the rainy season did their health impress me. The men are becoming acclimated and, though it may become necessary to send out relief troops at times, it will hardly be necessary to send soldiers very frequently."

General Otis said that his own health was excellent. He left for Washington last night and will report to the president at once. He could not state when his report of the situation would be ready, but said he would first make a verbal report to the authorities in Washington and later hand in an extended written report.

An Interesting Labor Experiment.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 5.—Agent MacColl of the Lorraine mills held a protracted conference with a committee of the strikers Monday, with the result that a sub-committee will visit a number of other mills in New England for purposes of investigation and comparison. The committee will go at the expense of the Lorraine company, and will visit such mills as manufacture the same class of goods. Rates of wages and prices of goods will be ascertained and the result reported to the main body of strikers here.

Will Have Plenty of "Pocket Money."

Havana, June 5.—Superintendent of Schools Frye announces that all the preparations for the journey of the Cuban teachers to the United States are well forward. The teachers will be paid their salaries at the port of departure, a total of $96,000. Almost exactly half the entire number of teachers have applied to go, namely, 1750. Only 300 have been refused, as no more than 1450 can be accommodated.

Attack on Tien Tsin Imminent.

Tien Tsin, June 5.—The Boxers are reported four miles off, and an attack is expected. Everything is ready, and the residents are confident. Thirty-five German marines arrived here last evening. Three Belgian engineers have arrived. The French consul says 11 are still missing, but there are hopes of saving five.

Straus Disqualified.

New York, June 5.—Isadore Straus was disqualified, for fouling, in the seventh round of his fight with Tom Broderick last night at Brooklyn. Both men had been using foul tactics, and Broderick was all but out when the referee gave him the fight. It was a slugging match throughout.

Head Crushed Between Rails.

Wickford, R. I., June 5.—Joseph Montes, an Italian employed by the Sea View railroad, while unloading rails from a cart, had his head caught between two of the rails. His skull was crushed and death resulted immediately.

Wreck of the Copenhagen.

Key West, June 5.—The Copenhagen, a British steamer, ran ashore on a reef near Fort Lauderdale, 70 miles north of Cape Florida. The Copenhagen was bound from Philadelphia for Havana. She is a total wreck.

CROPS MAKING GOOD PROGRESS.

Seasonable Weather Has Had a Good Effect Throughout New England District.

Boston, June 5.—The United States department of agriculture, climate and crop service of the weather bureau, New England section, issues the following bulletin for the week ending June 4:

The week has been favorable for both agricultural work and growth of crops. The surface of the ground has been warm enough to cause greater development in vegetation than during any preceding week of the season. The absence of rain during the first part of the week has enabled farmers to make rapid progress in the planting of crops. In the southern district, including Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, almost all planting has been completed; in the three northern states of the section considerable seeding is yet to be done.

Rye has headed in Massachusetts and looks well. Early corn in places was cut down by the frost, necessitating considerable replanting. Much corn in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont is yet to be planted. Oats have made a rapid growth during the week and are promising.

Aside from the check due to the dry weather of the early part of the week the grass crop has made rapid progress. Meadows in Maine are reported to be in excellent condition, though the pastures are not yet sufficiently advanced to afford satisfactory grazing.

The frost of May 29 did much damage to strawberries, destroying the more advanced, and thus delaying the crop. Apples in the northern districts are now in bloom, and the weather is favorable for pollenizing. There are not the large number of caterpillars that wrought such havoc last season, but trees that were badly worm eaten last year have not bloomed. Plum and pear trees are reported to be well laden. Cranberry bogs suffered slightly by the frost of the 29th. There will be some peaches in Rhode Island.

Some potatoes were damaged by the frost of the 29th. Potato bugs are reported in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Many potato fields have been hoed. Gardens are now growing rapidly and vegetables are rapidly recovering from the effects of cool weather.

Much tobacco is now being set in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The ground is in excellent condition, being warm for the first time this spring.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 5.—By hard and consecutive hitting, Boston took the lead in the third inning. Umpire Swartwood declared Donlin out for interference in the fifth. The decision occasioned considerable kicking.

Color Line In Woman's Clubs.

Milwaukee, June 5.—Fully 4000 club women have arrived for the convention of the general federation of women's clubs. The "color question" as it crops out in Mrs. Ruffin of Boston, a delegate from a colored club, was temporarily settled by the board of directors tabling the application for membership. This will leave Mrs. Ruffin to continue as a delegate from two organizations of white women, the New England Press association and the Massachusetts Federation. The board of directors feel that they have taken the wisest course possible in refusing to establish the precedent of accepting a club made up mostly of colored women, as is the New Era club of Boston, of which Mrs. Ruffin is president.

Many May Be Debarred.

New York, June 5.—The steamship Gran Antilla is due at this port with more than 1000 Italian immigrants on board. Washington officials, acting on information from the American representatives at Naples and Genoa, who have been investigating the status of this ship, have learned, so it is stated, that the Gran Antilla belongs to no regular line, is making the trip to this city as an experiment only and that, as many of the passengers are likely to become public charges and the ship's owners have not filed bonds to recoup the government, the ship is to be detained and many of her people prevented from landing.

Opposed to Spread of Socialism.

London, June 5.—The Kieff correspondent of The Standard attributes the recent arrests in Russian cities, which have numbered hundreds, to "the determination of the government to suppress the spread of socialism, although not connected with violent purposes.

A Bicyclist's Feat

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 5.—Joseph Faucher yesterday rode a bicycle across the Poughkeepsie bridge on the ties. The bridge is 212 feet above high water. The ties are eight inches apart. Faucher has crossed railroad trestles at many other places.

Mrs. Smith, who is of an inventive turn of mind, being ill, satisfied with the ordinary cold storage eggs which the grocers are in the habit of inflicting on their customers during the winter months, after thinking deeply over the matter came to the conclusion that if she put the eggs in an airtight receptacle they would keep an indefinite period. The old family physician, being consulted, agreed that, while it was a novel idea, it appeared plausible and deserved a trial. Smith is now looking for the old doctor, but he is not to be found.

Mrs. Smith tried the experiment on a small scale, putting a dozen or so of large, fresh eggs in a common fruit jar, sealed it carefully and put it away on the swinging shelf in the cellar and awaited developments—and they came.

One Saturday night Smith went down the cellar to get some apples. He knew exactly where to find them, therefore took no light with him—that is, to be more correct, he thought he knew where they were. Not finding them, he attempted to strike a match on the sole of his shoe, but lost his equilibrium in the act and lunged forward, striking the shelf with some force.

There was a terrific explosion. Something struck Smith a fearful blow on the head, and with a scream of terror and pain he staggered to the stairway, stumbling over a basket—the apples—as he went. He ran as far as the foot of the stairs and fell exhausted. The pain in his head was intense.

"I always expected that gas to explode on us some day!" moaned Smith. "But Martha would persist in having it put in!"

He put his hand to his head, and when he felt a thick, slippery, slimy substance trickling down his forehead he realized for the first time he was dangerously wounded. Covering his face with his hands, sobbing quietly, he became aware of a terrible stench.

"Mercy!" mumbled Smith. "I never heard of a man's brains smelling like that. Surely this is the result of reading 'Sapho!'"

He looked appealingly heavenward and became aware of an indistinct light in the distance. Visions of beautiful angels, flowing streams and waving trees floated through his brain. He had read dying people always see more or less of such things. The light gradually became more and more distinct, and at last the sufferer saw a beautiful, lily white arm—more beautiful, Smith thought, than he had ever seen on earth, holding a kerosene lamp. It was his wife.

Smith's attitude struck her with astonishment—so did the stench. Smith had always fondly imagined he would like to die with a cherubic smile on his lips. Extending his hand, and with a wan smile and faint voice he said: "Goodby, Martha, dear. I forgive you everything. Perhaps it was for the best."

"John Henry Smith," said his life partner very severely, "you have been drinking again! Merciful goodness! What is that on your head? And what a terrible smell! What in the world are you doing?"

"Gas exploded," explained Smith briefly. He felt hurt his wife could express no emotion on his deathbed.

Then Mrs. Smith caught side of the broken fruit jar and the eggs spattered liberally on the walls and the floor and the ceiling. She had watched those eggs day and night with a loving care under the fond hope that she had made an important discovery, and the sight was a shock to her.

She made a vicious kick at Smith, crying, "You—boo-oo-oo—have gone and spoiled all those nice b-b-big eggs, and—boo-oo—I had invited mamma up to dinner Sunday to try them, and now you"— And Mrs. Smith threatened to become hysterical.

A light dawned on Smith's befuddled brain. He lacked the courage to look at his bloody hands before. He did so now and saw not red gore, as he confidently expected, but yellow, decayed hen fruit. Then he arose in all his dignity and majestically said—that is, he was as dignified and as majestic as was possible under the circumstances, for the stench was fearful: "Mary, if you can scrape together two of those eggs it would please me very much if you would give one to your dear mamma and eat the other yourself. I merely beg you not to touch that mess until I can get the children out of the house. I am going to South Africa to fight the Boers. It is altogether too dangerous here, living within smelling distance of those lyddite shells."—Detroit News.

ATTRIBUTED TO AN INCENDIARY.

Two Men Are Killed and Others Are Injured In a Fire Which Destroyed a Town Hall.

Foxboro, Mass., June 5.—The town hall, in which, besides the town offices, were the high, grammar and three intermediate schools of the town, was burned at about 3 o'clock Monday morning. George H. Josselyn was killed, and three others, Arthur A. Joslyn, Samuel Johnson and Joseph Watkins, injured, the first-named so badly that it is feared that he will die. The financial loss is estimated at $50,000. It is thought that the fire was the result of an incendiary's work. Watkins died Monday afternoon.

All of the injured men were members of the local fire department, who were attending to their duties within the structure when the cupola fell through the roof.

This disaster, following closely on the destruction of the big straw mill a week ago, involving a loss of $100,600, has greatly disturbed the community. It is considered certain that a reckless incendiary is at work, as half a score of minor fires have occurred recently, besides the two which have caused heavy damages, and one of which brought loss of life.

By the two most recent fires the town has lost its chief industry, its town hall and practically all of its school accommodations, and the aggregate financial loss is $150,000.

Republican Victory Indicted.

Portland, Ore., June 5.—Meager returns from Monday's election indicate that the Republicans have carried the state by from 5000 to 8000 plurality. It is estimated that C. E. Wolverton (Rep.), for justice of the supreme court, will have a plurality of 8000, and J. W. Bailey (Rep.), for food and dairy commissioner, is elected by 6000. In the Second congressional district the plurality for Moody (Rep.) is estimated at from 5000 to 7000. From the First congressional district, which has always been close, no returns have been received, except from one county, and Tongue (Rep.) was running ahead of his ticket.

Outlaw Band Wiped Out.

Santiago, June 5.—Rural guards killed Juan Gonzales, the notorious outlaw, and four companions near Sagua, Sunday. Gonzales had been arrested several times, but he always escaped conviction because witnesses feared to testify against him. The officers of the rural guards who killed him claim that Gonzales and his band were slain in a fair fight, but there are natives who say that the outlaws were taken by strategy and then deliberately shot. Not one of the guards was injured.

Joe Wheeler to Be Honored.

Washington, June 5.—There is reason to believe that the president has decided to appoint General Joe Wheeler a brigadier general in the regular army, to fill the vacancy which will be created by the confirmation by the senate of the nomination of General Otis to be a major general. It is assumed by friends of General Wheeler that it is his purpose to retire within a short time after his appointment.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 5.—In the senate yesterday the $1,000,000 Boston playground bill was passed to engrossment, after the adoption of an amendment that the act should not take effect without its acceptance by the Boston city council.

The house, by a vote of almost two to one, rejected the bill requiring foreign corporations to make returns to the commissioner of corporations in this state.

New York, June 5.—At a meeting of the trustees of Columbia university yesterday it was announced that a friend of the institution had made a gift of $100,000 for the construciton of a student's hall to be used for Young Men's Christian association purposes and for the development of the spiritual and religious life of the students. The name of the donor will not be divulged.

Alleged Assault With a Club.

Stamford, Conn., June 5.—John S. Cass is under arrest on a charge alleging assault on Perry Barker. Barker is in a critical condition. According to the police, Cass, who had been working for Barker for some time, went to the latter's house and demanded $2. Barker refused to give Cass the money. Cass then struck Barker on the head with a heavy club.

Two Cases of Smallpox.

A Boy's Costly Amusement.

Concord, N. H., June 5.—While exploding some dynamite caps with some other boys, for amusement, W. A. Smith, 15 years old, was struck in the left side by a piece of one of the caps, which is now lodged somewhere in the chest. It is feared that the injuries will prove fatal.

Chinese Pirates Rob a Steamer.

Shanghai, June 5.—A number of desperadoes, disguised as passengers, have pirated the British Yang-Tse steamer Kutwo. They committed wholesale robberies, terrorizing the passengers, who were quite unable to offer resistance. The thieves escaped with their booty.

Hopeless and Helpless.

The consequences of a diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system are most disastrous to the whole body. One by one every organ may become involved. The misery is maddening. The most extreme cases of "stomach trouble" and the evils resulting from it have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood and builds up the body with sound healthy flesh.

"I was taken with severe headache," writes Thomas A. Swarts, Box 103, Sub-Station C, Columbus, Ohio, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. I just gave money to the doctors whenever I thought they would do me any good, but the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then I saw one of my neighbor boys and he said, "Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself." The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

ROBERTS IN PRETORIA.

Town Was Not Defended and Officials Surrendered Unconditionally.

Frantic Demonstrations Over Success of "Little Bobs."

Over Four Hundred of Imperial Yeomanry Overwhelmed by Boers Near Lindley.

London, June 6.—Pretoria has fallen, and Lord Roberts has entered the Boer capital at the head of his troops, as he said he would do last March. After Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener had organized the magnificent army which started on its march northward early in May, this result never seemed in doubt. As has been pointed out it has not been possible for the Boers successfully to resist. They were outnumbered and outclassed in every branch—infantry, mounted infantry, cavalry and artillery. This alone would not have made the British successful, but in Lord Roberts they had the master mind, the strategist, to plan and direct what Lord Kitchener had helped to construct—one of the largest, best-equipped and most mobile armies assembled within a score of years at least.

The dispatches of Lord Roberts, telling of the incidents before the surrendering of the capital by three civilians, stand alone, as the correspondents with him have not yet had their turn with the wires. Lord Roberts' dispatches follow:

"Pretoria, June 5, 12:55 p. m.—Just before dark yesterday the enemy were beaten back from nearly all the positions they had been holding, and Ian Hamilton's mounted infantry followed them to within 2000 yards of Pretoria, through which they retreated hastily.

"DeLisle then sent an officer with a flag of truce into the town, demanding its surrender in my name. Shortly before midnight I was awakened by two officials of the South African republic, Sandberg, military secretary to Commandant General Botha, and a general officer of the Boer army, who brought me a letter from Botha, proposing an armistice for the purpose of settling the terms of surrender.

"I replied that I would gladly meet the commandant general the next morning, but that I was not prepared to discuss any terms, as the surrender of the town must be unconditional. I asked for a reply by daybreak, as I had ordered the troops to march on the town as soon as it was light.

"In his reply Botha told me that he had decided not to defend Pretoria and that he trusted the women, children and property would be protected. At 1 a. m. today, while on the line of march, I was met by three of the principal officials with a flag of truce, stating their wish to surrender the town.

"It was arranged that Pretoria should be taken possession of by her majesty's troops at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

"Mrs. Botha and Mrs. Kruger are both in Pretoria. Some few of the British prisoners have been taken away, but the majority are still at Waterval. Over a hundred of the officers are in Pretoria. The few I have seen are looking well."

Following is the text of the dispatch from Lord Roberts announcing the disaster to the Thirteenth battalion of the imperial yeomany:

"Pretoria Station, June 5, 12:55 p. m.—I regret to report that the Thirteenth imperial yeomany had to surrender to a very superior force of the enemy on May 31 near Lindley On receiving information of the battalion being attacked I ordered Methuen to proceed with all speed to its assistance.

"Methuen was then on the march, on the Heilbron side of Kroonstad, and half an hour after the receipt of my telegram, on June 1, he started off. By 10 a. m. of the following day he had marched 44 miles in 25 hours, but he was too late to rescue Colonel Spragge's yeomanry.

"Methuen attacked the Boers, who were between 2000 and 3000 strong, and after a running fight of five hours completely routed the enemy.

"It is a very regretable circumstances, but I trust it will not be very long before the Irish yeomanry are released from captivity."

Lord Roberts' postscript, announcing the loss of the yeomanry battalion came too late for the public to know it last evening. The newspaper commentators consider the incident deplorable, but as having no weight to speak of in the result. The battalion numbered between 400 and 500.

General Botha and most of his men got away from Pretoria. This is inferred from Lord Roberts' message, but the presumption is that the Boer commandant general cannot escape the British dispositions without a fight.

Operations elsewhere seem to have dwindled to nothing. General Baden-Powell joined General Hunter on Sunday at Lichtenburg.

Sid Redvers Buller has not moved.

England celebrated the fall of Pretoria very much as she did the relief of Mafeking. Drunkenness has been a trifle less conspicuous than when Baden-Powell was the hero of the moment; but, in London and in the other large towns, the scenes last evening were practically a repetition of those which marked the other victories; and, long after midnight, uproarious yelling, the tooting of horns, and discordant chant ascended from the city streets, usually at such an hour as silent as the grave.

Babies in arms, white haired women, girls of the street, clubmen and Whitechapel costermonger gally intermingled along the flaring thoroughfares, bent upon celebrating the victory. Into the faces of all were continually thrust huge peacock feathers described for no known reason as "Kruger's persuaders."

Then the night grew older and rowdyism of the worst form held sway. From almost every barroom came sounds of inebriate attempts to sing "God Save the Queen" and "Rule Britannia."

SECRETARY LONG'S "RUSH" ORDER

for Purpose of Demonstrating How Quickly Warships Can Prepare For Active Service.

Washington, June 6.—An order, the purpose of which is to see how much time would be occupied in putting into condition for active naval service a part of the United States fleet to meet an emergency, has been issued by Secretary Long. The vessels selected for the experiment are the battleships Indiana and Massachusetts, now laid up in ordinary at League Island with a skeleton organization of officers and men aboard.

Captain Dickins commands the Indiana and has six officers and about 150 men under him. The Massachusetts is under command of Captain Train with four officers and about 150 sailors. Orders were telegraphed yesterday to Admiral Casey, the commandant of the League island yard, and the two captains above named, to put the ships into condition for immediate service to last at least 60 days. No notice had been given previously of the department's intention.

By the terms of the order the ships must clear League island inside of three days. The officers who have projected the experiment hope to do better than that. The ships each have about (5) tons of coal aboard, but must be equipped with food, maps and bedding, ammunition, etc.

The hardest question to deal with in the present straits of the navy is that of personnel. Officers were wired to at once, and it was necessary to rob some bureaus of the navy department of much needed assistants. The officer most remote from League island is Lieutenant Wilson, at Boston, so that all of them should be aboard ship by tonight. The Hartford's crew, now at Norfolk, has been ordered to leave for League island, and from her numerous crew the complements of the Indiana and Massachusetts will be brought up to the standard. About 300 men and 12 officers will be required for each battleship.

Anti-Machine Men on Inside Track.

Kansas City, June 6.—A protracted wrangle in the credentials committee over 10 contesting delegations from St. Louis and three from Kansas City blocked the deliberations of the Missouri state Democratic convention that met here yesterday to nominate a state ticket. In both instances it was a contest between machine and anti-machine factions. The indications are that the anti-machine men will win a majority of the seats. The convention adjourned until today.

Love and Suicide.

Middletown, Conn., June 6.—Mary J. Crook, 17 years old, committed suicide by shooting in the head. Two notes were found, one asking forgiveness of her brother, with whom she lived, and the other addressed to a young man of Clinton, in which she said that, although she refused his proposal of marriage made last Sunday evening, she loved him dearly. The note added that she never could become his wife, however, and so chose to take her life.

Lost Money by Gambling.

New York, June 6.—A meeting of the creditors of Arnold Feldstein, who did business as A. Feldstein & Co., importers of raw silk, was held yesterday. The schedules showed liabilities of $972,879 and assets of $195,636. The testimony at the bankrupt proceedings showed that Feldstein lost large amounts of money in the last few months in gambling houses in this city.

Moors Preparing For Attack.

London, June 6.—Special dispatches from Algiers portray a serious situation. Thousands of Moors are massing at Figuig and in the neighborhood, preparing for a determined attack upon the advanced posts of the French. The French columns have joined hands at Zoubia; but the men suffer terribly from heat and thirst, and hundreds of camels died.

Indicted on Felony Charge.

Boston, June 6.—Everett F. Martin and Winifred Robinson were indicted by the grand jury Tuesday on a felony charge, and two officials have gone to New York to bring Martin and the young woman to this city. Martin is under arrest in New York for an alleged felony committed in that city.

Prosperity In Pine Tree State.

Augusta, Me., June 6.—That the deposits in Maine savings banks have increased $1,663,383 is shown by the semi-annual statement of State Bank Examiner Timberlake. There are 51 savings banks, 32 loan and building associations and 17 banking and trust companies

Want a Nine-Hour Day.

Boston, June 6.—Dissatisfaction over the matter of granting a nine-hour day led the machinists at George Lawley & Son's shipyard to strike Tuesday night after the day shift had a conference with the night men. The firm is building two government torpedo boats.

Railway Employes' Wages Raised.

Portland, Me., June 6.—Manager Newman announces that the employes of the Portland Street Railway company, which controls all city and suburban lines, except the road running to Yarmouth, have been granted an advance of 10 percent in wages.

TOWN IS UNDER ARMS.

Situation Created by the Boxers Is Now One of Extreme Peril.

Government Forbids Soldiers Firing Upon Murderers.

Kempff Reports Landing of More Seamen and Beginning of Engagement.

London, June 6.—The Daily Express has a dispatch from Shanghai, dated Tuesday, which says:

Russian troops have been ordered from Port Arthur to the neighborhood of Pekin to punish the Boxers for killing two Cossacks and wounding two.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Tien Tsin, dated June 4, says:

The situation is very serious. The Boxers are approaching Tien Tsin on all sides.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday, says: The Boxers are within three miles of Tien Tsin. In addition to the marines, the defensive force includes volunteers under the command of Major Higgs, late of the Sixteenth Lancers. The town is practically under arms.

The Pekin correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

Mr. Norman, a missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, was cruelly murdered at Yung Ching on June 2. The viceroy of Pe-Chi-Li has officially notified the fact to the British minister. The murder was undoubtedly due to the complicity of the Chinese government in the disturbances caused by the Boxers. A secret edict, issued two days ago, forbade the soldiers to fire upon the Boxers. The soldiers who were killed at Huang-Tsun offered no resistance and were simply guarding the railway. It is indisputable that the chief supporters of the Boxers include Prince Tuan, the father of Hsu Tung, the guardian of the heir apparent, as well as Tubg-Fuh-Siang, the general commanding the hordes of Khan-Su soldiers who have long menaced the safety of foreigners in Pe-Chi-Li. It is imperatively necessary that the Tien Tsin railroad should be immediately patrolled and protected by British guards. Pekin itself is apparently quiet, but there is much suppressed excitement. The French minister despairs of the safety of Ossent, the engineer, his sister and the two Italians, who were missing from the party that escaped from Pao-Ting-Fu to Tien Tsin.

Admiral Kempff's Report.

Washington, June 6.—The secretary of the navy has received the following cablegram from Admiral Kempff, commanding the United States ship Newark, lying at the Taku forts at the mouth of the Pei-Ho river, dated Taku, June 5:

"Engagement has commenced. Have landed force of 50 seamen more—battalion of marines. Kempff."

The cipher message is not entirely legible, and it is supposed at the navy department the admiral means that he has landed 50 seamen to reinforce the battalion of marines already ashore.

Referred to Citizens of the Hub.

Boston, June 6.—The bill increasing the tax rate of Boston from $9 to $10.50, which was earnestly petitioned for by Mayor Hart, finally passed the house yesterday after a long debate, but not until it had been provided with a referendum amendment, giving the people of this city the right to vote on the increase. In his petition, Mayor Hart stated that it was impossible to carry on the business of the city with a tax rate limited to $9 on $1000 valuation.

Civil Courts Have Jurisdiction.

Washington, June 6.—A question recently arose in Cuba as to whether a United States soldier arrested for the murder of a native should be tried by the military authorities of the United States or the civil courts of Cuba. The attorney general yesterday gave an elaborate review of the laws in the case and expressed the opinion that the civil courts of Cuba have complete jurisdiction in the matter.

Peck Has Heard No Complaint.

Paris, June 6.—Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner general to the exposition, says, in reply to recent criticisms: "I believe that justice has been done by our heads of departments to each exhibitor and that there has been no improper conduct practised by any of them. No complaint whatever from any exhibitor of this sort has reached me nor anyone in our department."

Several Lives May Have Been Lost.

Quebec, June 6.—The lumber plant at Ste. Etienne du Saguenay, belonging to Prince Bros. & Co. of Quebec, was destroyed by fire last night. The loss will reach $400,000. Forty families are homeless as a result of the conflagration, and it is believed several perished in the flames.

Clothing Caught Fire From Pipe.

Boston, June 6.—A spark from a pipe which Milford J. Cole was smoking in his room set fire to his clothing. He rushed from the house, and other inmates extinguished the fire, but Cole was terribly burned and is now in a dangerous condition. He is 67 years old.

Good Afternoon.

The great victory of the Republicans in the Oregon election is very encouraging to party success at the National election this year, as it means that the Pacific states will be in the Republican column.

The Herald suggests, editorially, that the Republicans of the Tenth Congressional district nominate Hon. William B. Rice as their candidate, and concludes a lengthy review of the situation as follows: "But, unfortunately, there is little reason for supposing that in the 10th district such good judgment, combined with public spirit, now exists. Those who represent the party machine appear to care nothing for the broader questions of national policy upon which the future well-being of our country is to rest."

It may be there are some politicians in the district who care nothing for their country, but it is rather a sweeping statement. It was manifest at the conference at the Essex House on Monday evening that two or three made money too prominent a feature, but they were not the champions of Dr. Pierce of Milton or Hon. John Shaw of Quincy; and perhaps they do not represent the party machine, so called. Quincy would be proud to have Hon. William B. Rice in Congress, but when it comes to National policy Mr. Rice is not in sympathy with the Republicans on the tariff and other measures, and further it is doubtful if he would accept a Republican nomination. The Herald instances Littlefield of Maine as an able Congressman, but probably admires his independence more than his Republicanism.

If the Tenth district is nominally a Democratic one, as the Herald says, it is very natural that an unusually strong man should be nominated to be elected, and that some work should be required.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Vacation time will soon be here. It is the time when you hustle to get away in order to prepare yourself for the rush of hurrying back.—Waterbury (Conn.) Globe.

☞Count Boni de Castelane is again financially embarrassed. Why doesn't the little "cuss" go on the stage? Thousands of theatre-goers of the female persuasion would pay handsomely for the privilege of playing with him.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞A Wisconsin man has applied for an injunction to restrain his son from taking a wife, and an Iowa man has sworn out a writ of habeas corpus to get possession of the girl he wants to marry. If this mix up of love and law continues, Cupid must get admitted to the bar or go out of business.—Foster's Democrat.

☞The proposition to give veterans of the war half fare rates on all the railroads of the county is being considered by the general passenger agents, and has been received with some favor by some of the larger roads. A great many of the aged and disabled soldiers are poor men, making a bare living, and that because of their services to the county in its time of greatest need. It is customary on a good many roads to give clergymen the benefit of half rates, and it is argued if the ministers are entitled to the privilege, the veterans are. It will be some time before the matter is settled but if it is in favor of the veterans they will do more traveling than they have done in years.—Ansonia Sentinel.

☞Germany, if the press of that country rightly interprets the sentiment of the government, may have some thing to say when it comes to the final settlement of affairs in South Africa. Already vigorous protest is being made by German newspapers against the terms laid down in the proclamation of Lord Roberts in which a distinction is made between combatant and non-combatant burghers as regards treatment. The nations, although they would not interfere in the war itself, may have something to say when it comes to arranging the finalities. — Brockton Times.

☞That Carnegie is a queer duck. He evidently means to play on both sides, which after all is not so queer a quality in human nature. He is a rampant anti-expansionist but predicts McKinley's re-election because, you see, Bryan, is such a heretic on the money question. It is real funny that Carnegie, fired, as he says he is, with a vaunting ambition to die poor, should not hold up both hands for the man and the heresy directly calculated to aid him in his desire for poverty and all its attendant blessings.—Milford Journal.

Dr. Storrs Dead.

Rev. Dr. Richard Salter Storrs, the venerable pastor emeritus of the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, died at his home in that borough last night. The only surviving members of his family, his three daughters, Mrs. Edward B. Coe, Mrs. Louis R. Packard and Mrs. Philip Washburn, were present at the time of his death. Dr. Storrs had been in an unconscious condition since a late hour the previous night. His death was due to a complication of ailments, incident to old age, his final illness dating from last October. From this illness, however, he rallied sufficiently to attend the annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions in Boston, and his last appearance in the pulpit of the Church of the Pilgrims was on Sunday, April 22. On that date his successor, Rev. Dr. Harry P. Dewey, preached for the first time after being called to the pastorate. No funeral arrangements have yet been made.

Dr. Storrs was born in Braintree in 1821 and was the son of Rev. Dr. Richard Salter Storrs, for many years pastor of the First church of Braintree; he was ordained in 1811 and died in 1873.

A. O. H. Auxiliary.

An auxiliary was formed to Division 17, A. O. H., at Atlantic Tuesday evening. The society was organized by Miss Katharine E. Sheridan, County President of the A. O. H., with Miss Eliza C. Sheahan of Quincy, County Vice President. Twenty-nine women joined. The following officers were elected:

President,—Mrs. M. F. Burns.

Vice President, — Miss Della Landers.

Recording Secretary,—Miss May R. Sullivan.

Financial Secretary,—Miss Norah Lyons.

Treasurer,—Mrs. E. I. McMasters.

Sentinel,—Miss Myra Shea.

Sergeant-at-Arms,—Miss Mary Ago.

Many visiting auxiliaries were present, and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Much credit is given to Mr. Henry Cunningham, President of Division 17, who has worked untiringly for the success of the association. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Blaze at Norfolk Downs.

The alarm from Box 61, at 3.35 this morning, called the department to a fire in the upper part of a house on Hodges avenue, owned by William A. Hodges and occupied by Mr. Card. The fire started in the attic, from the lamp of a chicken brooder, and ran along the rafters and burned through the roof. A chemical stream was taken up through the house while the hydrant stream was put onto the roof. The loss to the building will be $200, covered by insurance. The loss to contents will not exceed $25; uninsured.

Metropolitan Commissioners.

The Committee on Public Service will report today a bill to abolish the three Metropolitan Boards on Water, Sewers and Public Parks, and to substitute in their stead the Metropolitan Board of Public Works. The act is to take effect on May 1, 1902. The proposed new board will consist of three members; the Chairman to receive $5500 a year and the others each $5000. The term of office of each member will be three years. The board is to be appointed by the Governor, subject to conformation by the Council.

☞The next step toward Cuban independence will be taken by the Cubans themselves on June 16, when their first election for Cuban officials takes place. It will be controlled entirely by the Cubans themselves.

HOUSE OPENING.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Leonard Entertains at Houghs Neck.

A visit to Houghs Neck is a pleasant pastime under most all circumstances, but to be received and entertained at a private cottage the bun is acknowleged to be taken in full, and those who help take the proverbial bun last Saturday at Mr. B. C. Leonard's elegant cottage "Oregon" have only the pleasantest recollections of that gentleman's genuine hospitality.

Mr. Leonard had an opening, and his friends were legion, and from many parts of New England.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Perley R. Glass, Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Page, Wollaston Park; Miss Julie M. Page, Wollaston Park; Mr. William Read, Providence; Mr. E. S. Wilson and Miss Annie Moody, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Averill, Miss Emma Brae, Miss Ruth Edwards, Brockton; Miss Ida Leonard and Mr. Joel W. Whitcomb, Fall River; Miss Annie Beckwith, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Leonard, Brockton; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruenneg, Winter Hill; Mr. and Mrs. George Paige, Taunton; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Leonard, Easton, Miss Emma Miller, Boston; Miss Lizzie P. Dean, Raynham; Miss Lotta B. Chisholm, Brockton; Minnie M. Freeze, Everett; Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Page, Miss Hattie M. Page and Harry Moses, West Somerville; F. W. Grant, Quincy; Morris Welsh and Stephen Walsh, Wollaston Park; Lawrence Muther, Boston; J. L. Harvey, Houghs Neck, E. J. Macintyre, Norfolk Downs; Davis Howe, Austin Sutherland and William McLean, Quincy.

Among the party were many good entertainers and after songs and recitations a visit was made to Mr. Leonard's new cottage, one hardly completed as yet, but enough so to deserve a name. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard both requested a suggestion for a name from all present. Many names were submitted the one decided upon being "Corvallis" submitted by Mr. C. W. Page.

There being no wine to throw away, a toy watering pot was found and filled with water from the bay. Mr. Glass not only sprinkled the piazza, but the polished shoes of those who stood within his reach. Several of the ladies were missing during the christening ceremonies; their absence being accounted for later by a summons to the dining room of the Oregon, when an hour was passed partaking of all that one could wish for in the line of refreshments.

Later on, the younger element were in for more violent games than some of the older ones cared to indulge in, but they succeeded in getting up a fat man's foot race across the lawn, the prize being an exta dish of strawberries and cream.

There were five entries, and after much argument over rules, etc., they started, and such a start was never seen on a campus. Mr. Glass, who weighs two hundred and twenty, fell all over himself and Mr. Page from Somerville. That settled their chances for the strawberries, the remaining three struggled hard to win. Mr. Morris Welsh looked a sure winner with Mr. Muther a good second, but Dave Howe, the fifth man, put on a great spurt and won with Mr. Muther second.

More entertainment followed after which those who lived near by bid goodnight to mine host and hostess, while others remained over night.

Outing and Dinner.

At 11.45 A. M., today the Senate adjourned and upon invitation of Senator Joy, the entire body, with Gov. Crane, took a ride to Winchester, where they will lunch at the Calumet Club, and will be driven through the Middlesex Fells. On the return in the evening the company will dine with President George E. Smith at his home in Everett.

— Lightning played a strange freak recently in the barn of Marion Eubanks, living in Washington Township, northeast of Indianapolis. The bolt struck a fine horse standing in a stall and killed it. Between this horse and a large bull in another stall, four other horses were standing, feeding. The lightning skipped the four horses and killed the bull. From there it jumped outside and killed two hogs in the barnyard. The barn did not catch fire.

—Now St. Louis has been given a $5,000,000 university. Congratulations are in order, although it really seems as if this country had universities enough for all practical purposes.

A GIFTED WOMAN.

She Has Been Appointed Historian of French Explorers In America.

Mrs. Ida Preston Gibson of Chicago has received the appointment of historian of the French explorers in America. The office was bestowed upon Mrs. Gibson by the educational department of the Paris exposition. The writing allotted to this Chicago woman was bound and forwarded to Paris in time for the opening of the fair. Mrs. Gibson is one of the most brilliant women in Chicago. For years she has been noted in intellectual circles for her wit and charming literary style. She was among the first women lecturers of Chicago, having given a profound course in German literature over 20 years ago. This course was afterward repeated in Springfield, and it was attended there as here by men of culture as well as women. Mrs. Gibson has been active in the work of the Daughters of the Revolution since the formation of the society and has also contributed time and energy to furthering the movement to place a monument over the remains of Martha Washington. Ten years of travel and study abroad have made Mrs. Gibson familiar with German, French and Italian, all of which she speaks with great fluency. During her stay in Europe her associations were with the best society of diplomatic and court circles. This environment was improved to the utmost, and Mrs. Gibson's rare memory has kept for her and her friends incidents of life and manners in the most exclusive sets of Europe that have never crept into print. Mrs. Gibson's knowledge of the languages has made her sought for as a translator of foreign books. Besides translating for others she has also put a group of German and Italian fairy stories into English for the benefit of her children. The versatility of mind which made the acquisition of languages an easy achievement has enabled Mrs. Gibson to write a large number of dainty verses, which are soon to appear in book form. It is a singular fact that, while the writer is distinctly feminine in appearance and manner, these verses are written entirely from a man's standpoint.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Afternoon Tea.

A pretty decoration for a table from which the tea and chocolate are served at an afternoon reception is to have on all four corners large bows of white satin and white silvered gauze ribbons. The bows stand up, the ribbons being about four inches wide.

The ends of the ribbons run from corner to corner, crossing in the center. Where they cross is placed a large silver cut glass vase filled with white flowers and greenery, carnations and maidenhair, bride roses and asparagus vine, etc.

Vases may also be placed at the corner inside of the bows on the ribbon, and on each end are the silver urns for the tea and chocolate, the cream pitcher, the sugar bowl and cups. Marron glace, small cakes, fruit, glace, etc., are placed in silver dishes here and there.

The cakes should be frosted in white or green, this decoration and edibles being green, white and silver. Lettuce and pate de foie gras sandwiches if sandwiches are served carry out the color scheme.

From a Humble Beginning.

Ada Negri, the Italian poet, was born in abject poverty. Her mother worked in a factory, enduring great privations that Ada might be educated for a teacher. At 18 Ada went into the country to teach 70 or 80 poor children. There she lived in a room two flights up from a stable yard. Her window panes were of paper, and her most elegant piece of furniture was the box which contained her books. But when, at 22 years of age, she published her first volume of lyrics she at once became widely famous. She received from the magistrates of Florence the honorary stipend of 1,700 lire ($340) for a term of ten years and was called to the chair of literature in a seminary at Milan. About two years ago she married a rich manufacturer and gave up the public stipend. She has published two volumes of poems and is at work on a third. She has repaid her mother's sacrifices by the most tender affection and care.—Woman's Journal.

According to Cushing.

A well known lawyer of this city is president of a club of which his wife is a member. She also is president of a club known throughout the country and is thoroughly conversant, therefore, with parliamentary law. Considerable amusement was caused at a recent meeting of the "mixed" club by the president's wife objecting to his ruling on a certain point. An animated discussion ensued, and, perhaps fortunately for the future peace of the family, the lawyer was sustained.—New York Tribune.

Elisha Holbrook, a pioneer boot manufacturer, died suddenly at Holbrook on Tuesday, aged 73 years. He was one of the town assessors for many years, and a prominent citizen.

The House refused Tuesday by a vote of 106 to 84 to repeal the law authorizing the overtime employment of women and minors under certain conditions. The vote was on rejection and Representative Sprague voted yea.

The at-home of Rev. and Mrs. Walter Russell Breed at the parish house of Christ church, Tuesday evening, was attended by about 150. It was entirely informal. Miss Gertrude Jones and Miss Ethel Randall served frappe.

Miss Maud Chick, youngest daughter of O. D. Chick, was run into by an unknown bicyclist today at noon on Liberty street. The bicyclist rang his bell to avoid the collision, but did not wait to see whether the little girl was injured or not. Miss Chick escaped internal injuries but did not escape without a number of bruises and scratches.

Mrs Wilson Tisdale was on Monday elected vice president of the Servia club, composed of wives and daughters of the Ancients who visited London. Half the people in the world can not sleep well on a hot night. They roll and toss and get up in the morning fully as tired as when they go to bed.

Now it costs but a trifle to own one of our sanitary iron beds. They give a free circulation of air around the body, inviting sleep, something which is impossible to secure in the ancient high posted wooden bedstead.

These beds are cool, restful, absolutely clean, with no wooden corners where disease germs can lurk, and when fitted with one of our famous $5.00 Victor Mattresses, you own a bed with SLEEP ALWAYS ON TAP.

Yes, by all means own one of our iron beds, the sooner you do, the happier you will be.

CLASS TRIP BY WOLLASTON PUPILS.

Two of Party Write of the Journey to Historic Lexington and Concord and Their Attractions.

The outing of the pupils of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields schools to historic Lexington and Concord was as profitable as it was enjoyable, and older Ledger readers will be interested in write-ups of the journey and the spots visited, so well done by Miss Marjorie Fay and Miss Margaret Mills.

THE JOURNEY.

The pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Massachusetts Fields and Wollaston schools went with their teachers and principal on a class outing last Saturday.

We left Wollaston on the 8.30 train. Arriving in Boston we formed in line and marched across the city. At the North Union station an unpleasant surprise was awaiting us in the form of no special car. Mr. Finch was told by a burly conductor standing near the train that there was a mistake, no arrangements for a special car had been made. It was soon found that another picnic party occupied the car intended for us. At last all was satisfactorily arranged and we rushed in to get a good seat. We remained quiet while we were counted to be sure that none were missing. Then began a merry time with talk and laughter while we put lunch baskets and wraps in the racks. Soon the train started and the teachers distributed tickets. After a little over one-half hour's ride we reached Lexington, and leaving our wraps in the car we started out to see the historic places.

As soon as we arrived at the drinking fountain near the common, cups were produced and the thirsty crowd had a cool drink. This was repeated each time we passed a spring.

After spending an hour visiting points of historic interest, we returned to the station and boarded the cars for Concord. We had a pleasant ride and when we arrived at our destination we left the train to eat our dinner.

The boys pulled some logs to a shady place near the station and spreading our coat on the grass or logs we prepared for lunch. A brakeman who throughout the journey showed us many kindnesses brought us a keg of water and a boy was sent around with a supply. Instantly a cry of "Water-boy! Water-boy! come over here!" arose.

After our lunch we were arranged in grades and guided to many interesting places the description of which I will leave to my classmate.

Four hours were thus spent when we returned to the train. On our homeward trip we occupied two special cars. During the journey we discussed the interesting places we had seen and read about them in our guide books.

At the Wollsaton station three cheers were given for Mr. Finch and then we separated to go home and dream of drinking out of a watering-trough with Samuel Adam and John Hancock.

Marjorie Fay.

HISTORIC SITES.

My classmate has described the journey which brought us to Lexington about 9.15. This is a lovely little town so full of historic places that there is a monument, erected to commemorate some event, at nearly every turn in the road.

We first visited the common where the Americans faced the British early in the morning of April 19, 1775. On this common, which is particularly beautiful it is so smooth and green, are two monuments, one erected to the brave patriots who fell in the skirmish; the other a granite stone bearing the words of Capt. Parker, "stand your ground! Don't fire unless fired upon. But if they want to have a war, let it be in here!" John Harrington, in one of the first to fall mortally wounded, dragged himself across the common to his house where he died at his wife's feet.

The next place of interest was the Hancock-Clark houses, about a quarter of a mile's walk from the common

In this old house Samuel Adams and John Hancock were hiding when Paul Revere came dashing through the town on his memorable ride. In it are collected so many historic treasures, such as portraits painted long ago, spinning wheels and cradles two hundred years old, and beautiful old hangings that it is impossible for one to remember all of them.

After spending a short time in this house we went back to the train and started for Concord.

After our lunch we started out for the famous bridge where "The shot heard round the world" was fired. It is a lovely place and very picturesque with a monument on each side of it and the lovely Concord river flowing under it. A little farther on is the fine bronze statue called "The Minute Man."

On the way to the bridge we passed the "Od Manse." It is a large brown house with a fine lawn in front of it. In its day it was the only house around there which had two chimneys and was two stories high. In this house is the ghost chamber which suggested to Hawthorne several stories in "Mosses of the Old Manse."

We next wended our way to the "Sleepy Hollow Cemetery." It is a charming spot shaped very much like the ancient amphitheatres. In the centre is a small common and surrounding it on all sides the land slopes upward. On the ridge of the hill are the graves of the Alcotts, of Hawthorne, of Thoreau, and of Emerson, the latter having a beautiful pink quartz stone to mark his resting place.

It seems strange to me that such noted people have such inconspicuous monuments; for all the graves, excepting Emerson's, were marked by small white slabs of marble.

As soon as we had enjoyed this quiet spot to our heart's content we went back through the town, stopping to see the old Wright tavern, the site of the church in which the first Continental Congress was held, being presided over by John Hancock, the soldiers' monument and the old burying ground, to Emersons' house which is about a half a mile from the village. Everywhere in the town are beautiful elm trees which make it very attractive especially near Emersons' house. This is a large white house with many fine trees about it. From the street we could see the poet's study where many of his poems were written.

From here, those who were not too tired, went to Miss Alcott's house and the School of Philosophy. Miss Alcotts' house is unoccuped so we could not go into it but we wandered around it imagining that Jo and her sisters were playing there.

Next it is the "Wayside" where Hawthorne wrote many of his most noted books. Back of these houses is the favorite walk of Hawthorne.

After staying here a while we walked back through the village to the station where we took our train for home.

At the Wollaston station we separated to go to our homes having had, a very instructive and very pleasant day.

Margaret Mills.

Hebrew Club.

A meeting of the Hebrew Independent Educational club was held at South Quincy Monday evening. Mr. Litchman presided. The following officers were elected:

Chairman, Mayor Abrams.
Vice Chairman, Max Sorgman.
Treasurer, Henry Litchman.
Recording Secretary, John Bernan.
Financial Secretary, Hyman Friedberg.
Trustees, Hily Birger, Morris Litchman, Philip Finkelstein.
Guardian, Sam Castelman.

Remarks on the good of the club were made by Mr. Seven, Mr. Klein, Woolf Lubalsky and J. Levarich.

The officers will be installed next Monday evening at 137 Water street.

Saw the Point.

That Officer Barry shows no partiality in the discharge of his duty was shown this morning, when he read the ordinance relating to the obstructing of street crossings to Chief Ripley and ex-Chief Hayden. The two gentlemen, the latter in a carriage, stood talking in front of the Adams building, the carriage standing in such a way as to obstruct the street crossing. Officer Barry came along and after saluting, informed them that it was against the ordinances to obstruct the crossing. They saw the point and moved on.

Bridge Bill.

Again Thursday the Senate opposed amendments to the Quincy Point bridge bill. Senator Chamberlain of Plymouth earnestly sought to have a provision to permit other counties than Norfolk to be assessed for constructing the new bridge stricken out, but his amendment was rejected, 8 to 23, and the bill was engrossed.

BAD FOR CHILDREN.

Evil Effects of Educational Methods and Conditions.

A medical journal insists that the harm done to children by the present methods of education is of the most serious character. It maintains that the conditions of civilized life have completely changed within the last half century and the new situation must be met if a race better fitted to withstand the strain of modern existence is to be propagated. When children were brought up in the country, spending the greater part of their time in the fresh, open air, considerations as to physical development did not enter into the question. The environment being healthy and food plentiful and nutritious, the natural sequence was that the human product grew up hardy and robust, well equipped for the battle of life. The ever increasing tendency to desert the country for the town has placed a fresh problem before our scientific men and sanitarians. Children pass their youth amid unhealthy surroundings and in many instances are improperly and irregularly fed. Added to this is the undue strain of school life. The apparent aim of modern education is to develop the mind at the expense of the body. The necessity of exercise and fresh air as a part of a child's training is strangely overlooked. The physical education of the child is not a whit less important than the development of its mental side. An authority on the training of children says that ample playground space should be attached to schools wherever possible, and, above everything, young children should not be expected to work longer than two hours at a stretch. Dr. J. S. Lankford in a paper on this subject says that an ambition is imparted to the child by heredity and example to know everything, and if he has not the ambition the attempt is made to hammer everything into him. Regardless of aptitude or natural tendency of mind, the pupils are grouped in enormous classes, and all have the same adjustment of work. In the majority of cases the burden is too heavy, and just as surely as effect follows cause in natural law a still weaker generation will follow the generation of children which is now being weakened and unbalanced. Dr. Lankford adduces the careworn and broken down condition of teachers as an index to the heavy course and wrong classification of children's work. To insure the physical and mental well being of the rising generation considerable modifications in the existing system of education are necessary.

Do Plants Think?

"Do plants think?" said a St. Marys planter to the New York Journal. "Have they powers of reason or any way of determining what is going on around them? The questions seem rather fantastic, I admit, but they are prompted by some very curious observations made at my home only a few weeks ago. My daughter, who is very fond of flowers, has a morning glory vine growing in a box on her window ledge.

"While watering it recently she noticed a delicate tendril reaching out toward a nail in the side casing. She marked the position of the tendril in pencil on the wood and then shifted the nail about an inch lower. Next day the little feeler had deflected itself very noticeably and was again heading for the nail.

"The marking and shifting were repeated four or five times, always with the same result, and finally one night the tendril, which had grown considerably, managed to reach the coveted support, and we found it coiled tightly around it. Meanwhile another bunch of tendrils had been making for a hook that was formerly used for a thermometer. Just before it reached its destination my daughter strung a cord across the window sash directly above.

"It was a choice, then, between the old love and the new, and, as a morning glory seems to prefer a cord to anything else, it wasn't long in making up its mind. In a very few hours the pale, crisp, little tendrils — which, by the way, convey a surprising suggestion of human fingers—had commenced to lift toward the twine. Next day they reached it and took such a firm grip that I don't believe they could possibly have been disengaged without breaking the fiber."

Water Powers In Sweden.

Sweden, of all the countries of Europe, is perhaps most blessed with natural power. From the mountain streams at the head of every fiord a quantity of energy is available, the total being enormous. To this fact the Swedes are rapidly waking up, and imports of electrical machinery for the utilization of these water powers are growing with rapid increments. Electric railways are under contract at Trolhaettan, Gothenburg, Lund, Bjerrod and Joenkoeping. The electric automobile is also achieving considerable popularity in Sweden and other Scandinavian countries, the benzine and gasoline varieties of motor carriage being considered too noisy and far too evil smelling for those regions.

Migration of Birds.

In an article on "California Water Birds" in the proceedings of the California Academy of Sciences Mr. Loomis concludes that the shearwaters off Monterey find their position and shape their courses by landmarks and that birds possess no mysterious superhuman faculty for determining direction, or else these same shearwaters would not have been bewildered as they were in the fog. He also considers that the young are guided from the place of their birth to their winter abode through the experience of the older birds. He sums up by saying that bird migration is a habit evolved by education and inheritance, which owe their origin and perpetuation to winter, with its failure of food.

If your hands are rough, hard or chapped from the repeated washings necessary to keep them free from the office dirt, examine carefully the soap you use. If it is a cheap toilet soap, you will find that it is greasy, acrid and irritating.

Ivory Soap makes a profuse lather that removes the dirt and rinses easily, leaving the skin soft and clean.

If your office force is large there are two considerations that will recommend Ivory Soap to you. It is quick in action, saving time; and is inexpensive.

Send the office boy for some and try it.

Christian Scientists' Great Day.

Boston, June 6.—Except for the annual communion on Sunday, yesterday was the greatest day of the year for Christian Scientists. It was the occasion of the annual meeting. The meeting consisted of the singing of two hymns with brief opening exercises, then the reading of the regular church reports. After this came the voluntary reports from the members. The time for each was limited to two minutes, and they followed one another as fast as the members rising in their places could be recognized. Considerable enthusiasm was shown.

The Favorite Was Defeated.

New York, June 6.—Eddie Connolly won a well earned victory over Matty Matthews in a 25-round fight at 140 pounds at Coney Island last night. This was the fourth time that these men met in the ring. On two occasions the result was a draw, and Matthews got a decision the third time they met. Last night's fight was the best bout of the four and Connolly won all the way, giving Matthews a good drubbing without being once floored during the mill. Matthews was the favorite at 2 to 1.

GUERILLA WARFARE IN PHILIPPINES.

Americans Are Kept Busy In Routing Insurgents From Various Positions.

Manila, June 6.—Forty rifles, with artillery and a considerable quantity of ammunition, have been captured by the Americans in the mountains back of Dunalufihan. Three Filipinos were also taken.

The American scouts have destroyed the camp of General Mascardo. The natives report that Mascardo, with 200 men and 500 rifles, will surrender, if given assurances that he will not be imprisoned.

Monday, while scouting in the vicinity of Santo Tomas, two Americans were wounded.

Major Johnson, with two companies of the Twenty-ninth infantry and 25 men of the Eighteenth infantry, sailed from Romblom to the neighboring Island of Tablas, where they disembarked simultaneously in four columns, converging upon a central point.

The Americans encountered about 60 rebels, who retreated, and they captured 40, including all the officers, together with 10,000 rounds of ammunition and 24 rifles. Forty men, with a lieutenant, were left as a garrison, the others returning to Romblom.

Company E of the Thirty-fifth regiment and company G of the Fourth regiment encountered 50 insurgents behind stone trenches in the high mountains near Norzagaray. There was persistent fighting, and seven Americans were wounded. Finally company G, by a flanking movement, carried the trenches. Trumpeter Speaker has been commended for "determined bravery" by General Funston.

Troop G of the Fourth cavalry, C of the Thirty-fourth regiment and A of the Twenty-second regiment are pursuing the captors of Captain Roberts, who was taken by the Filipinos on May 29. It is reported that the Filipinos have separated among the trackless forests.

An investigation into the cause of the burning of Candaba has been ordered. It is alleged to have been done by drunken sailors.

Several local commercial houses recently received anonymous warnings that the Filipino crews of their coastwise steamers intended killing the white officials whenever a favorable opportunity arose. Consequently, the steamers are now running with armed European guards.

The members of the civil commission are now selecting offices and places of residence.

Senators In a Muss Over a Campaign Contribution.

Taunt and Challenge Between House Members For Political Advantage.

Washington, June 6.—A tornado of partisan debate swept over the senate yesterday, with Senators Hanna of Ohio, Pettigrew of South Dakota and Carter of Montana the chief figures. For sensational criminations and recriminations, for bitter personalities and for poignant invective the debate exceeded anything heard on the floor of the chamber for many years. The lie was not passed directly, but the truthfulness of statements was challenged very sharply.

Mr. Bacon precipitated the scene by repeating a charge made several days ago by Mr. Pettigrew that Mr. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder, had contributed $400,000 to the Republican campaign fund in 1892, with the understanding that he would be reimbursed by contracts for the construction of warships by the government. This charge, Mr. Bacon said, had been denied neither by Mr. Hanna, the present chairman of the Republican national committee, nor by Mr. Carter, who was chairman of the committee in 1892.

Then the storm broke. Mr. Hanna vigorously denied any knowledge of such a transaction and expressed his opinion that the charge was false.

Mr. Carter declared that Mr. Pettigrew's statement properly could be branded only as a lie.

Mr. Pettigrew not only reiterated the statement, but created a tremendous sensation by asserting that his authority was no less a person than Mr. Cramp himself, and that in a conversation with Mr. Carter that senator substantially had verified the story. He also attacked Mr. Hanna relative to his election to the senate.

Mr. Hanna replied in kind, and expressed doubt of the South Dakotan's sanity.

He was followed by Mr. Carter, who not only denounced the charges as figments of Mr. Pettigrew's imagination, but warned the Democratic side, who now were the associates of the Dakotan, that if they would "lie down with dogs they would get up with fleas."

Most of the day was given to conference reports and odds and ends of business preparatory to adjournment. A night session was held.

The senate in executive session confirmed all nominations sent in yesterday except that of J. S. Black to be postmaster at Butler, Pa. The nomination of General Wheeler to be brigadier general was confirmed.

The house entered the throes of dissolution and all day and all evening the circling galleries were crowded with spectators. The picturesque incidents were few. Partisan passion, running high in the face of the impending presidential campaign, broke out several times during the afternoon and hot words were bandied across the political aisle.

Mr. Hull of Iowa and Mr. Lentz of Ohio crossed swords, and later Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio and Mr. Gaines of Tennessee had a lively encounter. Throughout the day at every opportunity there was a play for political advantage and taunt and challenge were bandied back and forth. But all this was merely incidental to the work of crowding through the big supply bills which had the right of way.

During the interims between the consideration of conference reports members clamored like madmen in the wheat pit on a panic day for recognition for private bills upon which their present salvation might depend.

At the night session the galleries were thronged with gaily arrayed women, and the floor was a veritable bedlam. Hour after hour the conferees struggled on with their reports, the speaker, firm and resolute, steering the house through the turmoil and confusion. Toward midnight the galleries thinned out, but the tired legislators, with the prospects of an all-night session ahead, remained in their places, getting what comfort they could from the knowledge that today the end would come.

At 2:40 this morning the house took a recess until 10 a. m.

Burglars Not Yet Rounded Up.

Portland, Me., June 6.—The latest contribution in this vicinity to the burglary epidemic prevailing in Maine developed at Gorham. Attempts were made to break into the stores of John C. BRYAN'S NOMINATION FAVORED.

Empire State Democrats Will Support Platform of the Kansas City Convention.

New York, June 6.—The Democratic convention named for delegates-at-large to the national Democratic convention David B. Hill of Albany, Richard Croker of New York, Edward Murphy of Rensselaer and Augustus Van Wyck of Kings.

Alternates—Frank Campbell, Jacob Ruppert, Jr., C. M. Sanford and James Shevlin.

Electors-at-large—Frederick Cook of Rochester, Robert C. Titus of Buffalo.

The platform adopted contains no reaffirmation of the Chicago platform of 1896, but a declaration that the party in the state will support the platform of the Kansas City convention. The platform declares against war taxes in time of peace; declares for parity of gold and silver as currency; demands abolition of all custome and tariffs between Porto Rico and the United States; condemns trusts and monopolies and entangling alliances; demands just and liberal pension laws and election of United States senators by the people, and favors the nomination of W. J. Bryan.

The convention gave promise of being very stormy, but ended quietly. The particular feature of the convention was the domination of affairs by ex-Senator David B. Hill. The silver men profess to be satisfied with the result.

The Case of Mrs. Ruffin.

the wishes of this delegation to support the colored delegate, Mrs. Josephine Ruffin. The committee drew up a resolution of protest, which was sent to the board of directors, and which asked that the colored delegate be restored to her rights in the convention. It is possible the board will consider this matter today.

TRIBUTE.

Because my body turned a clod,
And death sat on this shrouding sod,
My soul rose upward, seeking God.

Oh, thou who makest time to fleet
Before thy holy judgment seat,
Lo, here I stand with muted feet!

In that far bower where roses spring
And little birds are choiring
I found no sacrifice to bring.

Only my heart, this bleeding spot—
By thee conceived, by thee begot—
Where worm of hunger dieth not.

Take it, oh, Lord, a scarlet stain
To set within thy robe of pain
And make thee dream of earth again.
—Alice Brown in Atlantic.

A LUCKY ASSIGNMENT.

BY A. E. BELL.

They were old friends and had accidentally met at the Pioneer Press club after a separation of more than a decade. After the experiences of each had been recounted at some length one of them related the following story to a coterie of newspaper men who were present:

"It was back in the eighties that I held a desk as city editor on the staff of the Pottsville (Pa.) Democrat. I had been working pretty hard, and my health was failing, so one day the chief advised me to take a month or two off, go into the country and recuperate. He further advised me that if I wished to take the vacation I would be placed on full pay on the condition that I write a letter each week which might be of interest to patrons of The Democrat.

"I had a friend located in a little town in Washington county who was engaged in the publication of a weekly paper, and I at once made up my mind to go down and pay him a visit.

"I arrived at my destination in good time and was effusively welcomed by my friend and his estimable young wife and made to feel at home immediately.

"I lounged about the town, which had a population of about 1,500 souls, and struck up quite a large acquaintance within a short time.

"One morning, after I had been there probably a week, I sauntered into the office of my friend and found him in a dreadful stew. His local man had taken suddenly ill, and there was no one else who could take an assignment that had been mapped out for that day's work.

"It seems that a man named Barron had died at his home, about five miles from town, and, as his father had been a man of wealth and he had gained considerable notoriety as a local character, it was deemed a good idea to get an extended obituary of the deceased Barron. The man owned property in the mountains of a township that had been named after his father and was somewhat difficult of access.

"I was feeling well that morning and, thinking a trip in the country would do me good, offered myself as 'sub' on the occasion.

"The offer was eagerly accepted, and within a short time I was en route in a buggy for the scene, which was destined to prove a lucky assignment, although I was not aware of the fact.

"By making numerous detours and inquiries from each person I met I was able to reach the Barron home. It was located between mountains which formed a bowl shaped depression about the house, which could be reached only by a narrow pass.

"'What an excellent location for a robbers' rendezvous,' I thought as I passed along the narrow lane. 'Here a handful of men could withstand a regiment of soldiers.' I drove up to the log cabin, which was built against the side of the mountain in the farthest corner of the depression, and stopped. A half dozen dirty looking children were playing about the doorway, and they all dropped their play the instant they caught sight of me and ran inside the hut.

"I walked leisurely to the door, which stood wide open, and rapped. A sharp featured woman made her appearance after I had waited a few moments, and I stated the purpose of my visit.

"I was invited in, and a chair was pushed forward for my use.

"The woman disappeared through a low door at the rear of the hut, and I took the opportunity of making a few observations of my surroundings. The hut was furnished with a couple of beds, a rusty cook stove and a rickety old table, and everything denoted poverty.

"The woman returned by the time I had taken a look around and was followed by a middle aged man with as villainous a countenance as you would care to see. He was a younger brother of the deceased, and he began to give me some facts regarding the life of the man whose obituary I was to obtain.

"While I was taking notes another man came in and when I was through with the task in hand took a look around the hut. As quickly as my eyes fell upon the third person it struck me that I had seen him somewhere. He was of rather nice appearance, had a sandy mustache and was well dressed. I had surely seen him at some previous time and, with an object in view, inquired if that was a son of the deceased. I was gratified to know that his name was Barron also, for at that very moment it flashed upon me that I had seen him in police court in Pottsville only a few weeks before under arrest for passing bogus money.

"I began to make some inquiries of him, and he told me that he was employed in Pottsville and was at home for the funeral of his father and intended going back to his work the next day.

"Having nothing else to detain me, I took leave of the people and started back to town. I drove slowly down the road, and once I had an occasion to turn and look back at the cabin. As I did so I saw the form of a man dodging along between the trees that skirted the hillside along the road. My suspicions were aroused at his strange actions, and I kept my weather eye in his direction until I got safely out upon the highway, where I lost sight of him. A brisk drive soon landed me back at the office of my friend, who greatly praised my obituary.

"I did his local work several days longer, and when his assistant had fully recovered from his illness I resigned and returned to Pottsville in much better spirits than when I had left it a month before.

"The next day I took up my routine assignment, and at the morning session of the police court what was my astonishment to see in the prisoner's dock the very same young man whom I had met among the mountains.

"I at once became deeply interested in his case. He was charged with passing counterfeit coin, the same charge on which he was arrested several months before. His honor concluded, in view of the serious charge and the fact that it was for the second offense, to hold him for further investigation.

"During the previous six months Pottsville had been flooded with bogus money, and the authorities had offered a reward for the makers and shovers of the queer. Young Barron had been twice accused of passing the money, but each time he told such a plausible story that the officials were loath to believe him responsible for the whole matter. The situation was becoming alarming. Detectives had been employed, but they were as much at sea as the local officers. As a last resort a reward of $1,000 was offered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders. When no results came of the work that was being done toward clearing up the matter and the bogus stuff continued to circulate, it was considered advisable to raise the reward, which was accordingly increased to $1,500.

"This was the status of affairs on my return from my vacation.

"I began to do a little detective work on my own account. The sum of $1,500 was a snug one, and I began to make deductions, with the prisoner, Barron, as a starting point.

"I looked back over the trail that I had covered a few weeks before—the location of the Barron home in Washington county, the situation of the old hut in the bowl shaped depression among the lofty mountains, the one room in the hut with a rear door. What was behind the portals of that rear door?

"Then my imagination came into play, and I thought what an excellent place for a counterfeiter's den could be under the mountain, with the hut as a shield.

"Well, to make a long story short, I told the mayor of my suspicions, and asked for a detail of four men from the force, to go down into Washington county and investigate. He only laughed at me, until I made things so plain that he was carried away with enthusiasm over the plausibility of the whole thing and ordered four policemen in citizens' clothes to accompany me to the spot and make a thorough investigation.

"We arrived at our rendezvous one evening, having each one gone individually, so as not to arouse any suspicion as to our object, and left after nightfall for the Barron home.

"We reached a point about a mile from the narrow lane, at daybreak, tied up our rigs and started on foot for the hut. We were not long in reaching the place, and a vigorous rapping brought the sharp featured woman to the door. She was rendered speechless with fright at the sight of five strangers at the door. She was invited to come outside and keep quiet. Our next point was the door at the rear. We cautiously pushed this open, and the sight that we encountered was one that I will never forget.

"Six men and two or three boys were busily engaged about a sweltering furnace, with a full set of molds, each at his particular work. On the floor was a large quantity of both gold and silver coins, of dollars and eagles, half eagles and double eagles.

"We captured the gang without a struggle and also took charge of the outfit, which, by the way, was one of the most complete that ever was seen outside the United States mint. At the subsequent trial the entire gang, including young Barron, were given strong terms in the penitentiary. I received the $1,500 reward, which I made very good use of."—Newspaperdom.

Conscience or Policy?

A certain fond mother of Memphis is worrying herself over an incident which occurred a few days since. She is trying to decide whether her 4-year-old son, who figured so prominently in the incident, made a display of deep penitence or whether he worked a "con" game on her. Some time ago the boy in the case was presented with a toy hammer, which he appreciated very much. He appeared before his mother about 30 minutes after receiving the hammer, wearing a woebegone expression.

"Mamma," he said, "I feels awful bad."

"Why, what is the matter, my son?" asked his mother.

"I feels bad right here, mamma," the lad answered, putting his hand on his heart.

"Well, tell mamma what it is, son."

"I feels like I do when you are going to whip me." He was whimpering by now, and his mother was so sorry for him that the tears were welling up into her eyes.

"What have you done, darling?"

"I've hammered a hole in your bedstead," he said and burst into tears.

He was not whipped, but his mother is wondering whether he will be a preacher or a "wise gazabo."—Memphis Scimitar.

TELEGRAPHIC.

3 O'CLOCK.

NOT YET ADJOURNED.

Plenty of Excitement Furnished In Both Branches of Congress.

Cannon Pitches Into Conferees In the House.

Senate Makes a Vain Effort to Dispose of the Armor Plate Question.

Washington, June 7.—When the house, at 10:30 last night, took a recess until 10 o'clock this morning, the two chambers of the national legislature were in a desperate struggle over the item in the naval appropriation bill relating to ocean surveys. The final adjournment of congress is postponed until it is over.

The proceedings in the house during the day were tame. This was partly due to the fact that the firm position taken by the house on the armor plate provision transferred the fight to the floor of the senate, and to the obstinate refusal of Mr. Lentz, an Ohio Democrat, to permit any unanimous consent legislation suntil the Republican leader agreed to allow the testimony in the Couer D'Alene investigation to be printed. Except for privileged matters things legislative were practically at a standstill.

But last night there was enough excitement to compensate for the dullness of the day. The house got its dander up over the failure of its conferees to abide by their instructions on the ocean survey item, and after an exceedingly sensational debate, in which Mr. Cannon, the chairman of the appropriations committee, made some startling disclosures as to the manner in which Commander Todd, the hydrographer of the navy, had waged his campaign against the stand taken by the house in favor of the coast and geogetic survey doing ocean survey work. The house rejected the conference report by an overwhelming majority, and the speaker took the almost unprecedented course of appointing new conferees on the part of the house who are not members of the naval committee.

The debate was one of the bitterest and most heated of the session. Mr Cannon, in the excitement of the moment, took off his collar and necktie, and, with sleeves rolled up, aroused the house to a tremendous pitch of enthusiasm as he dealt the conferees sledgehammer blows. The crowded galleries loudly cheered him.

The conferees defended their course, and Mr. Foss, acting chairman of the committee, resented with bitter language the charge that he had betrayed the house. Hot words were bandied back and forth, but the house was resolved to fight the senate to a finish. The appointment, as conferees, of Mr. Cannon, Mr. Moody and Mr. Shafroth, all of whom are in sympathy with the house's position, assures no surrender on their part until the house itself shall direct them to yield.

Inability to reach an agreement upon the naval appropriation bill forced the senate to abandon the adoption of the house resolution for final adjournment. The armor plate question, which for five years has been a thorn in the side of congress, upset the calculations of the senate leaders and their well laid plans went awry.

It was a day of strife and turmoil in the senate. Early in the day the conferees on the naval bill reported a disagreement, and the senate was told plainly that the house would not consent to the amendment providing for an armor plate factory, to be operated by the government. A compromise proposition was presented by Mr. Penrose, and after hours of debate finally was adopted by a vote of 39 to 25. The discussion of the proposition developed unusual bitterness of feeling, and charges of robbery and political corruption were hurled about the chamber with a n abandon which, if they had not fallen from the lips of grave senators, would have been regarded as reckless. Little worse ever was heard in the heat of a political campaign.

Three o'clock, the hour agreed upon for final adjournment, was passed, and still the senate wrestled with the armor question. When the Penrose proposition finally was agreed to it was supposed the way was clear, but late last night another disagreement was reported on the naval bill, and the senate took an adjournment until 11 o'clock today.

The evening session presented a brilliant scene, the galleries being thronged with a gay and fashionable assemblage. All were immensely entertained, as Senators Carter, Mason, Turner and Money kept the senate on edge with rattling political speeches.

Memorial Church Consecrated.

Swansea, Mass., June 7.—Christ Memorial church, built as a memorial to the late Frank S. Stevens of this town, was consecrated yesterday. The services began with a procession of Episcopal clergymen. Rev. Herman Page, acting for Bishop Lawrence, accepted the building from the trustees, and Bishop Lawrence afterwards administered confirmation to many new members of the church, following with the consecration sermon. The church cost $25,000.

A MATTER OF GUESSWORK.

No Positive Evidence That Aguinaldo Was Shot—Native Officials Are Untrustworthy.

Manila, June 7.—Major March's men returned to Candon on June 4 by steamer from Aparri. A majority of the men are ready for the hospital. They are thin and weak, having traveled 250 miles in the mountains, during which they suffered greatly from hunger.

The battalion practically collapsed at Piat, 30 miles from Tuguearao, as the result of fevers and exhaustion. Eighty-seven of the men were conveyed from Piat to Tugueraro in bull carts, and those falling out on the way there were carried in litters by the igorrotis with the column.

The officers accompanying Major March were Captains Jenkinson and Davis, Lieutenants Power and Case and Dr. Greenwalt, assistant surgeon. They say it is all guesswork as to whether Aguinaldo was shot. Before the Americans struck Sagat the insurgent chief divided his forces into parties of 10, following different trails. The officer shot was perhaps Aguinaldo's secretary or adjutant. The report among the natives of the region is that Aguinaldo was wounded in the shoulder.

The papers secured show that nearly all the presidents installed by the Americans in General Young's territory are treacherous and have been making regular reports to Aguinaldo of the disposition and movements of the American troops, and they have been collecting and forwarding taxes. The captured papers also prove the disloyalty of the native telegraph operators whom the Americans retained on the Cayagan Valley line. When Tirona surrendered the Filipino forces in that section these operators professed loyalty and took the oath of allegiance. But it is now shown that they had been sending Aguinaldo copies of important telegrams exchanged between the American officials.

Letters were also found relating to large contributions forwarded to Aguinaldo from Spanish and other foreign business men.

A National Negro Party.

Philadelphia, June 7.—The first step towards the permanent organization of a national negro party was taken in this city yesterday. A large number of colored citizens from all parts of the country, including bishops, ministers, editors and lawyers, met and decided to place a presidential ticket in the field with negro candidates. The purpose of this organization is to bring together the negro vote in each and every state of the Union, and to nominate candidates for state and congressional offices. An executive committee has been appointed to draw up a call for a convention and see to the distribution of circulars outlining the reasons for the formation of a national negro party.

The Hague Conference Criticized.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., June 7.—The Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration began its sixth annual meeting here yesterday. There are about 150 delegates present. A resolution was adopted limiting the discussion strictly to the subject of international arbitration. Frederick W. Holls, who was secretary to the American delegates at The Hague conference, in an address said that the atmosphere at The Hague was laden with cynicism, passimism and the spirit of hopelessness. He was of the opinion that appeals to nations to disarm were premature and not calculated to help the cause of arbitration.

Torpedo Boat Badly Damaged.

Newport, R. I., June 7.—The torpedo boat Dupont entered the harbor Wednesday at a high rate of speed. When she was approaching her slip at the torpedo stage for some reason the signal to the engineer to reverse the engine did not sound. The boat crashed into the granite abutment at the entrance of the pier and the bow of the boat was crushed in and the plates ripped off for a distance of about nine feet, opening a large hole. No information as to the real cause of the accident could be secured at the torpedo station.

A Victory For Steuenberg.

Lewiston, Ida., June 7.—The forces of Governor Steuenberg triumphed yesterday in the state Democratic convention by seating the contesting delegation from Shoshone county, friendly to the governor. The result is a practical endorsement of Governor Steuenberg's administration in the Couer D'Alene trouble. The resolutions endorse Bryan for president.

Five Victims of Premature Explosion.

Halifax, June 7.—Five men were seriously injured at North Sydney, C. B., while celebrating the capture of Pretoria. They were setting off a giant firecracker, which exploded prematurely. One man had two fingers blown completely off, another had his left arm shattered and three others received severe injuries about the face and body.

A Contribution to History.

London, June 7.—The Athens correspondent of The Daily Express says the researches of Captain Dousmanis show that the great battle, fought in 48 B. C., between Julius Caesar and Pompey, which has been supposed to have occurred in the neighborhood of the Thessalian city, Pharsala, took place near the modern Karditsa, 50 miles nothwest.

Frenchmen Call It Chickenpox.

Manchester, N. H., June 7.—There are no new developments in the smallpox situation. The houses in which the disease originated are strictly quarantined and the police are watching them. The French doctors met last night and called the epidemic that of chickenpox.

Government Forces Defeated.

Caracas, June 7.—After 13 days of fighting, the Colombian revolutionists have routed the government forces near Bucaramanga, capturing a number of prisoners, including General Penasolano.

TO CRUSH MAIN ARMY.

Objective Point In Roberts' Next Move Against the Enemy.

Active Preparations For Beginning Long Chase.

Foreigners Have Hustled Out of Pretoria—Both Sides Passive at Laing's Nek.

London, June 7.—Lord Roberts states that few of his cavalry and infantry took part in the formal occupation of the town, "owing to their having been on duty at some distance around the town." This will be interpreted to mean that Lord Roberts is continuing his effort to accomplish his great objective—the crushing of the main Boer army. The withdrawal of the Boers from Pretoria, whatever the motive behind it, will not change his plans. He will still maneuver to capture armies as well as places. His real movements are veiled in the dispatches by generalities, but the incidental references to the several divisions indicate that an extended cooperative movement, having no close relation to Pretoria, is in progress.

For a day or two the tired troops of Lord Roberts are resting, and he is filling the magazines and warehouses at his new base, Pretoria, preparatory to a long chase after the retiring Boers in the direction of Lydenburg. His cavalry are probably seeking to intercept Commandant General Botha.

That Pretoria would be defended was apparently given out after the council of war, with a view of misleading the British. Lydenburg, the district into which the provisions originally destined for Pretoria have been diverted, and where a cartridge factory has been erected and reserve supplies of all sorts are stored, is a volcanic region of fertile valleys, enclosed by great ramparts of precipitous rock, penetrated by narrow, winding passes. There are herds of cattle in the valleys, and there is much native labor available for fortifying.

The Boers used both heavy and light artillery at Pretoria.

What is supposed to have been the last train out of Pretoria arrived at Lourenzo Marquez Sunday evening. The passengers included a number of foreign volunteers, who were leaving the Boers, and also the wives and children of Hollanders. They described Pretoria as destitute of food and clothing. What the Boer officials could not take the natives and townspeople did.

Probably the most important Boer army is at Laing's Nek, where both sides are passive. General Rundle and General Brabant have withdrawn a little southward.

General Baden-Powell has extended martial law to the Marico and North Lichtenberg departments. Shots were exchanged between Boer and British patrols 18 miles east of Mafeking on May 28. Part of the forces lately at Pretoria are reported to have gone westward to meet General Baden-Powell and to make a show of holding the country through which he and General Hunter are moving.

It is understood at Newcastle that the British government has approached the Natal government with a proposition that Natal should voluntarily renounce local self-government for a time in order that a general system of crown government may be instituted for all South Africa, leading in the course of time to federation and the subsequent autonomy of the various states simultaneously.

Lourenzo Marquez correspondents attach significance to the number of British warships in Delagoa Bay, suggesting that they are there possibly in anticipation of aiding the Portuguese in the event of disturbances on the Transvaal border.

There is a strong feeling throughout the country that striking honors should be conferred immediately upon Lord Roberts without waiting until he returns to England.

Sensational Case In a Vermont Town.

Fairfax, Vt., June 7.—Mabel E. Hull, an unusually bright and attractive young lady of Fairfax, is charged with having given birth to a child, and, with her parents, Henry Hull and wife, is charged with suppressing the fact of the birth and burying the body without a permit from the town authorities. The case was called in court yesterday, but was postponed until tomorrow, without any evidence being presented.

Gomez Predicts Absolute Independence.

Havana, June 7.—A mass meeting and procession was held here in honor of General Maximo Gomez, and were a great success. Several thousand persons were in the parade, which included four bands of music and a long torchlight procession. General Gomez made a short address, in which he said that the people could rest assured that their wishes for absolute independence would soon be gratified.

French-Canadians Take Strikers' Places.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 7.—Eighteen French-Canadian weavers have reported for work at the Lorraine mills. They were not molested when they left the mill Wednesday night, but just before they arrived at their boarding places a crowd of boys threw stones and hooted at them.

Good Afternoon.

Chief-of-Police Pierce, of Milton, deserves great credit for the manner in which he prepared and handled the government's case against Mrs. Buckner, who was tried this morning for murder. Seldom has a case been better presented. Everything to bring to light the true facts was done and withal, without malice to the unfortunate defendant. There was no jar between the counsel on the case, and so clear and concise was the evidence that there was little need of cross-examination of the witnesses. Nothing detrimental to the woman's character was said, and the evidence tended so show that, persecuted beyond all endurance, the awful act had been done, as she believed to save her own life.

It is quite a curiosity, in fact almost worth the face of it as a souvenir of the banking customs when Lynn was under a town government A gentleman well versed in these matters assures us that the bank also issued a $4 one, but their circulation was limited. With one, two, three and five dollar notes in use, all required combinations can be made, and when the national bank system came into operation the government decided that the $3 bill was superfluous, and it was not put into circulation.—Lynn Item.

☞ Washington has not seen in many years as prompt and vigorous official action as that which followed the discovery of the Cuban post-office frauds. The country has no need to fear that the administration will pass lightly over this matter, nor will the Democrats be able to obtain much campaign thunder from the manner in which it is being handled. The fact that the men who were charged with these crimes were men who had always been looked upon as of the highest integrity has not reduced the vigor with which every agency of the government has been set to work to bring every guilty man to justice.—Beverly Times.

A DUMMY ENGINE.

Assisting in the Work at the New Ship Yard.

Activity continues to reign at the plant of the Eastern Dock and Construction Co. Apparently the work of construction does not progress rapidly but taking into consideration the nature of the work being done, it is noticeable from week to week.

The foundations at the blacksmith shop for the three large trip hammers are well along, and part of them are completed. At the machine and steel buildings, another week, some of the woodwork will be commenced.

Last Sunday morning a lighter brought a dummy locomotive, which was run ashore on a track built on a tressle over the water. Tracks are being laid from the waters edge to other parts of the plant, and freight and other material arriving by water will be readily transported where wanted.

On the north side of the plant there is a considerable amount of filling to be done, and the locomotive will be used at present in hauling dump cars from where excavations are being made to the place where the fill is to be made. Quite a section of the track has already been laid and this new acquisition will be actively at work in a few days.

The run where the keel for the new cruisers Des Moines will be laid, is nearly completed, and it is only a matter of days before the keel of the first ship of war ever built in Quincy will be laid. It will be an important event for Quincy, as it marks a new era in its progress.

The center of interest now for the many visitors is at the extreme eastern end of the plant. Here the dredgers are at work on the channel. Perhaps the most interesting thing at this point now is the pile driver. This machine arrived Tuesday and went to work immediately driving the piles for the wharf, which is to extend around two sides of the plant. The heavy planking for this wharf is arriving by lighters every day, and, as soon as a section of piling has been placed, work will be commenced by the carpenters on the wharves. There is one commendable thing in regard to the work being done at this plant, and that is that the men are for the most part citizens of Quincy which only goes to show that the company do not believe in employing contract labor.

PECULIAR FIRE.

Blaze in Load of Furniture Bound for Houghs Neck.

Four Brockton families, who started furniture for their summer cottages at Houghs Neck Wednesday, are today mourning its loss. The furniture was loaded into a two horse wagon, driven by J. P. Lewis. Everything went all right until he was within a quarter mile of his destination, when he discovered that his load was on fire. He drove to the beach where his load was dumped and an effort made to extinguish the flames. The fire had made good headway by this time and Mr. Lewis did his best to extinguish the fire with a bucket. In this he succeeded but not before the furniture had been ruined. Mr. Lewis also burned his hands quite badly in his effort to extinguish the flames. The fire is supposed to have started from a lot of matches under the seat. The owners of the furniture could not be learned.

No Pierce Boodle.

Dr. Pierce congressional candidate in the 10th district asked by the Boston Advertiser concerning the talk of "boodle" at the Essex Hotel meeting in Boston, said:

"I know very little about it. The talk of 'how much money there is in it, was sprung on the meeting, I am told, by 2 or 3 individuals, and the publicity given the matter has hurt them rather than me, especially as they were not my supporters.

"Of course you understand I was not at that meeting. I was asked by some of my supporters to be at the U. S. Hotel to meet them after the Essex Hotel meeting, and it was then that I first met the delegates.

"I have only this to say on the matter:—Our committee will meet all legitimate expenses.

"But any man who is following me as a bounty-seeker had better turn in his tracks at once. I shall consider myself well rid of him. There is no "bar" to be opened, and no "boodle" to be dispensed. That's all I've got to say."

In spite of this, she cleared a profit of $50 per cow last year.

Wollaston Bowlers Show Cochato Club How to Do It.

Wednesday evening was the date set for a friendly candlepin game between the Merrymount club of Wollaston and the Cochato club of Braintree at the pretty home of the latter.

The Merrymount team accompanied by members of the club and ladies left Wollaston on the 7.15 train for Braintree arriving at the Cochato club about 7.30.

After a thorough inspection of the rooms of the club, all repaired to the alleys where after a little warming up practice on the part of the teams, the match was commenced.

Mr. H. O. Fairbanks rolled off for the Merrymounts, and Mr. Stanley Hollis for the Cochatos, and it was soon evident that the first string at least would be a close one. The Cochato team led down to the ninth box, and but for Lyman's nineteen spare in the tenth, would have won the string; as it was, the first game went to the Merrymounts by one pin.

In the second game the Merrymounts took the lead for the start and held it through to the end of the string, finishing fourteen pins to the good.

The third string was much the same as the second, the Merrymounts winning out by forty-three pins, making the match three straight with a flattering total of 1,346 against 1,289. The feature of the game was Lyman's bowling, he finishing with a total of 300, a record breaker for the alleys.

The following is the score:

MERRYMOUNT CLUB.

	1	2	3	Total
Fairbanks,	80	83	102	265
Lyman,	101	111	88	300

				1288

After the game light refreshments were served, followed by friendly games of pool and billiard until train time when the visitors departed pronouncing the evening one of the most enjoyable of the season.

The Cochato club has as pleasant a club house as can be found anywhere in the State and are certainly royal entertainers.

It is expected that a return match will be bowled at the alleys of the Merrymount club sometime during the following week.

THE Q & B ALONE.

It Still Continues As an Individual Company.

The following from the financial columns of the Globe will be of local interest. It shows that the Quincy & Boston street railway, although controlled by the Massachusetts Electric Company, is still an individual company:

The 36 properties of the Massachusetts electric companies, with a total mileage of 759 miles, have now been combined into 13 companies, and this number will probably later be reduced to seven or eight companies. The properties have been combined at present as follows:

Lynn & Boston—Lynn & Boston; Rockport; Gloucester; Gloucester & Rockport; Gloucester, Essex & Beverly; Beverly & Danvers; Reading & Lowell; Salem & Wakefield; Wakefield & Stoneham; Woburn & Reading; Mystic Valley.

Brockton— Brockton & Boston, Milton & Brockton; Braintree; Brockton & East Bridgewater; Brockton; Bridgewater & Taunton; Taunton & Brockton.

West Roxbury & Roslindale—West Roxbury & Roslindale; Needham; Norfolk Central; Norfolk Surburban.

Globe—Globe, of Fall River; Dighton, Somerset & Swasea; Dighton Rock Park Corporation.

Newport & Fall River; *Newport Illuminating; Newport.

Individual companies — North Woburn; Taunton; Hyde park; Quincy and Boston; Nashua; Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill; Lowell Suburban; New Bedford, Middleboro & Brockton; South Shore & Boston.

*The consolidation of the three Newport companies has not taken place as yet, but a bill permitting the consolidation has passed the Rhode Island legislature.

When the Lowell & Suburban becomes an integral part of of the company it will probably be consolidated with the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill.

WOMAN HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Mrs. Buckner of Milton Goes to Dedham to Await Action of the Grand Jury.

Emma Buckner, who killed her husband at Milton, Monday, by stabbing him with a knife, was given a hearing before Judge Humphrey this morning.

District Attorney Harris conducted the case for the government and J. J. McAnarney appeared for Mrs. Buckner.

The complaint against her for murder was dismissed for want of prosecution, and she was arraigned upon the charge of manslaughter, upon which she was given a hearing.

The first witness was Lizzie Child, who lived near the Buckners. She testified to hearing cries at the Buckner house and to hearing Lewis cry out, "Lizzie run for a doctor, Emma has stabbed me."

Samuel O. Hibbard driver of the steamer, testified that Mrs. Buckner came to the engine house and said she had cut her husband with a knife but did not know how bad and wanted witness to go back with her. On the way back she said they had had a quarrel, that he had assaulted and kicked her, and to save her own life she had cut him. He found Buckner on the floor. He spoke to him but got no answer. He was alive then, and lived about eighteen minutes. Deputy Superintendent of Police McDermitt testified to conversation with Mrs. Buckner, in which she had told him that she had a quarrel with Lewis the day before about Mrs. Child. On Monday he came home to supper and she went up to him and put her arms about him and said, Lewis give me a kiss. At that he struck her with his fist knocking her across the room. She ran into the front room and he followed her striking her with his fist. She tried to defend herself. "He said, "I am going to kill you." I said keep away, or I will cut you. She was in a delicate condition and she cut him to save her own life.

Dr. Eugene C. Wiley and Medical Examiner Steadman testified as to the wounds, and to the autopsy. Dr. Wiley also testified to bruises found on Mrs. Buckner.

Corobrative testimony was also given by Chief of Police Pierce and the Civil Engineer who made drawings of the premises.

The defence offered no testimony and Mrs. Buckner was held in $2,000 for the grand jury.

Louis Whicher Loses Suit.

In the suit brought by L. E. Whicher vs. B. & A. R. R. and the Wagner Palace Car Co., to recover for the loss of a travelling bag, and contents, and the court holds that inasmuch as plaintiff retained custody of the bag, and as its loss was not due to the negligence, or misconduct of the servants of defendants, he cannot recover. The court says that the superior court rightly ruled that a jury should return a verdict for the railroad co., and erroneously allowed the case to go the jury, as against the Palace Car Co. Accordingly the verdict of $75 awarded to plaintiff does not stand. Plaintiff was travelling from Chicago to Boston, and changed cars at Albany. He entered a palace car taking his bag with him. Suit was brought against the car co. because it retains the internal management of its cars.

Perkins—Adams.

Miss Louisa Adams of Lincoln and Mr. T. N. Perkins of Westwood were married at 12.45 on Wednesday at the Episcopal church in Lincoln by the Rev. H. C. Cunningham, the rector. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams formerly of Quincy.

The bridemaids were Miss E. O. Adams, a sister of the bride, and Miss Abigail Adams of Quincy, a cousin of the bride. The best man was Mr. J. H. Perkins of Westwood, a brother of the bridgroom.

The ushers were Mr. L. M. Stockton, Mr. William Amory, 2d, Mr. Lawrence Brooks, Mr. R. S. Barlow, of Boston, Mr. Nicholas Langforth of Cincinnati, Mr. O. F. Winthrop of New York, Mr. W. C. Forbes, of Westwood, and Mr. Henry Adams of Lincoln.

The bride's gown was of rich ivory satin cut en princesse, point applique corsage and sleeves. She wore a veil caught up with diamonds and carried bride roses.

The church was thronged with friends of the young people, the social circles of Boston, New York, Newport and Philadelphia being represented in large numbers.

About 400 attended the reception, a special train being run from Boston by the Fitchburg road for their accommodation.

The young couple left on a bridal trip and on their return will reside in Westwood.

TWO IDEAS IN ONE

A WINDOW GUARD THAT KEEPS FLIES OUT AND BABIES IN.

The subject of the illustration presented herewith is a guard which can be applied to any vertically sliding window, which is attached to and moves with the lower sash and which is so constructed that it can be readily opened whenever it may be desired. The primary purpose of the guard is to provide means for preventing children from falling out of the window, says The Scientific American.

In the construction of the window guard lazy tongs are employed, carried by a frame which is screwed to the lower sash. The sill of the window is provided with a slot communicating with an opening into which the lazy tongs and their frame can pass when the window is closed.

It is evident that when the lower sash is raised the lazy tongs guard is likewise raised to cover the open space, and that, when the sash is lowered, the guard is likewise lowered, as the dotted lines of our engraving show. When the guard is in its uppermost position, the lower bar completely fills the slot, so as to prevent the accumulation of dust.

COMBINED WINDOW GUARD AND FLY SCREEN.

Most window guards are defective, in so far as no means are provided for removing the guard in case of fire. The objection has been very simply overcome in the device under consideration. The lazy tongs are pivoted to one side bar of their frame and are adapted to be secured to the other side bar by means of a hook and keeper. By releasing the hook the lazy tongs can be folded together so as to leave an unobstructed passage. The construction, therefore, does not interfere with the closing of the shutters.

In connection with the guard a fly screen is employed, which is attached to the upper and lower bars of the lazy tongs frame. The fly screen is constructed so that it can be readily raised and lowered independently of the sash and is provided with a catch engaging the upper bar of the guard frame, by means of which catch it is held in raised position. The fly screen and guard can be used either separately or together. The device is also applicable to the windows of high speed railway trains.

Testing the Color Sense.

An improved lantern has been devised for testing the color sense of employees in the railway or marine service who use colored signals by night, says the Chicago Record. On the front of the lantern are two movable disks, the lower having five green and five red glasses of different shades—one yellow, one blue and one white glass. The upper disk has London smoke glass of three different shades and some clear openings. By rotating the disks by hand any of the colors can be shown, either alone or in combination with the smoke glass. Between the disks is a movable diaphragm which regulates the size of the colored area shown. Inside the lantern are two pieces of ground glass, which can be placed before the light when desired, giving the effect of a fog. There are two separate burners, so that two colors can be shown at the same time in contrast if necessary. In this way red and green, two reds or two greens of different shades, red and white, etc., can be shown at the same time, or any color can be shown by itself. Each glass has an illuminated number or letter, which can be seen by the person making the examination, but which is screened from the person tested. By this means a record can be kept of the color shown and a name given to it. It is claimed that this lantern will detect cases of defective color perception which are not discovered by the worsted test.

Ozone In Industry.

Ozone is now used for a number of industrial operations, and one of the most important is its application to the bleaching of yarns. A plant has recently been started in Silesia for this purpose, and it is likely to be followed by other works where cotton, wool and silk will be treated. Ozone bleaching is said to be superior to sulphur bleaching, as permanent whites are produced which do not disappear upon washing. There is also no injury done to the fabric by the process.

Veils and Red Noses.

O. Rosenbach has noticed that a great majority of the women who wear veils in winter had circumscribed areas of redness, generally at the point of the nose and cheeks.

June Magazines.

Gen. Charles King, who, as Captain King is known as one of the most popular novelist of the day, has achieved a new success in the Complete Novel published in the June "New Lippincott." "Ray's Daughter: a story of Manila." is second to none that he has written. The heroine is the daughter of "Billy Ray," famous among Captain Kings's past creations. She goes as a Red Cross nurse to the Philippines, where she is wooed by a gallant American volunteer, who has by no means an easy time of it, but whose perseverance bears fruit at last.

The June number of McClure's is particularly strong and varied in its contents, both as regards fiction and special articles. President Kruger of the South African republic is portrayed in an acute character-study by F. Edmund Garrett, who has had the advantage of personal contact with the remarkable Boer leader, and is thoroughly familiar with the political history of the Boers.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for June is a well-illustrated number. The important news topics of the month are editorially treated in "The Progress of the World," the opening department. A character sketch of James J. Hill, a Builder of the Northwest," is contributed by Mrs. Mary Harriman Severance, who outlives the remarkable career of the president of the Great Northern Railroad. Dr. Albert Shaw, the editor, writes from full knowledge on "Paris and the Exposition of 1900."

The opening pages of the New England Magazine for June are devoted to a critical estimates of the work of William Ordway Partridge, the sculptor. Mr. William Langdon, who writes this interesting article, treats his subject with true sympathy and understanding, praising discriminatingly Mr. Partridge's achievements, and dwelling upon the promise which they give that in fuller maturity of power he will find prominent place among our sculptors. Rev. Samuel J. Barrows takes the reader back to the mother country in his description of a visit to "The English Dorchester."

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

BUDS AND BLOSSOMS.

The new dark red rose, a hybrid tea rose, called "Liberty," is likely to prove a decided acquisition in rose culture.

If lilies of the valley fail to bloom as freely as they ought, it is very likely because they have run together and become too crowded. Thin out and give a little well decomposed compost as a top dressing.

A bed of nasturtiums planted in the spring and given but little care will keep the dining table not only with a center bouquet, but also with material for the salad bowl, from early June until late October.

Sunflowers make a very effective screen if properly managed. To shut off an unsightly building they are very useful, since they grow very tall in good soil, and, by planting the tallest sorts, with dwarf varieties in line before them, you can hide the stalks that are apt to get naked as they lengthen.

Admiral Told Stories to Children.

Hyde Park, Mass., June 7.—Admiral Sampson was given a great reception here Wednesday, on the occasion of being the guest of the local Y. M. C. A. In the evening two more receptions were given the admiral.

To Avoid Incurring Displeasure.

Berlin, June 6.—The Post, in a semi-official article, warns the German press against describing Anglo-American inquiries concerning the meat inspection bill as an unwarrantable intervention in home politics, because, it points out, such an attack is calculated to provoke reprisals. The Neuste Nachricten also remarks that Germany is not in a position to ignore these foreign representations.

SUM OF $709,729,476.

Estimated Appropriations of First Session of Fifty-Sixth Congress.

Larger Sum Than Ordinary Needed For Year of 1901.

Senate and House Chairmen Give a Word of Explanation Regarding the Matter.

Washington, June 7.—A carefully prepared statement of the appropriations of the session was made last night by Senator Allison, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, and Senator Cannon of the house committee on appropriations. The statement says:

"The appropriations made by the first session of the Fifty-sixth congress amount to $709,729,476. This sum includes $131,247,155, estimated to be on account of, or incident to, the late war with Spain, and deducting it, the remaining amount, $578,482,321, represents the ordinary appropriations made for the support of the government during this session."

"It will be observed that after deducting the amounts estimated to have been appropriated on account of or incident to the war with Spain for the ensuing, the current and the last fiscal years (which cover the period since the beginning of the Spanish war), the appropriations for the five fiscal years, including the two immediately preceding the war, are as follows:

1898	528,735,079
1899	532,371,688
1900	554,278,866
1901	578,482,321

This shows an apparent excess in the ordinary appropriations at this session for the fiscal year 1901 of $49,747,242 over the appropriations for the fiscal year 1898, which immediately preceded the Spanish war. The chief increases in ordinary expenses for 1901 over those for 1898 are:

Increase of the navy	$7,081,915
Pensions	3,981,350
Postal service, exclusive of newly acquired territory	17,782,900
Twelfth census	9,000,000
Permanent appropriations (including $2,000,000 for requirements of sinking fund and $4,000,000 for redemption of national bank notes	6,634,000

"These increases in federal appropriations need no defense and but a word of explanation.

"The amount for the department of agriculture is only a proper compliance with the natural demands of the agricultural interests of the country.

"For pensions the amount simply represents the natural increase of the pension roll.

"For the increase of the navy the excess over the appropriations of 1898 is necessary for the construction, armor, armament and equipment of battleships, cruisers, gunboats and torpedo boats heretofore authorized, and is no more than is absolutely necessary toward placing the navy expeditiously in the proper condition universally demanded by the people for the national defense.

"Much of the actual increase is attributable to the increased volume of business in the treasury, war and navy departments, incident to the war with Spain, although no part of it is included in the table which is submitted of increased appropriations on account of the war.

"Under permanent appropriations, aside from $6,000,000 for interest on the war loan, two considerable increases appear, one for $4,000,000 for the redemption of circulating notes of national banks out of the funds deposited with the treasury for that purpose—the transaction being purely one of bookkeeping, and in no way affecting the public funds. The amount of estimated redemptions out of bank funds is simply $4,000,000 greater than in 1898, and by a process of bookkeeping that amount is added to the appropriations for 1901.

"An increase of $2,000,000 is made in the amount estimated to meet the requirements of the sinking fund for 1901 over the sum estimated and included in the appropriations for 1898. This increase is on account of the Spanish war loan of $200,000,000.

"The approximate amounts, as nearly as they can be arrived at, appropriated on account of, or incident to, the war with Spain during each of the three sessions of congress held since the beginning of that war, are set forth in detail. The amounts thus appropriated during the two sessions of the last congress, covering the period to the close of the fiscal year 1900, aggregate $482,562,083. Of this whole sum it is estimated by the treasury department that to June 30, inst., the total expenditures will not exceed $332,000,000, leaving a surplus of $90,000,000 after meeting outstanding obligations, to be covered into the treasury. Thus, for the conduct of that momentous war and its resultant effects congress amply made appropriations, and the administration has wisely and prudently made expenditures from the liberal sums thus placed at its disposal."

Quarantine For Consumptives.

Trenton, June 7.—Consumptives in Trenton are to be isolated. This city is the first to take this step in an effort to stop the spread of the disease. The board of health has decided to place consumption on the same plane with diphtheria, yellow fever and smallpox. It is said a big hospital for consumptives will be built in the city or a colony founded outside the corporate limits.

Rathbone's Property Ordered Sold.

Cincinnati, June 7.—An order has been issued by the United States court for the sale of the property of former Director of Cuban Posts Rathbone, at Hamilton, as the result of long pending litigation by William F. Jones of New York against Rathbone and his sister-in-law, the Countess von Rettberg.

CUBAN PAPERS ARE HOWLING

Because "Decently Bred People" Sentenced at Havana Will Have to Work on Rock Pile.

Havana, June 7.—The order of Captain Pitcher, police magistrate, that men sentenced to the rock pile shall be treated alike, each being compelled to work, has provoked quite a storm of hostile comment in the local papers. The magistrate is accused of being autocratic and overbearing. It has been the custom for men having money or friends and influence not to work when sentenced, the only labor being done by those without influence with the guards. Captain Pitcher directs that every man must work or be confined in a cell with bread and water. For this step the Americans in Havana give him unstinted praise.

Chief of Police Cardenas, on the other hand, says that decently bred men have never been compelled to work; and The Cubano declares that it is unfair to make such people work like ordinary laborers.

The Nacion observes: By what right does the intervening power constitute itself the master of the Cubans? What satanic power forces the Americans to ride rough shod over us with a pride passing the limits of the most intolerable autocracy? It is high time the Yankee authorities began to undo the past and to reflect upon what they are doing. General Wood should stop the abuses of Captain Pitcher, who is, perhaps, the prey of the delirium of despotic grandeur. He is surely following the path that leads to the abyss that swallows all.

Injunction In Connection With Plague.

San Francisco, June 7.—Judge Morrow, in the United States circuit court, has granted an order temporarily restraining the board of health and chief of police from prohibiting the surgeons employed by the Chinese to care for their sick and to examine their dead, entering the quarantine lines. The health board was also ordered to show cause why it should not be permanently enjoined from interfering with the physicians employed by the Chinese.

Pettigrew's Course Commended.

Chamberlain, S. D., June 7.—The Democratic state convention met here yesterday and selected eight delegates to the Kansas City convention. The delegates were instructed for Bryan. Resolutions eulogistic of Charles A. Towne and commending the course of Senator Pettigrew in the senate were adopted. Sympathy was extended to the Boers, and imperialism and trusts were denounced.

Will Require Careful Study.

Washington, June 7.—The voluminous report of the commission appointed some months ago to investigate the administration of the immigration office at New York was handed to Assistant Secretary Taylor yesterday. A careful examination of the report and the testimony will be made, which makes it improbable that the conclusions reached will be made public for some weeks.

Part of France Inundated.

Paris, June 7.—Heavy thunder storms in the central parts of France have caused serious damage to crops and live stock. There have been several deaths from lightning and large tracts of country around Thiers are inundated. Seven persons have been drowned, traffic on the railroad has been interrupted and 1,000,000 francs damage had been done at Thiers itself.

A Fine Golf Player.

New York, June 7.—There is a new star in the golf world. He is A. G. Lockwood, an Englishman, who hails from the Commonwealth club of Boston. In the first round for the governor's cup-medal play yesterday he made the 36 holes in 167, a remarkable score for the links, and easily outplayed noted competitors.

Kentucky's Gift to the Kearsarge.

Norfolk, Va., June 7.—The presentation of a silver service to the battleship Kentucky by the citizens of that state drew many people to Old Point Comfort yesterday. After the formal exercises the Kentucky delegation was entertained at an elaborate luncheon. The event closed with a grand ball.

Dismissed From Military Service.

Albany, June 7.—Governor Roosevelt has issued an order dismissing Major Clinton Smith of the Seventy-first regiment from service in the National Guard, on the recommendation of the board of examiners appointed to examine into the fitness of Major Smith to serve as a commissioned officer in the National Guard.

Chaplain of Conventions Many Years Apart.

Philadelphia, June 7.—Rev. Edgar M. Levy, D. D., of this city, has received official notification of his selection as chaplain to the Republican national convention. Dr. Levy in 1856 acted as chaplain to the Fremont convention held in this city. He is a Baptist clergyman and is 80 years of age.

Faith In Christian Science.

Boston, June 7.—Tremont Temple was crowded last night when the final service of the annual meeting of the Christian Scientists was held, taking the form of an experience meeting. About 35 persons testified to the wonderful relief and total cures brought to them by Christian Science.

Complaint Against the Vatican.

Berlin, June 7.—The series of outrages committed on May 24 at St. Peter's, in Rome, upon German pilgrims and priests by French pilgrims and priests is now being investigated by both the Vatican and the Prussian minister at the Vatican. The latter has demanded full satisfaction.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The history of Sanford, Me., so long in preparation by the late Edwin Emery of New Bedford, Mass., has been completed by his son, William M. Emery of Fall River, Mass., and is to be published in the fall.

The American bark Samuel H. Nickerson, at Buenos Ayres, from Boston, during a gale on March 12 lost a seaman overboard and part of her deckload.

The body of Henry Castle, 45 years old, was found in the Woonasquatucket river at Providence.

SITUATION EXTREMELY GRAVE.

Russia's Offer of Troops to Quell Disturbances Rejected by Chinese Government.

London, June 7.—A Pekin dispatch says the situation is steadily growing worse. Events move with such rapidity and affairs, owing to the excitement of the natives, are so critical that the foreign ministers hold frequent meetings. They feel the need of a free hand for energetic action without a perpetual reference to the home governments. Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister, is wiring for 75 more marines. Native employers who have returned from Feng Tai say they left the Boxers openly drilling in the adjacent villages.

The Pekin correspondent of The Times says: No trains either left or arrived at Pekin yesterday (Tuesday). Further damage to railroads is reported. The Boxer movement is spreading unchecked throughout the province. Not one Boxer has yet been arrested or punished. Anxiety is increasing regarding the fate of the missionaries at the various stations. At a meeting of the Chinese foreign office (Tuesday) the Japanese minister discussed the offer of M. DeGiers, Russian minister, to give the assistance of the Russian troops in quelling disturbances. The Chinese officials denied that the offer had been made, but Russia did make it, and the Chinese government is quite capable of accepting such assistance.

The Morning Post has the following dispatch from Pekin: Report says that the court party is collecting inside the city. Consequently there is increased uneasiness.

The Pekin correspondent of The Times, in a long mail article, dated April 25, which deals with the Russo-Japanese rivalry in the far east, expresses the opinion that war between the two powers is inevitable and that it cannot be long delayed because of Russia's immense Chinese designs and of the hatred the Japanese feel for Russia when they see her enjoying the fruits of Japan's victorious war to the detriment of Japan.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 7.—The Bostons started to bat Hughey with a rush, but after the second inning they could bat him effectively in only one inning, when two singles and a two-bagger scored one run. Cuppy retired in favor of Willis in the fourth.

Postal Clerk Under Arrest.

Boston, June 6.—Another trusted employe of the Boston postoffice, James Brady, who for 11 years has been attached to the inquiry division of the local office, is under arrest, charged with larceny from the United States mails. He is under $1000 bonds. Although under suspicion for more than a year, Brady's long service in the department served to make his guilt seem improbable, but the inspectors, by means of decoy letters, succeeded in securing evidence which they deemed sufficient to cause his arrest. He will be arraigned before Commissioner Fisk today.

Wheeler to Be Retired.

Washington, June 7.—It is said at the war department that General Wheeler will be given no military assignment under his commission as brigadier general, but that he will be placed on the retired list within the next few days. The retirement is in conformity with the statute authorizing the president to retire officers of the army upon their own application after they reach the age of 62 years. General Wheeler was born in 1836.

Another Counterfeiting Suspect.

Philadelphia, June 7.—The United States secret service operatives last night made an additional arrest in the great counterfeiting conspiracy which was unearthed here and in Lancaster, Pa. The man apprehended is Daniel R. Hayes. He is charged with passing $20 counterfeit Hamilton head treasury notes. He was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing.

Electrical Workers' Strike Ended.

Philadelphia, June 7.—The strike of electrical workers, which went into effect May 1, was officially declared off yesterday and all the strikers returned to work. The employers refused to grant a demand of 44 cents an hour for an eight-hour day. A compromise was effected, by which the men receive 35 cents an hour for an eight-hour day.

Cannot Use Our Mails.

Washington, June 7.—The postmaster general has issued orders barring from the use of the mails "The Credit General Du Canada" of Montreal and "The Credit d'Epargne" of Paris. It is alleged that both concerns are conducting lotteries.

Boy Killed by a Freight Train.

Portland, Me., June 7.—Edward McBraid, 15 years old, living at Haverhill, Mass., was run over here while stealing a ride on a freight train. He was horribly mangled, and lived but a few minutes.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Almanac, Friday, June 8.
Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:19.
Moon sets—1:35 a. m.
High water—7:39 a. m.; 8 p. m.

During Wednesday local rains and thunder storms occurred from the east gulf coast over the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and central and western lake regions; elsewhere fair weather prevailed. The temperature rose generally. The area of showers and thunder storms will extend eastward and cause showers in New England. Southerly winds will prevail and will probably become high on the New England coast.

RYCARD'S SACRIFICE

John Rycard strode up and down the palatial room with a load of care upon his mind. A knock sounded upon the door, and Mr. Manners, a banker, entered the room. After greetings he said:

"Rycard, I feel as though I could trust you. For the last 12 months I have been gambling heavily. At first everything I touched seemed to turn to gold, and I thought that a huge fortune was well within my grasp. Ill luck came, however, and I soon lost all I had won. I plunged heavily in the hope of recouping myself. Still I lost, and, all my own money being gone—I used—I used the trust funds in my possession!"

For a moment neither man spoke, only their heavy breathing telling of their emotions. Then Manners continued:

"I have tried in every direction to obtain the money, but for some strange reason I have not succeeded. Tomorrow the executors will want to see my securities—my guilt will be made plain to the entire world. My poor daughter—my poor Eveline will be known as a felon's daughter! Rycard, can you lend me this money?"

"Willingly would I help you, if"—

"If!" interrupted the other, half maddened by the thought of what was in store for him. "You who are rolling in wealth saying 'if' about a paltry $50,000! It is preposterous!"

"You should take your money troubles as I take mine. Is it possible that you have heard no rumors about my financial position? Tomorrow you will be stamped as a thief! Tomorrow I shall be known as a failure! It will be a terrible day for us both!"

"Is this—is this true?" said the banker, clutching the arm of the chair. "You have not the money to lend me? Oh, how my sin is finding me out! It will kill my daughter—it will kill her!"

After Manners left Rycard put on his hat and coat, and, descending into the street, hailed a cab and was rapidly driven to the home of the Mannerses.

Miss Manners received him, as her father was not at home.

"I wish," she said, "father would give up business. It is making him look haggard and pale. He shall give it up soon. I have made up my mind upon that point."

Rycard looked at her with eyes of pity—that pity which is akin to love.

"I will tell him tomorrow after Harry"— He stopped; the blush upon her face became deeper, and she cast her eyes demurely downward.

"And who is Harry?" he tried to say in ordinary tones. "I hope I have not offended you by asking?" he added hastily.

"You have not," she replied, after a moment's pensiveness. "Harry is Mr. Fortesque. You know him?"

Rycard nodded. He could hardly trust himself to speak.

"You're an old friend of my father," she said rather quickly, still keeping her eyes away from his face. "Only an hour since father said you were the best friend he had in the world, so I don't mind telling you. Har—I mean Mr. Fortesque, is going to ask father's consent to our engagement tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!" cried Rycard, starting up and almost sweeping several pieces of valuable bric-a-brac from the table. With an effort he regained his composure. "Will you be happy with Harry?" he asked.

"Yes; we love each other with all our hearts," she confessed. "It must seem strange to you that I should have spoken so openly, but I feel impelled to do it."

"And if anything should happen to part you?" said Rycard anxiously.

"To part us? Oh, why talk of such a thing?" she said in dismay. "That would break my heart—I should want to die!"

Tomorrow! Instead of being the day of joy she was expecting it would be a day of sorrow to blight the whole of her fair life. The picture he imagined made him catch his breath in horror.

He recalled all the incidents he could remember in which the secret lover had given his all, even to his life, for his adored one. He had once laughed at what he thought their foolishness, but it did not seem foolish now—rather the opposite. In fact—

"Now, here is a ring, Mr. Rycard," said Eveline, who had left the room and returned at this point of his meditations. "My father gave it to me only a fortnight ago. He said that if he could find him the man who presented it would do something great for him. He would not explain further. Now, give me your opinion upon it."

A cry of bewilderment escaped Rycard's lips. "This ring? What a beautiful one it is!" he said nervously, trying to conceal the impression the sight of it had made upon him. He had given it, ten years before, to a man who had saved his life in Africa. He now saw that Manners was the man.

"Thank you a thousand times," said Rycard in a low voice as he slipped the ring upon his finger. "I am sorry," he said suddenly, "I cannot await your father's return. Tell him that I have called and said he had to cheer up. I will write to him. Goodby, goodby! I hope you will be happy with Harry." Then he passed out of her presence forever.

He went home and took from his desk $50,000 he had saved from the wreck. He addressed it to Mr. Manners with this letter:

Mr. W. Manners:

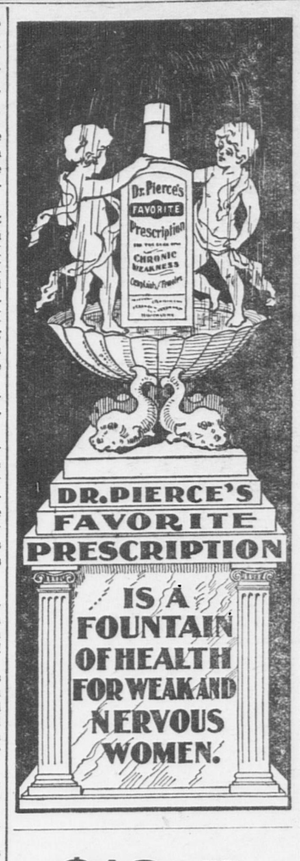

Sir—Owing to certain circumstances I am able to send you the amount you asked for, which you will not be required to repay. The bullion is in easily cashed notes and bonds. With it you can save your honor and your daughter from a living death. Only two conditions do I impose. Fortesque must marry your daughter, and you must keep absolute silence about this affair. I am wearing a ring I gave you ten years ago. Yours faithfully, JOHN RYCARD.

The next morning he had disappeared.

An Easy Name.

One day the following telegram was handed in for delivery at the postoffice of Chepstow: "Going to Llanfairpwllgungwlligogerhilclydiligogogoch; shall be home by 4:30." The postmaster, thinking that there was more than a fair pennyworth of consonants in the name, referred it to his surveyor, who wrote back:

"It is an attempt at the name (of a village in Anglesey), but is evidently not written by a Welshman; the spelling is incorrect, and, but for the joke of the thing, the ordinary abbreviation—Llanfairpwll—would have been better. The full name correctly written I give below—Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerchwyrnydrobwillandisilliogogogoch."—Blackwood's.

IRON BEDS
For Hot Summer Nights.

Half the people in the world can not sleep well on a hot night. They roll and toss and get up in the morning fully as tired as when they go to bed.

Now it costs but a trifle to own one of our sanitary iron beds. They give a free circulation of air around the body, inviting sleep, something which is impossible to secure in the ancient high posted wooden bedstead.

These beds are cool, restful, absolutely clean, with no wooden corners where disease germs can lurk, and when fitted with one of our famous $5 00 Victor Mattresses, you own a bed with SLEEP ALWAYS ON TAP.

Yes, by all means own one of our iron beds, the sooner you do, the happier you will be.

A PATRIOTIC OUTBURST

Marks the Adjournment of First Session of Fifty-Sixth Congress.

Congressmen and Spectators Joined In Grand Chorus.

Senate Disposes of Troublesome Naval Appropriation Bill and Quietly Adjourns.

Washington, June 8.—Speaker Henderson laid down his gavel at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of one of the most picturesque scenes which has ever occurred in the hall of representatives. Party passion and personal rancor, which had brought the house to the brink of actual riot several times during the previous 48 hours, gave way in the closing half hour to good fellowship, which found vent in a patriotic outburst that stirred the crowded galleries to the highest enthusiasm.

During a brief recess, taken within 30 minutes of the time fixed for the final adjournment, to give the president an opportunity to affix his signature to the bills that were being rushed to him for approval, a group of members congregated in the area to the left of the speaker's rostrum and began singing patriotic airs. "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," "Auld Lang Syne," the "Red, White and Blue" successively rang out.

As the singing proceeded, members joined the group until the entire membership of the house joined in the choruses. The spectators in the galleries applauded each song until the strains of "Dixie" filled the hall. Then their enthusiasm broke out in wild cheers. But the enthusiasm that "Dixie" evoked was not to be compared with the demonstration which followed when Mr. Fitzgerald of Massachusetts started the "Star Spangled Banner."

In an instant all the men, women and children in the galleries were on their feet joining in the singing. The chorus from thousands of throats reverberated through the hall. The ladies kept time to the time of the music with their handkerchiefs and the men beat the measure with their hands. The speaker, pausing as he entered the hall, raised his voice also. The excitement overcame an old man in one of the galleries, and when the song ceased he jumped up in his seat and shouted: "That is the song of the angels in heaven." He was plainly a crank, and as he showed a disposition to harangue the house he was ejected.

After Speaker Henderson had made a graceful farewell speech, thanking the members for their courtesy and had declared the house adjourned the members testified to his popularity by singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the newspaper correspondents in the press gallery sang the "Doxology."

The principal feature of the closing day in the house was the reversal of its action Wednesday night in turning down the conferees on the naval bill for yielding on the item relating to ocean survey. Over night the sentiment of the house underwent a complete change and yesterday the members voted by a large majority to accept outright the senate amendment, which goes no further than the compromise which the conferees offered Wednesday night. The new conferees, led by Mr. Cannon, who had brought in a compromise which they considered more satisfactory, were ignominiously pushed aside.

It was a distinct victory for the old conferees, Messrs. Foss of Illinois, Dayton of West Virginia and Cummings of New York. The other feature of the closing day was the course of Mr. Lentz of Ohio in blocking unanimous consent legislation. For three days he had objected to bills because the majority would not allow the testimony in the Couer D'Alene investigation to be printed, and he maintained his position to the end. His action caused many heart aches. He only relented when bills behind which lurked possible votes in the coming campaign were brought up.

For the senate it was a day of waiting. The naval appropriation bill—the stumbling block to final adjournment—could not be agreed to by the conferees of the two houses, and the disagreement was reported to the senate early in the day. The report was accepted, but the senate refused to request another conference, although Mr. Hale expressed the belief that an agreement might be reached.

There was an evident disposition on the part of the senate to make trouble if the conferees should recede from the senate amendment as to the ocean surveys, and it was deemed the wisest policy to afford the house an opportunity again to pass upon the question.

It was not until 20 minutes before the hour fixed for adjournment that the president pro tempore of the senate (Mr. Frye) announced his signature to the naval bill. With some other measures it was hurried to the president, who was in waiting in his room in the Capitol, and was signed by him a few minutes later.

The concluding hour of the session was purely a social session. No business beyond the adoption of the customary resolution of thanks to the chair (Mr. Frye) was accomplished. In acknowledgment of the compliment Mr. Frye delivered a brief and graceful speech, which was received with cordial applause throughout the chamber.

The conclusion of the work of the senate was quiet and perfunctory, attended by no exciting scenes, such as are often incident to the close of a session, and when the gavel fell finally expressions of relief and gladness were heard from all senators.

SIX WEEKS OF PRACTICE.

Battleships Have Carried Out Emergency Order and Will Join the North Atlantic Squadron.

Philadelphia, June 8.—The battleships Indiana and Massachusetts sailed from the League Island navy yard at 5:40 last evening for Hampton roads, where they will join the North Atlantic squadron, under Admiral Farquhar, for a cruise and practice drill. In less than 48 hours, under emergency orders, the two warships were made ready for service. This is the first time in the history of the American navy that the mobilization drill has been attempted.

The complement of the battleships' crews, 450 men, was effected yesterday with the arrival of details of marines and sailors from Washington, Brooklyn and Boston. Admiral Crowinshield, chief of the bureau of navigation, came here from Washington and inspected the battleships prior to their departure.

After the mobilization is completed the squadron consisting of the New York, Kearsarge, Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas, will engage in squadron maneuvers and other exercises for the next six weeks. It is stated at the League Island navy yard that the Indiana and Massachusetts will again be placed in ordinary at the yards when the exercises are over.

Radical Action by Socialists.

New York, June 8.—One of the most important actions of the Socialist convention was taken last night, when a resolution was adopted, by a vote of 62 to 4, saying that "Every member of the Socialist Labor party who is an officer in a pure and simple British style trade union shall either resign his office in the union or be expelled from the Socialist Labor party." The "pure and simple" unions were described as those in which no politics is allowed. The one condition on which labor unions will be recognized by the party is that they affiliate with the Socialist Labor party by joining the Socialist Labor and Trades alliance.

Strikers Are Disappointed.

Fall River, Mass., June 8.—The masons, plasterers and bricklayers of this city will not strike in support of the eight-hour movement, initiated by the journeymen plumbers, carpenters and tinsmiths. As a consequence of this action, the men on strike are greatly disappointed, and the positions of the unions affiliated with the building trades is weakened by their adverse action. The strike situation is unchanged, both sides refusing to make concessions.

Lower Court's Decision Reversed

Boston, June 8.—The United States circuit court of appeals has handed down a decision in the bankruptcy proceedings against the Marshall Paper company of Turner's Falls, holding that a corporation is entitled to a discharge under the bankruptcy act of 1898, this being the first decision of the question. The court accordingly reverses a decree of the district court refusing a discharge.

Inducements to Mill Men.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 8.—The town council of Cumberland has granted exemption from taxation for 10 years on land to be acquired and a mill to be built by Reiling, David & Schoen, which now has silk mills at West Hoboken, N. J., and Scranton, Pa. The company will erect a mill at Valley Falls village, and will employ at first 125 hands, and, when the plant is in full operation, 250 hands.

Train Wrecked by Wind.

Parsons, Kan., June 8.—A severe windstorm has swept over this section, doing much damage. The storm also struck Miami, I. T. Thomas Skinner was killed. A St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train was wrecked two miles west of Oswego by a windstorm. The entire train was twisted loose from the engine and lifted from the track. Two tramps were injured.

Big Majority Against Reorganization.

Milwaukee, June 8.—After one of the most spirited sessions ever held by the general Federation Women's clubs the discussed question of reorganization was defeated yesterday by a vote of 498 to 298. So bitter was the discussion that at times there was a score of women on the floor demanding recognition. The color question has not yet been taken from the table.

Mental Aberration Plea Effective.

New York, June 8.—The plea of mental aberration, made by counsel for William Rideout of Malden, Mass., who committed bigamy in Hoboken, N. J., with Winifred Alden of Malden, was effective. Judge Blair of the Hudson county (N. J.) court yesterday suspended sentence on Rideout, on the condition of the payment of costs.

Solicitors Hustling For Contributions.

Providence, June 8.—Brown university now has $868,000 toward the $1,000,000 that it must have on commencement day if it is to obtain John D. Rockefeller's conditional gift of $250,000. Commencement is June 20. Solicitors are going among the business houses of the community with appeals for aid to the university.

CAPITAL IS IN A CAR.

Kruger Says It Need Not Consist of Collection of Bricks and Mortar.

Burghers Intend to Continue War to the Bitter End.

Transvaal President Refutes Certain Statements In Regard to His Movements.

London, June 8.—There is little live news from the seat of war in South Africa. Lord Roberts undoubtedly is busily engaged preparing for the final stage of the war. The occupation of Pretoria by the British marks the close of the third stage.

The executive offices of the Transvaal government are in a railway car, which is shunted on a switch at Machadorp station. President Kruger caused the interior of the coach to be reconstructed some time ago, with a view to contingencies that have now arrived.

A correspondent of The Daily Express who went from Lourenzo Marquez to see President Kruger, was received yesterday. The president sat smoking a long pipe. He looked worried, but his bearing was quiet and dignified. He did not make the least objection to being interviewed. The correspondent was equipped for the interview by cables from London.

"Yes," said President Kruger, "it is quite true that the British have occupied Pretoria. This, however, does not mean the end of the war. The burghers are fully determined to fight to the last. They will never surrender so long as 500 armed men remain in the country. I feel deeply encouraged by the fine work Steyn and DeWet are doing in the Free State."

The correspondent suggested that the war was over, inasmuch as the capital had been taken.

"The capital," exclaimed Mr. Kruger, with energy. "What is a capital?. It does not consist of any particular collection of bricks and mortar. The capital of the republic, the seat of government, is here in this car. There is no magic about any special site. Our country is invaded, it is true; but it is not conquered. The government is still effective."

Referring to the reason why he left Pretoria, Mr. Kruger said: "I was not so foolish as to be taken prisoner. I provided this means of locomotion precisely for the same reason as our burghers supply themselves with horses when they take the field. It is necessary that I should be able to move quickly from place to place. That is all. Bye and bye this car will take me back to Pretoria, where I could be of no service and where I should only play into the hands of the enemy."

"They say, Mr. Kruger," remarked the correspondent, "that you have brought with you gold to the value of £2,000,000."

"It is not true," replied the president. "Whatever monetary resources I may have with me are simply those which we require for state purposes. At the same time I am not going to tell you where our treasure is. Let Lord Roberts find it if he can."

"They also say in England, Mr. Kruger, that you contemplate taking refuge on a Dutch man-of-war at Lourenzo Marquez."

"That again is a lie," retorted the president, with emphasis. "I know of no Dutch war vessel. I am not contemplating taking refuge anywhere. I shall not leave my country. There will be no need for me to do anything of the kind."

The correspondent—Then, sir, there is much surprise at you having left Mrs. Kruger behind.

President Kruger—But why? Mrs. Kruger is quite safe in Pretoria. She would only be put to personal inconvenience here. All communication between us is stopped, of course, but she will await my return with calmness and courage. She is a brave woman. I am here awaiting further information. We are surrounded by faithful burghers and are quite safe.

State Secretary Reitz remarked: "You may depend upon it that the war is not yet over. Guerilla warfare will continue over an enormous area. We intend to fight to the bitter end, and shall probably retire upon Lydenburg, where we can hold out for many months."

"Yes," observed Mr. Kruger, "it is only now that the real struggle has begun. I fear that there will still be much bloodshed, but the fault is that of the British government."

Then raising his voice to an almost passionate pitch Mr. Kruger exclaimed: "The time has passed for us to talk. We have doen plenty of that, but it has done us no good. There is now nothing left for us to do but to keep on fighting, to keep on fighting."

The correspondent who secured the interview telegraphed it direct from Machadorp station yesterday when the wires were working as usual, to Lourenzo Marquez.

The Daily Express, in commenting upon the interview, refers to the "unabated defiance of the chief of the Transvaalers."

Hollis Is a Boer Sympathizer.

Washington, June 8.—The state department has not directed the reported visit to Pretoria of Mr. Hollis, United States consul at Lourenzo Marquez. Mr. Hollis is an earnest sympathizer with the Boer cause; in fact it has been necessary to admonish him to be strictly impartial in the discharge of his duties, so it is presumed that his personal sympathies have led him into the Transvaal.

Good Afternoon.

Unpopular as their cause is in this country, it may be observed that the Boxers are not altogether to blame for the state of affairs in China. While no one can justify assassination or approve the cowardly methods which they have adopted to revenge themselves upon the "foreign devils" they can at least plead extraordinary provocation. That portion of China is one of the most densely populated sections of the earth, and the people have a desperate struggle for existence. Through their country, railroads are being constructed by German and Belgian engineers, who show a most brutal indifference to the rights and the property of the people. They run their lines across the farms, tear down houses, burn villages, destroy crops, seize supplies, impress labor and treat the people in a most cruel and arbitrary manner. If the same things should occur in the United States or in Europe, or in any other part of the world, they would be attended by the same results. The "Boxers" were organized to resist and revenge these outrages, and they use the only means within their power to punish their oppressors.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Christianity stands for the actual presence of God in this age. The demand of this scientific age for first hand's evidence has created a habit of direct vision which is making itself felt with the religious sphere. This habit of mind is laying a greater responsibility upon us Christians. Men do not accept opinions formed by us from what others have told us. It is our own visions they want, and this demand causes us to seek God for ourselves, and we find him.—Rev. D. A. McGiffert.

☞The best of the prison-made journals, so far as we have observed, is the Sing Sing Star of Hope, and if all its contributions of prose and poetry are really written by the prisoners whose numbers are appended in place of signature—and we have never caught any of them indulging in the form of theft known as plagiarism—then there is really a lamentable amount of talent as well as of wickedness behind the bars. But though the product is good, and even amazingly good, considering its source, still we have grave doubts whether it is judicious to allow the producers thus to exploit their opinions of themselves, of the law, and its administration, and of the society with which they have put themselves at odds. These are almost invariably the topics chosen for discussion by the scribbling prisoners, and with the rarest exceptions they take the ground that the convict is the practically helpless victim of untoward circumstances. Of course, this view is not altogether without support in fact, but the long contemplation and frequent expression of it by the criminal does not tend to fill him with repentance for his sins or regrets for his follies.—New York Times.

WHY MARBLEHEAD

Rather Than the City of Quincy?

Government Building for the Town.

But City of Presidents Waiting for Report.

"A bill for the erection of a public building at Marblehead, Massachusetts introduced by Senator Hoar Dec. 6 last, passed the United States Senate on Monday. It reads as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire by gift, purchase, or condemnation, or otherwise, a site for and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fire proof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States post office and other government offices at the town of Marblehead, in the State of Massachusetts. The site and building thereon, with its appurtenances, when completed upon plans and specifications to be previously made and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of $50,000."

A brief comparison of Marblehead and Quincy may be of interest; surely the claim of the city of Quincy is a little better than the town of Marblehead. We are not only larger, but gaining more rapidly:

	Marblehead.	Quincy.

Representative Naphen's bill for a building at Quincy was introduced in the House Dec. 5, one day earlier than Senator Hoar got to work for Marblehead. The favorable vote shows that the senator has more influence, as our Representative has not even secured a report.

The population of Marblehead was less in 1895 than in 1875, while that of Quincy more than doubled in these 20 years. It is safe to say the population of Quincy is now three times that of Marblehead.

The valuation of Quincy more than doubled between 1885 and 1898, while Marblehead gained about 30 per cent. That of Quincy today is three times larger.

Quincy has over twice as many voters and polls, and the increase in these has been equally rapid.

In average school attendance Quincy has nearly four times as many children, and other comparisons equally in favor of Quincy might be made.

A Willard School Girl.

The funeral of Marion, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. Peter Barry of Crescent street, was held Thursday from St. Mary's church. The services were very largely attended, including her class at the Willard school. Services were conducted by Rev. W. J. Foley, who gave an eulogistic address. Rev. Mr. Foley was visibly effected during his address, and at times his voice was chocked with tears, and there was hardly a dry eye in the church. There were over one hundred floral pieces, the class of 1900 of the Willard school sending a star. The bearers were William Tucker, John Barry, Raymond Barry, Arthur Dacey, Leonard Willey and John Monnihan. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

ENERGY IN COAL.

SOME OF THE WONDERFUL THINGS THAT A SINGLE POUND WILL DO.

A pound of coal is a wonderful thing in its energy, says Cassier's Magazine. Let us take a pound of what we will call average coal, containing, say, 10,000 heat units. This would be somewhat smaller in size than a man's fist. A pound of this coal, if expended in mechanical work, would give us 236 horsepower. Imagine at the time of the pharaohs two long lines of men, extending over half a mile, all pulling steadily at the command of the taskmaster at a great rope to raise some huge obelisk, and as you see them sweating, tugging and straining think again of this small lump of coal in which nature has placed an equal amount of power. In some countries men who have been specially trained as porters to carry heavy loads on their backs will, as a full day's work, carry a total of from 350 to 600 pounds a distance of one mile. And yet each has expended but one-third of the power stored up in this pound of coal.

An exceptionally strong man has been known to do one-half horsepower of work as his mightiest effort, but in two and a half minutes' work at this rate exhausts his muscular force. Let us suppose 100 such men putting forth such extreme effort at rope or crank or crowbar. As they fall back, red faced and puffing, to catch their breaths we might imagine this little black lump saying to them, "I can do as much as your whole company and then can stand it for fully two minutes longer before I am exhausted!"

Let us now turn to another portion of the human race. From the earliest times spinning has been a much prized accomplishment of the fair sex. We need look back only to our own grandmothers. We can picture them, from their own stories, told us when we were children, as rosy checked damsels sitting around the open fireplace and spinning from early candlelight till bedtime, let us say possibly two hours. Let us then consider for a moment the thousands of spindles rattling and whirling in a modern cotton factory, impelled by the power locked up in coal. One pound of this coal carries the potential energy to do the work of 3,000 such spinsters.

In sawing wood a man may work at the rate of about 60 strokes a minute and consider himself a "top sawyer," and his saw blade may have progressed five feet a minute, but a circular saw, driven by machinery, may be put through 70 times that distance and saws 70 times as much wood. And yet this one little pound of coal contains power enough for 180 such saws.

Sterilized Wine.

Until recently the experiments made to sterilize liquids by means of electricity have failed, says The Electrical Engineer of London, because the application of continuous current decomposes the liquid and thus renders it useless, while alternating currents of the frequency usually employed are not sufficient to destroy the microbes which are the cause of the fermentation against which a remedy is sought. "From a note in El Telegrafista Espanol we gather," continues the English Journal, "that, according to Meritens, all microbes in wine can be killed in a few seconds by the application of alternating currents of high frequency and low potential, which at the same time conduces to conserve the wines. Mr. Meritens has made an apparatus which consists of a narrow glass tube through which the wine to be treated passes. Inside the tube there is a series of metal disks. These are insulated, and each is in communication with one of the terminals of an alternating current dynamo. The speed of the liquid is regulated by a valve, so that it can be subjected to the action of the current for any given time. It is said that the invention has proved of considerable commercial value."

Forests of Porto Rico.

In a report entitled "Notes on the Forest Conditions of Porto Rico" Mr. Hill of the United States geological survey says Porto Rico was originally covered by forests, but is now largely deforested, from the commercial point of view. The cultivation of sugar, coffee and tobacco, in addition to a number of minor cultivations, has resulted in large areas of the surface being denuded of trees. The original forest has been preserved on the summit of El Yunque, the highest peak of the island. Here the rainfall averages 120 inches per year. The island presents two contrasting zones of vegetation. One includes the mountains and north coast, a region of great humidity, whose general growth consists of deciduous trees of many species. The other is the foothill country of the south coast, a region of seasonal aridity, whose flora is largely of the type of low, shrubby, thorny, leguminous and acacialike trees. The author believes that the island could be rapidly reforested.

Electric Gondolas.

In Venice the electric launch is rapidly displacing the gondola and the steamboat, especially the type of the latter belonging to the Grand canal fleet. For several years Venice has suffered, with much protestation, from the dirty and noisy little steam craft that ply along the main waterways of the city. They have robbed the larger canals of much of their characteristic and reposeful charm, but on account of the size of the boats they have not been able to invade the smaller highways of the city. In these the silent and easily mat euvered electric launches vie with the gondolas and are even more popular.

MILTON.

Several cases of scarlet fever are reported at East Milton.

Christopher Graham has purchased the estate on Pierce street, known as the Gragg estate.

Charles Gallagher, the plumber, has secured a large contract at Nantasket.

The new organ of the Mission of Our Saviour church was used for the first time last Sunday. The instrument has a fine tone and is a valuable acquisition to the services.

All one hears in Milton is Dr. Pierce for Congress—first, last and always.

Lewis Morgan and Gus. Horner, the two East Milton young men who made a trip to England in a cattle ship, have returned home. The experience they had was enough to last them the balance of their lives.

The regular meeting of the Unquity club will be held next Monday evening.

Gas at $1.40.

While Quincy is moving for cheaper gas, the success of other cities is watched with interest. The board of gas and electric light commissioners transmitted to the house of representatives Thursday a reply to an order introduced by Representative MacCord of New Bedford, calling for an investigation of the price of gas in that city. The report is signed by all three commissioners, Messrs. Barker, Gifford and Schaff. The important recommendation is a reduction in the gross price from $1.50 per 1000 cubic feet to $1.40. This apparently favors, the small consumers, who form 60 per cent. of the patrons of the company.

The commissioners also recommend that the net price shall not exceed $1.25 per 1000, and that under the conditions which now secure a discount of 25 per cent. from the present gross rate the discount shall be 20 per cent. from the gross rate mentioned above.

On motion of Mr. MacCord of New Bedford the reply was referred to the committee on manufactures.

AT SPRINGFIELD.

A hearing on a petiiton from Mayor Hayes of Springfield for a reduction in the price of gas was begun Thursday, before the state board of electric light and gas commissioners, chairman Barker presiding. The gas light company was represented by Judge Dunbar of Boston, manager Fowler and treasurer Allen of the company. City Solicitor McKechine appeared for the people, and Mayor Hayes and members of the city council were present.

Lost Match—Won Cup.

The Wollaston golf team lost its match to the Agawam team of Providence on Thursday. They finished the first round with every player up and victory seemed certain but Atherton, Freeman, Tilton and Muliken fell victims and the 2 of Smith and 2 of Price, were not enough to overcome the 7 up of Agawam. By previous agreement between Smith and Mauran, who were tied at the Myopia handicap the loser withdraws; this gives Smith of Wollaston the Myopia cup.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

Kincaide's Way.

He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it

Is Superior.

It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

A project is under way to build a new theater in St. Louis to seat 3,500.

The representation of Rostand's "L'Aiglon" may be forbidden in Austria.

Shakespeare was introduced as the hero of a play lately produced at Budapest.

Marie Wainwright announces that next season she will play Hamlet in vaudeville.

Burr McIntosh has been engaged to play Philemon in the production of "Janice Meredith" next season.

The gross receipts of Mrs. Fiske's season of 34 weeks in "Becky Sharp" are said to have been over $300,000.

It is reported from London that E. H. Sothern has secured the rights to Justin Huntley McCarthy's new play, "The Startled Fawn."

Maude Adams owns and engineers a farm at the extreme eastern end of Long Island, taking special interest in the raising of Shetland ponies and collies.

Mrs. Leslie Carter is to appear next year in a piece entitled "The Queen's Drawing Room." David Belasco is named as author, but little is known about the play.

Tolstoi's latest book, "The Dominion of Darkness," is being translated into English for use in this country. The play has already been produced at the Royal theater in Copenhagen.

The Actors' society of New York offers a prize of $100, to be awarded by a vote of traveling companies, to the theater, outside of the large cities, which gives the best accommodation back of the curtain.

THE COOKBOOK.

Serve salad whenever possible. It is always acceptable and refreshing.

Green sweet peppers finely chopped and sprinkled over stuffed tomatoes just before they go into the oven improves them.

In putting cakes on the griddle be careful to form them a regular round shape, and put on only one at each dip, so as not to spill between the cakes.

If you want to powder parsley to sprinkle over new potatoes or any other dish, dip it first quickly into boiling water. Shake the water off and put it on a plate or paper in a quick oven for a few minutes. When quite dry, rub either between your hands or through a wire sieve.

The juice from a can of fruit if not needed when the fruit is served may be used later as a foundation for a jelly. If the sirup is as rich as it should be, it will stand an equal amount of water. When thus diluted, it is sweetened to taste and used with dissolved gelatin in the proportion of little over a half a box to every quart.

THE INHERITANCE TAX.

Taxes imposed with reference to the ability of the person taxed have been levied since the foundation of the government. That a principle so consonant with natural justice should be declared sound in law is gratifying.—Brooklyn Citizen.

An inheritance tax differs from an income tax. It is not a direct tax on property or on earnings. It is an excise on the privilege to take property by will or other forms of succession. The legacy is not taxed. The right to accept it is taxed.—Chicago Chronicle.

The decision rendered by the United States supreme court on the constitutionality of the inheritance tax provisions of the war revenue law covers many points of great interest, but by far the greatest significance attaches to that portion of it which concerns the validity of laws imposing "progressive" rates of taxation.—Baltimore News.

DR. TODD CALLED.

To the Pastorate of Water Street Presbyterian Church.

At a meetng of the Congregation of the First Presbyterian church, Water street, Thursday evening, it was voted to extend a call to Rev. James Todd, D. D., of Escanaba, Mich., to become its pastor.

Rev. Mr. Todd is a graduate of Glasgow University, and is the author of several publications. He has preached in Quincy twice.

Work has been commenced making a number of improvements at the church. An addition will be built to the front giving a new entrance and the fences and retaining walls will also be repaired. The alterations will call for an expenditure of from $1,200 to $1,500.

May Breakfasts Profitable.

One of the annual events of Lynn is a public breakfast on May 1. The treasurer has just reported a net profit of $765. A comparative view of the profits of the eight day breakfast shows that this ranks fourth in the matter of profits. One of the three which realized more was that of 1895, the first held in the new armory, when the number in attendance reached 4,000. The other two were helped by the publication in connection with them of the May Breakfast Item. This year the breakast was materially aided by the liberality of those who furnished supplies and did work.

An idea for the Quincy Hospital Aid Association.

The Atlantic Depot.

The following facts are learned through the courtesy of Mr. Charles S. Dixon, the official representing Messrs. Horton & Hemmenway at Atlantic; in the construction of the new station. Foundation was reached upon the somewhat sloping site, the deepest digging being about 15 feet and work is progressing rapidly. By Saturday, June 9, it is hoped the surface of the ground will be reached by the foundation wall.

The structure will be built of brick and completed in about three months.

The new station will be 80 feet long and 25 feet wide. The Quincy station was originally intended to be of the same size and proportions but was increased to 105 feet thereby making it 25 feet longer than the station at Atlantic. Mr. Harry Hammond, who had charge of the men who broke ground at Atlantic, is now superintending the work at Quincy.

Mr. Dixon seems to have a faculty of imparting a cheerful spirit to his men, and intelligent cooperation seems to be secured from the different nationalities of laborers under his direction.

What License Does.

At a special meeting of the Waltham Board of Aldermen Wednesday evening an order that the police force be increased by two additional patrolmen, making the number fourteen, was referred to the committee on police.

Since May 1, when the license law went into effect, much petty crime has been committed, to say nothing of malicious damage to property and bold attempts at highway robbery. Judge Luce recently said in open court that he had never known of so much crime being committed in Waltham in so short a time.

At present the police force is divided into nine night patrolmen and three day patrolmen. With the night patrolmen it is said the city cannot be properly protected, owing to the large extent of territory to be covered.

Last Tuesday evening a daring attempt at highway robbery was made on a well-known woman on Main street, one of the principal thoroughfares.—Boston Transcrspt.

Squadron Coming.

Mayor Hart Thursday received a letter from Rear Admiral William Farquhar, commanding the North Atlantic Squadron, which stated that the Rear Admiral will leave Newport, R.I., for Boston on June 13 with the flagship New York, the U. S. S. steamer Texas and probably U. S. S Kearsarge. It was further stated that the Rear Admiral expects to remain in Boston Harbor about ten days. These ships are coming to Boston for the purpose of taking part in the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Charlestown Navy Yard and the 125th anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill.

Barre Polishers.

At a meeting of the polishers of Barre held Tuesday the strike was declared off and all the men who could or who had not found work in other lines returned to work Wednesday, most of them receiving the advance of 15 per cent. offered by the manufacturers.

—Rev. William J. Macdonald was ordained and installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Hyde Park on Thursday.

Street Railways to Help.

The Committee on Railroads has reported a general bill which requires street railways to pay part of the cost in abolishing grade crossings.

The bill provides that in case of abolition not more than 65 per cent. shall be assessed on the railroads, 25 per cent. on the state. 10 per cent. on the city or town and not more than 5 per cent on the street railway or railways. The exact apportionment is left to the special commission appointed by the court.

In case it is decided by said commission to make a street railway pay a certain percentage of the cost, said amount shall be deducted either from the state's share or the city or town's proportion.

ECONONY OF SPACE.

This Design Gives Excellent Results at Minimum Cost.

This plan was evolved with the general idea of securing the largest amount of room at the minimum point of cost. A study of the plan shows how successful the architect has been. The expenditure of a few hundred dollars more would add much to the exterior of the house and its rather plain appearance would be greatly improved, but its excellent interior arrangement makes it a most desirable dwelling.

In the arrangement of rooms it will be noticed that every nook and corner is so utilized that there is absolutely no waste room in the house. The house is built in the suburbs and facing to the north, with the left side toward the business portion of the city. Thus the head of the family in coming to his home finds the front entrance at the part of the house first approached. He enters the vestibule from a front porch and thence into the sitting room or parlor. These rooms are quite large and connected by wide sliding doors.

In the parlor is a wide bay of slight projection containing two ordinary sliding windows in the sides. The front window has a large plate glass, with art leaded stained glass transoms over it. This enables one to have a nice view of the surrounding landscape. The sitting room contains an open fireplace with a neatly designed mantel. The projecting window in this room contains four double sash windows with four drawers under the stool.

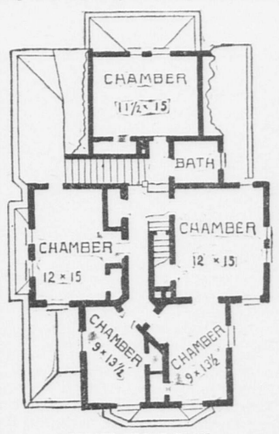

The family bedroom opens off the sitting room and is also connected with the parlor. The dining room is directly connected with the sitting room. The kitchen is reached through an entry or lobby which also opens on to the rear porch. The kitchen and dining room are connected through a large pantry, which is fully equipped in modern style with pastry table, bins, shelves, drawers, etc. Between the kitchen and dining room is placed a large china closet, reached from either side. The space between the bottom shelf, which is placed 2 feet 8 inches above the floor on the dining room side, is divided into two lockers, with a case of drawers between. On the kitchen side is placed the sink and drainboard, which is inclosed underneath for pot closet.

The stairs to cellar lead down from the kitchen under the main stairway. The stairs to second floor lead up from the entry between kitchen and sitting room. It is 3½ feet wide and is inclosed between walls, thus saving quite an item of expense. Landing in an ample hall above, we have entrance to five chambers and bathroom and to the attic stairs. Each chamber is provided with closet room and well ventilated.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The interior is trimmed throughout in white pine, the first floor being finished natural in hard oil and the second floor painted in suitable tints. The house is built in the style known as "balloon framing," of good, sound pine timbers of following sizes: Sills, 6 by 8; floor joist, 2 by 10; ceiling joist, 2 by 6; studs and rafters, 2 by 4. The exterior is of white pine, first story covered with ½-inch siding and second story with cypress shingles, laid on over matched sheathing. A cellar is provided under the sitting room and bedroom. Height of ceilings: Cellar, 7 feet; first story, 10 feet; second story, 9 feet. The house is heated by furnace and was erected complete at Carthage, Ills., for $2,600.

Water Pipes.

Water pipes, if of iron, may be run up inside the flues and will be less likely to freeze than if run up inside the walls, either naked or covered up with plaster. There should be a "pet cock" at the lowest level, so as to enable one to draw out all the water at night in freezing weather or if the house is unoccupied in winter.—Selected.

A tasteful appearance in dress often comes as much from good laundering as from the quality of the clothing. Good laundering requires good soap and Ivory Soap is the best.

The fading of delicate shades is frequently the ruination of an expensive garment. Any color that will stand the free application of water can be washed with Ivory Soap.

THE DRESS MODEL.

Thus far among the short jackets of silk, satin and brocade black is the chief color.

Many of the handsome designs in lace are copied among elaborately embroidered cream white and ecru batistes.

Cool and pretty are the waists of pink, blue or cream white liberty silk or satin made in regular shirt waist style, with yoke back and slightly full fronts, fastened with small gilt or mock opal buttons.

Among the imported gowns of foulard summer silk, veiling, india mull, etc., are models, showing silk petticoats en suite, which are finished around the bottom with flounces made of fabric matching the gown.

"Celery" is a new color among French tints. It is much admired in the list of summer textiles. It compines ivory, the faintest shade of yellow and pale green without expressing either, but delicately suggestive of all three.

Short boleros are made of cut work and of embroidery and lined with thin, delicately tinted silk. These are considered very stylish with any sort of wash gown, giving it a pretty finish that is both smart and becoming.

It is becoming more and more popular to cut the sleeve of the waist or jacket to flare in leaf or bell shape a few inches below the elbow and to add full gathered undersleeves which reach to the wrist, the shirring ending in a narrow band covered with ribbon, lace insertion or embroidery.

Beautiful summer evening toilets are made of white india silk mull or white Italian crape, elaborately decorated with black applique patterns and both wide and narrow insertions of black venetian or chantilly lace. Rows of finest lingerie tucking alternate with these trimmings on both skirt and bodice.—New York Post.

THE OPEN DOOR POLICY

Gives America the Opportunity For Intervention In Chinese Muddle.

Situation Continues to Be of a Grave Character.

Government Authorities Show No Disposition to Deal Harshly With Boxers.

London, June 8.—The morning papers in long editorials dealing with the Chinese situation refer to the possible course of the United States. The Daily Mail, which goes beyond any other in urging America to take the lead in intervention, under the caption, "McKinley's Opportunity," says:

"The United States have secured definite pledges as to the maintenance of the open door; and their intervention would not produce friction, danger of which is to be anticipated should either England or Russia act alone. We have no desire to provoke a world-wide conflict. Yet our movements are regarded with so much suspicion by many Russians that serious complications might ensue did we land a strong force near Pekin.

"The same applies to Russia, face to face with ourselves; but the United States have traditions of friendship with Russia and a community of interests with England. Their action would, therefore, assure the hostility of either power. It need scarcely be said that they would have the moral support of the British people and our material support also, if only the policy of our government in the far east were stronger than it is. They would certainly be assisted by Japan. In this way a world conflict, disastrous to the interests of all great states, could be avoided; and, at the same time, the pledges which the skilful negotiations of Mr. Hay have extracted from the various powers would be vindicated. The opportunity for America has come. Will she be equal to it, or will she let it slip from her hands and lose her vast potentialities of trade in northern China?"

England's financial interests in China, interests that can be named on the stock exchange, aggregate £40,000,000. These on an average have declined 1 percent. There are also many trading companies and syndicates holding concessions which are capitalized for vast unknown sums. The English money in China is probably close to £500,000,000.

The report that Sir Claude MacDonald is too ill to attend to his duties is declared to be unfounded. He has been in constant communication with the government.

The situation in China, as measured by abundant unofficial telegrams, continues full of interesting possibilities, but apparently it has not grown worse during the last 24 hours, although the favorite adjectives of London and continental commentators are "perilous," "grave" and "dangerous."

The naval commanders in Chinese waters have received identical instructions as to procedure, the question of an emergency being left to their discretion. No fear is entertained for the safety of the legations at Pekin. European residents, however, are escaping from the capital to the coast. Pekin is still under control, but in a very excited state. A thousand foreign guards are garrisoning the legation houses. Six hundred international troops are at Tien Tsin, with six guns.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Shanghai, dated June 7, takes a gloomy view of things, which are pictured as going from bad to worse. The correspondent says:

"The authorities are displaying palpably guilty supineness in dealing with the Boxers; and the powers are more and more taking matters into their own hands. The Boxer revolt is spreading and is rapidly changing its character. The Boxers are getting arms, preparing to meet force with force.

"There has been no communication between Pekin and Tien Tsin since Tuesday, although one miserable half-hearted attempt has been made by Chinese soldiers to reach the capital. The troops were fired upon and the train had to come back. Another station has been burned on the line."

A news agency dispatch from Tien Tsin, dated yesterday, says: "The Boxers are still raiding and pillaging over a wide area. They have wrecked and burned the stations at Long-Fong and Langoo. It has been definite'y ascertained that Mme. Astier and Messrs. Ossent and Cades have been murdered. General Nieh claims to have defeated the Boxers, killing 500."

Investigators Have Started Out.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 8.—There are no new developments in the Lorraine mill strike. The committee of strikers appointed to visit mills in Massachusetts towns have left on their trip. When the men now at work in the mill left for their boarding places last night there was the usual demonstration. No one was hurt.

Four Men Killed by Lightning.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 8.—Tom Jenkins, Peter York, Harry Davis and Peter Wiggins, all colored, were killed by lightning yesterday while at work under a steamer hauled out on the ways. Fourteen other men were shocked, some of them seriously. The bolt struck a chain attached to the vessel.

Kumassi Not Yet Relieved.

London, June 8.—The Daily Mail has the following dispatch from Accra: It is practically certain that Kumassi is still invested. No runners can get through. The advancing relief columns are meeting with determined opposition.

A World's Record Broken.

Utica, N. J., June 8.—At the state shoot in this city yesterday J. S. Fanning killed 218 clay pigeons without a miss, thus breaking the world's record. The highest previous score was 211, made by C. A. Young of Ohio.

TELEPHONE ACROSS THE OCEAN.

Invention Which May Make Cablegrams Cheaper Than Postal Cards.

New York, June 8.—Dr. M. I. Pupin of Columbia university recently prepared for the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, in Philadelphia, a paper in which the author described a method for constructing a cable or an air line circuit such that it would be possible to telephone over it from New York to San Francisco with perfect ease, or even from New York to London through a submarine cable made upon the principles announced.

In the current issue of The Electrical Review Dr. Pupin further describes, in an interview, some of the features of his invention.

The idea of telephoning through a trans-Atlantic cable, he says, is easily possible, though of doubtful practicability. It is not, perhaps, a commercial possibility, nor would there be a very great demand for use of a cable for this purpose. The real advantage of his invention lies, he thinks, in its application to telegraphy. The speed of signaling can be increased, he states, from five impulses per second to 1500. It will multiply the capacity of Atlantic cables about 300 times. This would make it possible for the rates on cable messages to be lowered until cablegrams would actually be cheaper than postal cards and infinitely quicker.

Many Women and Children Homeless.

Duluth, June 8.—The entire business and most of the residence section of the town of Virginia, on the Mesaba iron range, was wiped out of existence by fire. In one hour's time 125 buildings were reduced to ashes. The flames broke out in a lumber mill southwest of the town. The territory over which the fire traveled covered about 12 blocks, about nine of which were thickly built up. The loss is estimated at $500,000. So far as known no lives were lost. The people are in urgent need of relief. There is little food left in the town and women and children are without places to sleep.

Commercial Men at Dinner.

Boston, June 8.—The crowning event of the visit of the commercial clubs of Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis to the Boston Commercial club came last evening in the banquet given the guests at the Algonquin club. President Choate of the entertaining club bade the guests a hearty welcome, and responses were made by the presidents of the visiting clubs. The addresses of the evening were on "The East and the West—what they have done for each other and for the nation," "Popular Errors" and "Some Thoughts Suggested by the Meeting in Boston."

Neely Case Again Postponed.

New York, June 8.—The examination of C. F. W. Neely, which has been postponed from day to day and was to have taken place yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields, was again postponed to June 18. As the bill relating to Cuban extradition has been signed by President McKinley there will, it is understood, be no further hearings in relation to the matter by the local courts.

Policy Workers Got Away.

Boston, June 8.—In the course of its present crusade against gambling, the Boston police cleaned out a place on Harrison avenue which has been considered the headquarters of the policy game. Although officers had been watching the place for several days, there was great surprise and disgust shown, inasmuch as not a prisoner was taken. Considerable policy material was seized.

Plans of Gold Democrats.

Indianapolis, June 8.—A call was issued last night by the national executive committee for a meeting in this city on July 25 of the national committee of the National Democratic party. The call is the outcome of a conference of the executive committee, held in New York June 1. The consensus of opinion at the meeting was that the party should again put a national ticket in the field.

To Cover Two Thousand Miles.

New York, June 8.—Captain and Mrs. John J. Phelps started yesterday from Hackensack, N. J., on a coaching trip which is to last three months and cover 2000 miles. They will go to Montreal, by way of New York state, and will return by way of the New England states.

Barred From the Mails.

Washington, June 8.—An order has been issued by the postmaster general barring from the United States mails all correspondence conducted with L. Leverque of Montreal. This order is based upon a charge that the business conducted is a lottery.

ALEXANDER TROUP SHUT OUT.

Democratic Delegates of Connecticut a Unit For Bryan and His Doctrine.

Waterbury, Conn., June 8.—With such harmony as to render it capable of characterization as a "love feast," the Democrats of Connecticut transacted the business of its state convention in a session lasting a trifle over an hour and a half. Four delegates-at-large and eight county delegates to the national convention were elected. They were instructed for William Jennings Bryan, and the party was pledged to support the Kansas City platform.

Homer S. Cummings of Stamford was made the idol of the convention, and Alexander Troup of New Haven was forced into retirement so far as connection with the state and national party organization is concerned.

Differences were patched up and the adjournment was announced after it had been made plain that the delegates were a unit for Bryan and his doctrines.

Boston, June 8.—The legislative committee on manufacturers voted last night to report the bill which provides that the New England Gas and Coke company shall be placed under the supervision of the gas and electric light commissioners, and also that it shall be incorporated under the laws of this state.

The committee on railroads also reached a vote on the lease of the Boston and Albany to the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, and decided to report a bill approving the lease.

Postmaster to Be Reimbursed.

Brookfield, Mass., June 8.—A postoffice inspector visited the Brookfield postoffice Thursday and investigated the recent robbery very carefully. He has decided to recommend to have Postmaster Goodall reimbursed for his loss caused by the robbery. It is learned that $13.79 in money was stolen, as wel as stamps to the value of $58.19. Three registered letters were also taken, and the damage to the safe is considerable.

Says He Did His Duty.

New York, June 8.—Major Clinton H. Smith of the Seventy-first regiment, who was dismissed from the National Guard of the state has sent a letter of protest to Governor Roosevelt, in which he says: "I did my full duty in Cuba, and I defy proof to the contrary. I am unwilling to believe that the governor of the state would knowingly be a party to an act against which I protest as arbitrary, illegal and outrageous."

THE CARE OF CLOTHING.

The Depravity of the Moth Explained—Protection In Printer's Ink.

In the care of woolens, furs, etc., in preparing them for putting away, beating, brushing and shaking and exposing to the sun and air are time honored methods that have no substitute. This cleaning and putting away should always be done as early in the season as possible, for if left until after the moths are flying around the danger of their eggs being deposited in the garments is greatly increased, and so this point is of the greatest importance—being the "ounce of prevention" which will save many "pounds of cure."

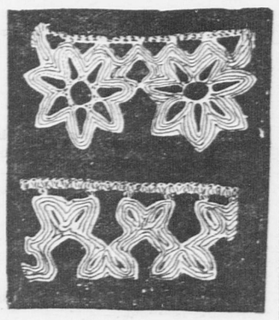

All grease spots should be carefully taken out before putting away clothing. It is commonly considered an evidence of the innate depravity of moths that they select the most conspicuous part of a garment for their ravages, but the real reason plainly is that the conspicuous place was the one where some grease lodged which was not removed before putting the garment away, and so the hungry feeder found it and left the evidence of its keen perceptions in the form of the disfiguring hole. The all important point in putting away garments is that they should be absolutely free from larvæ or egs or no amount of malodorous preparation can save them.

Clothing that is simply hung away must be looked after frequently during the summer, and it is less trouble to put it away where moths cannot have access to it. For this the cleaning must be absolutely thorough, and then the following method is said to be very satisfactory: Get the large pasteboard boxes such as tailors use, place the thoroughly cleaned articles in them, and paste a strip of strong paper around the edge so as to seal it completely, seeing that there are no cracks anywhere. With care the boxes will last for a number of years.

A simple and satisfactory plan is to spread upon the bed a clean muslin sheet; in its center spread a fresh newspaper, upon which lay a thoroughly clean garment; cover this with another fresh newspaper, allowing it to project a little, and proceed thus alternately until a suitable amount is arranged. Now fold the sheet together from two opposite sides (let overlap and fold as a powder is done up in its paper) and pin together. Fold and overlap the other two ends together in the same manner, pin securely and lay away. In this way they are easily done up, and an examination at any time is but little trouble, while, should a garment be imperfectly cleaned, the layers of paper will keep it separated from the other garments and so generally prevent the rest from becoming infested. The fresh newspapers in themselves are something of a protection, as moths dislike the odor of printer's ink.

Rickrack Edging For Underwear.

Make a wheel with seven points inside, catch the thread through the two, joining points with a dc, ch 1, dc in next point; repeat around the circle and fasten to first st. Start a new wheel on third point from this one, fill the same as this, fastening it to the other with needle and thread; repeat to desired length. Finish top with 2 dc in each point and 2 ch between.

For a simpler edge, with needle and thread join three points—run thread blind—to next outside point to the left, join it with the next two, run thread as before to next outside point and repeat. Finish top with 1 double crochet in each corner, point and a chain of four between; fill the top with 1 double crochet in stitch of chain, says The Household, which illustrates these easily made and very useful edgings.

Seasickness and How to Avoid It.

One of the queries that the amateur traveler demands to have answered by the experienced voyager is "How shall I avoid that hideous sickness of the sea?" No one knows, alas! There is no remedy, unless it be this: Eat regularly and healthily for a week beforehand and try not to be too tired when you go abroad. The main point is to be able to face the sea in the best condition possible, with a careful preparation by way of putting the digestive organ in excellent health, and after that forgetting that there is any likelihood of being ill.

However, even after most careful dietary preparation one does suffer from a queerness of the stomach, and my best advice is to stay in your berth, says a writer in The Household.

A Dainty Summer Dessert.

Some of the daintiest desserts are evolved from a gelatin foundation. For one of the sort the first step is to make a custard of half a pint of milk, half a cupful of sugar and the yolks of two eggs. Put the gelatin, about one-fourth of a box, to soak in cold water. When it is soft, add it to the custard. Put the dish containing the mixture into a pan of cold water and stir vigorously. Flavor with vanilla or any chosen flavor and when the gelatin begins to harden stir in a cupful of whipped cream. Finally pour it into a mold and set it on the ice to harden.

GOOD HEALTH BICYCLES.

The kind that make you forget all cares and troubles, make you breathe fresh air in your lungs, require just enough exercise riding to make you healthy, hungry and good natured.

Yes—there's a great difference in bicycles. Some with flashy enamel on the outside, listed high in the catalogue, that work like a tread mill and spend half their time in the repair shop just like a dollar watch. Then there is the ORIENT, CLEVELAND, IVER JOHNSON and PIERCE kind like $100.00 watches, built by skilled mechanics. They bring endless comfort and pleasure to those who ride them.

If you want the best that American brains can make—come here. Prices to suit your notion.

ADDITIONAL NAVAL CADETS.

One Hundred to Be Nominated by Senators Before the Tenth of July.

Washington, June 9.—Adjutant General Corbin has completed preliminary arrangements for the execution of that section of the military academy appropriation bill which provides for the appointment of 100 additional cadets. A circular letter was addressed yesterday to each member of the United States senate by the secretary of war, inviting him to nominate a legally qualified candidate for appointment as cadet to the military academy from his state at large and an alternate. These appointees are to report at West Point for examination on July 25. All successful candidates will go into summer camp after that date. The secretary gives notice that in case a senator fails to nominate a cadet and an alternate before July 10 it will be assumed that he does not desire to make such nominations and the appointment will be made without further delay. Although the secretary does not say so specifically, all such lapsed appointments will be made by the president.

The navy department has not yet finally determined what it shall do with the additional naval cadets provided for in the naval appropriation bill. The authorities are desirous of avoiding an inordinately large class of cadets in any one year, and their effort is directed to distributing the increase among the classes. Secretary Long is supposed to be discussing this matter with the commandant of the naval academy and a decision is expected upon his return to Washington. Meantime the officials are proceeding upon the theory that the 100 additional cadets will be divided among two classes at least, 40 cadets being appointed immediately and 60 next winter.

Domestic Tragedy at Brooklyn.

New York, June 9.—With the bullet intended for her son-in-law, Mrs. Teresa Tracy shot and mortally wounded her daughter, Margaret, at their home in Brooklyn last night. Alfred Conyer married Margaret Tracy over a year ago, but the two had been separated for some time. Last night Conyer called at his mother-in-law's home, to see his wife. They agreed to forget all past quarrels. When they told Mrs. Tracy, a quarrel ensued. Mrs. Tracy pointed a revolver at Conyer and pulled the trigger. Mrs. Conyer jumped before her husband and received the bullet in the abdomen. Mrs. Tracy was arrested.

Another Denial From Dewey.

Detroit, June 9.—Admiral Dewey was yesterday shown the statement made by the Manila Times concerning an alleged recovery by General Funston's men of a portion of the archives of the Filipino rebel government which, it was claimed, contained certain correspondence between Aguinaldo and Dewey. Said Admiral Dewey: "I never wrote a letter to Aguinaldo in my life. Whenever I wanted to see him I sent for him. He was employed by me for certain purposes, just as I employed a lot of other people among the natives. I made him no promises."

Knockout Blow That Counted.

Stamford, Conn., June 9.—What was thought would prove the second boxing fatality in Connecticut within a fortnight occasioned much worriment to the promoters of a boxing exhibition here Friday night, when "Shep" Walker of South Norwalk was knocked out by Jim Austin of Hartford and did not recover consciousness for nearly an hour. Two physicians were summoned, and when animation was restored it was discovered that Walker's jaw was broken. Both men are colored. The bout lasted two rounds.

Relief For Famine Sufferers.

New York, June 9.—The executive committee of the committee of one hundred on Indian famine relief met at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Contributions of nearly $60,000 were reported, although the committee was formed only a month ago. A second instalment of $30,000 was cabled to Bombay after yesterday's meeting.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 9.—Rain interrupted the game in the third inning. After play was resumed three hits and some dumb work by the Chicago infield gave Boston five runs and the game.

Sheriff and Preacher Killed.

Indianapolis, June 9.—Thomas J. Johnson, known as "Cyclone" Johnson, a street preacher, was shot and killed last night at Carmel, after he had killed Deputy Sheriff Carey, who was trying to arrest him for assault and battery. Johnson had been attacking different persons in his street talks. An unknown person shot Johnson.

Hodgson Said to Have Surrendered.

London, June 9.—According to a dispatch to The Daily Mail, from Accra, dated June 8, a native rumor is in circulation there that Governor Hodgson of the Gold Coast colony made a sortie from Kumassi, where he had been besieged by the Ashantis, but was forced to retire and ultimately to surrender.

Mine Superintendent Kills Himself.

Santiago, June 9.—Dominic Lindenthal, superintendent of the Guama mines, committed suicide yesterday by shooting. He formerly lived in Pittsburg. The officers of the Cuban Steel Ore company say there was no apparent reason for his taking his life.

DYNASTY THREATENED

China's Probable Reason For Dealing With Boxers With a Gentle Hand.

Government to Blame For the Murder of Missionaries.

Chapels Burned and Hundreds of Native Christians Have Been Massacred.

London, June 9.—The morning papers linger over the Chinese situation, publishing long editorial reviews and conjectures. Several journals complain that the British policy is one of drift rather than of firm, clearsighted action. The Daily Express contends that Sir Claude MacDonald is charming personally, but lacks initiative and strength of character sufficient for the difficult post of British minister at Pekin.

Definite returns regarding the severe fighting between the Chinese troops and the Boxers that was going on Thursday between Tien Tsin and Pekin had not been received at Tien Tsin when the latest telegrams to reach London were filed. The Chinese troops, however, had killed many Boxers, according to some reports, while another account had the government soldiery defeated in an engagement near Pao-Ting-Fu.

Apparently the legation guards have not yet taken a hand in the fighting, but they are ready to do so at a moment's notice. The Boxers' movement affects some hundreds of square miles. Official dispatches to Vienna from Pekin aver that the sect is more powerful than any political party in China, embracing no less than 4,000,000, ad manipulated by zealous and adroit men.

The representatives of the powers are still acting in perfect concert, which appears for the present to give the Chinese government ample chance to put down the disturbens alone.

The Tien Tsin correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing June 7, says: For the last three days the whole community of Tien Tsin has been preparing to defend itself against an expected attack by the Boxers. There is a continual influx of refugees from the surrounding country, who are now crowding the city. This increases the excitement. Nearly all the villages surrounding Tien Tsin are joining the Boxers' movement, which is taking more and more a fanatical character.

Secret orders from Pekin have paralyzed military action and raised the status of the Boxers in the eyes of the ignorant masses. Although the Boxers declare their first object to be the annihiliation of Catholic converts, the wire pullers evidently wish to propagate hatred among the country people against foreigners and things foreign in general. The movement on the surface has a patriotic character, but it may turn ultimately against the dynasty. This seems to be the reason why it has thus far been treated with a gentle hand.

The legations at Pekin have wired for reinforcements.

The Pekin correspondent of The Times, telegraphing June 8, says: The news that General Nieh's foreign drilled soldiers had fired upon the Boxers, who were destroying the railway near Tien Tsin, was favorably received, as giving some ground for hope that the government would change its policy. Now arrives the intelligence that Nieh's troops have been ordered to return to camp, and that their action has been condemned. The Chinese foreign office, however, denies the truth of the latter statement. But the denials of the foreign office are never convincing. If it be true, the news must be regarded as serious.

The American missionary conference today sent a dispatch to President McKinley, appealing for protection and asserting that the missionaries at Pao-Ting-Fu and other places are in extreme danger; that the Tung-Chau mission station has been adandoned; that chapels have evrywhere been burned, and that hundreds of native Christians have been massacred.

The serious condition of affairs in Pekin is reacting upon the provinces. The French minister here has received a telegram saying that the French consul at Hong-Tszo and the French agent at Hun-Nan-Fu have both been compelled to retire from their posts, as the viceroy announced that he was unable to guarantee their safety.

The government has delegated, as a commissioner to the chief centers of the Boxers, to investigate and report, a notorious anti-foreign official, who is known to be in sympathy with the Boxers, and who was the director of a mining and railway bureau that was founded to thwart all railway and mining developments.

Mexicans Outgeneralled by Indians.

Oaxaca, Mex., June 9.—General Bravo's large force of government troops met with unexpected opposition in its march on Chan Santa Cruz, the principal city of the Maya Indians, in Yucatan. Several thousand Indians made a flank attack on the troops and drove them back several miles. It is evident that the Indians are preparing to make a desperate stand at Chan Santa Cruz.

Connecticut's Golf Champion.

Noroton, Conn., June 9.—The golf championship of the state was won by Carl E. Martin, who defeated Charles H. Seeley by six up and five to play. Seeley, who was looked upon as a sure winner, showed very poor form.

Newport, Ky., June 9.—Jockey J. Perkins, while riding Tenletta in a race here yesterday, was thrown against the fence and fatally injured.

BULLER GAINS GROUND.

Secures a Position From Which He Can Render Laing's Nek Untenable.

Roberts Probably Planning to Reach Commandant Botha.

Ungrateful Return Made For Services Voluntarily Rendered by the Canadians.

London, June 9.—The war office has received the following dispatch from General Buller:

"Yellow Boom Farm, June 8.—On June 6 General Talbot Coke, with the Tenth brigade and the South African light horse, seized Van Wyke hill. The enemy made some resistance, and a good deal of sniping occurred. Our casualties were about four killed and 13 wounded.

"During that day and the following we got two 4.7 and two 12-pounders naval guns on to Van Wyke hill and two 5-inch guns on to the southwestern spur of Inkewelo. Under cover of their fire General Hildyard today assaulted all the spurs of the bergs between Botha's pass and Inkewelo.

"The attack, which was well planned by Hildyard and carried out with immense dash by the troops, for whom the mountains were too steep, outflanked the enemy, who were forced to retire from their very strong position.

"I think we did not have any casualties; and I hope I have obtained a position from which I can render Laing's Nek untenable."

Lord Roberts has communicated nothing for three days, nor permitted the correspondents to wire what is going on. London's inference is that he is resting, although he is possibly disposing his army for a reach after Commandant Botha.

A blockade of the wires, owing to the crush of official correspondence, may account for the scanty press dispatches.

Some telegrams filed a week ago only just now arriving. Among these are spirited descriptions of the fighting at Elandsfontein. According to one of them the streets were filled with women and children. Rifle shots could be heard everywhere. The British soldiers would stop firing and join in the chase after chickens. The burghers surrendered to any one. Kaffirs went about looting the Jewish stores and mounted infantry galloped hither and thither.

At Lourenzo Marquez station a crowd waited all Thursday night to see President Kruger, as it was reported that he would arrive by a special train to gain an asylum on board the Netherlands cruiser Friesland. Middleburg is said to be full of Boer refugees and wounded. The railway still delivers goods at Brookhorst Spruit, 40 miles east of Pretoria.

A British column is at Bremersdorp, Swasiland. The British at Beira are moving into the interior in detachments of 200 daily.

The Boers in the western part of the Transvaal are giving up their rifles to General Hunter.

Harold G. Parsons, federation delegate from western Australia, writes to the morning papers to protest against the treatment given the wounded Canadians. He says: "The invalid Canadians at Shornolift camp returned from the front complain that they are badly fed, unhealthily crowded and refused a furlough. This seems a curious return to make for their conspicuous services voluntarily rendered. I have it on indisputable authority that it is the practice of the war office to administer the British volunteer and, for all I know, the regular army, by that means of regulations drafted and issued in great part on no better authority than that of its promoted second-class clerks, a body of gentlemen, no doubt of irreproachable character, but by no means adapted by their intelligence or education to be entrusted with so great a responsibility.

"Such a delegation of authority, which is unconstitutional as well as unbusinesslike, is in itself enough to show that the whole war office, from top to bottom, must be reformed, if not reconstituted, after the war."

Evidence Accumulates Against Rathbone.

Havana, June 9.—The troubles of Mr. Rathbone seem to be increasing. The auditor's department has thrown out $15,000 worth of vouchers, including $8000 worth of bills, which have been paid twice, most of them at Muncie, Ind. The Fidelity company has been notified that it will be held responsible on Rathbone's bond. The manager of the company and Mr. Rathbone have held prolonged interviews, but no decision his been arrived at regarding this new aspect of the situation.

Grave Developments Possible.

Yokohama, June 9.—More serious from a Japanese point of view than the rising of the Boxers in China is the sudden tension between Japan and Korea as the result of the protests of Japan against the torture and execution of political prisoners by the Korean government. The Korean emperor absolutely refuses to grant an audience to the Japanese minister.

MOB APPLAUDED THE OUTRAGE.

"Gentler" Sex Play the Ruffian's Part In Attacks Upon Women at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 9.—A mob of boys last night beat and denuded Lena Kaenter, a young woman who makes her living by peddling lunches among employes of the California Avenue street car line. When the mob had stripped her to the waist, a woman daubed her with green paint, the mob applauding the outrage and throwing mud at the victim. Two shop girls were attacked by the same mob an hour later, and they also were partly denuded before they escaped.

An organized "committee" of women began to visit the public schools yesterday, accusing the teachers of riding on the taboed cars and threatening them with bodily harm if they did so again. At the Mount Pleasant school the leader of this committee seized the principal, Mrs. Rose Fanning, shook her violently and announced that she would be tarred and feathered if either she or any of her teachers rode on the cars again.

Charged With Killing a Baby.

Boston, June 9.—Patrick Meagher, 37, and Nellie O'Neil, 27, were arrested late Friday night, charged with murder in causing the death of a newly born infant, whose body was found wedged into a trap in the water closet in a house at the West End. Mrs. Margaret Meagher, 67, the mother of Patrick, and Mannie Meagher, 25, his sister, were also arrested as accessories to the crime, and Lizzie Greene, 35, was held as a witness. The condition of the O'Neil woman was such that she was ordered taken to the city hospital. All the arrested parties live in the house where the infant's body was found.

Three Miners Perished.

Gloucester, O., June 9.—Twe hundred miners were imprisoned early yesterday morning by an explosion of gas in mine No. 2 as many more men were just about to enter the mine for work. It was thought at first that the loss of life would be very large, but the work of the rescuers was carried on so energetically that all were rescued except three, who were killed. These men were engaged to watch the airge mine at night and see that it was in condition for the miners to enter in the morning. They were cut off from all means of escape at the time of the explosion. The mine is now on fire.

Club Women Elect Officers.

Milwaukee, June 9.—The feature of yesterday's session of the club women's convention was the election of officers. The ticket as made out by the nominating committee went through with little contest, the result being as follows: President, Mrs. Rebecca Lowe, Georgia; first vice president, Mrs. Charles Dennison, New York; second vice president, Miss Margaret J. Evans, Minnesota; recording secretary, Miss Emma Fox, Michigan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Kendrick, Pennsylvania; treasurer, Mrs. Emma Van Vrechten, Iowa; auditor, Mrs. George H. Noyes, Wisconsin.

Kenny Quickly Disposed Of.

New York, June 9.—Tom Sharkey knocked out "Yank" Kenny in the first round of what was to have been a 25-round heavyweight contest last night. Kenny had the advantage in height and reach. While the big fellow tried to shake him off, the smaller man got there with the power of every muscle in his body and made short work of his antagonist by landing a right-hand smash on the jaw, and the big fellow toppled to the floor. He tried to get up, but was unable and was on his face when the count ended.

Definite Results Not Yet Obtained.

Washington, June 9.—A number of the photographic plates of the solar eclipse taken by the scientists of the United States naval observatory have been developed with very satisfactory results. Whether or not they will add anything to the stock of astronomical knowledge must await a careful study of each photographic plate, and at present nothing can be learned on this point.

Heavy Damages Awarded.

Northampton, Mass., June 9.—A jury in the superior court came to the conclusion that injuries received by John Stack of this city in a grade crossing accident were serious enough to entitle $5916 compensation. Stack was in a wagon, in September, 1897, when a train demolished it at a crossing. Stack's injuries resulted in paralysis of the limbs.

Had Been Missing Since March 23.

Woodsville, N. H., June 9.—The body of Raymond L. Olds was found in the shallow water at Second River island Friday. Olds had been missing since March 23. He was a brakeman on the Boston and Maine railroad. As money and valuables were found in the clothing it is likely that the drowning was accidental.

Burial of an Eminent Divine.

New York, June 9.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Rev. Dr. Storrs were held from the Church of the Pilgrims, in Brooklyn, yesterday. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery. A death mask was taken of Dr. Storrs, and from it will be made a bust for Amherst college.

Prosperous Farmer Drowns Himself.

Barnet, Vt., June 9.—William C. Kinney, a well-to-do farmer, aged 53 years, committed suicide, by drowning, near his home here. He went to a brook near the house with some kittens to drown, and soon after he was found in the water, face downward.

Coupling Pin Gave Way.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 9.—A Boston way freight, while passing Woodlawn station, was wrecked by the breaking of a coupling which set the air brakes on the engine, and the latter and four cars were forced from the rails. Four cars were badly smashed.

Good Afternoon.

Kansas will harvest the largest wheat crop in her history this year. Calamity howling is out of date in the state.

John Bull, being built on the expansion plan, only has to let out his belt a couple of holes to make room for his new South African territory.

Here's wishing good luck to the Wisconsin paper mills which have combined to fight the International Paper Company, the extortion of which has been felt by every publisher in the country.

The legislature will order the printing of 1000 copies of the report of the State Board of Health on the general subject of the discharge of sewage into Boston harbor. This is a subject of vital interest to Quincy lest our shores become polluted.

Nothing that we have done for Cuba is likely to be productive of more lasting good than the bringing at the expense of the goverment, of 1,500 Cuban school teachers to the United States, to attend free of charge the summer school of Harvard university.

American woolen goods are beginning to reach the market of the world, under a tariff that protects the farmers' wool clip. Last year we exported over a million dollars' worth of American woolens, and our imports of woolens were a mere trifle compared with those under the Wilson law.

Senator Lodge says the increase in our trade with Hawaii has been very marked since its annexation by the United States, and he looks for equally rapid improvement in our trade with Porto Rico and the Philippines. These colonies will absorb some of our surplus manufactures, and they will also draw upon this country for their provisions, thus increasing the demand for the products of American farms.

Editor McPherson of the Legislative Committee on Manufactures has about the right idea relative to the gas situation in Boston. His report adopted by the committee recommends incorporation of the New England gas and coke company and no reduction in the price of gas while Senator Woodsum, and it is said other members of the committee, believe in state supervision of the New England gas and coke company without the elements of compulsory incorporation. Representative McPherson claims that under his report whatever fictitious capitalization there may be in the New England gas and coke company is swept away.

In the House yesterday a toll of ten cents per car was proposed as an amendment ts the bill to permit the Metropolitan park commissioners to grant street railway locations in the reservations. This amendment was opposed by Representative Sprague and others, who wanted to make the reservations accessible to the poor people. The bill without the amendment was ordered to a third reading 123 to 27. There are many in Quincy, including adults who were born here who have been unable to climb to the summit of Blue Hill or roam through, the reservation. When the electric cars brings the reservation nearer it will be appreciated. The reservations should be for the benefit of the masses not for the rich man with his carriage or automobile.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Senator Chandler objects to the "leave to print" privilege, by which pages of speeches which are never delivered appear in the Congressional Record. It is a waste of white paper and black ink, but it is a question if the priviledge should be abolished if the saving would not be overbalanced by the waste of time in the delivery of those speeches in the house and senate. These spouters are bound to be heard, and although they object to the labor of delivering a speech, would endure it if it were the only way their vaporings could get to the world at large. The Congressional Record is a monumental folly, but, like everything else in the world, it serves some purpose.—Haverhill Gazette.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15c. and 25c.

NO NEW TRAINS.

And No Changes Whatever in the Quincy Service.

The smmer time table which will go into effect on Sunday on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., will not make a single change in the Boston service given the stations of Quincy, either week days or Sundays on the main line or Granite branch.

Quincy will continue to have 26 trains to Boston on week days, every one stopping at Wollaston, and all but three at Norfolk Downs and Atlantic. These three, at 7.26, 7.56 and 8.26 will stop at Neponset instead. The trains at 1.12 and 7.12 P. M., will also stop at Neponset and several of the evening trains will continue to stop at most of the stations.

West Quincy and East Milton will continue to have 19 trains each way on week days, and 6 each way on Sundays. Montclair will have 11 trains each way on week days, and on Sundays 3 outward and 4 inward.

Ducks This Time.

About 1 30 o'clock Friday morning Officer Larkin discovered what looked like a fire among the outbuildings on the premises occupied by Charles Ford Upon investigation he found a brisk fire in progress in a brooder in which were fifty ducks. Officer Larkin aroused the family and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they had communicated to the surrounding buildings, and without summoning the fire department. The brooder was however destroyed, and the ducks roasted. The fire probably started from the lamp.

Borden batted hard getting two baggers, Brigham and Burchstead both put up a fast game. Smith of the Dean's played a fine batting and fielding game.

ACCIDENTS FROM GAS.

Carelessness and Ignorance In Cooking, Lighting and Heating.

Numerous accidents occur annually in the use of gas for lighting, cooking or heating, through either carelessness or ignorance, says the New York News. The largest number of accidents probably occur from ignorant persons either blowing out the gas or turning it off and subsequently turning the cock on sufficiently for the gas to escape unnoticed.

Many other accidents are the result of the bad practice of turning down a gas flame, particularly in a bedroom. This is always ill advised, for such a turned down flame may be either blown out by a draft of air from an open window or else it may be extinguished by a sudden variation or reduction in the pressure. When this happens in a small bedroom without ventilation, there is great danger of asphyxiation, particularly so if water gas is used. Much can be done to avert this danger by a proper arrangement of the gas piping in houses.

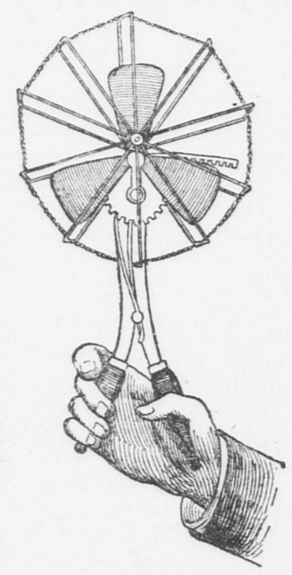

Another dangerous custom is to shut off the gas at the main service or at the gas meter during the night, and numerous accidents, some of them fatal, have resulted from it. It is almost equally bad to turn off the gas at the meter during the day.

Notwithstanding the universal introduction of gas lighting, there are still many persons who would be benefited by receiving plain instructions on the use of gas in the household. Gas companies would benefit themselves and the public by paying more attention to this matter. Among available statistics may be found numerous incidents of death or accidents due to faulty management of gas. Among the more remote causes the writer finds the following mentioned: In one of the two adjoining rooms, supplied with gas from one so called prepayment gas meter, a man retired for the night when the gas supply from the meter was exhausted, but forgot to close his gas burner. The occupant of the adjoining room came home late at night, dropped a coin in the slot of the gas meter and got a fresh supply of gas, which meanwhile also escaped in the adjoining room, killing the occupant.

Escape of gas and explosions have also happened in the use of gas cooking stoves where boiling water, running over the vessel, extinguished the flame. It has already been mentioned that the so called independent gas connections with two keys may lead to accidents by the wrong one being turned by mistake. Where the gas in the cellar freezes in winter time it is dangerous to attempt to thaw out the gas meter or service with a flame. A gas meter should never be examined with a burning light, nor should any tools be used near a gas meter known to be leaky, on account of the danger of flying sparks.

Keeping Cool by Machinery.

A decided summer season novelty, says the Philadelphia Record, is the auto-rotary hand fan, the power for turning the fan being supplied by means of a rack and pinion arrangement which gives this fan the advantage that it can be carried around and is not dependent upon any outside source of power supply. One pressure of the hand rotates the blades for several minutes, the speed reaching a maximum of 2,800 revolutions per minute. The guards, as well as the blades, may be folded up, and the fan may then be carried in the pocket. It weighs less than five ounces and is finished in heavy nickel plate. Its operation as shown in the illustration, as stated, is on the rack and pinion principle, the reciprocating motion being obtained by means of tongs which are held in the hand.

POCKET POWER FAN.

Machine For Basket Making.

Just before he died the noted Mergenthaler completed a wonderful machine for making the cheap baskets such as grapes are commonly packed in. Where an expert operator formerly produced 300 grape baskets daily by hand the same operator with the machine, with greater ease, can now produce 4,000 baskets daily, and these machine made baskets are said to be superior in every way to the hand-made article. He has utilized several of the principles of his linotype machine.—Popular Science.

An electrical horsewhip described in a recent number of Electricity gives the animal a shock instead of a cut. A small battery is imbedded in the celluloid handle, and this is controlled by a push button.

ECLIPSE OF SUN.

F. H. Palmer of Braintree Writes to the Observer.

By the kindness of Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, who did not organize any party for the eclipse of the sun, some people who applied to them were referred to me. I also advertised a little and thus gathered together a party of 16 ladies and gentlemen who were interested in an amateur way in the science of astronomy. One gentleman, a physician from Gloucester, Mass., carried along a two and a half inch telescope and gave us some excellent preliminary glimpses of the moons of Jupiter, the phases of Venus, etc.

We went by Fall River line to New York, thence by Baltimore and Ohio railroad to Washington, where we tarried 26 hours. We saw the principal buildings, including the new Congressional Library, than which there is not a finer building in America, if there is in Europe. It is a "dream in marble" with exquisite frescoes, representing Peace, War, History, Science, Art, Music, Literature, and almost every other interest of humanity. We went into the Senate and heard Senator Spooner make one of his vigorous and convincing speeches in defense of the Philippine policy of the Administration.

Sailing down the Potomac from Washington to Norfolk, Va., we passed Mt. Vernon and many other historical places, including the spot near which the famous Monitor and Merrimac fight took place. Taking the Seaboard Air Line railway at Portsmouth we went into the interior of North Carolina to Southern Pines, thinking to get the best weather conditions in that warm, sandy region away from all danger of sea fogs.

Our expectations were justified when we awoke on Monday morning to find an absolutely cloudless sky and every condition as favorable as possible for observing the eclipse. We took carriages and drove to Tilman's hill, about two miles out of Southern Pines. Another scientific party from Providence, R. I., was encamped there and had a fine array of cameras and telescopes adjusted for the great event.

Our doctor was operating under the direction of the Smithsonian Institute, his special aim being to carefully study the mysterious shadow bands which immediately preceed and follow totality. Most of us were there simply to gather the aesthetic rather than the scientific impression of the occasion. Personally I was especially interested in the effect of phenomena on nature and on humanity.

We watched the shadow deepen over the landscape and awaited almost with awe the coming of the deep darkness when the shadow of the moon should wholly obscure the glorious orb of day. This final shadow of totality travels at the rate of about 19 miles a minute, which is of course too fast for the human eye to follow. Therefore we could not mark its approaching edge, but found ourselves suddenly enveloped in it.

It was a most impressive moment. A hush crept over all nature. After a single preliminary "Oh!" from everybody, each person under that dark pall stood breathless and awed. The leaves on the trees seemed to cease their previous restless movement, dogs cowered under wagons, fowls went to roost, the mocking bird that had made the neighboring grove vocal ceased to sing.

All eyes were turned toward the heavens where hung that black disk of the moon against the sun. The magnificent corona with its fiery protuberances, and the long streamers of electric(?) light shooting out for millions of miles into space made the center of a spectacle such as human eyes do not often rest upon, and which is certainly worth going a long way to see. The stars came out and added their beauty to the strange scene.

Meanwhile the scientists were improving their brief moment. We could hear them counting off the seconds and clicking their camera plates. They had only about ninety seconds in which to do their momentous work. But those were pregnant seconds. We cannot doubt that much was added to the sum of human knowledge in that short minute and a half, as all the conditions along the whole line of totality were so perfect, and such a host of hungry minds and eager eyes were elaborately gathering in all that modern scientific ingenuity could suggest as a possible source of information.

When the all too short period of totality was over and the bright edge of the sun came forth from behind the shadow with splendid and dazzling brightness I found myself all of a tremble with exalted excitement. One quite undemonstrative elderly gentleman of the party rushed down from a piazza whence he had veiwed the eclipse and grasping me by the hand said, "Oh, I wouldn't have missed that for a fortune. What shall I pay you for bringing us down to see it?" He was fairly beside himself with enthusiastic delight. It was certainly a most impressive spectacle and I would advise every one who is alive in 1919, when the next eclipse is visible, I believe, in the United States, to go and see it what ever may be the cost.

We returned by way of Old Point Comfort, where we tarried for twenty-four hours, visiting Hampton Institute, Fortress Monroe and other interesting points. We had a delightful sea voyage from Norfolk to Boston over unruffled waters in the splendid steamer "Kershaw" of the Merchant's and Miner's Line, well satisfied with all the varied features of our outing.

Sincerely yours,
F. H. Palmer.

House and 10,000 feet land on Safford street, to Chester Howard of Boston.

Stable and 14,000 feet land on Belmont sreett, to George Spaulding of Boston. Mr. Nickerson will erect a house on this lot for Mr. Spaulding.

Block of stores at Atlantic to George W. Taylor of Boston.

Mr. Nickerson has also sold the whole of Parker Hill, Roxbury, 550,000 feet, assessed for $125,000 to Joseph Warren of Boston.

Stole Watch and Got Drunk.

People can not be too careful about letting strange peddlers enter their houses. Thursday a clam peddler named Silas H. Webber called at the house of Mrs. Catherine Foley on Whitwell street, and while her back was turned he helped himself to a watch. It was missed as soon as he had left, and Mrs. Foley gave chase. She was joined by Mr. Moorehouse, who overhauled Webber and obtained the watch. The affair was reported to the police and a warrant issued against Webber. Before he could be apprehended he was arrested in Harrison Square for drunkenness, and sent to Deer Island for eight days. When he is released he will be arrested on the Quincy warrant.

Personal.

It is pleasing to hear good words concerning the men Quincy sends to the Legislature. The Boston Advertiser says: "Sheppard of Quincy has won not a few honors during this session. Not only has he captured prizes for his punctuality, but furthermore, he has been successful in his efforts for his district. Sheppard is not a continuous talker, but he is a man who has the happy faculty of saying the word that is needed. On the railroad committee he has made a consistent stand, which has helped to bring in not only the railroad lease, but other measures as well.

Was in Naval Fight.

The funeral of James Moody, a sailor of the United States Navy, was held from St. John's church this morning, services being conducted by Rev. John J. Casey. Mr Moody entered the navy when a boy, and remained in the service until about a year ago, when he was honorably discharged owing to consumption. When the war with Spain broke out he was on the Chicago and was later transferred to the Oregon upon which vessel he was at the naval battle at Santago Harbor. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Anxious Parents.

Sarah Carr, a domestic employed in the family of Charles F. Wing of Gay street, took their twenty months-old infant out at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon for an airing. When night came on and the girl had not returned, the family became worried, and shortly before 10 o'clock reported the matter to the police. Shortly after, Inspector Ferguson found the girl and infant wandering about City Square. The girl appeared dazed and did not know where she was or where she was going. She was taken home.

ADVICE—MASCULINE.

While Cupid sways this mundane sphere
And men are only human,
She is most wise who won't appear
Too reasonable a woman.

Alack that fate ordained it so!
'Tis passing melancholy;
But naught that reason e'er can show
Is half so sweet as folly.

In arrant whims some witchcraft lies
That logic ever misses,
And common sense looks plain to eyes
That seek capricious blisses,

While unto every lover's fire
It adds a wealth of fuel
If she who doth his love inspire
Is sometimes rather cruel.

Know what you will, mesdames, but know
The acme of all knowledge
Is tact, albeit we cannot show
Its chair in any college.

Keep some small foibles—for I deem
You have them, being human—
And so be what you do not seem—
A reasonable woman.

A TROOPER'S SECRET

It Was Only Revealed After He Had Fallen.

Copyright, 1900, by Ervin Wardman.

Maybe you have served in the ranks and know all about it; but, if not, let me tell you that war develops strange things in men. In a company of 100 men you will find more love, romance and sorrow than you would hear of among 1,000 men at home. It was a comrade's pleasure and duty to share these things with a comrade. At home a man would not have talked of his love, his hopes and fears even to a brother. Down there in the enemy's country, in hut or tent or lying under the same blanket after the day's fight or march, man turned to man and whispered his secrets. It was because we marched together, fought together, ate together and the shadow of death covered us all alike.

You like a man who has shared your hardships; you love him when he has shared your dangers. So it was that one might sit down with the company roster before him and tell of those who had left wives behind them, and those who had left sweethearts, and those who had found correspondents and were mingling romance with war.

It was known, as if it were a family matter, that the orderly sergeant's wife had died since he left home, leaving four children motherless; that Private Hayes had quarreled with his sweetheart; that Corporal Johnson's farm was going to rack and ruin since he enlisted. We heard these things and a thousand others, and we stood always ready to congratulate or sympathize with each other. I have known the big sergeant to come rushing into a winter hut occupied by six men and wake them all up that he might read a letter from home telling that the baby actually had taken three whole steps all by himself. We were men as to war, women as to gossip, children as to trifles.

It was so with all of Company G except in one single instance. Trooper Haskins was a stranger among us when he enlisted. He continued to be a stranger to his last hour. When we sized him up, as men size up each other, we knew that he had some secret in his life which he did not care to lay bare to the world. One could see by the stoop of his shoulders, by the look in his eyes and by the wrinkles on his face that he had been hard hit and would suffer to the end.

As men we respected his secret and praised his courage in bearing up under his sorrows, but as soldiers we felt that his lack of confidence in us was an imputation. We stood ready to condole and sympathize, but he kept us at arm's length. We felt sorry for him at first that he received no letters—that there was not one single person in all the world to write a word of cheer—but his careless indifference soon provoked our indignation. We gave each other the gossip of country and village as we marched; we read each other's letters as we smoked at the campfire; we whispered our confidences in the darkness—all except Private Haskins. He had no friend. He had a comrade, but only in the sense that he shared the same fly tent and the same rations. When the comrade had failed to discover whether Haskins was married or single, divorced or a bachelor, a man who had been deeply wronged or a cynic—when he could get nothing whatever from him as to his past—he turned away from him and said to us:

"Boys, I can't make him out, and I'm not going to try any further. If he don't want to be one of us, let him slide."

We got down on Private Haskins to the extent that he was socially outlawed. That meant more than I can explain to you. We gave him credit for his soldierly qualities—and it was useless to deny that he was a brave man—but he was forced to live alone, as it were, in the midst of thousands. He noted every move made against him, and many of them must have hurt his feelings and added to his burdens, but no one ever heard him complain. I believe he secretly was glad of his isolation. It gave him time to think and meditate, and he would do this by the hour. We didn't misjudge the man, I am glad to recall, but we simply ostracized him in a social way, just as society crowds out the man who tramples on the conventionalities. On his part he must have felt that no words of sympathy from us could have made his case better, or he would have "chummed up" and been one of us.

By and by, after two or three battles, strange whispers were circulated about regarding Private Haskins. He courted death. He had gone down into the fray with shut teeth and flashing eyes and taken such chances that he was called a devil on one hand and a fool on the other.

Men who watched him closely denied that he was looking for promotion or a record. He was seeking to end it all on the battlefield. There was nothing more in life for him, and it would be better to die with saber in hand than to snuff out his own life like a coward. Our respect for the man increased, but yet he was still outlawed and we still carried a feeling of resentment against him.

One day, in the depths of the forest, while winter still held its grip on the land, I came across him lying at full length on the ground. He was moaning and weeping. For ten minutes he sobbed as a man does only when some great sorrow has wasted his strength, turned back his years and taken him back to childhood. Awed and frightened and wondering, I crept silently away and left him with his grief. Two hours later I met him to find that he had conquered himself. It seemed as if there was a new line of care in his face and that there was a new touch of silver in his hair, but he was not to betray his secret. He did not know that his struggle had been witnessed, and I was dumb as to what I had seen.

A week later Troop G was sent out on a scout and rode into a tight place. It was reported that all of us did our duty in the half hour's hot fighting, but there was only one hero. Even with the pistols flashing and the sabers whirling I watched Private Haskins as he waved his saber on high and thundered into the thick of the melee. He fought to kill and be killed, but death passed him by.

We whispered to each other that he was a hero, deserving of a medal of gold, and we esteemed and exalted him, but the circle did not open to let him in. He was not of us—he had not been for a year—and no act of his in battle could make him so. He knew it as well as we did, and he made no advance. He had our respect and admiration in the fullest, but he did not have and did not wish for our comradeship and sympathy. We knew that there are things which must lie buried in the human bosom forever and ever, no matter what the cost, but yet we resented it when our sympathy was refused.

It was two weeks after our fight when I was detailed on vedette duty with Private Haskins. We were to take the post together. In the winter camp behind us there was the hum of preparation for the spring campaign. In the quarters of the enemy, a dozen miles away, there was the same excitement. We rode to a post on the highway and dismounted under a tree. I remember that the sun shone warm, the buds were starting, and here and there a robin was raising his glad song. Little was said between us, and by and by Private Haskins fell into one of his moods.

From the corner of my eye I watched his pipe puff at longer intervals until it finally died out. He looked straight ahead of him across the field or the wall as his ears drank in the notes of the birds. He forgot that I was near. His thoughts went back to the old grief, and I saw the changes in his soul written on his face. There were joy and gladness; there were grief and pain; there were wavering and determination. At the end of a quarter of an hour he suddenly sobbed in his throat. Then he rose up and started across the field toward the wall.

"What is it, Haskins? What do you see? Hold on!" I called to him, but he never halted or turned his head.

"Come back!" I called. "A sharpshooter may be hiding behind the wall! Come back!"

I heard him gasping and sobbing as he pushed forward. I would have run after him and caught him, as one might a somnambulist who was approaching the edge of a precipice, but just then our horses reared and snorted and required my strongest efforts to prevent them from breaking away. When I could look around, the man was nearly at the wall. I was about to shout at him again, when he stopped, threw up his arms and sank down, and he was lying on his back on the frostbitten grass before I heard the report of the rifle which had slain him. Then a squad of cavalry dashed out and tried to capture me, and I went thundering up the road toward the reserve picket with bullets singing louder than the robins.

Half an hour later I was back with a squadron. We charged past the dead man on the grass and up to the stone wall, but no one was in sight. All that we saw was the peaceful farmhouse beyond; all that we heard were the voices of the birds.

The enemy had been to view the man they had slain. From one of his pockets, in searching for what might be worth carrying away, they had taken an old letter—a letter dated years before and in a woman's hand. They had read it, or at least a few lines of it. Then they had spread it out on his breast and left him with body unsearched, perhaps lifting their hats in reverence as they turned to ride away.

We saw the letter and lifted it up and realized that therein was the trooper's secret.

"Let no man read it!" commanded the captain. "It belonged to him. He is dead." And, holding it aloft in his hand, he touched the letter with a lighted match, and as the paper shriveled and curled and became ashes, to be carried away by the breeze, we uncovered our heads and said:

"It was his secret—his and God's!"—New York Press.

Trusts and Wages.

THE NEW CUSHIONS.

ONE OF THE SUMMER'S NECESSITIES AND LUXURIES.

A Plentiful Supply Is Correct and Comfortable — One Which Looks Like a Great Rose—A Natty Affair In Gingham and Cotton Work.

A stack of cushions forms part of the fashionable furnishing of every room in the house, unless it may be the kitchen, for every room nowadays has its lounging place or cozy corner, and at no time is a full and fresh supply of these comfortable accessories more imperative than in the season just dawning upon us. Some useful details about the new cushions are therefore reproduced from The Designer.

The puff cushion is not, strictly speaking, new, but it is new when made as in the illustration—that is to say, the outer row of puffs is made of deep cerise china silk, the next row toward the center of a little lighter cerise, the next of deep pink and the center of quite light pink. This makes the cushion, when completed, look like a great rose. The outer ruffle is made of a deep cerise silk. Narrow cerise velvet ribbon is carried between each row of puffs, concealing the joining of one to the other. Each puff is made separately on a square of thin muslin or cheesecloth. The mode of making the puffs is shown in the small detail. A tiny plait is taken in the center of each side, all plaits turning in the same direction. These are held by tacking stitches, then the puff square is basted on the muslin square, the edges of both being neatly turned in and a row of machine stitching holding both together. Afterward the small squares are basted on a square the size of the cushion top and the velvet ribbon run between.

The ruffle that finishes the edge is made of the china silk doubled. The size of the puff squares depends upon the size the cushion is to be. For a cushion 18 inches square, not including ruffle, the puff squares should be 2¼ inches square when finished. Cut the pieces to be puffed about 2½ inches, the extra quarter inch allowing for the fullness.

An excellent hammock or porch pillow is one made of gingham, plaided red and white or blue and white goods being selected. The cushion may be made of one large square of the gingham or several small squares joined together. The cut shows almost without the need of description just how each little square is worked. The center is the only portion that is at all complicated. To work this carry the threads from one side across to the other, making a darning stitch where they cross at the center. After all the long stitches are taken with the thread weave in and out each arm of the cross, being careful to secure the thread firmly at the end. Wash silk or heavy cotton is used for the working. If the squares are joined together, the joining is concealed by featherstitching.

Plain blue or red linen is used for the ruffle that edges the cushion. This cover can be laundered without injuring it in the least if care is taken to always iron it on the wrong side, so as to raise the darned work.

Pea Timbales.

Mix one cupful of pea pulp with two beaten eggs, a few drops of onion juice, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two-thirds teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper and a few grains of cayenne. Turn into buttered molds and bake in a pan of hot water until firm. Serve with one cupful of white sauce, to which is added one-third cupful of peas drained from their liquor and thoroughly rinsed.

Disinfection.

A new way to disinfect a room is to use a small disinfecting pan with a reservoir that contains the disinfecting liquid. This is to be heated and converted into a gas by a flame beneath the reservoir. The gas is directed through a nozzle to any part of the room.

JUNE WEDDINGS.

Some of the Perplexities of Etiquette That Cluster Round Them.

June is the month of all months for weddings, no other time being so favored as this season of sunshine and roses. Many perplexing questions of etiquette cluster round the proper consummation of the momentous event. The Designer, in discussing some of them, says:

The "at home" cards of the bride and groom are in this country sometimes sent out with the wedding invitations. In Europe this is never done, it being obviously incorrect to speak of "Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown" before the marriage has taken place. They should, however, be sent out as soon as the happy pair return from their bridal trip in order that their friends may know that they are prepared to receive calls. Such cards should be sent not only to the personal friends of both, but also to the friends of their respective parents, even those who live at a distance. The omission of this delicate courtesy is always a mark of ill breeding, though it is painfully common.

Wedding gifts should be acknowledged by the bride to be as soon as convenient after their receipt. For this purpose small sized note paper of good quality must be used, with envelopes to match. In each instance a brief, but cordial, note is called for. It is advisable to acknowledge all presents before the wedding.

At an elaborate home wedding the programme is very similar to that of a church ceremony, the bride, who advances to the improvised altar on the arm of her father or nearest male relative, being preceded by her bridesmaids and met there by the clergyman, the groom and the best man. After the ceremony the newly married pair do not separate, but receive the congratulations of their friends while standing side by side.

According to European usage, a maid of honor is not permissible when there are several bridesmaids, this title being used only when the bride has but one attendant. In other cases, the bridesmaid who stands nearest the bride in point of relationship is called the "chief bridesmaid" and walks immediately behind the bride. The American custom, however, sanctions the presence of a maid of honor in addition to the bridesmaids, her place in the bridal procession being immediately following the bridesmaids and preceding the bride. The pages, if any, follow the latter, and so close the procession. A widow, at her second marriage, should have but one female attendant, who is called the maid of honor, but she may be attended by one or two pages.

Groomsmen are no longer included in the list of wedding requirements, the "best man" being considered sufficient support for the most nervous of bridegrooms. In reforming the bridal procession after the ceremony, the bride and groom leave the altar first, being followed by the maid of honor with the best man, then by the bridesmaids and, lastly, by the pages, if any. If the ceremony take place in church, the bridal pair invariably leave the building first and the bride's parents next, before either the bridesmaids or guests.

Variety In Cereals.

I would suggest variety in the use of cereals, says a writer in The Woman's Home Companion. Any one gets tired of always having the same thing, and there is no excuse for this monotony when one considers all the various preparations of oats, maize and wheat. So if you give your family oatmeal for a few mornings surprise them at another breakfast with hominy or cracked wheat or granulated barley or some similar preparation. The very fact that it is a surprise will make it all the more welcome and, for that matter, all the more beneficial.

One of the Modish Inventions.

Try the charming effect of a fringe made of black, white or colored satin cords. As a finish for scarfs and sashes or cravats this turns out exceedingly well. It is one of the modish inventions, and experience proves that such fringe wears so well that it pays. Adopt it. For variety narrow inch or half inch satin or taffeta ribbons in double loops are spaced off between a group of these cords. In white or light colors the result is most satisfactory, but the cord alone gives the best effect in a black fringe.—Vogue.

Piquant and Stylish Chapeaux.

The piquant and stylish chapeaux sketched represent, as to the upper one, a fawn crinoline crown trimmed with fawn tulle veiled with black and black velvet flowers and green leaves. The lower one is a most becoming toque of deep pink fancy straw and tulle, pink ribbon, roses and pink and purple grapes.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Gross Railway Earnings Show Large Volume of Business—Heavy Failures In May.

New York, June 9.—Bradstreet's says: New business at wholesale is of a between-seasons character, but warmer weather has offered a stimulus in some business sections. Chief activity and most attention is, however, still concentrated on the price situation, and efforts to readjust quotations to meet current demand and supply conditions go forward steadily. That a heavy volume of business is being transacted in the country at large is evident in the very considerable gains over a year ago noted in gross railway earnings. Purely mercantile failures are relatively few in number, and bank clearings show a rather less marked falling off from last year.

The only exception to the general downfall trend of prices is that furnished in leading farm products, notably cereals; but here the moving cause is hardly a favorable one, being the result of less satisfactory wheat crop reports. If, as has been claimed, lowered prices for iron favor an increased consumption, current developments in this trade may be classed as favorable because concessions are being steadily made in nearly every branch of trade.

Cotton is slightly weaker on reports of heavy increased acreage, but the crop is late and advices this week are of an excess of rain in the Mississippi valley and Texas. Cotton goods are dull.

Wool is dull and on the whole slightly weaker at eastern markets.

Little that is new comes from the shoe business. Leather is dull and rather weaker.

Price shadings are reported the rule in lumber, and these, coupled with low water in the northwest, will, it is hoped, restrict new production.

Business failures for the week number 184, as compared with 178 in this week a year ago. Failures are down to a minimum as regards number, but a few large embarrassments in widely separated sections and lines of business swelled the aggregate of liabilities in May beyond those of April or of those a year ago. Telegraph reports indicate 713 mercantile failures during May, with liabilities aggregating $8,159,571.

The Advance of Arbitration.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., June 9.—At yesterday's session of the Lake Mohonk arbitration conference Rev. Dr. Horr of Boston commented upon the wonderful advance seen in the cause of arbitration, for which so much was due the Mohonk conference. He praised the work of The Hague conference, the moral force of which was very great. Rev. E. C. Moore of Providence deprecated the fact that the nations are so slow to see that disarmament is a great stepping stone to peace. Professor Smith of Yale university found the greatest encouragement in the existing situation. War was not so frequent as it was in the old times.

His Partner Didn't Get Bail.

Boston, June 9.—Everett F. Martin and Miss Winifred Robinson of this city, who were arrested in New York city recently on the charge of larceny from parties in this city, were brought here Friday night in charge of headquarters' officers. Young Martin was released on $1500 bail, and he left at once for his home in Mattapan, accompanied by his wife, who was awaiting him at police headquarters. Martin is suffering from rheumatism. Miss Robinson failed to secure bail.

Free Transportation For Cuban Teachers.

Washington, June 9.—The quartermaster general has completed arrangements for the transportation to the United States of 1483 Cuban school teachers, who have decided to take advantage of the summer course of free tuition offered them by Harvard university. This course will last from July 1 to September, when the teachers will be returned by the war department to their homes. Five big transports have been set apart for this purpose.

Another Fire at Foxboro.

Foxboro, Mass., June 9.—Property still continues to catch fire in this town from unaccounted causes, although tramps are thought to have set the one which destroyed the house, barn and a horse on the Barton place in East Foxboro Friday night. Loss about $2000.

Got Little For Their Trouble.

Portland, Me., June 9.—A young man was assaulted on Congress street, Portland's busiest thoroughfare, at about 11 o'clock last night. After roughly using their victim the two footpads went through his pockets and took two pocketbooks, both of which were empty.

Wreck of Schooner George Bird.

Rockland, Me., June 9.—A cablegram received in this city states that the three-masted schooner George Bird is ashore on Crab island, off Porto Rico, and will be a total loss. She was sugar laden, and was owned chiefly in this city. Her value was $7000.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

SEVEN KNIFE WOUNDS.

Bride of Three Months a Victim of Jealous Husband's Furious Assault.

Is In a Critical Condition But May Recover.

Mother-In-Law of Assailant Attempted to Interfere and Was Badly Slashed.

Boston, June 9.—With a jackknife in his hand, George Sakis, a colored oiler on the steamer Prince George, now at Long wharf, in a fit of passion brought on by jealousy, attempted to kill his 18-year-old wife, Etta, a bride of three months, Friday afternoon, and, although failing to do this, he wounded her seriously, and assaulted her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson. The affair occurred on board the Prince George, where the women had gone to get money from Sakis. Sakis is under arrest, and his wife is at a hospital suffering from seven stab wounds.

Mrs. Sakis is at the emergency hospital with seven stab wounds and is very weak. Her wounds, however, are not believed to be fatal. Mrs. Wilson was not seriously injured, and was sent to her home in Roxbury after treatment at the hospital.

Sakis has been jealous of the relations which he claimed have existed between his wife and his brother, and has several times remonstrated with her. Friday was Sakis' pay day, and during the afternoon his wife and mother-in-law visited him on board the steamer, the former to get whatever money he was to give her.

Mrs. Wilson remained outside while Mrs. Sakis went into the engine room where her husband was working. According to Mrs. Sakis her husband spoke to her about her alleged intimacy with his brother, and becoming enraged by her answers, grabbed a large jackknife and began a desperate attack on her. Mrs. Wilson heard her daughter's screams and, with workmen on the steamer, rushed into the engine room where Sakis and his wife were struggling.

The latter was bleeding from several wounds and had just grabbed the knife with her hand when her mother entered. Sakis was infuriated when he saw his mother-in-law, and rushing at her made several vicious slashes at her, one blow cutting a gash in her face.

Men on the steamer overpowered Sakis before he could strike again, and the police were called, while the two women were carried to the hospital.

Mrs. Sakis' wounds consist of three cuts on the neck, one of which extends across the throat, three cuts on the back and one on the hip. Both thumbs were also cut, showing where she had grabbed the knife in the struggle. Mrs. Sakis declares that there was no foundation whatever for her husband's jealousy.

Sakis, who is 35 years old, lived with his wife at 12 Blossom court. He admitted the cutting, but claimed that it was justifiable in view of provocation given him by his wife by taunting replies.

Joseph F. Maloney of Lynn, Mass., the candidate for president on the Socialists Labor ticket, made a speech eulogizing the working class and condemning the capitalists.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 10—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lives that lift.—Luke xiii, 20, 21.

THE PARABLE.

This topic is illustrated by the parable of the leaven and the meal. It is associated by the evangelists with that of the mustard seed—the one representing the external growth and spread of Christ's church and the other the internal growth of Christian principles and their universal extension. After the parable of the mustard seed, Jesus said: "Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God? It is like leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened."

THE INTERPRETATION.

The kingdom of God represents the church which is to spread over the world as the leaven throughout the meal. The leaven represents the word of God, or the new living principle brought into the world by Christ, which is to be implanted in the hearts of men and which will lift them as leaven lifts or raises the meal. There is no significance in the fact that there were three measures of meal or that it was a woman who hid the leaven in the meal. This was the usual amount, and the work was such as a woman usually performs.

THE APPLICATION.

This parable very naturally suggests the lifting force of Christianity upon the lives of men. It not only suggests lifting lives, but sets before us some facts in reference to lives that lift.

1. Lives that lift must themselves first be lifted. All men in their natural estate are like the meal. They need a leaven to raise them from a condition of sinfulness before God to a position that is acceptable to God. It is easy to see that this is necessary before our lives can influence the lives of others for good. The blind cannot lead the blind. The unreformed cannot reform. Before a portion of meal could leaven that adjoining it it must itself be leavened. No man can lift the lives of others by this new force which Christ has brought into the world until we ourselves are Christianized and lifted.

2. Lives that lift must come in actual contact with the lives that need to be lifted. The leaven had to touch the meal before it would be leavened. So, by the touch of our lives in some way, the principle of new life which we possess must be implanted in the hearts and lives of others if they are to be lifted Christward and heavenward. By personal example, by personal attentions, by personal persuasions, we must make our lives touch the lives of others if we are to win them for Christ.

3. The greatest lifter of lives is Christ Himself. He is the life. The leaven is really not so much the word of Christ as it is Christ Himself. Christ in the heart lifts the life. Christ in the world is lifting the whole world. Christ lived and died that He might raise men from the lowest depths of sin and misery to the highest heights of glory and happiness. But He not only lifts the lives of those who accept Him, but He places within them the power of drawing others to Him, that they may be lifted up. He is not only the great moral and spiritual magnet who draws all men unto Him, but He magnetizes those who are drawn, and they possess the power to draw men up unto Him. Have we been lifted to Christ? Are we lifting others to Him?

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a biographical meeting. Arrange a special programme, with five minute papers or addresses on the lives of men which have been conspicuous for their lifting powers—Peter, Paul, Barnabas, Luther, Wesley, Spurgeon, Murphy, Moody.

BIBLE READINGS.

Math. v, 43-48; John iii, 14-16; xii, 32; Gal. vi, 1-10; Phil. iii, 12-14; Col. iii, 1-3; I Tim. iv, 12-16; II Tim. iv, 1-8; Heb. xii, 1, 2; Jas. v, 19, 20; I Pet. ii, 20-25.

In Honorable Ways.

The church should discountenance all methods for raising money which tend to cheapen religion. She cannot afford to ignore conscience in her financial operations. She must be both honest and reverent in replenishing the Lord's treasury. Due regard must be had for the proprieties of life on the one hand and respect for the Master and His house on the other. Nothing must be done to lower either Him or His cause in the eyes of others, even if thereby more money comes into the bag. Christian principles are needed in all the benevolent and church schemes of the day. No amount of good ends can justify the use of questionable means for their attainment. The Lord wants His depleted exchequers filled only in legitimate, honorable and becoming ways.—The Presbyterian.

Faith In the Bible.

If our Sunday schools are turned into Bible schools, where the very words of Holy Writ are studied and helps and methods less depended on, those who teach and those who are taught will derive that illumination which ever comes from the entrance of the truth of God. If the whole Church of Christ were to present a united front of such a character instead of one of halting and declining faith in the book they profess to love, an impression might and would be made upon the world. Even were it impossible to induce the visible church to unite in taking such a stand, those who do it would at least be faithful witnesses for the truth, and the result could not be foretold.—Episcopal Recorder.

The Latest Gospel.

The latest gospel in the world is—know thy work and do it.—Carlyle.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

AN ARTIFICIAL SUN

CHEMISTS HOPE TO PRODUCE TEMPERATURE EQUAL TO SOLAR HEAT.

It is well to keep an eye on the chemists just now, says Professor Garrett P. Serviss in the New York Journal They have been working wonders which the world but half understands, and greater marvels are likely at any moment to proceed from their laboratories.

Their campaign has been pushed simultaneously in two opposite directions, and in both the success achieved surpasses what could reasonably have been expected.

Up and down the scale of temperature they have ascended and descended until on the one hand the making of an artificial sun and on the other hand the reproduction of the torpor and inertness of empty space appear to be within their grasp.

At the beginning of the century the chemist could do no better than the cold air of the polar regions could do for him—he could freeze mercury.

Now Professor Dewar has descended into the chill abyss until, grasping a tube filled with solid hydrogen, he all but touches the bottom, only 15 degrees—15 short rungs of the ladder—being left between him and absolute zero.

It is a master stroke that has annexed a new world to science, a victory of the Manila Bay order, changing the entire outlook. Man has now turned the lightest of all gases into a solid.

At the depth which he has attained nature's energies are all above him; he has penetrated to the lifeless soil below the roots, and as he rises again can contemplate the gradual awakening of the forces that make the living world. The crucial achievement has been performed—henceforth only development is needed. With the degree of cold now easily attainable all chemical energies are brought into complete subjection. Man becomes their master.

Reactions that are violent, dangerous and uncontrollable in ordinary circumstances entirely cease when the temperature is dropped to the frigidity of liquid hydrogen. All chemical action stops there.

According to some of the latest calculations of the solar temperature, it will only be necessary to gain 2,000 or 3,000 degrees in order to reproduce, on a small scale, in the laboratory, the mighty orb that lights and heats the solar system. Chemists can already go as high as 3,000 or 4,000 centigrade degrees. A recent estimate places the sun's temperature at only 6,250 degrees.

Does it not seem possible that the gap may be crossed and that for an answer to at least some of the momentous questions which now confront him the astronomer may turn from the actual, unattainable sun, and from its far more distant brothers the stars, to a miniature and tangible star lighted by the chemist like a lamp in his laboratory?

But a chemical furnace equaling the sun in temperature would do more than settle questions in astronomy. It might even reveal that ultimate finest essence of things, that mother element, which has been the dream of ages, and place it to some extent at the disposal of human genius.

Automobiles of Better Design.

The Electrical Review pleads for more originality in the designs of automobiles. The automobile "goes around," it says, "forlornly, as if it were an ordinary vehicle seeking the departed spirit of its horse." Something seems to be wanting. At the same time no advantage is taken of the absence of the horse. "It is time," says our contemporary, "to make a design that shall embody together with grace and beauty of line all of the conveniences that the horseless structure is capable of and not in any degree suggest the ancient hippomobile as its predecessor. Among many of the conveniences which are possible in the new style the following may be mentioned as typical: Access by a door in front of the machine instead of by the inconvenient side doors now in vogue and necessitated by the fact that the horse is in front of the ordinary vehicle; lower steps and bodies, made possible by the smaller wheels which can be used with the automobile, to the great convenience of the feminine half of the population; open fronts of clear glass for inclosed types of vehicles, so that the occupant can look directly ahead at the street and the passing scene without having to crane his neck sideways, as in the common cab on the streets today."

Sunshine and Influenza.

In view of the known bactericidal influence of sunlight, says the Philadelphia Medical Journal, it would not be surprising to learn that an inverse relation exists between the amount of sunshine and the prevalence of infectious diseases, providing, however, the temperature is not excessive. Some observations recorded by Ruheman appear to indicate that influenza is more prevalent when the amount of sunshine is less, and it is not impossible that a similar rule would be found to apply to other infectious diseases also. In the eight years from 1883 to 1900 the number of hours' sunshine during the month of January, when influenza was exceedingly prevalent, was between 9.8 in 1890 and 62.3 in 1899, the mean being 30.4. A similar state of affairs was observed in Magdeburg, where from 1882 to 1900 the number of hours of sunshine varied during the same month between 19 in 1900 and 6.3 in 1883. Similar figures were obtained in observations made in other cities of Germany.

Miss Gertrude Berry took the part of the Beggar Woman and Miss Winnie Shea of the Fairy Queen. Both these young ladies deserved much praise for the beautiful rendering of their solos. Miss Clara Shea was pianest and Miss Catherine Hennessey played an introductory piece upon the piano.

Miss Stella Goodell has returned home after a month's visit in Vermont.

The boys who are going with Mr. W. Stanwood Field to Camp Monatiquot, Lake Webb, Maine, July 5, are at present nineteen in number.

At the regular meeting of the school committee next Wednesday afternoon a janitor will be chosen for the new Penniman school. The building is similar to the Union or Pond building and will pay the same salary of $264.00 for eleven months of the year. The committee will be pleased to meet any one who who may be interested in this position.

Master Workman Crooker and brothers Parker, Peterson, Wood, Cottrell, Annis, Farce, Coolidge, Anderson and Thayer attended the fraternal meeting held under the auspices of North Abington Lodge, Wednesday evening. They were handsomely entertained, and hope to see the Abington Brothers in Braintree in the near future.

Mr. W. Stanwood Field, who has been principal of the Monatiquot Grammar school since September, 1898, has been elected to a similar position in Brookline. Mr. Field has done excellent work here and we hear expressions of universal regret that he is to leave our schools. He is universally loved and respected by pupils and parents and the School Committee would be only too glad to pay him a larger salary to keep him, if his prospects in his new school were not so bright and the salary so alluring that it will be impossible to tempt him to remain.

Lester Johnson, proprietor of the Kenwood alleys, spent the first of the week with relatives in Stoughton.

India's Appeal.

Famine, from lack of rain, is now smiting sixty millions of our fellow-beings. At this moment, death by sheer hunger and thirst threatens one-sixth of that number. Thousands are starving each twenty-four hours. In that stricken land, the heavens are as iron and the earth as brass.

Birds of the air drop lifeless from the burning sky. Hundreds of thousands of cattle have already perished. In the absence of food and water, fiercest animals let go their hatreds, and helpless lie down together to die. The decaying bodies of men and beasts pollute both plains and rivers.

And the woe has not yet reached its worst. Face to face with even such horrors still stand countless little children, and women, and men, whom food will save. Thank God, relief may almost instantly pass, by cable, from this land of plenty to that of starvation. Accordingly, only gifts of money are solicited.

What, then, shall we do? What will you do? For our answer we are clearly responsible to both God and man. Ought not America to send quickly at least a million dollars? In the famine districts are efficient, devoted men and women, not only American but also European, who are already engaged in the actual rescue, but who are pleading for larger supplies.

Messrs. Brown Brothers & Company, the well-known bankers, 59 Wall street, New York, have freely consented to receive and acknowledge all gifts sent to them.

L. T. Chamberlain,
Chairman of Executive Committee.

Buffalo Bill.

The annual announcement of the coming of Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the world is looked for with anticipatory pleasure by the people. The newspapers have already announced that performances will be given in Boston during the week beginning June 18. The general idea of the entertainment is well known, but this season some peculiarly appropriate additions have been made, and the attractiveness has been greatly enhanced. Under the skilful guidance of Col. Cody, the men and horses have been daily rehearsed in their parts of the programe.

The one great feature this season will be the reproduction, on as elaborate a scale as the time and area will allow, of the famous charge up San Juan Hill. In this scene five hundred men will be used, and among them will be actual participants in the real charge.

DRESS AND FASHION.

SUMMER COSTUMES ARE GRACEFUL, ELABORATE AND CHARMING.

Best Styles Full of Dainty Details In Way of Applique and Lace—Canvas Veilings, Foulards and Linens of All Kinds In High Favor.

Happily we have gained much in grace within the last few months. The too tight skirts have yielded to flowing drapery, and there is wide choice between flounces, minute tuckings, lace motifs a jour, etc. We may indulge in important hats, wide toques, bigger bonnets or the simple sailor hat. Metallic sequins glitter everywhere, though, according to connoisseurs, they are doomed to be succeeded by silk and linen paillettes, which are suggestive of confetti.

The ample width of the gown at the bottom is shown by a dressy frock in pale blue voile trimmed with applique of white and blue embroidery. The vest is of tucked white muslin, with three narrow voile straps bearing black velvet baby ribbon with tiny blue and white buttons at intervals. With it are worn a silver tissue belt and a black crinoline hat trimmed with black chantilly and a bunch of rosebuds, while pink chiffon lines the brim. The other figure of the cut, a fete gown, is of ecru silk muslin and guipure with under ruffles of ecru chiffon. The ecru sash is banded with black velvet. The toque is composed of tuscan crinoline and net with a crown of pink roses and black and white wings.

Canvas vellings are exceedingly fashionable, and foulard bids fair to be one of the most popular materials; also foulard twill, sateen, Japanese and dentelle, the last having wavy lines of lace insertion woven into its satin surface. The French modistes, who are turning out many foulard gowns, make the skirt rather full around the hips, as a rule, a style which suits the soft material better than a tightly fitted jupe, for foulard is given to stretching.

A stylishly made foulard is in china blue and white, with fichu of cream lace, the long ends almost reaching the floor, and a tucked yoke of dark blue glace. Illustrative also of afternoon dress is a figured voile in ivory white and mauve trimmed with black lace and chiffon.

Foulard and linen will be much mixed, and a feature on many foulard gowns is a very large chou of silk muslin or china crape, with long ends coming from the center of the bust or from one side. This center chou will also be much used on linen and cambric summer gowns, of which the former are to be worn in every color and thickness.

Large black hats are the chic thing with foulard gowns.

Large bows of black esprit net spotted with white and edged with a full frill of the same are fashionable. The veil should match, and nothing is smarter as an adjunct to a black tailor suit stitched with white.

Cream of Asparagus Soup.

Cut young tender stalks into inch lengths, boil until tender in water to cover, and rub through a sieve. Into a quart of hot milk put a heaping tablespoonful of butter, add the asparagus pulp, two tablespoonfuls of thick cream and pour over very thin slices of hard boiled eggs.

If She Were a Girl Again.

"If I were a girl again, I do not think I would be quite so set as I was on my own intellectual development," says Mary Lowe Dickinson, general secretary of the Society of King's Sons and Daughers. "'You think so much of whether people are clever or not,' as a friend of mine said to me when I was a little over 20, 'and so little of anything else.' Well, time has its revenges, and I can honestly say that I am inclined to think of 'anything else' a good deal more than of cleverness in the men and women that I meet. I think far more of cheerfulness and honesty and truthfulness and amiability than I did in those days, and I would rather that some of my young friends were a little less concerned about being clever and much more concerned about being good.

"I know that it means so much to us in our youth that our friends should honor as well as love us, that the world should begin to know that we exist. We like to see our names in a newspaper or at the head of an examination list. We long for the advantages that other girls have—the lectures, the college life, the foreign travel, the elaborate training in science, music or art. Right ambitions enough if they are kept in their right place. But how about the years at college for which some one else is kept toiling in an office or at a desk, breaking himself or herself down with overwork for love of you? How about the loneliness of one whom perhaps you leave behind when you set forth airily upon your foreign tour? You must learn that your own improvement, your own education and training may not be the thing that you ought to put first of all. The cultivation of your intellect is not so important as the cultivation of your soul."

College Women.

The higher culture gives resources for joy and action. It gives worth and dignity to unmarried life, but it takes away none of the joys of true marriage. I know that the idea is prevalent that the educated woman is spoiled for humbler duties, that she will play the piano in the parlor while her mother cooks in the kitchen, that she is weak in nerve and flabby in muscle, less fitted for the stress of life and less willing to do her part in it than her untrained mother or her unlettered grandmother. As to this I can only say it is not the fact, writes David Starr Jordan in Harper's Bazar.

A little learning without training is a dangerous thing. In these days of many books the uncultured woman is exposed to many new dangers which our grandmothers could not know. Half educated mothers are too often caught by passing fads—medical, literary and religious. It is among the partly educated women that worthless books find their readiest sale. It is from among them that the societies for the promotion of "the higher foolishness" draw their membership—Christian science, Ralstonism, vegetarianism, faith cure, relic cure, osteopathy, psychic experience and a variety of delusions which real knowledge would dissipate and which now add unprecedented terrors to matrimony.

Linen Handkerchiefs Are Bad.

An exchange declares, on the authority of a specialist, that the practice of using linen handkerchiefs is one of the most pernicious countenanced by polite society. Colds, catarrh and influenza are steadily propagated by this means, its possibility of bacilli multiplication being endless. Instead of their use being fastidiously neat it is intolerably untidy, and we shall have gone but a little way into the twentieth century, the specialist predicts, before science will convince us of the truth of his utterances. The practice of the Japanese, who use fine white paper handkerchiefs, which they buy in blocks and throw away after using, is recommended. It would be more satisfactory to burn them, for if thrown away carelessly they would obviously become a most facile source of contagion. Paper handkerchiefs have already been advised for the use of tuberculosis patients, but this authority urges that they should entirely supersede the service of linen handkerchiefs. The fact is impressed, too, that in a family in which two or three persons are affected with catarrh the greatest care of handkerchiefs and towels should be observed. Paper handkerchiefs are the only sanitary means of meeting the conditions, and their use would be likely to narrow very perceptibly the limit of contagion.

Dean of Oberlin.

Miss Alice H. Luce of Wellesley college, who recently accepted the position of dean of Oberlin college, will enter upon her duties in the autumn. Miss Luce is a graduate of Wellesley of the class of '83. After leaving college she taught successively in the high school of Putnam, Cal.; in the Wellesley High school and in the Girls' Latin school, Boston. Miss Luce then spent several years in study abroad and received the degree of Ph. D. from the University of Heidelberg. After her return she taught at Smith college and then at Wellesley. Miss Luce is regarded as one of the ablest professors in the department of English literature and language.

Keep the Summer Baby Warm.

A summer baby requires nearly the same amount of clothing as one born in the winter. The little cashmere shirts may be of lighter weight, but they must still be chiefly of wool, and the flannel skirt, or pinning blanket, cannot be dispensed with. The blanket in which the child is wrapped need not be as thick a one as in winter, yet one is still needed. A newborn baby requires warmth, and even the summer breezes are too harsh for the tender flesh until it becomes accustomed to the atmosphere.—Ladies' Home Journal

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre make the interesting announcement that the drama of New England life, "The Village Postmaster," will have its first performance at this play house during the coming week. The fact that this drama has had a run of over 250 consecutive performances in New York city during the last fall and winter season is the best evidence of its general popularity. Its scenes give glimpses of New England village life that have a peculiar interest to all who are acquainted with the many strong types of character developed in such communities and the authors of the play, Alice E. Ives and Jerome H. Eddy, have so planned its action that opportunities are afforded for realistic effects at once novel and amusing. Messrs. Eugene Canfield and George Richards have been specially engaged for this production and the principal characters have been cast so as to introduce the full strength of the stock company. At the Monday matinee the usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made.

Keith's Theatre.

For the week commencing Monday, June 11, the following entertainers will be among those who will be seen at Keith's Boston theatre: Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher, in a sketch somewhat similar to that of the Sidmans, entitled "The Half Way House;" the Brothers Damm, acrobatic comedians; Carrie Tutein, vocalist; Farrell and Stark, trick and fancy bicyclists, etc. Mlle. Marzella's troupe of trained feathered actors will be retained, as they are the greatest lot of feathered actors that have ever been seen in New England. As usual during the summer months, the house is cooled by artificial means, so that even on the hottest days patrons may sit through an afternoon or evening in comfort.

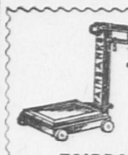

Dizziness

Is a very common consequence of indigestion and torpid liver. Sometimes there are spots before the eyes and hot flashes. At other times a sensation as of vertigo occurs, at once suffocating and blinding. It is a waste of time to attempt to cure this condition by ordinary means or medicines. The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition must be restored to healthy activity, the blood must be purified, the liver cleansed and strengthened, before a cure can be hoped for. This is the work done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a medicine specially beneficial in diseases of the stomach, blood and liver. It strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, cleanses the clogged liver, and promotes the health of every organ of the body.

"My wife was greatly troubled with indigestion, torpid liver, dizziness, and also irregular periods," writes Mr. W. A. Preston, of Shumalak, Noxubee Co., Miss. "We tried many different remedies, but none of them gave perfect relief until we were induced by a lady to try your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' 'Favorite Prescription,' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' These medicines did more good than anything we ever tried for those complaints. We have used four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one of 'Favorite Prescription,' and two vials of your 'Pellets.' These medicines have done the work we desired, and I do heartily recommend them to all similar sufferers."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

SUMMER GUESTS.

Families Arriving Every Day at Houghs Neck by the Sea.

Houghs Neck is beginning to assume its summer aspect. New families are arriving every week, and many of the cottages are occupied. The great influx, however, does not begin until after the schools close, it will therefore be near the first of the month before everything is in full swing. There are several new attractions this year and with good weather the season should be a lively one.

The all the year residents have held their annual love feast and the hatchet has been buried for the summer.

Henry R. Jordan and family of Jamaica Plain are in a cottage off Centre road.

The Metropoliton sewer people are making soundings at the beach.

Charles Pond and family of Milton are in their cottage at Rock Island.

A. S. Hayden of Avon, one of the parties whose furniture was on Lewi's team which took fire Wednesday, came down yesterday. His furniture was on the back part of the wagon and therefore escaped with the loss of a boy's cart. He is located on Great Hill.

Joseph Burr of Brockton, whose furniture was also on the team suffered more, but that will not prevent them from summering here.

John Figembaum of Dorchester is in a cottage on the shore front.

Frank Davis of Dorchester is at the Pine Tree cottage.

Mr. Haverstran of Boston is in the Dennis cottage.

Arthur Crocker of Newtonville is on Great Hill.

George Keith and family of Campello are on Great Hill.

Miss Helen Edgerton of New Hampshire is a guest at the Berkshire cottage.

Mr. Sweet of Portland will manage the Fensmere this summer.

Houghs Neck now rejoices in a cobbler and shoe blacking emporium.

The census taker has been at the beach this week.

Three photographers are located at the beach this summer.

Liberty Never Degrades Woman.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

As man advances, woman is elevated, and her elevation in turn advances him. No liberty ever given her has been lost or abused or regretted. Where most has been given her she has become best. Liberty never degrades her; slavery always does. For her own good, therefore, she needs the ballot.

Woman's vote is needed for the good of others. She is an enemy of foreign war or domestic turmoil; she is a friend of peace and home. Her influence for good in many directions would be multiplied if she possessed the ballot. She desires the homes of the land to be pure and sober; with her help they may become so. Without it what is the prospect in this regard?

Politics must be purified or we are lost. To govern this great nation wisely and well is not degrading service; to do it, all the wisdom, ability and patriotism of all the people is required. No great moral force should be unemployed.

A Lover of Liberty.

EDUCATIONAL.

To myself I seem to be like a boy playing on the seashore, finding now and then a pretty shell, while the wide ocean of truth lies out beyond undiscovered. —Newton.

"And the present social perturbations and scarcely suppressed upheavals, what are they but attempts to bring about, not equality in wealth, equality in position, but equality in opportunity for every human creature. The mode of attempt may not always be wise or well adapted to the gain sought, but the end and aim are of the wisest. It is this aim to secure equality of opportunity that has given such impetus to the cause of public education during the last few years; for it recognizes in all classes of society that no power raises a man so quickly to the level of the world's best accomplishment as the education and development of his intellect. Nothing gives him such noble companionship and sets him as a peer in the society of mind. Nothing has so raised man as man, and distributed its gifts so widely, save Christianity as taught by Christ himself."

The college men are but one per cent. of the voters but hold fifty-eight per cent. of the best offices of the Republic. Common school education adds fifty per cent. to the productive power of the laborer, an academical or high school education one hundred per cent., and a college education three hundred per cent. In my class of one hundred there were but four total failures, while ninety-six have been successful, and of the successes twenty have been conspicuous. —Depew.

Now this little building, and others like it, were an original kind of fortification invented by the founders of New England. They are the martello towers which protect our coast. This was the great discovery of our Puritan forefathers. They were the first law givers who saw clearly and enforced practically the simple, moral, and political truth, that knowledge was not an alms to be dependent on the chance charity of private men or the precarious pittance of a trust-fund, but a sacred debt which the commonwealth owed to every one of her children. The opening of the first grammar school was the opening of the first trench against monopoly in church and state; the first row of trammels and pot-hooks which the little Shearjashubs and Elkanahs blotted and blubbered across their copy-books was the preamble to the Declaration of Independence.

—Superivsor George Martin.

Money expended for education is like the Scriptural talents put at interest, that return profit a hundred-fold. It will come back to the state in every product of refined sentiment and cultivated intelligence; it will reappear in every form of mechanical and industrial improvement; in impregnable levees, in more productive fields; in improved public highways and bridges; in more navigable streams, and more populous and embellished towns. —J. V. Calhoun.

When John Adams, as one of the great services which he rendered to the commonwealth and to the nation, drafted the constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in 1797, he wrote in it a section that at that time was unique in the history of organic laws, which has remained until the present day, laying its mandate upon legislators and magistrates of this commonwealth to bear in mind and to encourage the cause of education. I will read briefly from this section to you, because there are certain antecedents connected with its genesis and origin that I think may be of interest to you. It is Section 2 of Chapter V: "Wisdom and knowledge as well as virtue, diffused generally among the body of the people, being necessary for the preservation of their rights and liberties; and as these depend on spreading the opportunities and advantages of education in the various parts of the country, and among the different orders of the people, it shall be the duty of legislatures and magistrates, in all future periods of this commonwealth, to cherish the interests of literature and the sciences, and all seminaries of them."

—Wolcott.

STEEL WOOL.

A Curious Material That Is Used as a Substitute For Sandpaper.

Steel wool, introduced five or six years ago, is a machine produced material that is used as a substitute for sandpaper. It is composed of sharp edged threads of steel, which curl up together like wool, or somewhat as the wood fibers of the familiar material known as excelsior curl up together, though the steel wool is very much finer, the finest of it being not much coarser than the coarsest of natural wools. The steel wool is put up in packages containing one pound each. These are something like rolls of cotton batting, but smaller, a pound of steel wool, loosely packed, making, rolled in paper and open at the ends, a package perhaps 15 inches long and 2 or 3 inches in diameter.

Made in various degrees of coarseness, steel wool is put to a variety of uses, the finer wools for polishing wood and metal and the coarser for rubbing down paint and varnish. It is often used on special parts of work; while, for example, on the flat surfaces of a door a man would use sandpaper with a block of it for the moldings he would use steel wool, which fits into the crevices and conforms itself to irregular shapes. Such work can be done with steel wool far more readily and quickly than with sandpaper, and it is used with like advantage on irregular and small surfaces and on carved work.

Besides the steel wool, there is a coarser material of the same kind called steel shavings, which is put to various uses, as in taking off old paint or varnish and in polishing wood before painting, and it is used on bowling alleys and on floors for smoothing and cleaning them.

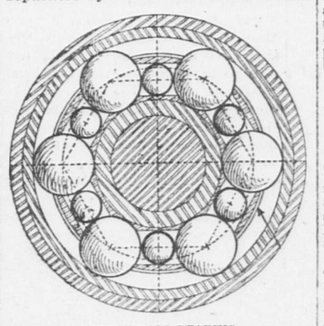

Sandpaper clogs in use; steel wool breaks down. The wool is commonly used with gloves to keep the ends from sticking into the fingers.

Effective Co-operation.

An interesting illustration of what can be done by co-operation is seen in an account of the improvement of a number of roads in a Michigan section by farmers, says the Chicago Record. In this district the country is sandy, and the roads have been so bad throughout most of the year that it has been impossible to bring to market the produce of the farms. The nearest town was applied to, but it was so poor that it was compelled to decline the requested help. Finally the farmers decided to help themselves. About five years ago 25 of them came together and offered to haul marl one day free if the township would allow them to take the marl from its bed. Consent was given, and about 20 men volunteered to shovel and level the marl, and so the first half mile was laid. This road proved such a success that the next year another half mile was put down. The marl packed down hard and made such an excellent bed for gravel that the farmers raised among themselves enough money to put a dressing of gravel about eight inches thick over one-quarter of a mile of the road. This made an excellent walk, and the following year more money was collected, and half a mile was put down. But this time only four inches of gravel was spread over the marl. The next year another quarter mile strip was graveled, and about half a mile of marl was put down ready for graveling next fall. As a natural consequence of the improvement in the roads more produce is now sent to the local market, and the principal town of the district has benefited so largely by the improvement that it has offered to furnish gravel for a mile of road if the farmers will provide the labor to spread it, which they have agreed to do.

Overcoming Friction.

A new system of ball bearing is described by a writer in the Boston Herald. It consists of an assemblage of carrier balls for bearing, which are separated by smaller intermediate balls held in the ring which contains the carriers on the line of the dead center of the latter. The rings and balls are made of all sizes, to fit all sizes of shaftings and axles, from the smallest factory shaft to that of an ocean liner or the axle of a bicycle to that of the heaviest vehicle that runs.

Long Distance Photography.

The recent discovery that some of the thrilling moving pictures of the war in South Africa were made in New Jersey has a parallel in Paris, where a certain photographer is said to be making money hand over fist by turning out snap shots of war scenes in the Transvaal.

The pictures are made in the French capital and are sold as genuine war photographs. The photographer has collected some old horses and guns and has enlisted the service of a score or more of supers from the theaters, who are made up as Boers or Englishmen, according to the requirements of the picture.

The Boers are distinguished by their long whiskers and the English by their uniforms. Imitation breastworks have been built near Paris, and these are stormed by the supers while the man with the camera takes the snap shots.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS OF EUROPE'S ONLY WOMAN SHOEMAKER.

Washington Women Philanthropists. A Neglected Charm—Rescued by a Girl Swimmer—Common Sense In Dress—Effect of Stiff Collars.

An old proverb says, "Shoemaker, stick to your last," but in Denmark the shoemakers are in a quandary how to live up to the proverb, and the cause of all the trouble is a bright, good looking Danish girl, Bertha Olesen, who has compelled the ancient guild of the shoemakers to accept her as a fellow craftsman, and this is how it came about:

Miss Olesen is the daughter of a respectable shoemaker in Frederikshavn, Denmark. Four years ago she surprised the members of the ancient Shoemakers' guild by demanding to be registered as an apprentice to her father.

To say that the members were flurried does not fully describe the situation. Finally one guileless member found a way out of the difficulty.

"Grant the request," he said. "She is like all women; she does not know her own mind. She will soon tire of her fad, and we will never hear of her again."

MISS BERTHA OLESEN.

The advice was followed, but not with the result anticipated.

A few weeks ago Miss Olesen presented herself before the members of the guild in the city of Kolding and submitted a pair of shoes made in every detail by herself as a proof of her skill and knowledge of the trade according to old established customs and applied for a membership in the guild.

Her master proof was carefully examined and found to be perfect in every detail and so beautifully finished that the examining members not alone granted her a membership, but also awarded her the guild medal, which is only presented on most extraordinary occasions, and it was further decided to have the shoes sent to the Danish department of the Paris exposition as the first pair of shoes ever made by a Danish woman and as far as known by any woman in Europe.

Miss Olesen is now 21 years of age. She expresses herself as delighted with her trade and would not exchange it for domestic or any other employment. She expects to establish herself in Copenhagen as a custom shoemaker and hopes to induce other women to come to her and learn the trade.

Washington Women Philanthropists.

Mrs. McKinley is an invalid, but is never idle for a moment. Her favorite occupation is knitting slippers, which she donates to charity fairs and bazaars and which fetch high prices.

Mrs. Levi Leiter, mother of Lady Curzon, knows more about the technique of painting than many an artist. Mrs. Leiter's specialty is the collecting of illuminated missals. She owns some of the rarest fifteenth century missals in existence and has herself done some illuminating on vellum.

Miss Margaret Chanler, a niece of Mrs. William Astor, is devoted to Red Cross work. She served with distinction as a nurse during the Spanish-American war. Miss Chanler, though born to the purple, declares against the frivolity and time wasting that make up the fashionable woman's life in the capital city and occupies herself constantly in her labors for the Red Cross. She is also an expert with the knitting needles, which are always plied for the benefit of sick soldiers.

Mrs. Ludlow, wife of Admiral Ludlow and sister of Mrs. George Dewey, is devoted to charities connected with children, especially boys. Mrs. Ludlow's only child, Major Bugher, U. S. V., served with gallantry in the Spanish war and was brought home more dead than alive on the death ship, the transport Sherman. Mrs. Ludlow formerly confined herself to philanthropic causes for the benefit of little boys, but now divides her time between the soldiers and the youngsters and is the Lady Bountiful to many a broken down youth who gave his strength and health in the cause of Cuban liberty.

Mrs. John McLean, Mrs. Dewey's sister-in-law, spends her time and energies in behalf of working girls. Mrs. McLean has met with opposition from the clergy in her plan for giving shopgirls Sunday concerts at her beautiful country place in the suburbs of Washington, but she is by no means discouraged and proposes to continue to supply a hearty welcome, the Marine band and distinguished soloists and refreshments as well every Sunday afternoon at her splendid country home, without money or restrictions, to the working women of the hot city of Washington.—New York World.

A Neglected Charm.

Women of refinement and education in other directions often speak in harsh, nasal or indistinct guttural tones showing an entire want of care and cultivation of the beautiful art of familiar speaking. A musical speaking voice, with clear enunciation, is one of the most restful and subtle charms of personality, and, unlike most precious things, it is within the reach of almost any one who cares to have it. Have you never in some sudden pause and silence been startled by the echoing ring of your own voice in your ears? It had been raised too high perhaps in argument or expostulation or had vibrated with anger. How quiet you were and full of chagrin for a half hour after that experience! There is a comforting truth about this matter. A pleasing voice and manner of speech can be acquired by almost any one who is willing to give a little attention and practice to it. First, as I have said, listen to your own voice as you speak. Involuntarily you will lower and soften it. Practice with your sister or other girl associates each in turn and each trying to improve her own natural voice. Do not imitate; do not make unnatural or affected changes, but, having tried your usual voice critically, decide where it needs improvement and hold yourself to the reformation. If you are like nine out of every ten American girls your voice is pitched too high. Lower it and make a constant effort to keep it down. Speak from the chest, not from the throat or head. Practice the modulation of your speaking voice as patiently as a singer practices the scales. It is worth while because it is for the pleasure and good of all around you more than for your own. In the effort to keep your voice low and gentle you will make the first practical move toward a calm outward demeanor, and success in this will impress immediately the person to whom you are speaking.—Ada C. Sweet in Woman's Home Companion.

Rescued by a Girl Swimmer.

Louis Benepe, the 7-year-old son of Dr. L. M. Benepe, 550 Dayton avenue, owes his life to the rare presence of mind and heroism of Miss Ethel Murray, who plunged into White Bear lake to rescue him from drowning.

Miss Murray, with the other members of the family, was seated at dinner in the Murray cottage at Mahtomedi. From a window overlooking the lake she observed a disturbance of the usually placid waters. As she gazed an arm and a face rose and disappeared beneath the surface. A life was endangered. With a warning cry she sprang from her seat, dashed down the winding path and out on the frail dock 100 yards away. At its end, scarcely pausing, she poised for the dive. A strong outward leap, and her lithe figure shot into the water. In a moment which seemed hours to the members of the startled family, all of whom followed her to the dock as rapidly as they might, she rose some little distance from the pier with the form of a child in the frenzy of drowning clasped close to her side. The battle then was not for one life, but for two. Miss Murray clung to the struggling child until he lapsed into unconsciousness. Then the brave girl, sadly hampered by her clinging garments, struck out for the dock, supporting the limp body of the little fellow she had risked her life to save.

Her brother, Robert Murray, had by this time reached the pier and relieved her of the burden that must soon have borne her down. The young heroine climbed to the dock unaided and quickly sought her own house and dry clothing. Miss Murray is about 16 years of age, the daughter of Mrs. E. N. Murray of 35 Irvine park. She is fond of outdoor amusements and is an expert swimmer.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Common Sense In Dress.

"What to wear is the most perplexing problem that confronts women, particularly at change of seasons," says E. Marguerite Lindley, a writer on health subjects. "How to economize and still be up to date is always a sore puzzle.

"In the vestibule of a church a Sunday or two ago I heard a delicate, tired looking woman say to another who looked equally worn out, 'I hear street skirts are to be worn short again.' 'Well,' replied the other, 'I hope they will, for my arm aches continually from holding mine up.' I thought to myself: 'Poor slave! Were you a hireling anywhere and thus oppressed the faddists would be alive with irritant sympathy for you, and your rights would be speedily restored. But here you are, an independent woman, of the country where women have the greatest freedom, bowing a submissive head to the tyranny of dressmakers, and you are not only tiring your poor arms, but you are dragging disease and dirt into your home and wearing to rags in a short time a gown that ought to remain intact an entire season.'

"Where is the independence that we women of our great republic boast? We pity the poor savage women, oppressed by the customs of their country. Yet where is there a savage people whose women trail heavy skirts about the ground, wear tight, stiff corsets about their waists, tight shoes and gloves upon feet and hands and cover their eyes with lace veils? Civilization must be a misfortune when it rids a people of cleanliness and art in attire and health of body and longevity of vision."

Stiff Collars and Necks.

Though traitorous to health and defiant of beauty, woman is ever submissive to fashion. The high heel, the tight corset, the germ collecting train and the head heating puffs of false hair have been frequently preached about, but the stiff high collar seems to be an unrealized foe to feminine beauty and health.

A stiff high band about the neck tends to strain the muscles and cords of the neck and shoulders, causing an awkward poise of the head. It impedes the circulation more or less, which results in headaches and nervousness. It irritates the skin and leaves a disfiguring dark mark around the throat. If very tight, and stylish collars generally are, it affects the vocal cords and causes a contraction of the fatty tissue, thus ruining the charming contour of the throat; also, the high collar mercilessly rubs and wears the hair at the nape of the neck into an unbecoming fringe of ragged ends. Too frequently it is the collar which is responsible for the much deplored double chin. And there have been cases where serious enlargements of the submaxillary glands have been the result of the ungraceful high neckgear which reigns over popular fancy.

The exquisite curves natural to the shoulders and neck of a woman are rapidly giving way to lines and angles. The perpendicular side lines of the neck meet the almost horizontal lines of the shoulders, forming an angle of about 90 degrees. The graceful, flowing curves of throat, shoulders and bust will gradually become entirely lost unless some powerful influence is brought to bear to curtail the use of the beauty destroying, unnatural neckwear at present so fashionable.—New York Herald.

For the Small Girl.

If your little daughter is about to move from the nursery into a room of her own, here are a few suggestions as to its furniture.

Have a dotted swiss curtain at the window, tied back with forgetmenot blue ribbons. Let the little bedstead be painted with white enamel and draped with a canopy of white swiss, through which a blue silk lining should show. The bureau, which should correspond in size with the bed, should also be white and, if one's bank account will allow it, decorated in silver.

The latest washstand for a child's room is of willow, painted in white, with a deep hollow in the center to hold the dainty bowl and pitcher. In this room all the appointments of the washstand should be of white china, strewn with forgetmenots. In the corner of the room have a baby divan covered with light blue chintz and banked with white linen covered pillows, ornamented with a blue silk frill. A little willow rocking chair is another requirement. It should be painted in white and have the seat cushioned in light blue plush. Cover the walls with a paper which looks like a pompadour silk. It may be cream white in color striped with lines of forgetmenots. Have plenty of pictures on the walls and a carpet of blue felt on the floor half covered with rugs, and the small girl who owns this apartment cannot fail to be happy in it.

American Girls In Rome.

St. Barbe, an English writer who has been visiting Rome, seems to have been particularly impressed by the American girl as she is to be seen there, for he says: "Rome may be full of pilgrims, but you do not see much of them unless they are disguised as smart Americans. The American girl in all stages of smartness is ubiquitous. At the services in St. Peter's you would have thought that there were about a hundred Americans (all young and female) present for every Italian. The American girl has taken up short skirts and 'does' the new excavations in the Forum with ferocious energy. She has had everything she could want, for the guides and vergers supplied her with tickets for the reserved seats for the various functions of holy week, though trafficking in such commodities is strictly prohibited and much resented by the Vatican authorities."

Village Improvement.

A year ago the Woman's club of Floral Park, N. Y., made village improvement its central idea. Thirty members constitute themselves a vigilance committee to see that yards and streets are kept free from flying papers. An experienced forester is employed to trim trees along the thoroughfares and bring about a symmetry of form approved by residents in certain localities. The sons of these clubwomen have formed a "boys' brigade," particularly interested in beautifying the streets with shrub and floral effects. It is safe to predict that these boys will have attractive dooryards of their own in years to come.

Homemade Toques.

Has it ever occurred to you that shabby, bright pieces of silk, if washed and ironed and then covered with a coarse lace, make up excellently as toques or can be used for trimming hats? The wire toque shapes are very cheap, as also are really pretty flowers nowadays, and one can have what appears to be an entirely new toque for an outlay of 4 or 5 dimes. If you buy the wire and twist it into toque shape yourself, and this is quite easy if you have clever fingers, you will save yet a few more pennies.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A Flying Bowl.

Once upon a time a priest named Jakusho went to China, where the emperor happened to hold a mass in a temple splendidly adorned and entertained a host of Buddhist monks. The emperor announced to his guests that on that occasion every priest invited should be allowed no attendant, and he ought to receive food by flying his own bowl. This order was issued, in fact, to examine the ability of the Japanese priest, and accordingly all Chinese prelates in their respective turns caused their bowls to fly and received food. Now the turn came to Jakusho to do his duty, and he, who was sitting on the last seat in the meeting, began to hold up his bowl and to walk to the spot where food was being given. He was, however, interrupted by all lookers on, who were unanimous in urging him to fly his bowl. Jakusho replied thus: "To cause one's bowl to fly is an art which needs special training I never underwent. Although Japan saw a few persons who were acquainted with this art, yet they did not perform it in public. How, then, can I cause my bowl to fly?" But, seeing that the emperor would not cease to exact from him the performance of such a duty, Jakusho turned his face toward his country and silently prayed with the utmost devotion to the Buddhas and deities guarding it for their help to protect it from ignominy through his failure in the performance.

Then suddenly his bowl began to turn like a spun top, went through the air swifter than all the other priests' and, receiving his portion, returned to him. This miracle, so unexpected by the Chinese, impelled the emperor and all who were there to adore him as an unparalleled saint.—From "Japanese of Eleventh Century."

in consequence, and they insist that the cross saddle is the only healthful kind for this exercise.

The Duchess of Sutherland and many other ladies of rank have set the fashion by having their daughters taught cross saddle riding.

In consequence it has become fashionable. The illustration shows the charming little Lady Rosemary, daughter of her grace of Sutherland, as she gayly canters along in her trim costume riding cross saddle.

A Disobedient Dog.

The late Dr. James Freeman Clarke used to tell this story of his dog:

"At one time my dog was fond of going to the railway station to see the people, and I always ordered him to go home, fearing he would be hurt by the cars. He easily understood that if he went there it was contrary to my wishes. So whenever he was near the station if he saw me coming he would look the other way and pretend not to know me. If he met me anywhere else, he always bounded to meet me with great delight. But at the station it was quite different. He would pay no attention to my whistle or my call. He even pretended to be another dog and would look me right in the face without apparently recognizing me. He gave me the cut direct in the most impertinent manner, the reason evidently being that he knew he was doing what was wrong and did not like to be found out. Possibly he may have relied a little on my nearsightedness in his maneuver."

The Nest In the Shoe.

Sweet Jennie Wren, with her husband small,
Were viewing sites for a cozy nest.
The bright sun showed to their seeking eyes
A snug, round home in a maple's crest.

They passed it by with a careless glance,
No envious thoughts ruffling tempers sweet.
They craved no place in the tree top tall
That swayed and dipped when the rough storms beat.

A ragged shoe in the yard they spied,
Flung from the house as a useless thing;
They fluttered in and they fluttered out,
Then straightway began to build and sing.

They gathered hair and a lining soft
And wove their home with a loving care.
The grass grew fast 'neath the sun's warm rays
And hid the shoe with its contents rare.

The eggs laid there turned to birdies small
That grew in beauty and strength each day.
When grown too big for the crowding walls,
The old birds taught them to fly away.

A shoestring lies in the empty nest.
But I hope this spring, when the skies are blue,
That Madam Wren and her husband dear
Will dwell once more in the ragged shoe.

Just Held His Breath.

Boys are odd conglomerations, and few there are who understand the emotions that prompt their actions.

A certain little fellow had his picture taken, and when the family got the negative of it they were horrified to see the face of the boy all puffed out and the eyes bulging and exclaimed in a body, "Why, what on earth did you do to make your face look like that?"

"Didn't do a thing," said the innocent little fellow, "but just see if I could hold my breath until the man got through takin my picture."

MET ON SHARP CURVE,

Disastrous Results of a Head-On Collision of Electric Cars.

Four Persons Killed and More Deaths Are Expected.

Large Crowd of Pleasure Seekers In Rhode Island Overtaken by Disaster.

Providence, June 11.—By a collision in Warwick, on the suburban line of the Union Railway company, Sunday noon, two electric cars struck end on. Four persons were killed and 26 injured, of whom three are probably fatally hurt. Lieutenant Governor Kimball is among those who are not expected to live.

The dead are:
Arthur Liscomb.
George W. Baker, 15 months.
Lewis C. Sanborn, Providence.
Edward D. Burroughs, motorman.

Injured:: Lieutenant Governor C. O. Kimball, C. H. Kingsley, Mrs .Kingsley, William Malliet, H. A. Palmer, H. T. Palmer, S. B. Bragg, Mary Tourtillot, William J. Fogerdy, Mrs. Fogerdy and son, Owen J. Hurley, D. Balscock, George Baker, Mrs. Baker, Thomas Jackson, E. J. Fleming, Mrs. Fleming and two children, unknown woman, 32 years old; J. E. Brown, F.E. Manchester, Henry Hanlon, a motorman, and Claude E. Harris, conductor.

The catastrophe is the worst on record for this section, and additions to the death list are hourly expected, as quite a number of the injured are at the hospital in a precarious condition. The accident occurred through the efforts of the motorman (now dead) endeavoring to make a switch on the line, which is a single rail. He had been given his signal to go ahead, and followed orders with the above results.

The accident took place on the suburban line of electrics which runs between this city and Oakland Beach, a summer resort 12 miles out. Ordinarily the cars run on 30-minute schedule, but on Sundays the travel is heavy, and 15-minute time was in vogue. The car which left this city at 11:50 was not one of the regular cars on the road, being smaller, and does not stand so high on the trucks. On account of the large number of cars needed, outside cars are called into use.

The car left the city terminus and before it had reached the outskirts of the city was packed. It was not an open car, being a vestibule affair. The crowd was so dense that passengers were standing in the aisles. When the car reached Warwick station, it stopped, to allow passengers to alight. According to schedule, Conductor Manchester should have waited a few minutes at the turnout to allow the upbound Oakland Beach car to pass. He rang the signal to go ahead, and Motorman Burroughs put on his power and the car was soon speeding at a lively rate.

Just beyond the station is a curve, then a straight stretch of road, and then comes a sharp curve in a deep cut, where the hill was cut through to make way for the rails. It is impossible for a motorman to see beyond the curve, as on the left is a high bank, hiding the rails beyond from view.

The regular car left Oakland Beach on its trip to the city, and Motorman Hanlon was making his regular time to the turnout at the Warwick station. Suddenly he saw a car sweeping toward him. Hanlon shut off his power and applied his air brakes, which stopped the car instantly. The downbound car came on in spite of the efforts of the motorman to check its speed. There was a crash, and the car telescoped. The Oakland Beach car tore its way through the other car, crushing all before it. On up to the fifth seat went the bunter of the upbound car. Motorman Burroughs was instantly killed.

Under the wreckage were inanimate bodies, while groans and shrieks of the injured filled the air. Calls were sent out for assistance, and a corps of doctors were soon at the scene. The wounded were placed on the cars and conveyed to the Elmwood station, where two ambulances from the hospital were in waiting. Lewis C. Sanborn, who was injured internally, died on his way to the city.

While the list of the injured is now numbered at 26 there are numerous persons whose injuries cannot as yet be determined. At the hospital, where eight of the injured were conveyed, it is stated that it is expected that two will not survive the day.

The fact that the regular car stands higher on its trucks than the car wrecked, added to the seriousness of the collision, for instead of the bunters meeting the bunter of the regular car slid over and crashed into the body of the car. The down-bound car was not equipped with air brakes and hand brakes were not equal to the emergency, and in fact had it been supplied with them it is a question whether or not the car could have been stopped in time.

Traveling Man Kills Himself.

Cleveland, June 11.—The dead body of Winthrop Fallon, a traveling man from Brookline, Mass., was found in a room at the Hollenden hotel yesterday. Fallon killed himself some time Saturday night by firing a bullet into his right temple. Fallon had been at the hotel three or four days. He was about 25 years old. Nothing was left to indicate the cause of the suicide.

BLOODY DAY AT ST. LOUIS.

Three Persons Killed and Five or More Are Wounded In a Conflict With the Posse.

St. Louis, June 11.—Yesterday was one of the most eventful and bloody days since the great strike on the St. Louis transit lines began, more than one month ago. There were numerous encounters between strikers and other individuals and the constituted authorities, resulting in three deaths and the wounding of five or more persons, mostly strikers. One of the latter will die.

The day was quiet until the afternoon, when the police were taken off a number of street car lines for the purpose of giving them a rest and to test the ability of the transit company to operate without friction. Cars were in operation during the day time on all the lines of the transit company except the Southwestern. Last night cars were run under police protection until midnight on the Park Avenue, Olive Street, Lindell division and Laclede Avenue line.

The most serious trouble broke out between 6 and 7 o'clock in front of a building on Washington avenue, between Broadway and Sixth streets, occupied by the sheriff's posse comitatus as a barracks and headquarters. Several hundred striking street car men had gone to East St. Louis earlier in the day to attend a picnic given for their benefit at Wolff's grove. Toward evening they began returning home singly, in groups of two or three and others in companies of a hundred or more. No serious trouble occurred until one of these companies, composed of nearly 150 street car men in uniform, and headed by a drum corps, came west on Washington avenue. In their caps some of them had cards bearing these words: "Union or nothing; liberty or death."

The men were marching along the sidewalk on the south side of Washington avenue, opposite the posse barracks. They were in a jocular mood and as near as can be learned had no intention of making any trouble. Just as they were passing the barracks, a car of the Park Avenue division was going west. A number of the men broke from the line and rushed for the car. A brick was thrown through the car window and a shot was fired by somebody unknown.

At the first intimation of trouble members of the sheriff's posse swarmed from the building and surrounded the crowd of strikers about the car, calling upon them to disperse. Other shots were fired and then some of the deputies turned loose their repeating shotguns, loaded with buckshot. As far as can be learned only four of the men in the strikers' ranks were hit. Not a deputy was wounded even.

The deputies arrested 20 of the strikers and took them to the barracks, where they were searched. Three revolvers and a number of pocket knives were secured, and the prisoners were taken to the Four courts, where they were locked up pending an investigation.

Receiver May Be Asked For.

Randolph, Vt., June 11.—State Inspector Platt, when he discovered that the Randolph Savings bank had lost by a shrinkage on certain loans, notified the directors of the institution, the shrinkage being estimated at from $15,000 to $14,000, which wiped out the surplus and made inroads on about 5 percent of the deposits. The result of the examination led to the closing of the bank, and it is understood the court will be asked to appoint a receiver.

West Point Chapel Dedicated.

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—The dedication of the new Catholic chapel at West Point, over which there has been much controversy during the past three years, took place yesterday. The dedicatory sermon was by Rev. George Deshon. The gathering consisted chiefly of army officers and their wives and many of the cadets. The chapel is of granite, of modern construction and occupies the most prominent position on the post.

Not Subject to Bankruptcy Laws.

Kansas City, June 11.—A precedent in bankruptcy proceedings has been established in the federal court here. Judge Corland rules that companies engaged principally in mining are not subject to the law, inasmuch as they are not "engaged principally in manufacturing, publishing, trading or mercantile pursuits," as a section of the law provides must be the occupation of persons, companies or corporations to be subject to bankruptcy proceedings.

For Alleged Murder of a Babe.

Boston, June 11.—In the municipal criminal court here Patrick J. Meagher, charged with the murder of an unnamed child, was held without bail for a hearing on June 19. Mary Meagher and Minnie B. Meagher, as accessories after the fact, were held in $1000 for the same day. Ellen O'Neil, said to be the mother of the murdered child, will also be arraigned on June 19.

The Latest In Flying Machines.

Berlin, June 11.—A new airship, invented by Herr Weissmann, a mechanic, has been tried here. It ascended 20 metres and flew 15, landing safely. The car rocked violently during its flight, owing to the imperfect construction. Herr Weissman will reconstruct the machine, using papier mache and aluminum.

Man, Woman and Two Children Murdered.

Winnipeg, Man., June 11.—Alex MacArthur of Welwyn, N. W. T., his wife and two children were murdered by a hired man named John Morrison. Morrison then shot himself, but may recover.

RUSSIANS ARE READY

To Take a Hand In the Chinese Complication When Proper Time Arrives.

Troops of All Nationalities to Be Sent to Pekin.

Railway Communication Between Tien Tsin and Pekin Being Reopened by Force.

London, June 11.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg, dated Saturday, June 9, says: I have learned from an absolutely reliable source that minute dispatches have been sent to the commanders of the Russian troops in Manchuria, directing them to prepare three regiments of Cossacks on the Chinese frontier to be in readiness to enter on the day orders are received.

Details have been received from Shanghai regarding the recent murders of railway engineers by Boxers.

It seems that a party of 30, including six women and one child, left Pao-Ting-Fu in 12 boats, under military escort. After traversing 50 miles in safety they missed their way. The boats grounded, and the Boxers opened fire upon the unfortunate occupants, using both rifles and wooden cannon. The engineers returned the fire effectively, and the party landed. One woman and three men got separated from the main body. They were brutally killed. The survivors formed a square, with those able to bear arms outside and the women inside, and made off toward Tien Tsin. They traveled three and a half days, fighting all the way. More than 2000 cartridges were expended, and ammunition was running short. They estimated that they killed at least 100 rebels. The men behaved like heroes, carrying the women and children. One woman of the party was close to maternity. Twelve miles from Tien Tsin three men disappeared, and were murdered. The survivors eventually met the rescue party, and, much exhausted, they were escorted to Tien Tsin.

The admirals at Taku, acting in concert, are forcibly reopening the railway from Tien Tsin to Pekin. Gangs of laborers are repairing the damaged line, which is guarded by 1500 men composed of detachments from the foreign fleet. One hundred Americans, under Captain McCalla, are among them. They have guns and armored trains for use when the line is repaired, which can hardly be effected before tonight.

Ten thousand troops of all nationalities, according to a dispatch to The Daily Express, from Shanghai, will be sent to Pekin to back up the demands of the ministers upon the government, or, if necessary, to suppress the Boxers themselves.

Sir Claude MacDonald, British minister to Pekin, sent the following telegram to Shanghai on June 7: "The movement against the foreigners, which has been allowed to grow to such an extent, has resulted in the burning of railway stations and in the interruption of railway communication for five days. Two British missionaries and several foreign missionaries have been murdered in the district near Pekin. In the country round, numbers of converts have been murdered, and chapels have been pillaged and destroyed, while in the capital itself the British missionaries have been obliged to leave their houses and to take refuge at the legation, which is defended by 75 marines.

"The Chinese government is affected by these events so far as to send high officials to parley with the Boxers, but it does not show any intention of summarily suppressing them. Probably it still has power to do so, but the throne is still strongly influenced by sympathy with the movement, and the spirit of the troops is doubtful. All is well up to the present."

No Word at Washington.

Washington, June 11.—Not a word had been received by the state or navy departments up to late last night regarding the situation in China. Minister Conger has been in almost daily communication with the state department for the past week, so that the failure to hear from him is somewhat unusual. The general interpretation put upon his silence is that affairs have remained practically unchanged.

Willing to Accept Old Rate.

Woburn, Mass., June 11.—The leather buffers in the five shops of the American Hide and Leather company, who struck, April 2, for an advance of $3 per week, have voted to return to work at the old rate, $15 a week. This action was taken independent of the union, but it is believed that the latter will endorse it.

Five Counts Against the Shaws.

Woodstock, Vt., June 11.—A special grand jury in the Windsor county court which was impanelled to consider the Shaw cases, returned five bills against Dustin and Frank Shaw for breaking jail and impeding officers; also a bill against Dustin Shaw for murder. Other indictments will undoubtedly be docketed.

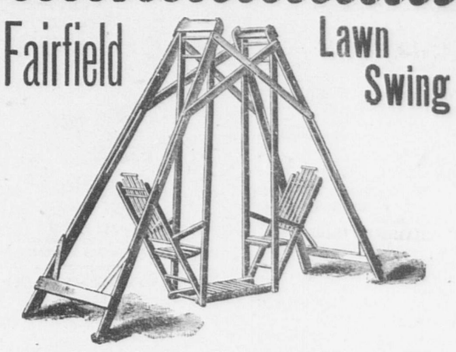

A Loss of $65,000.

Gardiner, Me., June 11.—The ice houses located on the small farm in Dresden, and owned by the American Ice company, caught fire and were totally destroyed. The ice was valued at $40,000, and the buildings were valued at $25,000.

Missing Man's Body Found.

Provincetown, Mass., June 11.—The body of Carl J. Fellman, the Swede who had been missing for 10 days, was found Sunday in a meadow, where it had evidently been lying for some days. It is undoubtedly a case of suicide.

Good Afternoon.

Oom Paul is also a believer in that adage about "He who runs away," etc.

The cross of gold and crown of thorns is in danger of being ignored by the Kansas City convention.

Gov. Roosevelt wrote truth and wisdom when he said: "Our standard of private and public conduct will never be raised to the proper level until we make the scoundrel who succeeds feel the weight of a hostile public opinion even more strongly than the scoundrel who fails.

Democrats who talk of Bryan without silver are seeking means to deprive that gentleman of one of the few real things he stands for. Bryan's nomination would be accepted as an endorsement of the whole Chicago platform, even if that document is not mentioned at Kansas City. Bryan and free silver are as thoroughly one in public estimation as McKinley and prosperity are.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The "kissing bug" is taking quinine. Lynn Item.

☞ Some discussion has arisen as to whether Governor Crane will or will not sign the Westminster Chambers bill. One authority says he will not, because he will not appear to administer a rebuke to the legislature. If that were a good reason for withholding a veto, there would never be one. —New Bedford Standard.

☞ Norwegian legislatures propose that girls that do not know how to sew, wash and cook should be refused permission to marry. Daughters of wealthy men are not to be excepted. Here's practical education without an "if or an and." But what a hustling there'd be for needles, washtubs and cook books if such a law was maintained in our own glorious republic. Oh, my!—Milford Journal.

☞ There are bad Negroes--irredeemable Negroes—in the south and in the north. But if that fact is to be used as an argument for destroying citizenship, we need not leave New York city to find a chance for its sweeping application to a horde of "poor whites." And if it is claimed that the Negro has not progressed according to the measure of his freedom, there are a few statistics handy to refute the claim. The black man is able thus to sum up his accomplishments since his emancipation:

He has reduced his illiteracy 45 per cent.

He has written 300 books.

He has 200 newspapers issued regularly every week.

He has accumulated school property to the value of $12,000,000.

He owns church property worth $37,000,000.

He owns 137,000 farms and homes, worth $725,000,000.

He has personal property to the value of $165,000,000, and has raised $10,000,000 for his own education.

His per capita possessions amount to $72.50.

To propose that the nation shall step backward in the face of such a stepping forward is a curious way to argue the superiority of the dominant white man.

Mr. Cockran is on the wrong color line.—Philadelphia Tribune.

MARRIED 50 YEARS.

Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Furnald.

Although no invitations were issued, several of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon B. Furnald thought their fiftieth marriage anniversary should not go by unnoticed, and therefore they called at their residence on Washington street Saturday afternoon and evening.

The poor health of Mrs. Furnald the past few weeks prevented arrangements for a more formal reception, but it was nevertheless an enjoyable occasion, and one could hardly realize that the honored couple were old enough to have been married a half century.

But it was on June 9, 1850, that Mr. Furnald of Quincy led Miss Elizabeth Fowles Dodge of Quincy to the altar. Today they have three children living, Mr. Thomas E. Furnald, Miss M. Lizzie Furnald and Mr. Henry Plumer Furnald, and also grandchildren.

Mr. Furnald has had an active life, and is best known as a constable and detective. He was born in Quincy Aug. 24, 1828, but his father, Lemuel Furnald, was a native of Nottingham, N. H. He was the youngest of ten children, all of whom with one exception attained an advanced age.

In the forties Mr. Furnald was for a few years engaged in the U. S. coast survey under Prof. Glink. In 1852, he went to California via. Cape Horn, but made only a short stop.

In 1854, he became a dealer and repairer of furniture and for many years was located in the building that recently stood at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets.

He became a member of the State constabulary July 5, 1872, being appointed by Gov. Washburn, and continued a member until the force was abolished in 1875. He has since continued a constable of Quincy, being elected almost annually under the town government, and since 1888 receiving an appointment annually from successive mayors of the city. Constable Furnald obtained considerable prominence for successful work in the Julia Hawkes murder case at Braintree, also the Langmaid murder in Pembroke, N. H., and the William McCormick murder at Braintree. For 30 years he has been a justice of the peace.

Mr. Furnald is prominent in all branches of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Knights of Honor and Knights and Ladies of Honor, and is also a Red Man.

Council Business.

At tonight's meeting of the City Council the Committee on Streets will report on the order extending Chubbuck street, and the order changing the name of Central avenue. Also on the petitions for a location of poles from Massachusetts Telephone Co. and the New England Telephone Co., and for an arc light at the corner of Hancock and Savil streets.

The Committee on Licenses will report on petitions on a number of minor licenses.

In the calendar are the orders for lights on Kendrick avenue; telephone poles on Quincy avenue; electric light poles on Lincoln and Winthrop avenues; laying out Blake street, the loan order and the order transferring $12,467 the receipts from the street railway tax to the Street department.

The Committee on Finance may report on the Copeland street order.

Y. M. C. A. Nine Win.

On Saturday the recently formed Y. M. C. A. base-ball team defeated the strong Malden Athletic Club team on their own grounds, the score being 18—3.

The victory was due to fast fielding and clean hits. Stanton's work in the box was of high order he striking out 15 men and allowing only four hits off his delivery, and the support which he received made it impossible for the Malden players to pile up many runs. Several times there were men on second and third with none out, but they could not reach the plate, owing to the inability of the succeeding batters to connect with Stanton's curves.

Forty-Hours Devotion.

The 40-hours devotion at St. John's church commenced Sunday at 10.30. The altar was draped with white satin and was decorated with flowers. High mass was celebrated by Rev. F. A. Friguglietti. Benediction was held at 9 o'clock P. M., and masses were celebrated this morning at 4.30, 7 and 8 o'clock. Benediction will be held this evening and the services will close at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

— The Methodists in general conference at Chicago finally decided that molasses would be more efficacious than vinegar, and asks the influence of President McKinley to secure the passage of a new anti-canteen law, instead of roundly denouncing the policy of his administration in the matter.—Jamaica Plain News.

RECTOR RESIGNS.

One of the Oldest and Ablest Pastors of the City.

It will be news to many, even the members of Christ church, to learn that their rector for nearly seven years has resigned, but Rev. Walter Russell Breed has forwarded his resignation to the vestrymen of the church, that he may accept a call to a large church in Pennsylvania, near the home of Mrs. Breed's parents.

Mr. Breed has been very successful in Quincy and aside from his church duties he has been much interested in the Woodward Institute, being vice chairman of the board of directors. He has also served three years on the School Committee, and always ready to assist on all public occasions.

Rev. Mr. Breed entered upon his pastorate over Christ church, Suuday, Nov. 19, at the age of 28 years, succeeding Rev. H. Evan Cotton. He was born in Lynn, Jan. 10, 1865, and is the son of Joseph Wesley and Frances (Burrell) Breed. He was graduated from Wesleyan University of Conn. in 1887 and from the Episcopal Theological Seminary at Cambridge in 1890, when he was made a deacon. He was ordained a priest in Christ church at Tarrytown, New York, by Bishop Potter in May, 1891, and previous to coming to Quincy was rector at Trinity church, Concord. In 1895 while rector at Quincy, he was married at Mauch Chunk, Penn., to Miss Ellen Brodrick Zehner of Lansford, Penn., who has been popular in society. They have one son.

Mr. Breed has been unanimously elected to the rectorship of St. James church at Lancaster, Penn., and has telegraphed his acceptance. St. James is the oldest and finest parish in the diocese of central Pennsylvania. It has a long and proud history. Its rectors include Bishops White, Bowman and Knight. The church has three endowed institutions connected with it—the Yates Institute, a church school for boys, of which a church clergyman is the head master; the Bishop Bowman home for aged women; and the orphanage. In addition to these institutions there is a large chapel. The parish will have two assistant ministers. Mr. Breed was nominated to the rectorship by Bishop Talbot.

Mr. Breed expects to be in Quincy during a large part of October, and to begin work in Lancaster on All Saints day.

The wardens and vestry will confer with Bishop Lawrence regarding a successor to the present rector. It is Mr. Breed's earnest wish that a new rector may be elected so that there will be no break between one going and the other coming.

Algonquin Cup Race.

The Quincy Yacht Club's first invitation race for the 25 footers will be sailed off the club house on Saturday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock. The winner will get in the first leg for the Algonquin cup. The course will be over the challenge cup triangle and will be 12 knots. Cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10, will be awarded to yachts defeating competitors.

New Philippine Weekly.

Henry Curtis, Jr., formerly a Quincy boy, has sent the Ledger a copy of the Aparri News, the first newspaper published in English in the Philippine island. The price is 5 cents in gold or 10 cents in Mexican money.

The leading editorial on civil administration is significant and worthy of attention, and is given in full:

"For a soldier to be considering the ways and means of administering a civil form of government to these people, seems a trifle incongruous, but as the powers that be, are combining the two forms, military and civil, a few words may not be out of place. We will confine our remarks to the parts of this island which comes under our own jurisdiction, and see what we will see. Senator Beveridge of Indiana, in his recent speech regarding self government for the islands, said that there were not one thousand men (native) in the whole group, capable of self government, so, taking his estimate to be correct it leaves us a very poor percentage for our three provinces, and we cannot help but lean towards his view — for any of the parties which have left Aparri, to form civil governments in other towns have seen what a vacillating people this is, as witness how they changed their presidents in the towns visited.

"Their change of choice cannot be attributed to any educational powers, for they have very little, if any. Therefore, it would appear that any man with a plausible tongue, would be able to sway these people according to his own wishes. All of the natives are adepts in dissimulation, and the few of them who obtain an education have that cunning, made more cunning still, and instead of using their education to elevate their fellow countrymen, they use it only to take advantage of their ignorance.

Therefore, it would appear as if civil government would only be a success, while it is carried on in conjunction with military government, as, take the troops out of a town, and it would not be long ere the guerilla bands and scheming adventurers would have the municipality terrorized, and they would be mere puppets in their hands.

"We know from experience that the native police accompanied by soldiers, do not hesitate to point out the insurrecto leaders or agitators but who of us ever heard of a policeman bringing in a suspect from a town not garrisoned by soldiers. They may be morally brave but physically, cowards.

"In no way that a person can look at, be he civilian or soldier, can he see any chance of a civil administration being successful without the active support of the military authorities, and by support we do not mean a bureau or commission, with headquarters at only certain towns, but by a small garrison of soldiers at every place where the American flag is raised, and a president elected to carry out the laws he is pledged to support."

Worth Reading.

To the Editor:

I think it my duty to inform your readers of a remedy that should be in every household.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets, 17 East 14th St., New York, and in three days I felt better and afterwards I bought a twenty-five cent package and now I am completely cured. Your druggist can and must get it for you.

Yours truly,

Buying Ducks.
There are two ways of securing a duck.
The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train, hire a guide and a boat; sleep around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.
We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

BLUE FLAME OIL STOVES.

You hear a great deal at the present time about the new Blue Flame Oil Stoves. Most any thing new nowadays that saves money and lots of labor, makes people talk and wonder why some one didn't think of it long ago. It was so with steam, electricity, telephones, and today with Blue Flame Oil Stoves. Think of it, an oil stove with no wicks, that burns common oil and makes a clear blue flame like gas. No smell, no blackened pans. You can bake, roast, boil or fry. A child can operate them and the beauty of the whole system is, that they cost almost nothing to operate. The reliable stoves only for sale by us, and the sooner you own one of them, the sooner your labors will be lighter and your pocket book heavier.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

Samuel Crane Passes Away After Two Days' Illness.

Mr. Samuel Crane, one of Quincy's long and well known citizens, passed away Sunday morning at his home on High School avenue after a brief illness of neuralgia of the heart. He was taken ill in Boston last Friday but soon rallied and was accompanied to the depot, and was able to come home alone. Saturday morning he was apparently better but grew worse during the day until at night his illness had assumed a critical period. He continued to fail until shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday morning when he passed away.

Mr. Crane was born in Milton, Sept. 7, 1830, near the old Sumner paper mill, and was a son of Capt. Friend and Harriet (Fessenden) Crane. He received his education at Milton academy and the Bridgewater normal school.

After leaving school he worked for a few years with his father, who was engaged in the painting business. In 1853 he was appointed a member of the Boston police force, and was assigned to duty at station 6, South Boston. Subsequently he was promoted to the position of lieutenant.

He left the police department in 1863 to accept the superintendency of the Sailors' Snug Harbor in this city, which was left vacant by the death of his father. He remained at the head of the home for nine years.

In 1872 Mr. Crane was appointed librarian of the Mercantile library association, which position he held for four years.

He was appointed advertising agent of the Commercial Bulletin in 1878, and remained with that paper for 14 years, when he left to accept a similar position on the Manufacturers Gazette, the American Horse Breeder and the Boston Budget.

He held this position till 1898, when he resigned to become advertising agent of the Boston Advertiser and Record.

Mr. Crane was twice married. His first wife was Maria P. Hanley of Bristol, Me., to whom he was married May 30, 1854. Of this union were born Frank F., Friend, Ralph G. and Harry S. Crane, all of whom are living. This wife died Nov. 22, 1875.

His second wife, was Mary G. Bangs of Chelsea, to whom he was married Feb. 18, 1879. A daughter, Edith May Crane, was the result of their union.

Mr. Crane was a member of Rural lodge, F. and A. M. The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2 P. M.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Special Services at Bethany and First Churches.

Flower Sunday was observed Sunday at the First church. The exercises were held in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and were largely attended. The decorations were confined to the pulpit, the front of which was covered with wild flowers.

The exercises opened by the children of the Sunday School marching in from the chapel, singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." They marched up the side aisle and down the centre occupying seats in the body of the church, making a very pretty entrance.

Then followed a song of welcome by the school; responsive reading by the superintenent and school, song "There is beauty all around us," by the school; prayer by the school in unison; song, "Sunshine Floods the smiling earth," by the school; and responsive reading.

Then followed the baptism of infants, the following receiving the service: Clarence Rodgers Burgin, Katharyn Crane, Dorothy Hall, Luther Bennett, Edith Nicoll, Carl Slade Pfaffmann, Ellen May Brown and Margaret Smith. As each child was baptised it was given a rosebud.

Then followed brief addresses by Rev. Frederick B. Mott of Dorchester and Rev. Ellery Channing Butler.

Rev. Mr. Mott spoke of the good of the Sunday School, and suggested it be called the Sunday School Republic, and that its constitution be "The Sermon on the Mount."

Rev. Mr. Butler spoke of his trip south and of the voices of the language of the birds and the lessons to be drawn from them.

The school sang a selection during which a collection was taken to defray the expenses of the Sunday school picnic.

Charles H. Johnson, the treasurer, reported that when he assumed office Dec. 1 there was $27.25 on hand. Since that time the collections had amounted to $91.99 making a total of $119.24, of which there was a balance on hand of $60.34. The contributions to the Sunday School Fund amounted to $157.90, of which there was a balance on hand of $114.81.

The secretary's report showed that twenty-eight sessions had been held since November, with an average attendance of 103, and an average collection of $3.76.

The librarian reported the number of books on hand as 943; not yet returned, 23; making a total of 966.

The superintendent reported that the school was increasing, and that the interest of the children had also increased. The school had awakened a lively interest in practical christianity. She also spoke of the great benefit given the teachers by the pastor, also of the need of more teachers. Reference was also made to the kindergarten school, and that death had not entered the school during the year. The superintendent urged parents to send their children to school and that they also visit the school.

The benediction by the pastor followed, after which each member of the school as it left the church was presented with a potted plant, which had been provided through the generosity of Henry H. Faxon.

The annual picnic of the school will be held June 30 at Randolph grove and the Sunday School will resume sessions Sept. 9.

The auditorium of Bethany Congregational church was crowded Sunday morning at the Children's day service. Over 100 children of the primary department marched down the main aisle at the opening, most of them taking position on the raised platform. Over their head in a semi-circle of large daisy letters were the words "Children's Day," and there were other floral decorations. The program included exercises by groups of boys and girls, many of them young in years; also recitations, songs, etc. Two babies were brought forward for baptism: Gertrude Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Beal; and Miriam, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Hardy. There were very brief addresses by the pastor and Rev. A. A. Ellsworth, the latter bringing the greeting of the Braintree church.

A large number of diplomas were presented to boys and girls who were graduated from the primary department to the Bible school proper. The brief reports of the school were most encouraging; the attendance of the past six months averaging over 300.

Lawn Party.

The lawn fete held at the residence of Mr. W. M. Chase Saturday evening was a great success and was largely attended. A clam chowder supper was served from 6 to 8. Lemonade, orangeade, ices, candy and peanuts were on sale. The fortune teller was one of the chief attractions and was well patronized. The music was furnished by a hurdy gurdy, which kept things lively and most of the young ladies and gentlemen took their turn at grinding. Dancing was enjoyed and everyone had a merry good time.

IN MEMORY GREEN.

Odd Fellows Observe Their Annual Memorial Day.

All branches of Odd Fellowship—the canton, encampment, Rebekahs and lodge—were represented in good numbers, on the Memorial day of Mt. Wollaston lodge, as the procession moved from I. O. O. F. hall in the Adams building to the First Universalist church on Washington street. Past Grand Goodridge was marshal. Such a large turnout of representative citizens stamp Odd Fellowship as one of the most popular orders of the city.

Since the institution of the lodge in 1884, there have been 25 deaths in the membership. During the year just passed there have been two, Josiah B. Dyer, who died March 12, 1900, and John A. McKie, who died April 28, 1900. Past Grand Jacobs, in his address told of life and virtues, and of their work for Odd Fellowship.

The order of service was as follows:

Organ voluntary, Florence Cutter.
Anthem, "Hark, hark my soul," H. R. Shelly
Choir.
Responsive service.
Gloria, Choir.
Scripture reading, Rev. William W. Dornan.
Anthem, "Come unto me," F. A. Filmore
Choir.
Necrologic address, Past Grand Franklin Jacobs
Prayer, Rev. Edwin N. Hardy.
Solo, "Ave Maria" Gounod
Miss Lulu E. Phelan.
Hymn, No. 97, Congregation.
Address, "Sacrifice through faith,"
Rev. Merrill C. Ward.
Solo, "Shall I be Forgotten," Herbert Johnson
Mr. John Greene.
Memorial hymn.
Benediction.
Organ postlude, Florence Cutter.

The 22d chapter of Genesis was read as the Scripture lesson, and was the subject of the pastor's address. The words of commendation of Odd Fellowship were pleasing to the members assembled.

Music was a feature of the service, the solo of Miss Phelan being accompanied by a violin obligato by Bro. Joshua E. Hanson.

As the Odd Fellows left the church the pastor was near the door and grasped each one cordially by the hand. The lodges marched to their hall where they were dismissed.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

The Latest Hairdressing—Stylish Dust Cloaks—New Hosiery, Etc.

The latest characteristics of hairdressing are the softness, the irregular natural looking waves and a decided tendency to discard the rigid, very frizzy effect so unmistakably the result of hot irons. In other words, of Parisian authority, "the more Greuze-like the coiffure the more distingue." There are pompadours without end, but the one which is strictly correct in style is soft and careless without the immense roll inside to disfigure the head and flattened not a little directly on top. A stylish mode very becoming to some women shows the hair divided into three parts with an invisible parting on either side, the center portion carried in a deep wave across the forehead, and the sides puffed out very full in a large wave. Parting the hair in the center, combing it down in a soft wave at either side, and puffing it out full below is another pretty mode. The knot is worn high on the head except in rare instances, when it is seen low in the neck, and the latest arrangement is one full high loop standing high on the crown of the head and crossed below as if it were a bowknot without the second loop. Three smaller loops are also very pretty and more becoming when more width is required. The essential elements of a successful coiffure are a sense of proportion and becoming effect, remembering that the style which suits one head may be almost disfiguring to another.

The variety in hair ornaments for evening wear is prettier than ever before. Some of the daintiest novelties are made of aigrets shaped in the form of a short, stiff quill and spangled with silver. Then there are all sorts of erect bows of lace, velvet, satin ribbon and tulle combined with aigrets and colored spangles, and the prettiest Alsatian effects as well. White lace insertion with waved edges makes a dainty little Alsatian bow. The lace is about two inches wide, with two loops each way and a little fine silk covered wire to hold them in place.

Very stylish long traveling coats of brown holland linen are shown in the shops. They are tucked like the skirts, the stitching ending at the knee and fall from the shoulders, which are covered by a yoke finished on the edges with stitched bands and covered with a wide collar of embroidered ecru batiste which points down at either side in front, where it is caught together with a Persian silk scarf. These are an elegant edition of what used to be called dust cloaks and are made of taffeta silk as well.

Silk and lisle thread hosiery in lace-like openwork designs are the daintiest novelties in this department. They come in a variety of colors as well as black and lead the line for smart effects with the low cut patent leather shoes. There are striped stockings galore and every kind and color spotted with white polka dots, but the lacelike designs take the palm.

Dress slippers of both black and cream white leather are made with the broad Cromwell flaps rising in the instep, and the whole fronts of the shoes are inlaid with cabochon jewels. Black satin slippers with gilt heels are another fancy.

Some of the new skirts are made with a silk drop skirt, which has a ruffle of the material like the gown. This is made just long enough to clear the ground, so it is a simple matter to hold up the outside skirt. The foregoing are among fashion's frills, as noted by the New York Sun.

Summer Floor Coverings.

For summer floor coverings mattings are most generally used, but it is a point to be noted that the cheaper qualities do not wear well. Denim, which comes in all manner of pretty designs and shades, is a very good substitute, provided it is put down over a layer of carpet lining or old newspapers, says an exchange.

Fashion's Echoes.

A loosely woven nun's veiling, somewhat resembling that old favorite "bunting," will be a useful and pleasant summer dress fabric, being light and cool.

The sunbonnet is to be an established style of the summer and appears in lawns, piques, ginghams and wash silk.

Some very stunning costumes are made in white mohair.

Knife plaited skirts are popular in thin silks and canvases.

Handkerchief waists are in high favor. Jaunty little lace boleros give the needed touch of style to plain suits.

Silk petticoats are trimmed with accordion plaited flounces.

The empire scarf of silk, mull or chiffon promises to be a fad of the summer.

The yoke back, so popular last season, is hardly seen on the new shirt waists.

Guipure blouses will be much worn, in black over white, with a colored satin collar band and buttons imitating some precious stone, preferably turquoise.

The laundress is sure of satisfactory results in her work if she uses Ivory Soap. Linens are of immaculate whiteness; no dirt or streaks anywhere. There's no room for criticism in the work when brought home. Ivory Soap is cheaper than common soaps in the end.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory;" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

IS PRESSING FORWARD.

Buller Expected to Soon Complete a Junction With Forces Under Roberts.

Boers Show No Disposition to Give Up the Fighting.

British Hampered by Bold and Vexatious Raid Upon a Railway Line.

London, June 11.—General Buller is in Boer territory. Dispatches of correspondents with him filed yesterday at sunset, describe the corps as camping at Gansolei, close to the point where the frontiers of the Free State, the Transvaal and Natal meet.

"The British marched eight miles yesterday," says a Reuter correspondent, "before encountering any opposition. The Boers, who had one gun, withdrew under heavy ordnance fire to a ridge just ahead of the camp."

This long range, running skirmish will doubtless be renewed today. General Buller is expected to make rapid progress now and to throw the weight of 200,000 men into Lord Roberts' Transvaal combinations.

The fighting on June 6, in which there were fewer than 20 casualties, was kept up all day long by musketry and artillery. The British attacking line, three miles in length, made its way amid the precipitious hills. A Boer gun on Spitz kop fired shrapnel rapidly, at a range of 400 yards, at the British right flank, but every shell was buried in the ground before bursting. The defensive power of modern weapons seems less effective in rough country than upon levels where wide spaces can be covered with flat trajectories.

General Rundle's and General Brabant's divisions are still at Hammonia, in the Ficksburg district. The latest intelligence from their headquarters is that the Boers are determined to fight to the bitter end. They are concentrating 4000 men around Bethlehem. The country between them and General Rundle is mountainous and resembles northern Natal in being exceedingly difficult for military operations. General Rundle's present care is to prevent the Boers getting past him southward. Major Wood of Rundle's staff rode to a Boer outpost on June 6 and announced that Pretoria had been occupied by the British. How the Boers received the news is not recorded. Altogether 600 Boers have surrendered to General Rundle.

General Hunter's advance has occupied Ventersdorp, 100 miles southwest of Pretoria. This took place on June 7. General Plumer's column is on the Elands river, northwest of Pretoria. The British are sending detachments right and left to accept the surrenders of commandoes, horses, cattle and forage, and to overawe the sparsely settled country. Thus far, only one small commando has been heard of, a commando at Tail Basch.

General Hunter's immediate objective is Potchelstroom. This town and Rustenburg are the largest towns west of Johannesburg. It is reported that Potchefstroom is ready to submit. General Hunter has warned all burghers that, if the telegraph is cut behind him, he will send back troops and burn the houses near the line.

The Boers have torn up 21 miles of Lord Roberts' vital line of railway between America Siding and Roodsval. It is a bold raid and vexatious, but it does not disquiet the military authorities as yet, for they expect General Kelly-Kenny to drive off the maurauders and to reopen the line.

The rapidity of the advance of Lord Roberts cannot have permitted him to accumulate large reserves of stores. Therefore an interruption of the railway, even for a week, must embarrass the army and may bring the forward operations to a standstill.

Nothing has been heard from Lord Roberts for three days. This raid on the railway, the strenuous opposition to General Rundle, and the numble escape of Commandant General Botha's division forced the war office observers to the reluctant conclusion that the war is not yet over, although even the occasional civilian Boer sympathizer cannot see how the Boers will be able to do anything to change the result.

Queer Freak of Nature.

Toledo, June 11.—James McNeely, a 13-year-old boy, of Avondale, died after suffering from enlargement of the skull, his head measuring 30½ inches in circumference. When the shull was opened at the autopsy the physicians found that it enclosed 5½ quarts of a fluid as clear as crystal. The brain, instead of being solid, was hollow, and in the interior was this fluid. The skull was a mere shell. Young McNeely was unusually bright.

Blue Law Resurrected.

Concord, N. H., June 11.—The active crusade against liquor selling on Sundays developed a new condition of affairs here, for a druggist was arrested for selling soda water. He was released on his own recognizance and will appear in court today. The prohibition against soda water on Sunday dates back for a year, when Mayor Martin ordered drug stores not to do business except as required in filling physicians' prescriptions.

Crops Heavily Damaged.

Springfield, Ills., June 11.—A terrific windstorm passed over this section yesterday. In Springfield a number of shade and fruit trees were destroyed, and reports from neighboring cities for a radius of 40 miles show great damage done to fruit trees. The damage will aggregate thousands of dollars.

Long Strike Declared Off.

Pittsburg, June 11.—The strike of the printers, inaugurated last December in all of the Pittsburg English dailies except one, was officially declared off Saturday by the executive board of the I. T. U. The men are angry at the board's action.

STABBING MAY RESULT FATALLY.

A Murderous Looking Weapon Used by an Armenian Upon His Brother-In-Law.

Uxbridge, Mass., June 11.—Paul Harry was stabbed in the left side of the abdomen Saturday evening by Jacob Simonian in a tenement house in Calumet village, rented by Nazaretta Jacobs, and it is believed that the wound will result fatally. All the parties are Armenians, and the principals, who boarded with Jacobs, had been fast friends, Harry marrying a sister of Simonian, his wife now being in Armenia.

Simonian went to Woonsocket Saturday, returning on the 5 o'clock train, and was met at the station by Harry, who helped him carry some of his bundles. Simonian also had a bicycle, which he was taking home. It was seen that he was under the influence of liquor. The men lived upstairs in Jacobs' tenement, and as Simonian started to carry the wheel upstairs, Harry said to him: "Look out or you will fall and break your wheel; you're drunk."

Simonian at once whipped out a knife with a blade seven inches long, sharpened on both sides and curved at the end, and made a savage thrust at Harry, the blade entering the latter's abdomen. Harry fell, bleeding profusely, while Simonian coolly went upstairs and went to bed.

When Deputy Sheriff Bacon and Officer Fisher reached the house, they found Simonian in bed, and a fierce struggle ensued before the officers were able to secure the man, Simonian being a man of powerful physique. The latter was finally subdued and lodged in the town lockup, but not until Sheriff Bacon had been considerably injured.

Later Attorney Brady took Harry's deposition, in which he said that he had had no quarrel with Simonian; that he did not strike Simonian, but the latter drew his knife and stabbed him.

Both men were employed in the finishing room at the Calumet woolen mill, Simonian being 40 years old and Harry 32. They have been in Uxbridge eight or nine years, and were always regarded as peaceable citizens.

Victim of a Runaway Accident.

Suffern, N. Y., June 11.—Dr. Paul Gibier, aged 19, head of the sanitarium here, and of the Pasteur Institute of New York city, died at midnight Saturday night from the effects of injuries received in a runaway earlier in the evening. Dr. Gibier and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Horen, started out for a drive. The horse took fright at some fireworks and dashed down the road. A wheel of the vehicle caught in a tree. Dr. Gibier and Mrs. Horen were thrown to the ground. Dr. Gibier's head struck on a stone, and he died without regaining consciousness. Aside from the shock and a few bruises Mrs. Horen was not badly hurt.

Encouraging Figures From the Philippines.

Washington, June 11.—The important information was given out by the division of customs and insular affairs of the war department yesterday that the exports at the port of Manila for the first three months of 1900 show an increase of $2,050,443 over the same period of 1899. A notable increase in the value of merchandise exported during the month of March, 1900, from the port of Manila is largely due to the opening of numerous customs ports to the coastwise trade, thus permitting large quantities of hemp to be brought to Manila for export.

Celebrating Double Centennial.

South Framingham, Mass., June 11.—The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the incorporation of the town began Sunday, when commemorative exercises were held at all the churches in the town. The celebration will continue until the 15th, closing Friday evening. The morning services at all the churches developed appropriate sermons on the occasion of the festival, and in the afternoon a union service of the churches of Framingham was held at the Plymouth Congregational church.

Took a Dose of Laudanum.

Greenwich, Conn., June 11.—Nicholas McCormick, aged 42, died Sunday night from the effects of a dose of laudanum, self-administered, and Cornelius Doran, with whom McCormick boarded, had a narrow escape from death, as he also drank a dose of the poison, thinking he was getting Jamaica ginger.

Negro Murderer Killed.

Montgomery, Ala., June 11.—Ex-Governor Oates heard a pistol shot in his kitchen and on investigation found his cook lying dead, killed by a negro. The negro started towards Mr. Oates, pistol in hand. Not heeding warnings not to advance, Oates shot and killed the negro.

"Believed to Have Been" Murderers.

Biloxi, Miss., June 11.—The negroes, Askew and Ruse, who were believed to have murdered Miss Winterstien near here a week ago, were hanged Sunday to the same tree by a mob which has been watching for them for several days.

FOR JUSTICE AND FAIR DEALING

Delegates Representing League Baseball Players Organize Mutual Benefit Union.

New York, June 11.—Protective Association of Professional Baseball Players is the name of the organization effected in this city yesterday at a meeting of delegates from the eight National league teams. The question of ball players forming an organization for mutual benefit has been agitated for some time. The farming out of players against their will and other practices that are considered grievances by the players led up to meetings by the different teams and delegates were selected at these meetings to yesterday's conclave. The deliberations were secret, but according to Hugh Jennings, who was spokesman for the players, the work of organizing was accomplished. It was decided not to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor for the present. "It was the sense of the meeting not to antagonize the league in any way," Jennings said. "Justice and fair dealing are what we want."

"The organization takes in about all the league players. A league player does not have to join, however. Nor would a player be tabooed if he did not join. If he had a grievance, however," said Jennings, "it would be his alone and not ours. Later minor league players will be taken in. As to how we will go about righting wrongs I am unable to say just now, as we are too young and those matters will have to be developed as we go along. We would lay the matter before the magnates and ask them to consider it. Would we order a strike? No, I don't know that we would; but we might take strong measures if we did not get justice. But, as I said, it is not our purpose to antagonize the league."

A president and committee on by-laws and constitution were chosen yesterday, but their names were kept secret for the time being. The names of three former ball players were mentioned as legal advisers for the association.

Woman Beaten by Unknown Man.

South Berwick, Me., June 11.—Mrs. Charles Packard, while returning to her home about 9:30 o'clock at night, was attacked by an unknown man on the track of the Boston and Maine railroad, who choked her and dealt her several heavy blows on the face, disfiguring her almost beyond recognition. Then, after administering several kicks on her body, he disappeared, making no attempt to appropriate any of the bundles which she was carrying. Mrs. Packard is very weak and suffering greatly. A man answering the description of her assailant is reported to have previously attempted an assault near the same place upon two young women, who, however, escapted before he could inflict any injuries upon them.

Has a Poor Opinion of O'Brien.

Dublin, June 11.—Timothy Healy, replying to the letter of John Redmond, appealing to him to use his influence to make the forthcoming convention harmonious and fully representative of Irish political opinion, says: "I possess no such influence as would induce the Nationalists who have been rejected by the committee to attend the convention." He expresses the opinion that Mr. O'Brien will make Mr. Redmond "either a victim or a slave," and adds that he had hoped the "era of intrigue" had closed.

Young Stokes Enters the Ministry.

New York, June 11.—Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., the third son of Anson Phelps Stokes, and one of New York's richest young men, was ordained an Episcopal deacon yesterday by Bishop Henry C. Potter. Mr. Stokes had long intended to enter the ministry. In 1897 he entered the Episcopal theological seminary in Cambridge, Mass., where he has just finished his theological course.

A Georgia Lynching Bee.

Columbus, Ga., June 11.—Simon Adams, a negro, 20 years old, attempted to assault the two daughters of E. H. Almond, who lives 10 miles from the city. Adams was captured and a guard started to Columbus with him. A mob overpowered the guard, hanged Adams, riddled his body with bullets and threw it into the river.

Stabbing and Shooting Affair.

Waterbury, Conn., June 11.—Ambrosio Copabianchi, aged 25, was mysteriously stabbed Sunday night in front of the Earle House, and later, while trying to arrest Antonio Berriello, who resides on West Main street, and was supposed to be implicated in the affair, Berriello was shot by an officer, with probably fatal results.

Won't Be Brought to Trial.

Chester, Pa., June 11.—James Pierce, who, with his brother "Pinny" Pierce, was charged with the murder of George B. Eyre of this city, on Dec. 21 last, committed suicide yesterday in his cell at the county jail at Media. The trial of the brothers was to have commenced today.

Lowell's Smallpox Cases.

Lowell, Mass., June 11.—Two more smallpox cases were reported Sunday. The patients are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herbert, and they live in the Fletcher block, on Moody street, in which the disease originated here.

CHOICE RECIPES.

Genuine Strawberry Shortcake. Broiled Mackerel and Sauce.

Hull, wash and drain two baskets of strawberries. Save a few choice fruits for a garnish and cut the rest in halves. Mix the latter with one cup and a half of sugar and set aside for an hour or more in a warm place. Sift together one cup and a half of pastry flour, half a cup of cornstarch, half a teaspoonful of salt and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. With the tips of the fingers work into these ingredients one-fourth of a cup of butter. Add gradually about one cup of milk, mixing with a knife to form a rather soft dough. Toss on to a floured board and knead lightly. Divide into two pieces. Pat and roll out to fit a round cake pan. Put one piece on the pan, spread the top with softened butter and place the other lightly above it. Bake in a quick oven 15 or 20 minutes. Pull the two layers apart and spread liberally with softened butter. Put one layer on a serving dish, pour over half of the sugared berries, above this put the other layer, then the rest of the berries. Add one-fourth of a cup of milk to a cup of thick cream and beat until stiff. Add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and, if desired, half a teaspoonful of vanilla, and when well mixed use as a garnish for the top of the cake.

Broiled Mackerel, Maitre d'Hotel Sauce.—Cut off the fins, split open, dress and remove the backbone, brush over with melted butter or oil and broil in a well oiled broiler over a slow fire; dish on a hot platter on a platform of mashed potatoes shaped to the fish. Spread over the fish a partly melted maitre d'hotel sauce; garnish with lettuce and slices of lemon. Serve sliced cucumbers with this dish.

For the maitre d'hotel sauce cream three tablespoonfuls of butter, add one tablespoonful of cress or parsley, finely chopped and wrung dry in a cloth; add a few grains of pepper and salt and one or two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

sign of black velvet and jet. The fetching hat worn with it is of pale blue straw with a huge bow and lace trimming and violets under the brim.

How to Curtain Windows.

Ordinarily two sets of curtains go to a window—a thin pair of muslin or lace next the glass and a thick pair of silk, wool, cotton or linen next the room, says Harper's Bazar. The quality of these materials varies. Often they are costly, often cheap. When in doubt about the thin curtains, it is always safe to buy white dotted muslin. Either loop them back with a white cotton cord and tassel, which come for the purpose, costing only 16 cents a pair, or tie them back with ribbons—a more expensive and also more extravagant way, since the ribbon must always be fresh to be pretty. The cord or the ribbon is held in place by a hook screwed into the woodwork of the window frame. A ruffle of the same material or of lace adds much to the effect of any thin curtain. These curtains are put on small, inexpensive brass rods that run through a part of the hem, the upper part of the hem being left wide enough to form a heading. A muslin curtain ought to fall with a certain fullness, being cut about one and a half the fullness of the window itself. Small and large windows are curtained alike.

Good For Cleaning Bottles.

"Did you know," said the old housekeeper, "that crushed eggshells are good for cleaning discolored or stained bottles? I used to think I must have a small amount of shot in the house for cleaning the inside of bottles. Of course chopped pieces of potato are good, but eggshells are first rate too."

Parasol Handles.

White and light woods are much in evidence for parasol sticks. These are in one piece from top to tip and without any ornament at the latter point. Very attractive among them is boxwood, which affords beautiful effects in club handles.

EMPEROR'S PROPOSAL.

Would Govern China Under a Joint Protectorate of Foreign Powers.

Empress and Her Ministers Are Classed as Usurpers.

News From Pekin Indicates That the Situation Has Not In the Least Improved.

London, June 12.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says:

Weng Tung Ho, Emperor Kwang Hsu's tutor and confident, who was dismissed by the dowager empress after the coup d'etat in 1898, sends with the special sanction of the emperor and his party, including three viceroys, a message to the peoples of the west. In part it is as follows:

EMPEROR OF CHINA.

"His majesty is convinced that the loyal support of many scores of millions of the Chinese will be accorded to his proposals for putting an end to the state of anarchy brought about by the action of Empress Hsi Tsi.

"The government of China being virtually non-existent, the emperor proposes that the foreign powers whose troops dominate the capital shall remove his imperial person from the palace in which his majesty is confined as a prisoner, shall declare Empress Hsi Tsi and her present ministers to be usurpers and shall bring Emperor Kwang Hsu to whichever city the said foreign powers deem to be the most suitable situation for the new capital of the Chinese empire, under the new conditions.

"It is proposed by his majesty and his advisers that the foreign powers should declare a joint protectorate and undertake the task of governing the country through his majesty."

The message suggests that the protectorate should abolish certain boards in Pekin; appoint new ministers; abolish the existing so-called armies; establish gendarmerie under foreign officers; take control of the customs, posts and telegraphs and work them through Chinese officials; establish a uniform currency; readjust taxation and insure the freedom of religion.

The last message out of Pekin to reach London left there yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, going by way of the Russian telegraph through Manchuria, the Tien Tsin line being cut. It is as follows:

"General Tung, a Mohammedan, extremely hostile to foreigners, arrived here this morning and had a long audience with Prince Tlan, father of the heir apparent, who is seemingly friendly to the Boxers. Prince Tuan has been appointed chief of the foreign office, over Prince Ching, who is more friendly toward the foreigners. The arrival of the empress dowager has rendered the city somewhat more quiet than it had been recently. The Protestants have erected a barricade before the building in which they have taken refuge, and they have a small guard. The Catholics are concentrated north of the cathedral, under the protection of a French guard of 25 men, who will hold out to the end. I am convinced that Pekin, especially the Tartar city, is safe. More massacres of Christians are reported."

All the telegrams indicate that the situation has not in the least improved. On the contrary, the disorder has spread from the neighborhood of Pekin to the capital itself, which is growing turbulent in anti-foreign demonstrations. In addition to the burning of the Pekin club, the secretary of the Belgian legation has been roughly handled in the streets. Hostile crowds continue to demonstrate against the legations. Two thousand international troops are approaching the city, and the advance guard is due to arrive today.

The United States, according to dispatches from Copenhagen, have given "hearty adhesion" to the scheme for a European demonstration. The Russian minister in Pekin, who also acts as the envoy of Denmark, is credited with having sent a dispatch to the Danish foreign office, to the effect that a demonstration has been planned, under the leadership of England and Russia, in which all the great powers and several of the smaller will take part. The latter are not called upon to send troops, as there are enough on the spot; but they are to be asked to delegate the right to hoist their flags to the great powers, in order that a demonstration may be made or a battle fought under the flags of all Europe. Japan and the United States have been informed and agree to the arrangement.

ARE ANXIOUS FOR EDUCATION.

Otis Thinks Filipinos Would Become Good Citizens Through American School Ideas.

Washington, June 12.—General Otis spent yesterday afternoon at the war department in conference with the heads of the various staff departments in regard to the condition and needs of their departments in the Philippines. Very naturally he had many questions to answer in his intercourse with his friends respecting present and future conditions in the Philippines, and of these he talked quite freely.

He made one statement in particular which came as a distinct surprise, in view of the fact that he has spent a year and a half in fighting the Filipinos, for he declared that these same Filipinos were without question the very best of any of the Asiatic races living on the Pacific coast and islands. He paid a high tribute to their acquisitiveness, saying that young and old were alike anxious to learn from the Americans and quick to do so if given any opportunity.

The demand for schools on the American plan was insatiable. It had not been possible to secure a sufficient supply of Spanish-American text books, the market having been denuded of such. When the book hungry Filipinos were told this they begged for American school books, and declared that their children could learn from them even without the Spanish text and translations.

General Otis found to his astonishment that such was the case. He said that in the course of a very few months the Filipino children picked up a fair knowledge of English. Even the old natives conned the text books in the effort to fix English phrases in their minds. There was a dearth of teachers, too. General Otis said he looked upon this educational feature as the only solution of the Philippine problem, and was confident that the spread of American ideas through the Filipino schools would in the end make good citizens of the Filipinos.

EXTRA.

MURDER ON A MAINE FARM.

Four Bodies Found in Ruins of Their Home at West Newfield.

A Foul Crime Recalling Others in Rural Districts of New England.

A Hired Man Recently From Boston Suspected of Being the Perpetrator---He is Missing.

West Newfield, Me., June 12.—The farm buildings of George W. Goodwin, situated two miles from here, on a cross road leading to East Wakefield, were burned at an early hour Monday morning, and Mr. Goodwin and three others had previously been murdered and the buildings were set on fire to conceal the crime.

Naturally, the entire community, already aroused over the unexplained Sprague murder in South Berwick, the bank robbery soon after in the same place and numerous assault cases within a few days, is almost in a state of frenzy over this last and most terrible tragedy.

Mr. Goodwin lived about two miles outside the center of the town on the road to East Wakefield. He was a man well off in worldly goods and had always borne an excellent reputation among his neighbors. With him lived his mother, Mrs. Elsie R. Horne, 76 years of age; his adopted son, Scott Goodwin, 20 years old, and a hired man, Fred Bertsch. The bodies of all four of these persons were recovered from the ruins of the house, and those of Mrs. Horne and Bertsch gave every indication that they had been murdered, for both the heads were crushed in, while that of Bertsch showed many wounds as if made by a knife. The bodies of Goodwin and his son were so badly burned that no trace of a weapon was discernible.

While the fire was noticed as early as 2 o'clock Monday morning, it was not until nearly 5 that anyone visited the place. John Drew first gave the alarm, as he had occasion to go to the Goodwin place soon after sunrise for a cow which he had in the barn. He found the house in ruins, and seeing no trace of the family about, called out the neighbors. Some hours elapsed, however, before the town officials appeared on the scene and the work of recovering the bodies commenced.

It was learned that Scott Goodwin had told a friend that a man named George Champion, who formerly worked in this vicinity and returned after being some months in Boston, had been hired by Mr. Goodwin to work on the place. It was also recalled that Champion had had some trouble in Boston, and the person who heard about him from Scott Goodwin had also been told by Scott that Champion wanted to have his presence in this vicinity kept quiet. Subsequently, as only four bodies were found in the ruins of the fire, a search was begun for Champion, and all New England has been notified to look out for him and detain him, if discovered.

The work of taking the bodies from the ruins was vigorously conducted and it was soon known that the fire was not an accident and that before it broke out a more awful tragedy had taken place.

The bodies of Mr. Goodwin and his son were hardly recognizable, the latter being headless. The body of Mrs. Horne was more readily identified, while that of Bertsch was simply charred. The medical examiner discovered that the head of Mrs. Horne had been crushed in by some blunt instrument and that death probably ensued before the fire reached it. In the case of Bertsch, not only was the skull crushed in, in a similar manner to that of Mrs. Horne, but there were wounds on other parts of the body. The throat was cut and badly hacked, over the heart was a deep wound, which must have caused death, if death had not taken place before, while there were two more deep cuts in the breast, wounds which ordinarily would have proved mortal.

A thorough search was made for traces of other bodies, principally with the idea that perhaps Champion might have been in the house, but no more were found.

In the meantime, word had been sent over the immediate vicinity and every effort was being made to apprehend Champion. A man was arrested in Somersworth later in the day, but last night he was released. Two men applied at a house in East Wakefield for food, and while they were eating one of them kept his coat sleeve over his left wrist. Both of these departed without their identity being disclosed.

It was learned that Goodwin, some three weeks ago, sold a piece of woodland for $2300, and some of his neighbors stated that he had banked some of the money shortly after, keeping $500 for use. Others state, however, that he did not place the money in the bank, but had it in the house, and this story is ignored as a motive for the crime.

The description of Champion is as follows: Forty or 45 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weight 160 pounds, light complexion, thin features and with the finger of one hand missing.

The crime recalls many others which have occurred in the rural districts of New England, especially the one at Brookfield, Mass., where the Newton family was murdered by a farm hand, Paul Mueller.

Mutiny Quelled by Soldiers.

San Juan, P. R., June 12.—Five hundred inmates of the penitentiary mutinied yesterday, refusing to take breakfast or to work. They asserted that the food was not fit to eat, and the leader struck the warden in the face. The penitentiary is guarded by a detachment of 20 members of a Porto Rico regiment. The prisoners attempted to rush the troops, who fired three volleys at the wall or in the air. Three of the inmates were injured by splinters, though not seriously. The military authorities then called out a company of regulars, but the native company quelled the disturbance before the regulars arrived.

Squabbled Over a Bill.

Bath, Me., June 12.—F. S. Long of the Water Street mission was bound over to the supreme judicial court Monday on a charge of assault and battery on C. A. Warner, who boarded at the mission. The trouble arose over a bill, and Long is accused of striking Warner with a chair, breaking his shoulder blade.

Paper Company's Heavy Loss.

Berlin, N. H., June 12.—The large storehouse of the International Paper company, together with the boiler house and 1000 cords of wood piled near, were destroyed by fire Monday, with a loss to the company of over $50,000. It is thought the fire was caused by a passing locomotive.

Madame Yale's
HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

Good Afternoon.

The Bostons may be tied for third or fourth place in the National league tomorrow night.

There is general regret that Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Breed are to go to other fields, but it has long been recognized that such talent as Mr. Breed possesses would command a call from a larger church. All wish him success.

Have we had your estimate on the population of Quincy for June 1, 1900? Here is a chance for the optimists and pessimists, and we believe there would be a big difference in the estimates.

We notice that a city much larger than Quincy has been styled the city of golden weddings because it has had one of these anniversaries every month for six months. The City of Presidents has several every year.

The city through its City Council shows a willingness to encourage the new industries at Quincy Point and Neck. Last year much criticism was heard because of a small appropriation for Howard street, which was regarded as reckless and extravagant. Now the City Council has voted to build a new street from Howard street to South street, as requested by the Eastern Dock and Construction Company; also to extend Chubbuck street to intersect it, and the people say amen. All are pleased to do what they can for an enterprise which promises to do so much for Quincy. Within a few years Des Moines street should be extended up the valley to New road. It would be a new and more direct avenue to the business centre and of easy grade for heavy teaming not only to and from the shipyard, but from the quarries to tide water, and from the coal wharves to South and West Quincy.

The Legislature has a case of a majority report from a minority on the Boston gas question, while the majority will put in a minority report. It is one of the cases, we believe, where the majority of the Legislature will be with the minority of the committee. They report the McPherson bill which provides that hereafter there shall be no gas manufactured within the Commonwealth which is not manufactured by a duly incorporated company under the supervision of the Gas and Electric Light Commission. This strikes directly at New England Gas and Coke Company, which is a partnership with Mr. Henry M. Whitney at the head. The McPherson bill further provides that the Attorney General shall proceed upon the complaint of ten individuals against any person or association not duly incorporated for violation of the act and on his complaint the Supreme and Superior Courts are given full jurisdiction to enjoin any such unincorporated individuals from making gas in this State. It is also provided that the acts for incorporation of gas companies in this State shall apply to all such individuals with the exception that the required capitalization at $500,000 be stricken out.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Secretary Long's attitude, with respect to the vice-presidential nomination for which the Massachusetts Republicans recommended him, has been most dignified and his actions have commended him anew to the esteem and admiration of his multitude of friends. Maintaining his own self-respect, he cherishes no vain conception of his political importance and deserts, but supplies a most refreshing and impressive example of sincerity in public life.—Beverly Times.

When the Iron's Hot

On ironing day a woman realizes one of the many comforts that come with the use of a Wickless Oil Stove. A hot iron on this wonderful stove is a clean iron. There isn't a particle of dirt to mar the whiteness of the clothes, because there is no smoke or soot generated from its flame. This cannot be said of any other stove in existence.

Wickless BLUE FLAME Oil Stove

is solving the summer housekeeping question more effectively, and more economically than any other stove — gas or coal. It can bake, boil, broil, roast or toast — and it can do all these things at a fraction of the cost of the stoves, because it burns ordinary kerosene. Look into the merits of the Wickless Oil Stove. Get acquainted to-day. If your dealer does not carry them, write for catalogue to

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Cook prize in poetry, founded by Professor Cook of the English department of Yale university, has been awarded to Charles A. Kellogg, Jr., 1900, of Carthage, Mo., for his poem entitled "The Mother's Sleep."

The court of claims has decided that the crew of the United States ship Fern is entitled to share in the bounty money which is to be paid by the government for the destruction of Cervera's fleet. The case was contested by attorneys for Admiral Sampson and others.

The farm buildings owned by Aline Hall at Thomaston, Me., were burned, together with 11 cows. Tramps probably set the fire. The loss is $4000.

Held Up by a Masked Man.

Hyde Park, Mass., June 12.—Mrs. George M. Gardner was walking on Metropolitan avenue Monday when a man, apparently about 18 years old, with a handkerchief tied over his face, suddenly came out of the woods and drawing a revolver demanded her money. Mrs. Gardner defied him, but he snatched her bag, in which was her pocketbook, containing $8. The thief escaped.

Two Buildings Burned.

South Seabrook, N. H., June 12.—Two dwelling houses were burned to the ground in this town Monday, the citizens being helpless to stay the progress of the flames because of lack of a fire department. Daniel S. Jangrin and Jacob E. Brown were the occupants of the buildings.

Talk of Heavy Gold Exports.

New York, June 12.—There is talk in banking circles of several gold exports on a French steamer leaving this port on Thursday next. The amount of these shipments is variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000. The names of the probable shippers are not disclosed.

HANDICAP RACES.

Sport Begins Next Monday—The Handicaps of Eligible Boats.

The first handicap race of the season of the Quincy Yacht club will be sailed on the afternoon of Monday, the 18th, at 2 o'clock. The percentages to those boats which defeat competitors are as follows:

1st place 100; 2d place 60; 3d place 40; all others finishing 20.

At the end of the season each yachts percentage will be divided by the total number of races sailed. The result will determine the championship winners in the two classes. The championship prize for Class A will probably be a sterling pitcher; for Class B a pair of marine glasses or something equally valuable. Pennants will be awarded at each race to the winners of the two classes and at the end of the season the two champions will be awarded a cock-of-the-walk pennant. Each yacht will be required to carry a number which the club supplies free.

The handicaps of the following yacht are as follows:

Class A—Canicun, 0; Elaine, 2; Goblin, 2; Medora, 2; Winona, 3; C. C., 5; Hustler, 5; Harbor Light, 5; Moondyne, 5; Ysulet, 8; Eclipse, 9; Beatrice, 9; Claytonia, 11.

Class B—Yum Yum, 0; Gov. Ames, 1; Supero, 3; Tantog, 5; Whisper, 6.

Upland Road.

This rocky road is getting to be a favorite thoroughfare, as teams from Milton way, West Quincy and the neighboring roads, cut across from Dimmock street, thus saving a passage near the electric cars for a distance, then they go down Savil street, across the railroad track.

The street too is a favorite one for foot travel, as one gets a green horizon on both sides part of the way, and the lines are shorter than those upon Hancock street.

The holes and stones make a dangerous passing for teams in the evening. There is no carriage or team travel after dusk, but when a good street is laid out and lighted, probably the traffic will not cease with sun down.

It seems strange to see this busy place across the track but Quincy is going on at a rapid pace and the new Quincy can be and ought to be an improvement on the old.

OBSERVER.

Musical Festival.

Christ church was crowded to the doors Sunday evening at the musical festival, the choirs of St. Paul's church of Brockton, St. Chrysostom's of Wollaston, and Christ church of Quincy, uniting in singing the festival music recently sung by the choir guild at the church of the Advent in Boston. Mr. E. Landis Snyder was choir master, and George Dunham of Brockton, organist. It was pronounced the best musical service ever held in Christ church, and that is saying considerable, as there have been many entertaining ones. The same choirs will repeat the music at St. Paul's church at Brockton on Sunday at 5 P. M.

Better Than Many Men.

Miss M. B. Adams of the Wollaston golf club made the best net as well as the best gross score at the women's open invitation tournament at the Country club at Brookline on Monday. She was awarded the net prize, while the gross prize went to Miss Louisa A. A. Wells of the Country club, who had the second best gross score.

Miss Adams' gross was 105, she making the out in 52 and requiring 53 for the in. Her handicap of 10 made her net score of 95 away ahead of all competitors.

Miss Wells made the out in 59, and her 48 in was the best of the day. Her gross was 107, and net 104.

Mrs. J. H. Childs of the Wollaston club was fifth in best net score at 107.

Should Be Gilded.

It has been suggested that before the staging is removed from about the belfry of the First church that the dome should be regilded. The last time this was done the cost was $800. It is also suggested that as the church does not feel able to bear the expense that the amount be raised by popular subscription. In this respect it is said that a well known philanthropist stands ready to contribute $200 for that purpose. When newly gilded the dome is a landmark for miles about.

Government Parties to Explore Alaskan Gold Fields.

STUNNING RAIMENT OF FOREIGNER

Marvelous Costume Worn by the Hon. Mr. Norman of England—Princess Aribert's Brilliant Gowns Have Attracted Much Attention. Sensational Story Told by Senator Spooner.

The secretary of the interior has approved plans proposed by the director of the geological survey looking to the further exploration of Alaska, says the Washington Star. In accordance with these plans a party will be sent to the Copper river district, where it is believed valuable deposits of copper are to be found on the Chettyna, a tributary of the Copper river, and also on the headwaters of the Copper and Nabesna rivers. A topographic and geologic party will be sent to the Cape Nome district to define the extent of the gold bearing area in the southern portion of the Seward peninsula between Cape Nome and Fish river. It is proposed to trace out the conditions of occurrence of veins from which the placer gold has been derived. If it is found possible, another party will follow up the apparent trend of the gold bearing belt of Cape Nome and vicinity, which seems to extend northeastward across the Seward peninsula toward Good Hope bay and the Keewalik river.

In order to prosecute explorations next year it is proposed to send supplies this season by steamer to be stored at the mouth of Allen Kakat river. The explorers will then proceed by sledge to the starting point during the winter and be ready to take advantage of favorable conditions of travel in ascending the rivers on the ice early in the spring and in descending them after the ice has broken up.

Stirred to an unusual effort because of the recent visit here of Princess Aribert of Anhalt, the Hon. Herman C. Norman, third secretary of the British embassy and London's best dressed man, the other day appeared in a costume that was marvelous, says the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. The Princess Aribert brought 18 trunks, to say nothing of half a hundred bandboxes. When Norman came a few weeks ago, he brought 22 trunks. The costumes of the princess have dazed the women of Washington with their beauty and elegance. Norman felt it his duty to sustain his reputation.

His sartorial triumphs have been marked from day to day. He has not yet exhausted the vast store of clothes in his 22 trunks and since his arrival has worn a different suit on each appearance. He recently made his supreme effort. He was the admired of all admirers in Dupont circle. His suit was of dark blue English twill wool, with a pin stripe of gray in it. A Panama fedora harmonized well with the suit. But what caught the eye and made it water were the spats and tie, which matched in shade, coloring and design. The spats were of a light gray, with pansies and green leaves embroidered on them. The gray tie was also embroidered in these bright blossoms. A natural pansy in his buttonhole and a cane completed the outfit.

The princess, who has appeared in public several times since her arrival in Washington, has created a sensation not only because of her royal title, but more especially by the originality and brilliance of her gowns. White and light colors seem to be the choice of her taste. Not once has she been seen in a glaring or striking color. This idea will probably mark a decided revolution in the local fashions of the day, as every society woman in Washington is intently studying the styles of this royal personage.

Some of the dealers say they have already received orders from some of their wealthiest and most fastidious customers for satin manila cloth, a material used in one of the princess' carriage gowns. A beautiful garment worn by the princess recently was a light blue and white shading mirror satin jacket. One of the tailors has already received four orders for copies of this charming acquisition to the toilet.

Unfailing readiness is what makes it a delight to follow Spooner of Wisconsin when the forensic sparring is fast and furious in the senate chamber. During the course of his recent speech on the Philippines the little gladiator held up a paper which, he said, was a letter written by General Lawton some time before his death, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat's Washington correspondent. "Do you know it was written?" asked Pettigrew of South Dakota, who had previously expressed doubts of the authenticity and had tried to cast a cloud over it. "The senator reminds me," said Mr. Spooner, "of a lawyer who was defending a prisoner for murder. The evidence showed that the defendant stood with a revolver when the other man approached and fired it, and when he fired it the man fell dead. On cross examination of a witness who saw it the counsel said to him, 'Did you see this defendant?' 'Yes.' 'Where was he?' 'Well, he stood so and so.' 'Did he have a revolver in his hand?' 'Yes.' 'How far from him was it?' 'Twelve feet.' 'Did he fire it?' 'Yes.' 'Did the deceased drop when he fired it?' 'Yes.' 'Did you go to him?' 'Yes.' 'Was he dead?' 'Yes.' 'Now, sir, I ask you to inform the jury on your oath whether you saw any bullet go out of the barrel of that revolver?'" Amid the laughter which went round no answering word came from Pettigrew.

Bunker Hill Day.

Charlestown has plans for another grand celebration of Bunker Hill day this year, on Monday next.

One of the big features of the affair will be the antique and horrible parade which starts at 9 o'clock.

The military and civic parade will start at 2 P. M. and in addition to the local organizations the sailors and marines from the North Atlantic squadron and the men of the New England life-saving corps will be in line. An effort is being made to have a portion of the militia take part. If it is within the military and financial possibility of the adjutant general's department, Gov. Crane, who has expressed himself as heartily in accord with the movement, will arrange to have the 5th and 9th regiments participate.

The electrical parade Tuesday night bids fair to prove a greater novelty than even the early descriptions sent from New Orlean would indicate. The carnival association has purchased from the Nereus organization of New Orleans its beautiful illuminated pageant which was used in the mardi gras celebration in that city last February. The title of the pageant is "The Christian Era," and represents notable scenes from the history of each century with due regard to historical accuracy and artistic effect.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

WEEK OF FAVORABLE CONDITIONS.

New England Crops Greatly Benefited by Sunshine and Equable Temperature.

Boston, June 12.—Following is a statement of the weather and crop conditions of New England, compiled from the reports of correspondents of the weather bureau throughout the section, for the week ending June 11:

The heavy rains which fell on the 2d and 3d of the month have been followed by a week of much sunshine, with warm and equable temperature. Under these favorable conditions planting has been practically completed, though in northern districts some corn, barley and Hungarian grass is yet to be seeded. The week has been marked by great growth in vegetation. Corn sprouts broke through the ground in five and six days after seeding. While many correspondents state that rain is now needed, the conditions are not serious and do not approximate a drought.

Perhaps more than any other crop, grass needs rain. The reports from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont continue to be of the most encouraging nature. All states report that the pastures are now luxuriant.

Winter grain has headed well. Rye is exceptionally heavy. In southern New England the corn crop has been cultivated. Cut worms in Connecticut are doing some damage to both grain and vegetables.

Apples and pears generally promise a heavy yield. In local districts early buds were destroyed by the frost of May 29. One report from Maine states that the variety known as the northern spy did not bloom. There are very few forest tent caterpillars this season. Peaches and plums, it is estimated, have buds sufficient to yield 10 percent of a full crop in southern New England. In Rhode Island and Connecticut strawberries are beginning to ripen; prospects for a large crop continue. Blackberries are blooming full.

Many reports state that potato beetles are numerous. All vegetables in southern New England have been hoed, and in northern New England early gardens have been cultivated. Reports uniformly agree that vegetable gardens are excellent.

Tobacco setting is progressing slowly in Connecticut, because all plants must be watered. About three-fourths of the crop has now been planted. Cut worms are doing considerable damage to the plants.

Schooner Sunk by a Steamer.

New York, June 12.—Steamer Coloratio, Captain Risk, from Brunswick, Ga., was in collision at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, during a dense fog, with the four-masted, coal laden schooner Charles P. Notman, from Norfolk. The Colorado was proceeding under reduced speed when the schooner loomed up out of the fog and before the steamer's engines could be reversed or her speed slackened she struck the schooner head on, cutting her almost in two. The schooner was deeply laden with coal and sank in 16 minutes. Meanwhile the Colorado hove to, and succeeded in rescuing all hands on the schooner, consisting of 13 persons.

THE BOERS' BIG RAID.

Accompanied by Capture of Between 600 and 700 of Derbyshire Battalion.

Boers Report Defeat of the British at Donkers Poort.

Cape Colony Ministerial Program Has Brought Forth a Little Unpleasantness.

London, June 12.—It appears that not only are the Boers sitting astride Lord Roberts' line of communications at Roodewal, 30 odd miles north of Kroonstad, but that incidentally they picked up another batch of British troops during the operations.

Lieutenant General Forestier-Walker, in command of the lines of communication in South Africa, reports that in the disaster to the British troops June 7, at Roodewal, where the Boers cut Lord Roberts' line of communications, the Fourth battalion of the Derbyshire regiment were all killed, wounded or made prisoners except six enlisted men. Two officers and 15 men were killed, and five officers and 72 men were wounded, many of them severely. The Boers returned the wounded to the British.

Fifty thousand British troops are within 50 miles of the marauding Boers north of Kroonstad, and they are expected, of course, to make short work of them. Nevertheless, outside of the slender war office telegrams, no one knows what is going on.

South of Kroonstad there is a wide gap. The railway is only partially defended; and, as General Kelly-Kenny has hurried all the available troops northward, the assumption is that there is danger of a second raid. The loss of the Derbyshires is estimated from 600 to 700 men.

A Reuter dispatch from Maseru, dated June 11, 8:35 p.m., says: Fifteen hundred Boers surrendered to General Brabant today in the Ficksburg district.

Machadodorp has been officially proclaimed the capital of the Transvaal. A Lourenzo Marquez dispatch says that the village has swollen into a small city, the majority of the inhabitants living in tents.

An official Boer telegram asserts that the British have been defeated with considerable loss at Donkers Poort, in the southern extremity of the Free State or Orange River Colony, 10 miles from Norvals Pont. It was thought that this district had been cleared of Boers and rebels long ago.

The Boers still cling to Laing's Nek, but General Buller's forces are still working far around in that direction.

Lord Roberts has wired Cape Town that, prior to Wednesday, he liberated 151 officers and 3500 of the rank and file. The Boers consequently took off only 900.

Mr. Schreiner, the Cape premier, had eight supporters out of 40 at a caucus called to consider the ministerial program. Mr. Merriman, treasurer, and Mr. Sauer, commissioner of public works, have resigned from the cabinet and Mr. Schreiner's own resignation is believed to be imminent, although he may reconstruct the ministry with the aid of the opposition, the British members. The cabinet situation is so interesting that Mr. Milner will postpone his trip north.

Food is still scarce at Mafeking, but the railway is nearly repaired. Seventy-two rebels have been arrested in the Vryburg and Mafeking districts. Sixty-five were marched into Mafeking by two of their late prisoners at Mostia.

All of General Harrington's force had landed at Beira a week ago. The organization to invade the Transvaal from the north is already far advanced.

Reducing Her Weight.

Worcester, Mass., June 12.—Mrs. Julia M. Woodis, living on Wilcox street, has abstained absolutely from all solid food since Memorial day, and she says she has experienced only beneficial effects from her fast. Mrs. Woodis is about 50 years old, and at the beginning of her fast weighed 306 pounds, which has been reduced 32 pounds thus far. Since the first few days she says she has experienced no sensatinon of hunger, and she does her household work as usual.

Wreck of the Frank Hill.

Philadelphia, June 12.—The British steamer Bermuda, with a cargo of fruit, collided with and sank the three-masted schooner Frank Hill, in ballast, early Monday, 56 miles below the Delaware Capes. Captain Moore of the schooner and his crew of five men were rescued by the crew of the Bermuda and brought to this city. The collision occurred at 1 o'clock, during a dense fog.

Lynch Away in the Lead.

Indianapolis, June 12.—The official count of the ballots cast for officers of the International Typographical union has been completed for the first half of the ticket. This count shows that for president S. D. Donnelly of New York received 9606; James M. Lynch of Syracuse, 14,143.

Fatal Grade Crossing Accident.

Wellfleet, Mass., June 12.—Joseph S. Rich, aged 65, of Malden, was killed at a grade crossing Monday while driving across in a light vehicle. It is quite likely that he did not hear the approaching train. The horse was also killed. Rich was a building contractor.

Clergyman Convicted of Manslaughter.

Richmond, June 12.—At Lawrenceville yesterday the jury in the case of Rev. J. E. R. Riddick, who killed Dr. W. B. Temple, brought in a verdict of manslaughter and fixed the punishment at three years in the penitentiary.

Killed by a Fall.

Newburyport, Mass., June 12.—George W. Kezer, 57 years old, while at work on the roof of his house, fell to the ground, a distance of 20 feet, and was instantly killed. He leaves a widow and two children.

SITUATION IS GROWING WORSE.

Cholera Is Completing the Awful Work Begun by the Famine In India.

London, June 12.—In a letter to Lord Mayor Newton, Lord Curzon says: "Fifteen percent of the population of India are now supported by the government. If the famine continues until December, it is estimated that the government will have spent £9,250,000. The relief committee has already dispensed £500,000. The outburst of practical sympathy in the United States is deeply appreciated."

The famine in India grows worse. The Standard's Simla correspondent, in a mail letter, says: "So devastating has been the cholera outbreak, so enormous the mortality and so blind the terror inspired by this black death, that the famine relief camps in Bombay presidency, which contained thousands of workers, melt away and are left empty in the course of a couple of days.

"Starving though they be, the people prefer to fly to their own homes and die in quiet than to remain in the famine relief camps where the cholera is striking down a hundred workers daily.

"Terrible stories come from Dohad. There the famine is at its worst, and now the cholera has arrived tocomplete the work. No account we have ever read of any famine would picture the state of affairs at Dohad."

The Standard's correspondent says the mortality estimates are inaccurate, as unnumbered dead bodies are polluting the streams and spreading contagion.

On the Diamond.

Boston, Jne 12.—Long's magnificent work in the short-field saved the game for Boston. Time and again he killed seemingly sure hits, and his backing up of Lowe and quick return of the ball to thep late in the eighth inning saved one if not more runs. Both pitchers were effective at critical times.

Flinn Wins First Round.

Pittsburg, June 12.—The culmination of the fight in city politics between Senator William Flinn and E. M. Bigelow, director of the department of public works, came yesterday at a joint meeting of councils, when Bigelow's office was declared vacant by a vote of 63 to 21. George W. Wilson was chosen as his successor. The resolution calling for the ousting of Bigelow was based on the report of the finance committee, which held that the director was responsible for the defalcations of Samuel T. Paisley, superintendent of highways, in that he was negligent in his supervision of Paisley's accounts. A big legal battle may follow.

Stabbing and Shooting on a Bark.

Pensacola, Fla., June 12.—As the result of a fight on board the Italian bark Pieta, in port here, the first mate is dead, one seaman is fatally and Captain Mazella and another seaman are slightly wounded. Seaman Pisano went on board after shore leave apparently with the determination to exterminate the whole crew. He first assaulted the mate with a dirk and then turned on the captain, and in doing so was shot by the mate.

Lightning's Second Visit.

Great Barrington, Mass., June 12.—That lightning will strike a second time in the same spot was shown in the destruction by the elements, during a thunderstorm, of three large barns and their contents, owned by Warren Crissey, which had replaced barns burned by lightning. The loss is $7000.

Bout Didn't Come Off.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Tom Sharkey and Jerry Miller, a local pugilist, were to have fought six rounds at the Industrial Athletic club last night, but as there was not enough money in the house, Miller refused to go on. Sharkey was willing to split the small purse, but Miller would not agree.

Got Six Months For Stealing a Cent.

Boston, June 12.—For the theft of 1 cent Thomas J. Gannon was given a six months' sentence in the house of correction in the municipal court yesterday. David Shaperio, who stole $200 worth of jewelry, which he gave to the girl who was to be his bride, got a similar sentence.

Dewey Warmly Welcomed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 12.—A great throng greeted Admiral and Mrs. Dewey as their train arrived here yesterday. They alighted amid enthusiastic cheering and the thunderous welcome of an admiral's salute. Last evening they were given a reception in city hall.

Atlantic League Succumbs.

Scranton, Pa., June 12.—The Atlantic Baseball league was given its quietus last night by the withdrawal of Scranton and Wilkesbarre. Scranton and Wilkesbarre have made application for admittance to the Eastern league.

During Monday scattered showers occurred from New England southwestward over the Ohio valley and Tennessee and in the interior of the southwestern states. The temperature rose in the middle Atlantic and New England states. No well defined storm appears from the region of observation. The weather will not be quite so warm in the New England states. Along the New England coast the winds will be fresh from the west.

MATRON AND MAID.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont displays the rarest Sevres porcelain ever imported at her most exclusive entertainments.

Mrs. C. P. Huntington has the finest collection of Dutch antique silver in America and the choicest collection of silver tankards in the world.

Miss M. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr college, has been appointed by the United States government a delegate to the conference on education to be held in Paris this summer.

Miss Edith Rickel of Auburn, Ind., is 16 years old and is one of the crack rifle shots of the country. She is also expert with the shotgun and has made phenomenal records at the traps.

Maude Adams, the actress, has bought a home for herself at 22 East Forty-first street, New York, and paid $35,000 for it. The deed was made out to Maude A. Kiskadden, which is the real name of the star.

An old friend of Mrs. Hetty Green said the other day: "Whatever may be related of her economy, I happen to know that she never refused a legitimate request for charity. She is one of the kindest hearted women in the world."

Mrs. Kendal is said by those who know her to be an excellent mistress to her maids. She has two who travel with her. She makes the best arrangements for their comfort while they are traveling and at the hotels. One of them has been with her 25 years.

If any woman in Maine is a real bred in the bone patriot, Mrs. C. A. Smith of Berwick enjoys that distinction. She is the granddaughter of two veterans, the daughter of a veteran, the sister of a veteran, the niece of a veteran and the wife of a son of a veteran of two wars.

When City Clerk Donovan of Boston made his first appointment, his messenger, the other day, he gave all Boston a surprise—politicians and ordinary citizens—for he selected a 17-year-old girl, Miss Annie G. Riley, the first woman in the history of Boston to hold such a position.

Signorina Loretta Italia Garibaldi has entered the preparatory school of the Woman's college of Baltimore, where she is making up back work in order that she may enter college next autumn. She is the granddaughter of the famous General Garibaldi. Signorina Garibaldi will remain at the Woman's college until she has finished her full course, returning to Rome only during her vacations.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Drinking plague infected coffee did not harm Chicago in the least. Chicago has made herself immune by using her own drinking water.—Kansas City Journal.

New York now throws bouquets at Chicago and brickbats at Paris. At last the metropolis acknowledges the supremacy of the city of the first-person-future-active-indicative of "to be."—Boston Globe.

One way in which Chicago can help along the movement to reduce the noise in that city will be for the grain and pork speculators to lower the tone of their voices and to wear quieter clothes.—Kansas City Star.

The continued prevalence of porch climbers in Chicago suggests that the people there abolish that architectural adornment. Besides, it is always too cold to sit on the porch in Chicago.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Wanted—By the people of New York, a good mathematician to estimate the number of months required to complete the tunnel to Harlem, two months having been consumed in removing one shovelful of earth.—Lewiston Journal.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The Prince of Wales is now credited with the ambition of anonymously owning and editing a newspaper.

The German emperor has never formally been crowned king of Prussia. The coronation ceremonies will take place next October.

During the recent visit of the czar to Moscow he sanctioned the project for the erection of a church to commemorate the liberation of the serfs, nearly 40 years ago.

"I never felt so happy as now that I am plain 'Mrs. Frederickson,'" wrote Princess Charles of Denmark recently to her mother soon after arriving incognito at Monte Carlo.

Grand Duke Sergius, uncle of Emperor Nicholas, was born May 11, 1857, and was married in 1884 to Princess Elizabeth of Hesse-Darmstadt. In his capacity as governor of Moscow Sergius has made himself one of the most unpopular men in Russia. The people held him responsible for the awful disaster at the czar's coronation in 1896.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

When a man goes into politics, it seems to give his past life insomnia.—Indianapolis Journal.

What the country really needs is some means of inoculating officials against kleptomania.—Topeka State Journal.

In case Mr. Corbett gets to congress he will find that ducking and side stepping are by no means novel in that body.—Washington Post.

If the trust becomes an issue in this campaign, the talk of the campaign of 1896 will be merely a whisper in comparison. The man that doesn't know all about the trusts is yet to be born—Detroit Journal.

The arrest of a man for making a silly speech in the national house of representatives draws attention to the nicety of distinctions in such matters. He made the speech from the gallery instead of on the floor.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

Russian railway express trains have sleeping cars even for third class passengers.

It is proposed to have soldiers build the new railway line from Damascus to Mecca, which the sultan has decided to construct to facilitate pilgrimages.

There is a new railroad car that by its own motion compresses ammonia gas to liquid, which, in going through the pipes, expands and produces the necessary coldness in the air.

A novel trolley car is in use in Berlin. Outside the city it runs on tracks with an overhead trolley contact just as the ordinary car. When the city limits are reached, extra sets of trucks are lowered, and the car becomes an electromobile omnibus propelled by storage batteries carried under the side seats of the car.

His Own Trap.

There is a young man in the pension office who is buying a house on the installment plan at a town somewhere between this city and Baltimore, and his dear little wife lives out there. It is his wont to come in early of a morning and to go out again on the 5:30 train when his day's work is done. A few days ago he met an old friend from Chicago, and, yielding to the entreaties of that old friend, he decided to spend the evening in town. He was so afraid wife would feel hurt if she knew that he had deliberately planned an evening's good time without counting her in that he manfully resolved to deceive her. Accordingly as he came away from the office he went to a telegraph office and sent this message to her:

"Unavoidably detained. Missed 5:30 train. Will be out later."

It was a great deal later when he reached his happy home. Wife met him at the door, and there was a look in her eye that every married man learns to know and instinctively to dread.

"Did you get my message precious?" he asked as he kissed her tenderly, holding his breath meanwhile as a precautionary measure.

"Yes, dear," she made answer, and when a woman calls her husband "dear" that way you can cut loose from the weather bureau and prognosticate a few things on your own hook. "Yes, dear, I received your message. Here it is."

There it was, sure enough. It was marked as plain as plain could be, "Received at 4:23." He hadn't thought of that.—Washington Post.

Nature as an Armorer.

There are few departments of human life where man has been so entirely anticipated and at the same time surpassed by the lower animals as in the invention of armor.

His cunningest devices of the mailed fist order were none of them original. If you examine a fine and fully developed suit of plate armor in the form which it assumed at its highest zenith in the fifteenth century, you will find that the trunk and limbs were completely inclosed in a splendid fitting, jointed case of iron plates, all exquisitely polished. The suit as a whole was a triumphant product of the armorer's art.

Yet if you look at a lobster's tail you will see at a glance that all these clever devices of man's imagining had been invented and patented long before by nature and that the elaborate workmanship of the Plantagenet craftsmen who cased knight and horse for the battlefield or the tournament in glistening metal was but a poor imitation of the ineffable skill with which the unheeded crustaceans of the time protected every vulnerable portion of their bodies from the assaults and attacks of their submarine enemies.—Strand Magazine.

An Old Salt's Stories.

The captain of the brig was much disliked by his officers, and, being ill with yellow fever and likely to die, the first lieutenant used to drill the marines in the burial service on the deck over the captain's cabin by way of cheering him up, the corporal giving his orders in a loud voice thus: "The corpse is now a-coming up the 'atchway! Reverse harms!" The skipper ultimately recovered.

The commander of a certain gunboat used to say that, having no doctor on board, he mixed the medicines provided in a chest into two bottles, and whenever any of his crew happened to be sick he drew an imaginary line across the man's stomach, and according as the pain was above or below that line he gave him a dose out of No. 1 or No. 2. He claimed that no man ever came to him twice, which was very likely.—"Hurrah For the Life of a Sailor," by Vice Admiral Kennedy.

Trouble In the Church.

The Kennebec (Me.) Journal says: "They made a strenuous matter of religion in the good old days, as is shown by this extract from the diary of Charles Creamer of Waldoboro, under date of June, 1828:

"'Sunday there was a knockdown in the Congregational meeting house between the Congregationalists and Universalists. The Universalists came off victorious. I was there. Saturday night the pulpit was guarded all night by men with clubs. Sunday was the great day. Both parties occupied the church, and there were great music and singing. Afterward the Congregationalists bought out the Universalists, and there was no more trouble.'"

Explained.

"Maw, what's de difference between er politician and er statesman?"

"Well, honey, a mushroom's good, ain't it?"

"Yes, 'um."

"And a toadstool is pizen, ain't it?"

"Yes, 'um."

"And dey bof look alike?"

"Yes, 'um."

"Des same difference from a statesman to a politician."—Brooklyn Life.

A Hustler.

This is the letterhead of an Iowa lawyer:

—— ——, LAWYER.

Practices in every court on the western hemisphere. Perfects titles and buys and sells mortgages. Makes loans and collections. Am the redheaded, scar faced, freckle begrimed legal Napoleon of the slope and always in the saddle. Active as the wild, untamed feline. Fierce as a lion and gentle as a dove.

"AND WITH GOOD ADVICE MAKE WAR."

An Obliging Tradesman.

Mrs. Youngwife—I want five pounds of sugar, please.

Dealer—Yes, ma'am. Shall we send it for you?

Mrs. Youngwife—No, I'll take it with me if it isn't too heavy.

Dealer—I'll make it as light as possible for you, ma'am.—Philadelphia Press.

Bed-Time.

Going to bed to tumble and toss and dream; to pursue in vain the phantom sleep through long weary hours and rise to a new day unrested and unrefreshed. That is the way with many a woman, who is tormented by the aches and pains resulting from female weakness, and other diseases of the delicate organs of woman. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was made to cure just such cases and it does what it was made for. It heals ulceration and inflammation, dries debilitating drains, cures female weakness, strengthens the body, soothes the nerves and enriches the blood. It gives lasting strength for the day and sound sleep for the night.

"For three years I suffered continually," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 828 East College St., Jacksonville, Ills. "I sought relief among the medical profession and found none, until induced to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. It built me up until now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing down pains and such distress every month. But now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman. Thanks to your medicine."

Biliousness is banished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Officers Make Fruitless Searches For Champion, the Murder Suspect.

Thought to Have Started Toward Boston.

Slayer of Goodwin Family Not Likely to Have Obtained Much Money.

West Newfield, Me., June 13.—The great question in the tragedy at the Goodwin farm is whether George Champion, the farmhand, committed the murders and endeavored to cover his crime by setting the fire. Whether he did or not commit the murders is not so vital a point to the police just now as the solution of his disappearance.

As in the case of so many rural district tragedies in New England the Goodwin murderer may go unpunished. Champion, the much wanted man, has completely disappeared and the police, despite their most careful precautions to close avenues of escape on main lines of travel and to send out descriptions of the fugitive, have accomplished nothing, although setting out on many "wild goose" chases. Champion's description has been given so accurately by those who knew him that the fugitive seemingly has turned up in many places at or about the same time.

The report that Champion was headed towards Boston naturally stirred up police activity in many places. The best showing for his capture lies in the work of Read Lang, a Sanbornville officer, who had Champion in custody not long ago for a misdemeanor, and can identify him on sight. Lang believes that Champion will go back to Malden, Mass., where he formerly lived, and if so he will be caught there or in Boston. Lang accordingly, acting under instructions from County Sheriff Thompson, has left for Boston.

Matters at the Goodwin place are unchanged except that a bunch of keys was found at the spot from which Bertsch's body was taken, and this is taken to prove that he had not undressed for the night when he was murdered.

The robbery in the house between the time of the murders and the setting of the fire probably did not net the murderer very much money, as an inquiry of relatives in Saco, Me., indicates that George Goodwin banked the $2300 received from the sale of a wood lot, and which has been held up as the great price for a burglar and murderer. The present chances for the capture of the murderer, therefore, are improved greatly, as the latter may not have funds enough to get away quickly, or to get beyond the reach of a telegraphic description of him distributed to the police at large.

The coroner's inquest into the murders has been adjourned, and although several witnesses have been examined it is generally accepted that actual facts bearing upon the murders are lacking.

The autopsy on the bodies, when the official report is made, will show that mutilation of the bodies was so marked that it would indicate almost that the murderer was insane in his passion or vindictive to an abnormal degree in inflicting the death blows. If Champion should not be caught as a means of reaching an end of the case, another dark record must be entered on the history of New England country life.

Missions' Financial Interests.

Boston, June 13.—An inventory of the mission property in north China belonging to the American Board of Foreign Missions shows these figures: At Tien Tsin, $19,513; at Pekin, $34,437.42; at Tung-Chow and North China college, $56,270.40; at Kalgan, $13,921.10; at Paoting-Fu, $13,618.59; at Pong Chuang, $16,550; at Lin Ching, $12,021; in the western hills, sanitarium, $4425; at Rocky Point, $500; a total valuation of $171,281.51.

Trod on Aldermanic Corns.

Cambridge, Mass., June 13.—The board of aldermen voted unanimously to exclude Daniel A. Buckley, editor of the Cambridge News, from the aldermanic sessions. This action is the result of an attack made by Mr. Buckley in his paper upon Alderman Carstein, in which he accused the latter of being in a scheme to defraud the city in the matter of the purchase of some clay pits.

Children's Day at Framingham.

South Framingham, Mass., June 13.—The third day of Framingham's bi-centennial celebration was observed as children's day, and the weather favored the carrying out of pretty and novel programme. Exercises of a patriotic character occurred in all the public schools. The feature of the day was the children's parade and entertainment.

Eighteen Smallpox Patients.

Fall River, Mass., June 13.—The smallpox epidemic in this city is now well in hand and the officials on the health board believe that the disease is checked. There are 18 patients at the pest house and all are reported as doing well, with a single exception.

Committed Robbery In Natal.

Washington, June 13.—The secretary of state has issued a warrant for the surrender to the British authorities of James Dawson, under arrest in New York on a charge of robbing his employer, a merchant in Durban, Natal.

GOMEZ' ADVICE TO CUBAN VOTERS.

Union Democrats Take Offense Because He Fails to Recognize Them.

Havana, June 13.—General Maximo Gomez has written to the papers with respect to the use of his name by the different political parties. He says, in part:

"Several political organizations are using my name with great insistence, making the election of a local mayor a matter of high political importance. I have devoted the larger part of my life to the service of Cuba, and I have profound sympathy for all parties that defend free Cuba. But, without any mental reservation, I may say that it would have been best had only one party, the National party, existed, until the establishment of the republic. As another party, however, the Republican party, has come into existence, I greet it with cordiality.

"So far as the mayors of the other municipalities of the island are concerned, I advise the Cubans, now about to exercise the sacred right of franchise, the right they have secured at the cost of so much blood, to search among the disbanded ranks of the army for those who in the past have always sacrificed their own interests and who are not without intellectual qualifications necessary for the fulfillment of mayoral duties. By so doing the Cuban people will render justice and perform an act politically advantageous for the present and future.

"This need not be regarded as handing over the government to the military element, for the soldiers, now that peace is declared, have lost their military character. This advice I offer in all sincerity. I am too old to cherish selfish ambitions."

The letter has provoked considerable comment, because General Gomez makes no allusion whatever to the existence of the Union Democratic party, ignoring that organization altogether. The members of the Union Democratic party reply that, although they have abstained from taking part in the present electoral campaign, owing to the favoritism shown the National party, they will hereafter prove that they can exert a powerful influence upon Cuban affairs.

Dixon and Yanger Divide Honors.

Chicago, June 13.—George Dixon and Benny Yanger fought six fast rounds to a draw here last night. Yanger surprised even his most ardent admirers by his excellent showing, as up to six months ago he was a comparative novice in the ring. He was rather nervous during the first round, and Dixon had a shade the better of it. After that, however, Yanger gained confidence and in the second round made an even break of it. Yanger had the better of the third round and landed some telling blows on Dixon's body. The last three rounds were even, first one gaining the advantage and then the other.

Gold Coast Colony In Danger.

Accra, June 13.—Details have been received here of another serious reverse to the relief column under Colonel Carter and Major Wilkinson. There were heavy casualties. The latest rumors report a further disaster to the detachment on the north bank of the Prah river, where the Ashantis were found strongly entrenched. The continued absence of news from Kumassi tends to confirm the pessimistic views as to the safety of the governor and his staff. The coast towns are apprehensive of their own safety. The British gunboat Magpie, stationed at Accra, is the sole protection for the coast.

For Murder of Emulick.

Northampton, Mass., June 13.—Franciszek Umilion was indicted Tuesday by the grand jury for the murder of Carminian Emulick. Both men were Poles, and were employed on the farm of Monroe Keith in Granby. Emulick disappeared Dec. 31 and no trace of him was found until April 10, when his headless and mutilated body was discovered in an old unused well on the farm where he had worked. Jealousy was said to have been the cause of the murder.

Roosevelt Proceeding Carefully.

Albany, Jne 13.—Governor Roosevelt had a long conference yesterday with Attorney General Davies and Judge Cohne regarding the ice trust matter. He would make no statement of his intention, so far as the removal of Mayor Van Wyck is concerned. The governor stated that he did not expect a report from the attorney general until after the Republican national convention.

Two Killed In Street Fight.

Kansas City, June 13.—Matt Kenney and Henry Sparks, city detectives, undertook to stop a street fight between a crowd of negro men and women here yesterday, and as a result of an exchange of shots Rufus Bennett, a tough, and Ora Childs, a negress, were killed, and Charles Jackson, a barber, was seriously wounded and may die. Several arrests were made.

Reciprocity With Portugal.

Washington, June 13.—The president yesterday issued a proclamation of a reciprocal commercial agreement which has been entered into by Portugal and the United States. Under this agreement reduced rates of duty upon several articles produced in Portugal or the Azores and Madeira Islands imported into the United States are established.

Three Dead and Three Missing.

New York, June 13.—Three persons lost their lives, eight were so badly burned or maimed that they are in the hospital and three other men are missing, as the result of a fire which destroyed the cooperage establishment of Paul Weidmann at Brooklyn last night. The property loss is variously estimated at from $75,000 to $250,000.

President on His Death Bed.

Santiago, Chili, June 13.—President Errazuriz has had a third and dangerous attack of paralysis. Death is simply a question of time. The executive functions have been transferred to Prime Minister Albano.

EXTRA.

PROBABLY SECRETARY LONG.

Manley Expects He Will be Nominated for Vice President.

Gossip as to Second Place Taking a Wide Range.

Several Committeemen and Delegates Have Already Arrived for Convention Next Week.

Philadelphia, June 13.—This city is rapidly taking on a national convention aspect. Quite a large number of national committeemen and delegates have arrived, and the hotels are beginning to fill up. The sub-committee of the national committee held a meeting yesterday behind closed doors, and according to Chairman Manley nothing but routine business was considered. The convention hall will be formally transferred to the national committee this afternoon.

President McKinley's picture is beginning to appear on every hand, although the presidential nomination is seldom mentioned by the throngs. The vice presidential gossip, however, is taking a wide range. The names of many prominent men throughout the country are mentioned as possibilities. So far there has been no concentration of forces here on any one man, and there probably will not be until the national committee gets together.

Joseph H. Manley, chairman of the executive committee of the national committee, said: "There may be a little delay on the vice presidential question but I am of the opinion that after the different state delegations give their favorite sons a complimentary vote, all will turn in for the right man, and he will be nominated without a struggle.

"I think it will be Secretary of the Navy Long. He is the best man mentioned for the place, and I am heartily for him. He is a great man, and would make a sterling vice president; besides, he would add great strength to the ticket. I am for Long until he is defeated in the convention."

The rival claimants in the long-standing Delaware fight are the most conspicuous of the contestants around the hotel corridors. J. E. Addicks, the leader of the "Union Republicans," opened headquarters. He said he was satisfied that his delegation would be seated. Henry B. Thompson, who stands in the forefront of the "Regular Republicans," said that his people had won in 1896, when the conditions were exactly similar.

Colonel Swords of New York, sergeant-at-arms of the national committee, was one of the late arrivals, and he immediately set to work arranging for the meeting of the committee.

Ready For Long Cruises.

Newport, R. I., June 13.—The fleet of warships at present in the harbor is the most formidable one, ship for ship, that this country has ever gathered together, four of them being battleships of first class, one of second class, with a flagship of greater speed, but a little less strong in fighting qualities. The ships now at Newport are all stored for long cruises, both in magazines and in storerooms, and a fleet of colliers will keep their coal capacity up to the limit without long journeys to coaling stations.

Was Founder of Many Towns.

New York, June 13.—Charles K. Landis died yesterday at his home in Vineland, N. J., of paralysis. He was the founder of Vineland and several other South Jersey towns. Mr. Landis was born in Philadelphia in 1834. He was admitted to the bar, but did not practice long. He became interested in land schemes and purchased large tracts. He sold the land to actual settlers, and it was made a condition of every deed that liquor should never be sold upon the lot.

Want Mayor's Power Restored.

Pawtucket, R.I., June 13.—A mass open air meeting was held last night in protest against the action of the general assembly in depriving the mayor of Pawtucket of the control of the police force and giving the same to the board of aldermen. Resolutions were adopted declaring that the citizens of Pawtucket disapprove of the action of the last general assembly in depriving the mayor of the control of the police department without seeking the desires of the people.

Dewey Starts For Home.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 13.—Admiral Dewey was made a Maccabee yesterday, the honorary degree being conferred upon him here. He demurred slightly at first to the conferring of the degree upon him, asking if there was any politics in it. On being assured that the Maccabees were a non-partisan organization he accepted the degree. Admiral and Mrs. Dewey left for Washington last evening.

Fire Fiend Again In Evidence.

Foxboro, Mass., June 13.—The fifth fire within a week, and like its predecessors, believed to be of incendiary origin, occurred here Tuesday in a storeroom in the basement of Caton Bros.' hat factory, one of the largest establishments in town. Although the fire was confined to the basement, the loss is estimated at $10,000. There seems little doubt that the fire was incendiary.

Gardner Whips Ryan.

Cleveland, June 13.—Oscar Gardner and Billy Ryan fought 18 terrific rounds last night. From the 11th round on Ryan had the better of the fighting until he was finally knocked out by a blow on the jaw after he had broken away from a clinch.

Suicide by Drowning.

Athol, Mass., June 13.—Melvin R. Mitchell, aged 32, for many years foreman in a shoe factory, committed suicide Tuesday by drowning. Mitchell had been despondent of late.

Boston Tax Bill Defeated.

Boston, June 13.—The so-called Boston tax bill received another setback yesterday, when the senate rejected the house amendment for a referendum clause to the original bill. The senate passed the measure some time ago, and after two bitter contests the house tacked on the referendum, much to the disgust of the supporters of the bill. The measure now goes back to the house. The bill provides for raising the tax limit in this city from $9 to $10.50 per $1000 of valuation.

While the senate was in the throes of debate over the tax bill, the house had a lively debate on the bill abolishing the Gloucester police court and legislating Judge Taft out of office. The measure was advanced to a third reading by a substantial vote of 104 to 31.

Youth Charged With Serious Crime.

Newport, Vt., June 13. — Fernando Blanchette, aged 75 years, is in a critical condition as a result of a murderous assault on him while on the way from Island Pond to his home in Quebec, and Edward McCabe, aged 17, is in jail awaiting the result of the injuries alleged to have been inflicted by him. It is claimed that McCabe overtook Blanchette, stabbed and robbed him and left him for dead. The condition of Blanchette is precarious, and it is expected he will die.

West Point Graduates.

West Point, N. Y., June 13.—The 51 members of the graduating class of the academy were graduated today. The first "star" member is George B. Pillsbury of Lowell, Mass. Charles R. Lamson of Gloucester, Mass., is No. 6; Charles L. J. Frohwitter, Boston, No. 28; Fred C. Doyle, Boston, No. 40, and Robert E. Jackson, Middletown, Conn., No. 44. The first five have their choice of any branch of the service. The next five can choose either ordnance, artillery, cavalry or infantry. The next group of 20 have the choice between artillery, cavalry or infantry, and the remaining 24 have choice only between cavalry or infantry.

McGovern an Easy Victor.

New York, June 13.—Terry McGovern of Brooklyn fully lived up to his title of featherweight champion last evening by knocking out Tommy White, the clever Chicago boxer, in three rounds. The champion gave his opponent no rest until the referee had counted off the fatal 10 seconds. He took the stiff jabs which White handed out to him with a smile and forced Tommy about the ring with terrible drives to body and head. After the first round White's face took on a frightened look, and he clinched repeatedly to save himself from punishment, but Terry tore away from his grasp as though White were a baby

Good Afternoon.

That float, for which there a number of claimants and for which arrests have been made, bids fair as a controversial subject for judicial unravelling to equal the celebrated calf case of a quarter of a century ago.

That some contractors should bid fifty per cent. more than others seems surprising, yet that was what they did on the Wollaston fire station. Some one must be away off. It was the same on the water struck bricks. One contractor made no extra charge, while one wanted $845 extra; one wanted $400 extra and one but $88, while the lowest bidder figured but $100 extra.

A public bath house will be somewhat of an experiment in Quincy, but they have proved popular in other cities. It was fortunate that the city secured this bit of seashore on Town river when it did, as large enterprises have now secured most of the balance. The youth of all parts of Quincy, especially Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4 will soon appreciate the bath house, and the number of dips in a week or month may be surprising.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The Senate stands by the Mayor; if the House does likewise it will gratify the men who pay the larger part of Boston's taxes, who helped to elect Mr. Hart last December and who thoroughly believe in him and his methods and his principles.—Journal.

☞ "In these days of our modern progress there is nothing that will make Christian nations do as Jesus would do like looking into the mouth of a 16-inch gun," remarks Uncle Solon Chase in the Sunday Herald. Solon may be yoking up with Rev. C. S. Sheldon next.—Lynn Item.

☞ With so many unmarried women of so many ages, sizes and weights abroad in the land, the Lowell young man who recently committed suicide on the grave of his sweetheart showed poor judgment. While his grief was natural he would have found that life still had charms and joys for him had he allowed time to elapse before rushing into eternity.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ In their anxiety to get into active politics, certain senators and representatives are making their stump speeches in legislative halls, in place of the humdrum parliamentary debate Certain orators would confer a kindness upon the public by keeping themselves securely corked up until they shall once again be in the midst of their adm'r-ing constituents.—Worcester Spy.

☞ While Massachusetts is gratified that three of the five honor men in this year's graduating class at West Point are from this state, it is such a usual thing for the sons of the Bay state to be at the front the fact does not cause any unusual exultation. We have grown accustomed to this sort of thing, and only wonder how it happens the other two men are not from this state also.—Brockton Times.

☞ The New Bedford Standard is of the opinion that St. Louis suggests the question whether the people of that city are fit for self-government. Mob rule seems to be the most popular form there at present. When the strikers and their sympathizers come to their senses they will realize the great injury they have inflicted upon the cause of labor as well as on the fair fame of St. Louis throughout the country.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ If the citizens of Boston had made or would make half as much remonstrance to the excessive borrowing of money for this, that or the other purpose that they do to the efforts of Mayor Hart to inaugurate a substantial financial basis on which to conduct the affairs of that city, and one that actually involves less expense to the tax payers to obtain the same or better results than the system in operation at present, they need stand in little fear of debt building Mayors.—Lynn Item.

Piano Recital.

To be present at Colonial hall Tuesday night, to witness the piano recital by the pupils of Mrs. Rose De L. Lizotte of Weymouth, a popular young teacher of pianoforte, was a rare treat. The students participating numbered twenty-two, assisted by Miss Louise Holbrook, contralto, of South Weymouth and Mr. J. A. Millington of Marlboro, violinist.

Early in the evening elegantly dressed ladies and children were seen to enter the hall, which caused those who were not on the inside, to ask "who is to be married tonight?" On entering the hall a beautiful display of ferns and flowers, tastefully arranged about the stage was seen, which certainly gave the appearance of a wedding, but when so many young and pretty girls presented themselves to the audience, the scene took on the resemblance of a high school graduating exercise.

The pupils were an unusually clever lot of young people too, and the hearty applause of the relatives and friends was perfectly justified by the ability they displayed. They all did well, but the highest honors, without detriment to anyone, was attained by Miss Bertha L. Hanson, Miss Julia M. Page, Miss Lena M. Partridge and Miss Rena B. Grant. Miss Grant is very young and is a little star. The playing of Masters John Y. Hamilton and Ralph L. Robinson in a duet on two pianos was rendered finely for such little fellows, scarcely ten years old. Little Ella May Blanding created a sensation playing the Heather Rose Op. 78, No. 3.

Miss Holbrook was pleasing in the two songs she sang, and Mr. Millington was perhaps the recipient of the greatest applause, he rendering two violin solos in a very finished manner, accompanied by Mrs. Lizotte. Mrs. Lizotte took very little part herself, prefering to let her pupils share among themselves the honors of the occasion.

The ushers were: Miss Rose E. Billings, Mrs. Jennie McCarty, Miss Murial Clapp, Miss Bertha T. Richards, Miss Josephine M. Osborne and Miss Bessie Powell.

School Attendance.

The average daily attendance at the public schools of the city for the four weeks ending June 1 was 4458, an increase of 149 in one year, and 272 in two years. Out of over 150,000 chances there were but 156 tardinesses, and only 9 truants. The Superintendent's report:

WHO OWNS FLOAT?

Police Make Three Arrests for the Larceny.

The police had quite a lively chase Tuesday noon for three men who were thought to have been the parties who stole the float from A. E. Linnell.

The float was located at Adams shore on Monday by Chief Ripley. Tuesday a steam launch approached and began to haul off the float. Part of the machinery of the launch broke and the parties came ashore and took a car for Quincy. Word was then telephoned to the police who found when the car arrived that the three had left the car at Canal street. Chief Ripley and Officers Barry and Garbarino hastily drove down Washington street and came up with the men near Johnson's lumber wharf. They placed under arrest, Joseph Lizotte, William Askew, and David Norrie.

Mr. Lizotte owns the launch and is doubtless innocent, as it is said he was hired to tow the float. The ownership of the float is said to be in question.

Little Children Entertained.

Fifty or more children of the Warrington street kindergarten school Boston, are in Quincy today, the guests of Miss Mary Augusta Graham, a teacher in the school. The Boston Elevated furnished a special car free to transport the children to Neponset, and the Quincy & Boston showed the same courtesy from Neponset to New Downer Landing, and the use of the grove was given by Mr. Donaldson. These children are all poor and they brought crackers with them for a lunch. Quincy however, would never allow these little people to go away without some thing better, and several citizens provided a lunch that was a surprise and made their hearts glad. Clarence Burgin contributed ice cream. B. J. Weeks, ham sandwiches, and John R. Graham bananas, lemonade and other fixings. This afternoon Dr. Jones was to appear on the scene and take their pictures. It is safe to say that fifty, tired but happy children will go to bed in Boston tonight.

Miss Graham is assisted by Miss Florance Howe and Miss Edith Barker, and two teachers from the school. There are 45 of the little ones who are enjoying the outing.

Lost Boy.

George Arthur Dent, four years and six months old, disappeared from his home in Lowell, Mass., on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 28, 1900, and no trace nor tidings of him have since been obtained. The boy answers the name of "Artie." He was about 38 inches tall and weighed 42 pounds. Had plump form, round face, light, straight hair, and dark brown eyes. Perfectly formed body, without any mark or physical defect. Wore 6 1-8 hat and 7 1-2 shoe. Talks very plain, much interested in horses, and can drive one very well. He is not particularly shy of strangers.

"Artie" was dressed in brown blouse suit, black shoes and black stockings, white woolen undershirt with gray undershirt over it, and blue cap.

Mr. and Mrs. Dent offer a reward of $500 for the boy alive or $100 for his body.

The above picture of "Artie" was made two weeks before his disappearance.

Mrs. C. Jones and her daughter, Mrs. George Perry of South street, Quincy Point, have started for South Framingham to visit another daughter, Mrs. C. Stephens.

Fred E. Goss and William P. Gould, formerly grocers under the firm name of Goss & Gould, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $3,905; assets nothing.

Judge James H. Flint of the probate court for Norfolk county has bought the estate owned by the Francis Ambler heirs, situated on Front street Weymouth. The property comprises a large tract of land, house and stable, and was sold for a price in excess of the total taxed value. Judge Flint buys for a home. As part payment for this property Judge Flint conveys his estate on Front street to Lewis F. Perry, on private terms.

An important change in the street railway timetable on the Neponset line will go into effect on Sunday, which will give ten minute service on this line. Cars will leave Quincy on the even hour ten, twenty, thirty, forty and fifty minutes past the hour. Cars leaving Quincy on the hour, thirty and forty minutes past the hour go via Hancock street ten minutes past via Norfolk Downs and twenty and fifty minutes past the hour via Wollaston.

Mr. Sutherland, who opened a shoe store in the new block, Atlantic, has "folded his tents like the Arabs" and quietly stolen away, leaving only the familiar sign "Douglas' $3.00 Shoes" hanging in the window. Mr. Sutherland made the remark when he came that "where there were three churches in a town the inhabitants ought to wear out enough shoe leather to support a store." Now, it is one of two impressions that he must have had at the time of his departure; either the people of Atlantic are non-church goers, or else they wear out their shoes and lengthen their dresses and turn down their trousers to cover the effect that constant use has on shoes in general. It is to be hoped that Mr. Sutherland isn't given to soliloquizing to any extent.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Alessa Di Bona, for felonious assault, was called and continued again until Aug. 14.

Edward Cunniff was fined $5 for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

John Connelly and Mary Sullivan were arraigned for drunkennes at Quincy. The former was continued two weeks and the latter until August.

Buying Ducks.
There are two ways of securing a duck.
The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.
We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Encouraging Reports at the Annual Meeting of Association.

Provisions Made for Elections of Trustees to Hold Property.

The Building Fund Has Taken a Good Start and Will Succeed.

The ninth annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held at its rooms in the Savings Bank building Tuesday evening, with President Delcevare King in the chair.

Rev. Edward Norton led the meeting in prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The President and General Secretary

made the following report for the year:

"We are asked tonight to give our ninth annual report of the work which has been done during the past year by our association. It is a pleasure to note the many indications of favorable and efficient work by the members of our directors and officers. We are confident that the association has been true to its mission and has presented the work along the lines which were marked out for us, physically, mentally, socially and spiritually for the young men.

"If the work of our Association was needed nine years ago surely our work is needed today when with an enlarged population, the severe demands of business and the multitude of demoralizing agencies have increased the liability of drawing our young manhood and leading them into temptation which abounds in our city. We must emphasize again the increased need on the part of our young men of good physical development and of spiritual health and power which makes to build rather than draw down character.

"In the line of our religious work department some measure of success has been achieved. God has blessed our gatherings and the kingdom of Christ has been extended in to the hearts of men. Our men's meetings have been addressed by some able speakers. For five Sundays a devotional Bible class was held. During last summer outdoor meetings were held in different parts of our city and quite a few people were reached in this way. Meetings in various churches have been held in the interest of the association and the General Secretary has made addresses in many of our various pulpits. It would be interesting to know the many personal incidents which come up in the work and activity of this department and which have been successfully dealt with.

"In our physical work we have conducted young men's gymnasium classes during the season on three evenings a week, besides the Junior class and the Boys' Brigade class, and the baths have been very freely used.

"Our social work has had its usual number of entertainments and reception. The spirit of good fellowship has deepened and our rooms have afforded a rendezvous for young men.

"Our educational work has been very satisfactorily conducted, our efficient instructors have done a good work and a large number of young men have been enrolled are tokens of appreciation in this work.

"We must acknowledge with a feeling of gratitude the good work that has been done by the women of the association. Our auxiliary have stood by our work and have worked in the interests of our young men.

"We must also note the kindnesses which have been given to us by the daily press of our city.

"The advanced movement which has made during the past year in the effort to raise a fund for the purchase of a home for the association has met with some measure of success and in the response to our appeal for funds we look for greater encouragement and hope the amount which the Building Committee are desirious of raising by September first will be secured.

"The year which has carried us through some hard times has been a urgent one in our financial needs, but we are glad to report that our assets can a little more than balance our liabilities, and virtually we are not in debt. This means very much for us and for our success and for our future. We believe that our association must be alive to the actual needs of young men of today and that we can make it so by everyone endeavoring to make the institution the best that he knows how. Our work should be better organzied in many ways and a more systematic endeavor should be made in promoting the interests of our different department. The outlook for the future is practically good and we must endeavor to keep our work apace with the natural growth of our ccity. Another year will find a large increase in in our resident young men and their interests must be sought and secured.

The Treasurer's report submitted by Mr. W. F. Cummings showed that during the year there had been expended in carrying out the work some $2,601, besides paying off old claims to the amount of $583. The assests of the Association in pledges due are $457.25, and the liabilities are $439.89. This virtually makes the association out of debt, which is the best financial showing that the Association has ever been able to make at its annual meetings. The receipts from memberships have materially increased for the past year.

The Nominating committee made the following nominations, and they were all elected.

Honorary Vice President, Rev. Edward Norton.

Director for one year to fill vacancy, F. W. Crane.

Director for two years to fill vacancy, Walter F. Clake.

Directors for three years, Delcevare King, A. N. Weeden, John E. Sprague, Dr. E. R. Johnson and George A. Sidelinger.

The constitution was amended to provide for six trustees to hold fund and other property. The nomination of trustees was referred to Messrs. King, Brown and Hoehn.

Resolutions were passed urging Senator Woodsum to oppose in the Senate the sale of tobacco on the Lord's day.

John A. Dammett, acting State Secretary spoke words of encouragement and congratulation, and then the meeting adjourned.

Later the directors will elect officers.

EXAMINE BEFORE YOU BUY.
When in a grocer's store you stand
And cakes of Ivory Soap demand,
Be careful not to be mislead
And imitations take instead.

The cake until the name you spy,
And always thus be well assured
That Ivory Soap you have procured;
And should a lingering doubt remain,
'Twill vanish like the darkest stain,
When in the tub on washing day
That cake of soap is brought in play.

PASS DOES NOT PRECLUDE DAMAGES.

Important Decision Concerning a Railroad's Liability in Case of Accident.

Boston, June 13.—An important decision was handed down yesterday by the United States circuit court of appeals in the case of Charles A. Whitney vs. the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, holding that a person traveling on a pass on a railroad can recover damages for an injury sustained in spite of the stipulation on the pass by which he assumes all risks through the negligence of the agents of the road or otherwise. The court says public policy will not permit it to enforce the stipulation.

The plaintiff was an employe of the railroad and in connection with a change of duties he not only received an increase in wages, but an employe's pass entitling him to ride on the train for his own convenience and not in connection with going to and from work. Some time ago he was riding to Boston and the car in which he was sitting was overturned at a switch near the entrance to the Boston station. The plaintiff was injured. He sued for damages and the circuit court ordered a verdict for the defendant because of the conditions expressly written on the pass by which he assumed all risks.

The court of appeals reverses the decision of the court below and remands the case.

Roberts' Communications Being Rapidly Restored.

Boer Government Issues News Calculated to Cheer Its Sympathizers.

London, June 13.—It is learned by the Associated Press that the government has at last decided upon a plan for the civil settlement of South Africa. The details are kept most secret, but it can safely be said that the Orange River colony and the Transvaal will become crown colonies, the latter probably being renamed the Transvaal colony. Sir Alfred Milner, it is declared, is to be high commissioner of South Africa, in spite of the opposition he has incurred.

SIR ALFRED MILNER.

The crown colony form of government can be best understood by reference to the system in vogue in the West Indies, Sierra Leone and Ceylon. Endeavors will be made to put this in force as soon as possible in the Transvaal and Orange River colonies, though it is scarcely expected that the details will be announced or some parts of the work be begun for a few months. While the civil settlement will be drawn up so as to be eventually independent of military enforcement, it is realized that the initial work must be effected with the cooperation of the troops.

Mr. Milner appears to believe that civil reorganization and military pacification can proceed simultaneously, and that possible scattered risings will not seriously retard the progress of reorganization once it is begun. The colonial office is said to be of the opinion, however, that the maintenance of good-sized garrisons at such centers as Bloemfontein, Kroonstad, Johannesburg and Pretoria will be necessary for a long time after the crown colony system gets in working order. For this reason and others put forward by Mr. Milner, the idea of granting an autonomous form of government has been abandoned. It is believed, though it cannot be verified, that a portion of the Transvaal will be partitioned off to Natal.

Two pieces of news encouraging to the British in the official dispatches are that the broken communications of Lord Roberts are in a fair way to be mended by the forces moving northwards and southwards driving off the roving commandoes, and that General Buller is at last master of Laing's Nek.

Telegraphic communication with Lord Roberts is expected to be restored today, as a dispatch from Bloemfontein says that the railway is in British possession again and that the work of repairing the line is going on rapidly with the abundant material warehoused at Bloemfontein.

The Boer government is also issuing news cheering to its sympathizers. The following bulletin, the Boer version of the disaster to the Derbyshires, was posted by President Kruger Sunday at Machadodorp:

"On June 7 four divisions of burghers, commanded by Steenkamp, Froneman, Duplooy, Fourie and Nel, attacked the British at Roodeval, killed 200, took 700 prisoners and captured immense stores of food and ammunition, a Maxim gun and 1000 lyddite shells. Some food was taken by the Boer farmers, and the rest was burned. The English mail was taken. The burghers attacked from the open veldt and gave evidence of unprecedented bravery."

General DeWet was also fighting on June 2, whether at Roodeval or elsewhere is not clear; but the Boer war office gives it out that he captured 3000 suits of clothing, blankets, gloves and boots. Being unable to carry them with him in his rapid sweep through the country, according to the Transvaal war office, he burned the whole mass. General DeWet has also reported that he put 1000 British out of action and destroyed property valued at £100,000. As Lord Methuen is officially described as fighting on June 7 it is possible that he was engaging General DeWet.

A dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez says that 15,000 Boers are reported to be retiring on Middleburg from various quarters, and that, after weeding out the faint-hearted, 20,000 steadfast men are still left.

General Buller was unable on Monday to follow up the Boers from lack of cavalry, as well as water. The dispatches describe him as fighting a spirited advance over a rugged field under prolonged rifle fire. The Boers had two guns, which they got away.

Lord Methuen, General Rundle and General Brabant are reported to have 35,000 men and 50 guns engaged in enclosing the Boers in the eastern part of Orange River Colony.

The war office casualty returns up to June 9 aggregate 23,664, beside 792 officers and 12,355 men sent home as invalids, but not including the sick in South African hospitals.

The Dentist Is Polite.

A North Side dentist is sure to be called "a mean man" by some of his women patrons when they learn of the trick he has practiced upon them. It happens sometimes that even a rubber dam will not stop the flow of woman's speech, and although the dentist, being a young man, is not averse to a little "pleasant talk" now and then with a patient, yet if she persists in telling him her personal or domestic history during the filling of a tooth, hindering the work, while other patients wait in the anteroom, it's a little trying to his nerves and temper. The doctor is a polite man; he does not ask the woman to stop talking, but says gently:

"Open your mouth, please."

There is silence for a few moments, when the chatter begins again.

"Open wider, please," says the dentist, more persuasively than before, and the work goes on rapidly enough until the patient seeing her opportunity starts in again where she had left off in the tale of everyday woes. The clock strikes the hour of the next appointment. The dentist seizes the most terrible of all his instruments, his look becomes threatening and his voice too:

"Please, now, open your mouth very wide." The ruse succeeds, and the startled but unsuspecting woman stretches her mouth into an abysmal yawn that precludes the possibility of even a whisper.

It's a mean trick.—Chicago Tribune.

The Boys Got In.

The late Dan Rice, the famous circus man, was fond of boys and always wanted to see a lot of them in his audience. He never gave a performance, says the Cleveland Leader, when the nooks and corners were not filled with youngsters who had come in free.

One story of this sort was told by Captain George J. Grammer. At the time of the occurrence Grammer, who lived in Zanesville, O., was standing one afternoon with a crowd of other boys looking longingly into the tent, but not having the price of admission.

It was Mr. Rice's custom to stand at the door until the first grand entry of the circus people, when he would leave. On this occasion he saw the hungry look on the faces of the boys and called them around him. "You want to go in, don't you, boys?"

"Bet your life!" shouted back the youngsters.

"I'll tell you what. All the boys who are back here in ten minutes with clean faces and hands get in."

The words were hardly out of his mouth before there was a dash for the Muskingum river, and in less than seven minutes 200 clean faces and hands came back to the tent. The boys went inside with a rush.

Two Critics.

As my "Bed of Ferns," a large study from nature on Saranac lake, says W. J. Stillman in The Atlantic, was the first thing in which I had attempted to introduce a human interest in the landscape I was naturally inclined to consider it my most important work, and I was dismayed when Ruskin came to see me and in a tone of extreme disgust said, pointing to the dead deer and man: "What do you put that stuff in for? Take it out; it stinks!"

My reverence for Ruskin's opinions was such that I made no hesitation in painting out the central motive of the picture, for which both subject and effect of light had been selected. Unfortunately I habitually used copal varnish as a medium. When Rossetti called again, he asked me, with a look of dismay, what I had done to my picture. I explained to him that on Ruskin's advice I had painted out the figures, and exclaiming, "You have spoiled your picture!" he walked out of the room in a rage.

What a Knight of the Garter Wears.

A Knight of the Garter dressed in the regalia is an imposing sight. He wears a blue velvet mantle with a star embroidered on the left breast. His trunk hose, stockings and shoes are white, his hood and surcoat crimson. The garter, of dark blue velvet edged with gold and bearing the motto, "Honi soit qui mal y pense" ("Shame to him who thinks ill of it"), also in gold, is buckled about the left leg below the knee. The heavy golden collar consists of 26 pieces, each in the form of a garter, bearing the motto, and from it hangs the "George," a badge which represents St. George on horseback encountering the dragon. The "lesser George" is a smaller badge attached to a blue ribbon worn over the left shoulder. The star of the order consists of eight points, within which is the cross of St. George encircled by the garter.

Raleigh Beaten Out of Sight.

"Lord Raleigh's graceful little act of sacrificing his costly cloak so that the queen could go dry shod has been outdone by a western bride."

"What did she do?"

"On a very slippery day last winter she scattered the cremated ashes of her first husband on the front steps, so that her second husband wouldn't slip down"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Ear Test.

A novel and curious test for deafness or approaching deafness has been described by a Paris specialist. If the handle of a vibrating tuning fork be applied to the knee or other bony portion of the human frame, the sound cannot be heard by the person who possesses an unimpaired ear, but if the ear be attacked by disease then the note can be heard distinctly.

Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means as perseverance that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefoucauld.

A GLOOMY SITUATION.

Some Distrust as to the Attitude of Russia and France Toward China.

Large Body of Boxers Defeated by British Marines.

The Latter Brought Maxims Into Play and Killed and Wounded Forty.

London, June 13.—The correspondents at Tien Tsin, Shanghai and other treaty ports throw side lights on the Chinese situation. According to one dispatch from Tien Tsin it is understood there that the foreign minister will insist, as soon as fresh bayonets arrive at Pekin, upon the removal of the anti-foreign advisors of the empress dowager and upon the substitution for them of counsellors friendly to western civilization.

The English at Shanghai are afraid that Great Britain has been deceived and that the whole business will have to be gone through again. Russia's aims, they argue, are not understood, and Russia and France are apparently not working in the same spirit as the other powers. Five thousand Russians are ready to land at Taku.

A correspondent accompanying the international column marching to Pekin, in a dispatch dated Tien Tsin, June 12, says:

While the working parties, accompanied by a patrol of 16 British marines, commanded by Major Johnson, were repairing the line Monday afternoon, eight miles beyond Lofa, they encountered small parties of Boxers who were destroying the line. The Boxers moved away from the advancing marines and apparently dispersed into the country, leaving the rails and the sleepers burning.

The marines, when two miles in advance of the first train, near Lang-Fang, suddenly perceived Boxers streaming from a village on their left. It was estimated that they numbered 2000, some of them being mounted, and they were trying to get between the marines and the train. Most of them were armed with spears and swords. A few had fire-arms, which they handled awkwardly. The marines retreated, keeping up a running fight for over mile and killing between 20 and 30.

The Boxers pursued the British for some distance. Then, seeing more marines from the train coming to their assistance, Major Johnson's 16 halted and poured a heavy, continuous fire into the crowd, driving them across the front of the reinforceing blue jackets, who punished the Boxers severely with Maxims. The Boxers fled; and the Europeans, following up their success, cleared out two villages. The total loss of the Boxers is estimated at 40 killed and wounded. Seven of their wounded were attended by British surgeons. The British loss was nothing.

Unless their loss causes the Boxers to lose heart, the international column will have much trouble before it reaches Pekin. The railway is so much damaged that the column only covered 34 miles Sunday and Monday, and there is reason to fear that the road beyond is more badly damaged.

The Times, in an extra edition, publishes the following dispatch from Pekin, dated June 12, 2 p. m.:

The chancellor of the Japanese legation, Sugiyama Akira, while proceeding alone and unprotected on official duty, was brutally murdered by soldiers of Tung Fu Siang, the favorite bodyguard of the empress, at Manigate railroad station yesterday. The foreign reinforcements are daily expected. The present isolated position of Pekin, the destruction of foreign property in the country, and the insecurity of life are directly attributable to the treachery of the Chinese government.

Possibility of a Settlement.

North Adams, Mass., June 13.—The state board of arbitration visited this city yesterday to try and settle the difficulty between N. L. Millard & Co., shoe manufacturers, and their cutters, who have been out on strike for two weeks. Small concessions were made by both sides, but there is a difficulty in deciding as to what shall be done with the non-union people who came here to take the places vacated by the strikers. A settlement may be reached before the board leaves the city today.

Big Automobile Combine.

New Haven, June 13.—Negotiations are said to be well under way for the purchase of the New Haven Carriage company and the Columbia Automobile company of Hartford by the Electric Vehicle company of New York. The recent extra issue of stock to the amount of $6,000,000 by the Vehicle company, it is said, will be used to pay for the companies to be taken into the big combination.

Lorraine Investigators' Conclusions.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 13.—The committee of the Lorraine striking weavers, who went to Waltham to investigate matters of detail in the mills of the Boston Manufacturing company, have returned. They found, it is said, that the products of the two mills are not identical, and that in the matter of wages the prices paid at Waltham are in excess of those in force at the Lorraine.

Miners' Strike In Newfoundland.

St. John's, June 13.—A serious strike has taken place at the Belle island mines, where 2000 men are employed. The miners have made a demand for 15 cents an hour, their present pay being 10 cents. Twenty armed police have started for the scene of disturbance. It is feared that the mining plants have been damaged.

Tom's Bite Was Poisonous.

Webster, Mass., June 13.—Hubert Willett, aged 56, while enjoying a nap a few days ago, was bitten on the arm by his pet tomcat. Blood poisoning has set in and amputation will be necessary.

EXHIBITS OF LIVE STOCK.

Ten Acres of Fine Animals to Be Shown at the Pan-American Fair.

Buffalo is one of the greatest live stock markets in the world. This is particularly true with reference to horses and sheep. One may therefore expect an especially fine and complete display of domestic animals at the Pan-American exposition to be held next year in that city. Mr. Frank A. Converse is director of the live stock exhibits and has prepared the rules and regulations governing this department, which are now being sent out. About ten acres have been set apart on the east side of the grounds for the use of this department. The live stock exhibit will be divided into six sections of two weeks each, as follows: Cattle, horses, sheep, poultry, swine and dogs. Premiums will be offered for 14 breeds of cattle, 12 breeds of horses, 13 breeds of sheep, 12 breeds of swine, 90 breeds of poultry, 6 breeds of turkeys, 11 breeds of ducks, 9 breeds of geese and 35 breeds of dogs. The premiums aggregate $17,000. Besides the premiums medals will be awarded. All of the judging will be done in the stadium, and the judges will be chosen from men named by the different breeders' associations.

Mr. Converse is also director of the department of agriculture for the exposition. The agricultural building is to be 500 by 150 feet, situated directly west of the live stock displays. The foundations for this building were laid some time ago and the contract let for the superstructure. It will be well advanced by midsummer.

PRIZE FOR AN ILLINOIS SONG

Sycamore Pastor Captured the Award For a Y. P. C. U. Greeting.

Rev. George A. Sahlin, pastor of the Universalist church of Sycamore, Ills., was the winner in the national contest of the Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church for the best state song, to be adopted at the national convention held at Atlanta July 18, says the Chicago Times-Herald. Mr. Sahlin not only composed the song, but set the words to music. Following is the prize number:

ILLINOIS, DEAR ILLINOIS.

We come from Illinois
To Atlanta, our pride and joy,
Members of the Y. P. C. U.,
With our banners white and blue.
Our loved greetings thee we bring
In the name of Christ our King.
Keep the cause of love and right,
Change the night of sin to light,
So we'll shout our greetings true
To Atlanta's Y. P. C. U.

Illinois, dear Illinois,
Songs of praise for thee employ.
As Universalists we're proud.
Do we sing it good and loud?
We believe that God is good,
That the gospel, understood,
Ne'er declared an endless hell,
Christ the sinner would have well;
God is ever kind and true;
Thus we sing Y. P. C. U.

For Christ and church we sing
And on earth do strive to bring
The kingdom of our Lord,
That our life with his accord,
Lift the fallen, help the weak,
Life eternal always seek,
Universal truth proclaim,
Christ's victory to gain.
We are proud, Atlanta, of you,
Sing the Illinois Y. P. C. U.

INDIAN'S LONG CANOE TRIP.

Big Thunder Will Paddle 3,000 Miles to Washington.

Big Thunder of the Penobscot tribe of Indians on Old Town island is preparing to take a 3,000 mile canoe trip to see the great white father at Washington, says the Bangor (Me.) correspondent of the St. Louis Republic. Big Thunder is 80 years old, but he is strong and active and declares he cannot fail in his enterprise. Peter Nicola, an Indian of strong frame and in his prime, will accompany Big Thunder, and together they will float down the Penobscot to the big water and follow down the coast to the home of the great white chief.

Their canoe will be of special construction and built from the coat of the silver birch. The canoe will undoubtedly have to go 3,000 miles in order to reach her destination, as the Indians will follow the shore closely. Big Thunder and Peter Nicola will live on fish which they will catch on the way.

SNAKESKIN BELTS.

Colorado Girls Who Catch Their Own Snakes.

The lady guests at the Hotel Colorado, in Glenwood Springs, Colo., have the snakeskin fad. Daily members of the fair sex are seen near the electric light company's plant, where a very beautifully marked species of bull snake has chosen his abode, hunting for the reptiles, says the Denver Times. Some of the ladies are timid and go on this escapade accompanied by gallant and brave escorts.

Others go alone, and should the reptile in fear run into his hole they quickly pull him out by the tail, and in less time than it tells to relate it he is their victim. Miss Hamburger and Miss Bessie Curtiss, both of Chicago, are among the large number of ladies who are now wearing these snakeskin belts as trophies of an enjoyable pastime.

Device to Blow Feathers Off Fowls.

One of the employees in a Kansas City packing house has invented a device for plucking the feathers from the carcasses of chickens that is an improvement over the old way of picking them by hand, says the Chicago Tribune. The chickens are treated much the same way that wheat is rid of its chaff. There is a receptacle in which the fowl is placed after being killed, and into this are turned several cross currents of air from electrical fans revolving at the rate of 5,000 revolutions per minute. In the twinkling of an eye the bird is stripped of its feathers, even to the tiniest particle of down.

Women

Who have the Blues

Despondency in women is a mental condition directly traceable to some distinctly female ill. Well women don't have the blues, but comparatively few people understand that the right medicine will drive them away.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It regulates the entire female organism as nothing else does. When the dragging sensation and the backache go, the blues will go also.

TO ACT WITH POWERS,

United States and Great Britain Are Given Assurances by Russia.

Chinese Intend to Oppose the International Column.

Leading Members of Reform Party Afraid Tha the Empire Will Be Partitioned.

London, June 14.—It has been arranged that the British vice admiral, Sir Edward Seymour, is to have command of the foreign troops in China, with the ranking Russian general as his chief of staff. It is further understood that Lord Salisbury has received the most positive assurances from St. Petersburg that Russia intends to act in the interest of all the powers in her operations in China, and that a similar assurance has been given by the Russian embassy at Washington.

The Chinese are entrenching outside of Pekin to oppose the advance of the international column.

A dispatch from Tien Tsin, dated June 12, says: "I learn that the Chinese guns are trained on the American mission and the British legation. Two thousand Russian cavalry and infantry, with artillery, have landed at Taku."

Pekin appears to be completely isolated. None of the morning papers or news agencies has a word from there today. The latest message received in London is the one announcing that the Chinese are entrenching outside the capital.

The Shanghai correspondents report that United States Minister Conger, by courier, asks for 2000 United States troops.

The question of provisioning the relief force is already difficult, and it is predicted at Shanghai that it will be acute.

The leading members of the reform party, representing 15 out of 18 provinces, are at Shanghai. A dispatch to The Daily Mail, dated yesterday, says they are sending a petition to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, praying those powers to take joint action against any attempt on the part of the other powers to partition the empire; and they implore the powers thus addressed to rescue the emperor.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the ships of the Russian Pacific squadron on the active list, as well as those at Vladivostok, have been ordered to proceed, with all haste, to Chinese waters.

The foreign office confirms the report of an engagement between troops of the international column and the Boxers on Monday. It says that "about 35 Chinese were killed."

A telegram from Yokohama says that the Japanese government has ordered four more warships to proceed to Taku, and 4000 men of all arms are under orders to be in immediate readiness for embarkation. The dispatch says the Japanese government "trusts the powers will not misconstrue this action." The Japanese press is urging vigorous methods.

Killing of First American Missionary.

Washington, June 14.—The murder of an American missionary in China, the first in the present uprising in that country, aggravates to a serious degree the grievance of the United States against the Chinese government for its lack of protection to American citizens.

While the American marines, acting in concert with the marines of other nations, may be able to protect the American legation at Pekin and all the fugitives who have gathered there, it is impossible to extend aid to mission posts far from the capital, and stern demand will be made upon the Chinese government for the apprehension and the punishment of the murderers at Tsun Hua, as well as the safeguarding of the surviving missionaries, Messrs. Hopkins and Haynor and Miss Croucher, the Boston woman. Especial fear is entertained for the safety of the latter, as she is not mentioned in the Tien Tsin dispatch.

In official Russian quarters the rumors that the empress dowager has sought a refuge at the Russian legation in Pekin are discredited, and are resented as a bit of inspired intrigue designed to create the impression that Russian sympathies are with the anti-foreign element. It is pointed out that Russia's course has been marked by the utmost reserve, for while it would have been possible at any time to land large forces in China, the Russian force actually landed has been comparatively insignificant, mainly for the reason that Russia desires to be wholly free from any imputation of ulterior designs.

It was stated in diplomatic quarters that the Belgian secretary of legation at Pekin, who was attacked by a mob on Monday, was probably Philip May, formerly with the Belgian legation in Washington and quite prominent in social and official circles here, as his post of late has been Pekin.

"Liberty Congress" May Convene.

New York, June 14.—The executive committee of the Anti-imperialist league will meet in this city on June 25 to consider whether to call a general convention of the "liberty congress." The committee has arranged to invite for private conferences at the same time and place about 30 representative men.

FOR THE RETURN OF TAYLOR.

Governor of Indiana Refuses to Honor Requisition of Governor of Kentucky.

Indianapolis, June 14. — Governor Mount last night issued a statement declining to honor a requisition from Governor Beckham of Kentucky for the return to that state of W. S. Taylor, who is under indictment for complicity in an plot which resulted in the assassination of Governor Goebel. Tom Campbell, Justus Goebel, brother of the murdered man, and Sheriff Suter of Franklin county, Ky., arrived here yesterday afternoon with the requisition. They met the governor, who listened to their arguments to induce him to honor the requisition. Late last night the governor announced his decision, as above stated.

GOVERNOR TAYLOR.

The governor declares that under the Goebel election law the people of Kentucky were deprived of their will expressed at the ballot and, adding insult to injury, the man chosen as the governor of Kentucky has been defrauded of his rights and charged with being a conspirator to commit murder.

The governor further says: "The honoring of this demand and the return of Governor Taylor into the custody of men who, blind to reason, have turned civil rights into environments where rapacious hate dominates, would be assuming a responsibility from the gravity of which I shrink. If conviction should follow and the fact be made manifest that the court was a mockery of justice, it would fan into flame the smouldering embers in your state. Twelve indictments have been returned against men charged with complicity in this murder. The public would have more faith in the sincerity of these indictments if the accused were given speedy trial.

"Until those already in prison have been accorded a fair trial, thus demonstrating the possibility of securing justice in your courts, I cannot honor your requisition."

Heavy Seizure of Diamonds.

Buffalo, June 14.—A special to The News says: Diamonds seized at Niagara Falls are valued at $75,000. Max Lasar and two alleged confederates, a man and a woman, are under arrest. Dr. P. Van Dandaigue is under surveillance. Lasar, according to the customs officials, brought the diamonds to Montreal from Europe, and through Dr. Van Dandaigue met the man and woman, who were on a wedding tour, and induced them to take charge of the package, representing that it was a present which he did not want them to open until they reached the United States.

Options Will Not Be Extended.

New Haven, June 14.—The options secured by the United States Oyster company, otherwise known as the oyster trust, on oyster grounds in New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Jersey, will expire tomorrow, and judging by the talk of the prominent oyster dealers in this city, the syndicate will not take them up. It promised to be a corporation with anywhere from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 capital stock. The oyster men all say that they will not consent to a renewal or an extension of options.

Alleged Malfeasance In Office.

New York, June 14.—J. E. Swanstrom, on behalf of his client, Jacob W. Mack of New York has forwarded to Governor Roosevelt a copy of charges of malfeasance in office, made by Mack against Controller Coler, accusing him of awarding bids for $12,688,992.36 of city bonds to a favorite syndicate, thereby causing a large money loss to the city. Mack, in his petition, prays for the removal of the controller from office.

Two Men Sent to State Prison.

New Bedford, Mass., June 14.—In the superior court Wednesday Arthur M. Huckins was sentenced to not less than six years and not more than 10 years in the state prison for robbery. Frank Grover pleaded guilty to assault with attempt to rape. He was sentenced to state prison for not less than five years nor more than seven years.

Program Successfully Carried Out.

Framingham, Mass., June 14.—The big day of the bi-centennial celebration was favored with beautiful weather. Two hundred years has Framingham enjoyed the rights of township, and the event has been suitably celebrated. The event of the day was the grand military, civic and trades procession, and the spectacle was a fine one.

The Newfoundland Miners' Strike.

St. John's, June 14.—The strike situation at Bell island mines has become more serious. Steamers cannot load ore; the magistrate's constabulary is being reinforced by special officers, and double watches guard the magazine, where dynamite and other explosives are stored. The strikers have assumed a threatening attitude.

ARRESTED AT MILFORD, MASS.

George Champion, The Supposed Murderer of Goodwin Family, Captured.

Accused Man Admits That He Was at West Newfield on the Night of the Fire.

Movements of His Wife Gave Clue To The Boston Police---A Clever Job.

Boston, June 14.—A train from South Framingham arriving in this city last night brought George Champion, who has been hunted all through New England during the past three days, and his wife, as prisoners in the custody of Inspectors McCausland and Collins of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation. The arrest was effected at Milford last evening, with the assistance of Deputy Sheriffs Jenkins and Snell of that town, in less than two hours after the couple had engaged lodgings at the house of Mrs. Pierce.

In anticipation of their arrival, and with the hope of catching a glimpse of the supposed murderer, a large crowd of the curious had gathered at the south station in this city, but little opportunity was given them to indulge their curiosity, for the quartet were quickly in a carriage and being driven to police headquarters. At the latter place a small army of newspaper men were watching for their coming, but beyond getting a good view of the suspects, they got little for their pains.

The prisoners were not permitted to converse with anyone. They were first taken into the chief inspector's office and booked, and then they were closeted with Assistant Chief Inspector Dugan for an hour, during which time it is presumed they were obliged to undergo a severe ordeal of questioning and cross-questioning.

During the time in which the two suspects ran the gantlet of the newspapermen, the nerve and coolness of Champion was plainly evident. He appeared wholly indifferent to his surroundings, and once or twice asked questions of one of the officers as unconcernedly as could be imagined. His face was thin, but bronzed by exposure to the sun, while his hands were darker than his face. A small, black mustache and dark hair and his height contributed to establish the very striking verification of the published descriptions of the supposed murderer, with which this section of the country has been flooded. Champion's wife looked pale and sallow. Of the two, she showed the more nervousness, although she was a great deal more collected than a woman in her position would naturally be expected to be. There is no formal charge against her as yet, but she will be held until matters are cleared up.

Although Champion is wanted by the local police for his supposed connection with the brutal assault upon Harold Poole, a sailor lad, in this city some two weeks ago, as well as by the Maine authorities for the West Newfield murder, no warrant has yet been issued for him in the former case, and, as Deputy Chief of Police Hanscom said, it is possible that none has as yet been issued against him for the latter crime, although one may issue at any time.

The prisoners were locked up in the Tombs, and will be held until their complicity in or entire innocence of both crimes can be assured beyond a reasonable doubt, and no efforts will be spared to make the investigation as thorough as it is possible for skilled detectives to make it.

After a two hours' examination of the prisoner, Chief Inspector Watts this morning gave out a synopsis of the statements made by the prisoner. The latter acknowledged that his name was George Champion, and that he was at the Goodwin farm last Sunday night, having gone there, he says, to escape officers whom he thought were endeavoring to arrest him on suspicion of having committed the assault on Harold Poole, in Boston, several days before.

He said he reached Newfield Thursday at 4 p. m., and remained at the Goodwin farm until Sunday night at 9 o'clock, when he walked to Union village, some 16 or 17 miles. He had $7 or $8 in money, but said he preferred to walk, so that nobody would see him. When he left the Goodwin place, Mr. Goodwin and the housekeeper, he said, were in the kitchen. Scott Goodwin, the boy, had gone to church, and had not returned home, while Fred Bertsch, who lived some distance away, had not arrived at the farm. He had talked with Mr. Goodwin about the suspicions against him in the Poole case, and Goodwin told him that would be all right, and that the housekeeper, Mrs. Horne, would also be all right, but he advised him to say nothing to Bertsch about it. He was because he did not wish to meet Bertsch that he left the Goodwin farm that night.

He reached Union village at 3 o'clock Monday morning, and stayed at the station until the first train for Somersworth arrived, and reached the latter place between 7 and 8 a. m., then took the train for Boston, where he arrived about noon Monday. He went to the house of Mrs. Garrity, at 661 Parker street. He said that he hired a herdic on Tuesday and sent it to the mission house at the North End, where his wife was stopping, to get her trunk, which was taken to the south station, and that they took the 7 p. m. train for Milford.

Champion said that he had on the same clothes that he wore when he left Boston, a week ago last Saturday night. Upon one of his flannel shirts were found two or three stains, apparently caused by blood, and when asked how he accounted for these, he replied, "Oh, I have nosebleed sometimes."

In regard to the Harold Poole case, Champion said that the last he saw of Poole was on that Saturday afternoon that he left Boston, when he left him or Washington street.

On the Diamond.

Captain Streeter's Troubles.

Chicago, June 14.—Captain George W. Streeter, whose retainers recently took possession of the "District of Lake Michigan," and for several hours defied the whole local police force to oust them, was held for the criminal court, charged with conspiracy, accessory before the fact and assault. The "District of Lake Michigan" is the name given by Streeter to land on which he "squatted" which had been formed by dumping in the lake off the shore. The land is now valued at many millions of dollars.

Southern Vegetable Market Overstocked.

Savannah, June 14.—The fruit and vegetable men are complaining of the low prices their products bring at home and in the eastern markets. This has been a splendid season for fruits and vegetables, and the local and outside markets are soon overstocked. The peach season is not yet three weeks old, but the local market is glutted with fruit. All kinds of fruit are plentiful in the south this season.

Alleged Shortage In Accounts.

Newburyport, Mass., June 14.—Cornelius Murphy, who was arrested in New Haven on the charge of being $600 short in his accounts with the A. O. H. at Amesbury, was arraigned in the superior court here Wednesday and pleaded not guilty. Bail was fixed at $2000, and he was taken to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is an antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

All Dealers sell it, $1 per bottle. Mail orders may be sent direct to the manufacturer,

Good Afternoon.

Certainly, the Wollaston Yacht club should have water.

The parents of George Arthur Dent, the lost boy of Lowell, were fortunate in having a good photo of the boy. It should aid in his discovery.

Wonder who enjoyed the more, the outing of the Boston kindergarteners at Quincy, the children or those who planned the good time. It was a great pleasure to see the little folks happy. It was a great treat for them.

Hon. John Shaw, Dr. George B. Pierce and H. A. Atwood, the Congressional aspirants, are all going to the Philadelphia convention. As it will be a happy family they ought to get together and decide who shall be the Republican standard bearer in the Tenth district. Up to the entrance of Dr. Pierce upon the field it looked like a local contest between Messrs. Shaw and Atwood, with the supporters of each man sanguine, but Dr. Pierce has made it doubtful.

The faults of administration of the islands taken from Spain are legitimate subjects of discussion and conjecture. The Democrats declare that if they had been in power, and could have selected the officials sent to those islands, there would have been no speculation or dishonesty. But they do not expect to be taken as speaking seriously when they say so. Human nature is so much the same in Democrats and Republicans, and party practices in the matter of filling offices so nearly identical, that the rewards of party service would have been bestowed on men of about the same character. So the thinking people will no doubt conclude that whichever party had been in power, the results of the war with Spain and the administration of the islands would have been identical.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It may be desirable to live to a green old age; but when you have attained it keep away from the bunco men.—Puck.

☞ "Popular government in New York has utterly broken down," remarks the New York Herald. Well, "popular" government in that town means the government of the bosses, by the bosses, and for the bosses, and that is precisely the situation of affairs there at present. What more does New York want?—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Admiral Sampson has been legally declared the leader of the navel battle off Santiago, the Court of Claims allowing his contention and awarding him the prize money due his superior rank. This ought to settle the long controversy and give to Sampson and to Schley their proper share in the glory of the achievement, as well as the financial advantage which goes with it. Schley has acted with dignity in the affair and now let his friends follow so wise and proper an example.—Lynn Item.

☞ The party in power is peculiarly free at this time to choose its best man for the second place on the ticket. There is no contest for the first place to be adjusted. There is no faction to be satisfied. There is no especial need of paying attention to locality. The Vice-Presidency is a great office in its possibilities, not only as to the succession, but as to its actual influence in the hands of a man of real judgment and force. With Mr. McKinley sure to retire at the close of the next term, there is reason to think that the Vice President may become his successor as the candidate of his party for the Presidency. Every consideration calls for the selection of a strong man. —New York Times.

☞ It is gratifying to learn that the Spanish people are far from being bankrupt. The war with the United States and the loss of their islands have not ruined them nor their government. The government has proposed a refunding scheme, and the holders of the treasury notes and promissory notes issued on account of the war have taken $200,000,000 of the new 5 per cents., while for the $40,000,000 balance the people have subscribed $328,371,300. The subscriptions were in bank notes, but they show that the Spaniards are an industrious and frugal people, whose future is likely to be happier than the immediate past. They have dropped burdens which we have picked up. We may be strong enough to carry them, but the relief which we have bestowed upon Spain is enormous.—New York World.

COWS WERE A NOVELTY.

Trip of Boston Kindergarteners to Quincy an Event of Their Lives.

Rolled on the Grass and Kissed It and Were Supremely Happy.

As They Rode on the Electric Cars They Thought the Houses Were Racing By.

That Quincy children do not fully appreciate their surrounding, was shown on Wednesday when children from Boston made their first pilgrimage into the country, and were the guests of Miss Graham, an assistant teacher in the Warrenton street kindergarten school. Least someone may be shocked because the country and Quincy are connected, it might be mentioned that the outing was just over the river at Quincy Point in the rural town of Weymouth.

The little visitors whose ages range from 3 to 5, almost went into ecstasies over the grass lawns of New Downer Landing. They rolled on them and were as happy as a cat in the midst of catnip, some even kissing the grass. The salt water was also a great attraction, and they could not stop to have their shoes and stockings taken off, but wadded in shoes and all unless carefully watched.

A special electric furnished free by the West End railroad, conveyed the children from their home to the Neponset river. They were accompanied by the teacher of the school, Miss Morse, and one of her assistants, Miss Billings; also several of the mothers, who took the opportunity to bring along their babies. At the Quincy line a special car of the Quincy & Boston was in waiting, also Miss Graham who was the "Helen Gould" of the day, and Miss Florence Howe and Miss Edith Barker, two other young ladies of Quincy who are teaching in Boston kindergarten schools.

Some of the exclamations of the little folks were a surprise to their attendants. One remarked as the car bowled along, that the houses were racing by, while another saw a cow in a field and wondered what it was.

It was about 10.30 when the party reached the grove. The children romped over the grounds, paddled in the water, patronized the swings, lunched in the cafe, played their kindergarten games in the dance hall, threw stones into the water, picked wild flowers to take home, and had, oh! such a jolly time.

As noted yesterday kind friends provided ice cream, sandwiches, bananas, lemonade, milk, etc. Everything was free, and while the children enjoyed it, the mothers were surprised and thought Quincy was paradise itself.

Although the party started for home about 3.30, it was none too early, for half of the children were asleep before Neponset was reached. One in particular would not be awakened at Neponset, and it was necessary for two of the teachers to walk him in his sleep to the Boston car. Perhaps when he awakes he may wonder whether it was all a dream of heaven or a real outing.

When it is possible to give so much pleasure at so little outlay, Quincy should entertain more, and contribute more generously to "Country Week," the Flower Mission and other charities, that more may enjoy nature.

A New Law Next Year.

This year it will be necessary for one to judge for himself as to the quantity of fruit he buys but a new law has been passed which may give a little assistance next year.

It will take effect Jan. 1, 1901, and provides:

"Section—All baskets or other receptacles used or intended to be used in the sale of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, cherries, currants, or gooseberries, shall be of the capacity of one quart, one pint or one half-pint, Massachusetts standard dry measure."

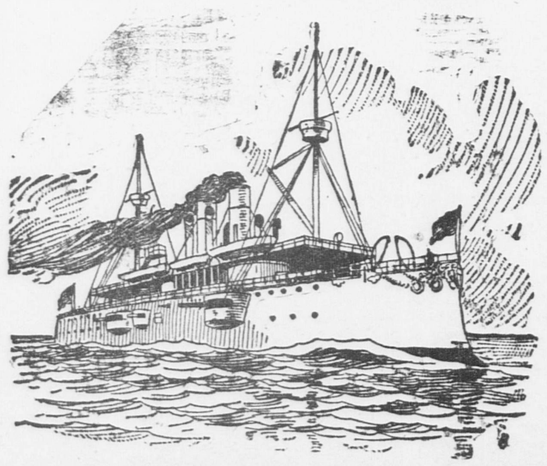

A failure to conform with this law will subject the vender to fines of $5 or $10 in each case.

The measures shall not be required to be tested and sealed, but the sealer, or deputy sealer of weights and measures of any city or town, or the deputy sealer of the commonwealth may, and shall on complaint, test the capacity of any basket or receptacle in which fruit is sold or intended to be sold; and when it is found to be less than standard measure, shall seize the same and make complaint against the vender.

☞ Lynn's school board appears to be having a monkey and parrot time, and the showing cannot be conducive to educational advancement in that city.—Brockton Times.

BLUE FLAME OIL STOVES.

You hear a great deal at the present time about the new Blue Flame Oil Stoves. Most any thing new nowadays that saves money and lots of labor, makes people talk and wonder why some one didn't think of it long ago. It was so with steam, electricity, telephones, and today with Blue Flame Oil Stoves. Think of it, an oil stove with no wicks, that burns common oil and makes a clear blue flame like gas. No smell, no blackened pans. You can bake, roast, boil or fry. A child can operate them and the beauty of the whole system is, that they cost almost nothing to operate. The reliable stoves only for sale by us, and the sooner you own one of them, the sooner your labors will be lighter and your pocket book heavier.

THE QUINCYS.

The Josiahs of Fifty Years Ago and Their Wealth.

The Boston Globe in its extracts from history of 50 years ago, publishes the following concerning Josiah Quincy, said to be worth $300,000:

The progenitor Edmund Quincy, came to Boston with the famous John Cotton, and was one of the first grantees of Braintree, (now Quincy). He was not, however, one of the gentility of that day, for his name has no prefix of Mr. then the exclusive right of "gentlemen." His son Edmund, (for he died early) probably grew rich, while most of the original "gentlemen" saw their estates crumble away. At all events, he became lieutenant colonel, in those days, no mean honor, and married a daughter of Gookin, superintendent and historian of the converted Indians, and one of the "magistrates." His son, Edmund was a judge and councilor and was sent to London as agent for Massachusetts in the boundary quarrel with New Hampshire. He died, however, before the matter was settled, and New Hampshire beat us entirely in that controversy.

His son Josiah was a merchant, and his son, Josiah, Jr., was a lawyer of eloquence and talent, a contemporary of John Adams, whose wife also descended, on the mother's side, from the second Edmund Quincy. Josiah Quincy, Jr., went to England as agent for the patriots, but died on his return, just after the battle of Lexington, at the age of 31, leaving an only son, whose name stands at the head of this article, and whose mother was a Phillips, aunt of the present Jonathan Phillips.

The present (1850) Josiah Quincy, now an old man, has been very active in his day. He was a most zealous federalist, and prior to the war represented the town of Boston in the congress of the United States. He was the second mayor of the city of Boston, which office he exercised very energetically, becoming the originator of many improvements. Of late years he has been president of Harvard college, which situation he has recently resigned. His wealth has been increased by inheritance and rise in the value of property.

The wealth of Josiah Quincy, Jr., was estimated at $750,000. Partly received by marriage. Is employed in a great many important trusts for individuals and corporations, from which he derives a large income. Was for several years mayor of Boston.

Note—The Josiah Quincy of today, (1900) is a grandson of Josiah, Jr., above, and great grandson of Josiah first mentioned above. He is the fifth in line to bear the name of Josiah.

From Eight States.

The Quincy Mansion school graduated seventeen young ladies this week and as their homes are in eight different states, the commencement exercises on Wednesday were attended by many people from a distance. A large number were in attendance.

The graduates: Helen Estelle Bowers of Lowell, Gertrude Crowell of East Dennis, Beatrice Cynthia Crismon of Salt Lake City, Ruth Judson Hall of Melrose, Florence Hamilton Hewitt of Portsmouth, N. H., Mary Elizabeth Hill of Boone, Ia., Mary Elizabeth Hunt of Sterling, Conn., Cora King Johonnott of Montpelier, Vt., Ethel Kennedy, of Pittsfield, Mary Rodgers Kennedy of Pittsfield, Carrie Porter Murchie of Calais, Me., Susan Sarah Piper of Worcester, Marion Winifred Reed of Erie, Penn., Grace Reynolds of Albany, Gertrude Lewis Snow of Fairhaven, Melinda L. Tarbox of Bath, Me., and Edith Bowman Upson of Syracuse.

A reception was tendered in the evening, followed by a promenade concert.

—A census taker in New York with a bump of humor thought there were not enough questions to be asked so he put the query, "Is it hot enough for you?" He was kicked into the middle of the road, and the police very properly refused to make arrests.

—It is a custom in Hungary for the groom to give the bride a kick after the ceremony, to make her realize subjection, while in Croatia, the bridegroom boxes the bride's ears.

LATEST!

MRS. GLADSTONE.

Widow and Helpmate of Illustrious Englishman Dead.

London, June 14,—Mrs. Gladstone, the widow of England's grand old man, died today.

The Observer About Home.

Already the old Brackett house on Hancock street is almost concealed by dense foliage. Behind the stone wall, the maple seeds have taken root and hundreds of tiny trees are growing. In spring, such seedlings properly transplanted, do well. Ward One needs an Improvement association, so do other wards. It is suggested that in the not distant future, perhaps these little trees might be secured and set out to be transplanted later upon some highway.

The driveway leading to the homestead is covered entirely with green, little plants and even soft patches of moss have taken possession of the way over which feet rarely tread now.

The rear of the house is almost totally concealed by fine trees. Across the track the younger Brackett house is beautifully set in a semi-circle of trees with a lawn sloping down to the new street. When this house was building by Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, who had one son only, his father, Mr. Lemuel Brackett, was president of the Quincy Stone Bank, now the National Granite.

This bank, as well as the cashier's family, occupied the house so long the residence of the late Dr. Gilbert. The parlor paper needed replenishing, and Mr. Brackett was appealed to in its behalf. "Why," said he, "if you take some stale bread you can cleanse it." Thus did he and members of the old regime work to save money by the utmost prudence and thrift. Modern methods may seem better, but there is a golden mean. If the gentle little lady, the last descendant of the Bracketts living here, could have a memorial of some trees set out in her name it would be a pleasant thing.

Observer.

Not Under Lock and Key.

Henry Kolseth, who has recently built a large house on Walker street, and who has come to Atlantic to make his future home, was somewhat surprised Tuesday night to find some kind and thoughtful hand had removed a loaf of cake from his cake tin, which was by chance not under lock and key in the cellar. If any one in Atlantic has a penchant for cake, no doubt Mr. and Mrs. Kolseth would be very glad to present him openly with a loaf or two, but as Mr. Kolseth is a stranger in Atlantic as yet, it seems as if the new comers might be left in peace until they had a chance to test the sterling quality of some of the "night visitors" of Atlantic by something less petty than a loaf of cake. If the cellar is locked in the future, it is only because Mr. Kolseth prefers his visitors to come to the front door, as he has been accustomed to receiving people in his former home at Cambridge.

The New Bathhouse.

The new public bath house, which the Park Commissioners are to erect on the banks of Town river at the Quincy Point playground, is of the Spanish style of architecture,—a long low, rambling sort of a building, with projecting eaves, that will gracefully fit into the cove at the base of the wooded knoll which juts into the river. The building was planned by Jones & Hart. It has an extreme length of 104 feet, including an eight foot piazza, which extends the entire front of the building. The building will contain besides the head house, 40 lockers, 20 for men and 20 for women, each locker measuring 5 feet, by 3 1-2 feet. In the rear of the head-house is an L 21 feet by 25 feet, containing the laundry and lavatories. Over the laundry is the care taker's room. The building will be shingled on the sides as well as the roof, and will be allowed to mellow with age to a grayish tint.

Quarryman Brings Suit.

There is on trial at Springfield this week the suit of Lewis Grimaldi against John S. Lane & Son, proprietors of a trap rock quarry near Westfield for $5000. Grimaldi, a former workman at the quarry, sues to recover damages for injuries received Oct. 24, 1899, by a premature explosion. His declaration alleges that the explosion was caused by the negligence of the superintendent and others in the employ of the defendants. His injuries were such that an eye had to be removed. Several of the witnesses were Italians, whose testimony had to be given through an interpreter.

LARGELY ATTENDED.

Business Associates and Friends at Funeral of Samuel Crane.

Funeral services over the late Samuel Crane were held Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from his residence on High School avenue. The services were very largely attended, many of his associates in business from Boston being present, as well as his friends in Quincy. Rev. Ellery Channing Butler of the First church officiated an the services were of a simple but impressive nature. His eulogy was brief, as he said Mr. Crane would not have wished it otherwise.

During the services the Harvard male quartette sang "Eternal Goodness," "Lead Kindly Light" and "O Paradise," three of Mr. Crane's favorite selection. At the conclusion of the services an opportunity was given those present for a last view of their friend and neighbor.

The burial was at Forest Hills, the bearers being Mr. Crane's personal friends: James Thompson, Wilson Tisdale, John Crandon and Capt. Clark.

There were many beautiful floral pieces, including a pillow from the Masonic fraternity, and a wreath from the permanent men of the Central Fire station, also a floral piece from the Boston Record and Advertiser.

Lawn Party.

The lawn party at the Point church, Wednesday evening, was a success. The lawn about the church was very prettily decorated. There were tables for the sale of candy, ice cream and cake, coffee, sandwiches and fruit punch. Mr. Sylvester furnished music on the phonograph and an exhibition was given in tumbling by three young gentlemen. A good time was enjoyed by all present.

June Magazines.

There is an aggressive, fresh vigor in the June number of "The National Magazine," which periodical presents a double frontispiece of exquisite photographs of President and Mrs. McKinley, with their autographs attached. The autograph of Mrs. McKinley for the first time appears on a printed page, and it is curious to note how much alike President McKinley and his wife write their names. The contents of the magazine even surpass its usual high standard of interest and timeliness.

"Hearts Adame" is the striking title of the novelette in the June number of The Smart Set. The author is Louise Winter, and the story depicts the efforts of a beautiful society leader to re-establish in the social world a woman friend who has been sensationally divorced and remarried. It reveals perhaps more of the workings of the wheels within wheels in New York society than any novel ever written.

—In a few days the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad will be running on the "Bay State Limited," the five hour-train between Boston and New York, magnificent new cars which will be finer in construction and in appearance than can now be found on any road in this country, or anywhere else in the world. This new service represents an outlay of over $200,000. The popularity of the "Bay State Limited" has always been very great.

Word has been received, of the death at Newton this morning, of Mrs. Gardner Coffin, formerly of Quincy. The family resided on Mechanic street many years previous to their removal to Newton.

It is hoped by many attendants of First church that band concerts in Fountain square will not be continued this summer. The church has been at great expense to fix up its lawns and walks and it seems a great pity to have them trampled over by crowds which gather to listen to band concerts. Last year a patrol was needed to protect the property.

Owing to a rush of visitors to Quincy and to the fast becoming famous, Dorothy Q house, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cote, who have rented the house have decided not to show visitors over it. It breaks in on their privacy as visitors call at all hours of the day, and poke all over the house as though it was public property, making it very unpleasant. It is too bad so ancient a house cannot be enjoyed by the public but we do not blame the Cotes for wishing to enjoy what they pay for.

Proud Framingham.

Framingham is doing herself proud this week, and it should be proud of an establishment like the Evening News and its progressive publishers. The souvenir issue of June 11 is of sixteen pages, printed on extra quality of paper and illustrated with numerous half tones which are superbly printed. The illustrations include Gov. Crane and other officials, the committee on anniversary, local celebrities, churches, public buildings, business houses, etc. It is enterprise like that of Bro. McPherson that makes Framingham the town that it is.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

ROBERTS AND BOTHA.

Leaders of Opposing Forces Engage In a Conflict Near Pretoria.

De Wet's Camp Captured and His Forces Scattered.

Milner Accepts the Resignations of Premier Schreiner and His Colleagues.

London, June 14.—Lord Roberts has been striking hard and fast in South Africa this week. His forces detached to the south have not only succeeded in virtually restoring his line of communications, but have signally defeated the Boers under General De Wet, capturing their camp and scattering that force. His Pretoria force has attacked the Boers under General Botha, occupying a strong position 15 miles east of Pretoria, but does not seem to have been successful in defeating them at the first onslaught. The work in the Orange River colony was done by Kitchener and Methuen, while Roberts himself directed the operations against Botha.

Military observers, noting that no mention is made of prisoners, assume that General De Wet got away with his forces practically intact.

General Buller entered Volksrust Wednesday, passed through Charleston and encamped near Laing's Nek. The tunnel was not much damaged. Both ends were blown up, but the engineers think that repairs can be effected in about four days.

The advance troops of General Buller saw the Boer rear guard four miles distant yesterday. It was estimated that 8000 Boers were withdrawing. The townspeople at Ermelo counted 15 guns.

Three hundred Free Staters, released from guarding Van Reenen's pass, have gone to join President Steyn's commando in the eastern part of Orange River Colony. General Rundle has sent notice to the Free Staters that, unless they surrender by June 15, their farms and other possessions will be confiscated.

President Kruger, according to a dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez, keeps a locomotive with steam up attached to the car in which he concentrates the executive offices of the government, and he intends leaving Machadodorp soon and to establish the Transvaal capital at Nel Spruit, in the mountains, a fine defensive region.

The state printing press is operating at Machadodorp, producing leaflets containing war news for distribution among the Boers.

It is again reported at Lourenzo Marquez that the British are advancing through Swaziland. Lord Roberts, it appears, however, countermanded the order given to Strathcona's horse to land on the coast and to penetrate to the Transvaal through the Swazi country.

Mr. Schreiner, the Cape premier, and his colleagues resigned last evening. Sir Alfred Milner accepting their resignations. The London papers only recently abused Mr. Schreiner for not making war preparations. Now they are complimenting his refusal to follow the majority of the Afrikander bund in opposition to the British military policy.

General Buller's casualties on June 10 have been issued by the war office. They were 26 killed, 126 wounded and two missing.

A meeting of women who object to the war was held at Queen's hall last evening. Mrs. Howard Courtney presided, and Mrs. James Bryce moved a resolution declaring that the war resulted from the "bad policy of the government." This and other anti-war resolutions were adopted. The meeting hissed Mr. Chamberlain's name vigorously.

M. H. Donohue, The Daily Mail's correspondent at Pretoria, insists that President Kruger took £3,000,000 gold in his flight.

A dispatch from Lisbon says: The Portuguese government is again reported fearing that the Boers will enter Delagoa Bay territory when forced to retreat from Lyndenburg. The Portuguese have only 1500 troops in East Africa, and would be powerless to prevent an incursion.

End of Colombian Revolution.

New York, June 14.—Official advices were received in this city yesterday giving the details regarding the revolution in Colombia. MONEY, TRUSTS AND IMPERIALISM,

Are the Three Big Questions Before the Voters of the Country, Says Bryan.

Chicago, June 14.—In Mr. Bryan's conference here yesterday with Senator Jones, Messrs. Johnson, Walsh and Campau, the platform to be adopted at Kansas City and the vice presidential question, especially the Towne Populist nomination angle of it, were considered.

On the question of the platform, the trend of discussion forecasted to some extent the differences of opinion which may arise at Kansas City, even among loyal Bryan men. Mr. Bryan favors rewriting much of the 1896 platform this year. Senator Jones, according to credible advices, advocates reaffirmation of the Chicago platform as a whole and then a transition to the new issues of imperialism and trusts.

"I say, as I have said before so many times," Mr. Bryan said, when asked what he thought of the platform and issues this year would or should be, "that I think the three big questions before us are money, trusts and imperialism.

"I believe the principles adopted in the platform of 1896 were adopted as a part of the party creed, never to be departed from. I do not think they should be or can be departed from this year. That platform must, however, be added to as new issues arise. I cannot undertake to say what will be the paramount issue. No man can. One thinks one question is the biggest and another man thinks another is.

"The conditions are more favorable than they were at this time in 1896. The Republican party is on the defensive. It will talk prosperity, of course, but we will be willing to take the votes of all the people who have had not their share of prosperity and leave them the votes of the people who have had their share.

"I should say our plan of campaign will be to carry every state in the Union. I would not speak so harshly of the people of any state as to say that I thought the people there intended to support the Republican party."

Boston, June 14.—Five years ago Patrick McNamara died. He left a wife and four children, with but slender means of support. Since that time they have apparently gotten along "somehow." The receipts at Boston during the month were $267,497.

FRAUD AS A FRIEND

James Halsted started nervously as the train whistle shrieked announcing the hour of departure. James Halsted, familiarly known as Jimmy, was a successful novelist—so successful that his last book had put a very appreciable profit in his pocket and a disinclination for sleep in his brain that threatened to transfer that profit to the physician's hands. The doctor had prescribed a trip south.

The rain beat against the window, blurring the landscape as he turned with a yawn to the paper before him. Picking up the first one at hand, a Boston weekly known as The Illustrated Comforter, that had not as yet won general recognition, he glanced over the list of contents—"Affairs In Turkey," "Prospect of European Interference," "Salt Pork a Marketable Commodity," "The Vision of a Phantom."

"Name of that last sounds familiar; wonder where I've heard it before? By—by Evelina Montresor. Bluestocking with a romantic turn, I suppose. I'll have a try at the lady's thriller." His eye wandered idly down the page; then he started and scanned the paper more closely.

"The deuce! Why, that's my own story, written when I was at college! Wonder where the lady got it, for to my certain knoyledge it was never published. Last time I remember seeing it was that summer's day at Glenn, when I vowed I'd waste no more postage on it. Some cheeky, middle aged spinster, I suppose, is getting the credit."

"Well, my fair Evelina," he added aloud, "whoever you are, you won't enjoy yourself much longer. Trust me for that."

With Jimmy Halsted to plan and to act were one, a trait to which he perhaps owed much of his success. He left the train at the first stop, made inquiries at the station regarding the trains to Boston and reached that city late in the afternoon of the same day.

Hurrying to the offices of The Illustrated Comforter, he demanded the desired information concerning Evelina Montresor's real name and identity. Awed by the great novelist's presence, the chief smilingly acceded to all his demands.

"A Miss Trevor, 13 Blank street. Little apartment, you know. Lives there with her invalid mother. Young? Yes, very young. And a little—er—crude, or shall we say obvious, but a promising writer. Good day, sir. Don't mention it. Glad to be of any service to you." And he politely bowed his impatient visitor from the office.

A tidy little maid opened the door in answer to Halsted's hasty ring.

"Yes, Miss Trevor lives here, but the ladies see no one."

"Tell her I must see her on important business." Halsted insisted impatiently.

The little maid stared at him, then silently ushered him into a small room and left him. The furniture was simple, but it had a cozy, homelike look which his luxurious apartments lacked. Evidently she didn't reap a very rich harvest from her pilfering, he reflected, and began to wish he had not come. Just then the door opened, and a tall, slender girl with sunny hair entered the room.

"Miss or Mrs. Trevor?" he asked, bowing stiffly to the youthful apparition.

"Miss Trevor," replied a silvery voice. "You wish to see me?"

So this was the thief! Well, if she did have glorious hair, a silvery voice and a sweet smile she should pay the penalty just as if she had been the sentimental old spinster he had pictured.

He mentioned his name, expecting to see her guilt stamped upon her face when she heard it.

"Mr. Halsted," she said wonderingly, "the novelist?"

"Precisely. I have come"—

"My mother is very ill," she interrupted.

"I will only detain you an instant. I am anxious merely to satisfy my curiosity concerning the means you employed to obtain possession of my story, 'The Vision of a Phantom.'"

"Your story!" she gasped.

"I am, of course, highly flattered," he pursued ironically, "that you should have selected on its merits that which every publisher in the country failed to discover, but I am none the less mystified."

She looked at him with startled eyes. "Like a lamb in the lion's grip," he reflected.

"And you mean to denounce me?"

"No; simply, I am curious."

"Oh, be patient with me. I will reimburse you. I would do it now, only the money has gone for necessities for my mother, who is very ill. I will reimburse you afterward, indeed I will," she insisted, noticing Halsted's gesture of dissent. He was beginning to regret his presence there, but a silvery voice and sunny hair compensate for much, so he staid on.

"I will, indeed, repay you; besides, I didn't know to whom the story belonged. It had no name (Halsted recalled having sent his firstborn forth unsigned). I found it in a closet at Glenn Reid when my mother needed these things, and I was so worried I could think of nothing to write. I copied it. But I"—

"Elsie, Elsie, where are you?" came a tremulous voice through the door.

"Here, mother, dear," and she ran from the room.

The editor of The Illustrated Comforter was much surprised the following day to receive a proposition to publish a serial story to be written by James Halsted and Evelina Montresor. The collaboration on the latter's part had been the sine qua non of her forgiveness.

A year later the critics, commenting on the story, wrote:

"In former years Mr. Halsted fascinated by the charm of his style, but left his readers' hearts empty and unconvinced by his love passages. This defect he has remedied, and the latest production from his pen carries its message of sincerity to every one."

The novelist smiled as he glanced at the golden head across the room; then, interrupting the silvery voice reading this notice, he remarked:

"My dear, it's very dishonest and immoral, no doubt, but fraud is the best friend I've ever had. It gave me the happiness of my life and taught me how to talk to them sincerely. But what would justice say?"—Condensed From the French For New York Commercial Advertiser.

REPUBLICAN VICE PRESIDENCY.

Hanna Says That Settlement of the Matter Is Not In Sight—A Committee Meeting.

Philadelphia, June 14.—With the arrival of the advance guard and the opening session of the national Republican committee yesterday Philadelphia has begun to assume a convention air. The committee had its formal meeting at the Hotel Walton and began consideration of contests for membership of the convention.

Practically the only topic of conversation among the Republican leaders who have arrived here is the selection of a candidate for the vice presidency. Senator Hanna has devoted almost the entire time since his arrival to this question and has been in frequent conference with other leaders upon the subject. He says that no candidate has yet been selected either by the president, himself or by any one for them. During the recess of the committee Senator Hanna held a conference with Senator Scott of West Virginia, Joseph Manley and Henry B. Payne. When they dispersed all agreed that the question of the vice presidency was still open. There was a general confession of concern over the situation, but a feeling that in the end the right man would be found.

The contests from Alabama consumed the entire afternoon session, and resulted in a decision by the committee not to place the names of any of the contesting delegates of either faction on the temporary rolls of the convention except those from the Ninth district, both of the Vaughan faction. The action of the committee was controlled largely by the fact developed in the hearing that federal office holders had taken a very active part on both sides of the controversy in shaping the result.

"A Bit Shaky."

A man looks at his trembling hands and says: "I feel a bit shaky this morning, and shall need a bracer." His real need is not nerve stimulant, but nerve strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives strength to the nervous system. It does not brace up, but builds up. It is entirely free from alcohol and from opium, cocaine, and other narcotics usually found in so-called nerve medicines.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures.

David Duggins, Esq., of Jones, Ohio Co., Ky., writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I had nervous or general debility of three years' duration. I took three bottles of the 'Discovery.' During the time I was taking it my sleep became more refreshing and I gained fifteen pounds weight, and also gained strength every day."

CHAMPION IN JAIL AT ALFRED

There Was Considerable Talk Among Young Men of Lynching Him.

Said to have Practically Confessed to Murders of Goodwin Family.

Mrs. Champion Creates a Scene at the Parting from Husband in Boston.

Alfred, Me., June 15.—Champion is locked up in the Alfred jail after a rather uneventful trip from Boston. The party, which consisted of Inspector McCausland, Sheriff Thompson of York county and Officer Miles, arrived, accompanied by a number of reporters, at the jail shortly before 7 o'clock last evening.

At a late hour last night four warrants were issued against Champion, each naming one person as having been murdered—namely, George W. Goodwin, Fred Bertsch and Mrs. Elsie N. Horne—and they will be served today.

The prisoner appears on the verge of collapse, and it is understood that he had practically confessed to the crime, although the officers decline to admit any such thing. They do not expect any lengthy hearing, for Champion will waive the reading of the complaint, and the formality of holding him for the grand jury will close the case for the time being.

A bloody shirt promises to be the most direct piece of evidence to connect Champion with the murders. If expert testimony proves the stains to be coagulated blood, the belief of the officers will be confirmed, for the faint red marks on Champion's undershirt which he wore when arrested are in the same relative position as the stains on the shirt which Champion is said to have discarded at Farmington, N. H., and which was found Wednesday. The one point yet to be settled is whether the overshirt fits Champion, as he has not been asked to try it on.

Champion will not be taken to Newfield. Quite a number of the young men of the village talked over matters and almost decided to make Champion's return a very unpleasant occasion. One of the officers heard of it, and sent for the supposed leader of the "Judge Lynch" advocates and laid down his probable course of procedure in case of trouble. Said the officer: "You boys know me pretty well, and you know what I say I mean. If my brother attempted to take Champion from me I'd shoot him through the heart." The lynching talk subsided, and the prisoner will go to trial in the usual course of events.

Some attention will now turn to the settlement of the Goodwin estate, and the winding up of the affairs of Fred Bertsch, the hired man. Of the latter's finances it is claimed that he usually had considerable money on hand, for, besides industrious habits, he was inclined to talk about his savings, and friends maintain that he always had $200 or $300 in cash available.

There will be a continuation of inquiry into Champion's antecedents, and it is not at all unlikely that the accumulated evidence will prove the prisoner to be with bad instincts. It is even suggested that insanity may be a plausible reason for many of the deeds which have been laid at his door.

Now that Champion is securely locked up, the threatened squabble among the officers as to the merit of individual work and the credit of the capture is avoided. The prisoner's willingness to return to Maine seems to indicate that he wished to reach the end of the case in the shortest way. Champion's arraignment will occur today before a local justice. A fair proportion of the townspeople know Champion by sight.

Mrs. Champion Creates a Scene.

Boston, June 15.—There was a pathetic scene at police headquarters shortly after noon yesterday when George Champion was about to start for Maine. Mrs. Champion approached her husband, sobbing bitterly, and, extending her hand, said, "Goodby, my dear boy, goodby."

Champion partially broke down, and said: "I'm all right, dear, don't fret after me, for I will fool them all."

Mrs. Champion threw herself into the arms of her husband and kissed him, saying: "George, be a brave man at all hazards. I do not believe you guilty of the crime that the police have you here for, but if you committed the murders, for my sake own up to it."

Champion's answer was: "Keep cool, dear. I am not guilty, but these people will have it that I am."

A Court Decision on Porto Rico.

New York, June 15.—Judge Townsend in the United States district court for the Southern district of New York yesterday handed down an opinion in which he held that Porto Rico is a part of the United States, so far as other countries are concerned, but, so far as the constitution of this country is concerned, it is a foreign country, and that the United States can govern it without subjecting it to the burden of national taxation, and that the status of the inhabitants will remain unchanged until congress shall determine it.

Entry to Be Made More Difficult.

Washington, June 15.—The board of visitors at West Point have completed their work. The most important conclusion reached by the board was a unanimous recommendation that the examination for entrance to the academy be raised materially. At present the entrance examination is so elementary that cadets readily enter the institution. Once inside, however, they are confronted with a very difficult course, and 33 percent drop out the first year.

Injury Resulted Fatally.

Boston, June 15.—Patrick Ahern, who sustained severe injuries by falling from an electric car, died at the Cambridge hospital Thursday. It is not known whether Ahern fell from the car accidentally or was pushed off. The police will look into the matter.

Six Killed in Tenement House Fire.

New York, June 15.—Fire in a tenement house at 34 Jackson street at 3 o'clock this morning caused the death of six people. The dead: Daniel Miller, Daniel Connolly, Mrs. Daniel Connelly, two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Connolly, unknown woman.

General Otis at Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., June 15.—General E. S. Otis and his three daughters arrived here from Washington last evening. General Otis was taken in his car to Otis Station, and from there was driven to the Otis homestead.

☞ Bicycles. The best in the world at our famous cut prices. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Making Progress Toward Recovery.

Boston, June 15.—Howard Poole, the lad whom Champion is alleged to have fearfully assaulted, is slowly improving. He can say "yes" and "no." The surgeons think that he will be able to describe his assault very soon.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Almanac, Saturday, June 6.
Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:23.
Moon rises—9:57 p. m.
High water—1:15 a. m.; 1:45 p. m.

Local rains occurred Thursday in the New England states. The temperature changes were unimportant. From the lake regions over New England the weather will be fair Friday. Along the coast the winds will be fresh to brisk from west to northwest.

Many Marriages Declared Void.

San Francisco, June 15.—Judge Belcher yesterday filed an opinion in which he holds that marriages of persons divorced in this state consummated within 12 months after the decree of divorce has been made are invalid, and that in the eyes of the law such persons are unmarried persons. The opinion will be a blow to hundreds of California couples who have married at Reno, Nev., within the past two years, under the belief that a marriage outside of this state nullified the law.

Queen Among Rebel Leaders.

London, June 15.—The Daily Express has the following dispatch from Prahsu, dated yesterday: There has been another fight on the line of communication of the Kumassi relief expeditions. No details have been officially supplied. There are 10,000 Ashantis surrounding Kumassi and 5000 facing the relief force. The leaders of the rebellion include Ashantuah, Queen of Ofesu.

Rockefeller Gave $100,000.

Granville, O., June 15.—At the commencement exercises of Denison university last evening, the president announced that obtu $300,000 new endowment had just been received, including $100,000 from John Rockefeller, also that Denison university and Shepardson college were united.

DEATH OF MRS. GLADSTONE.

Widow of the Great English Premier, Who Was Noted For Her Good Works.

London, June 15.—Mrs. Gladstone, who had been unconscious for about 72 hours, died at 5:40 p. m., Thursday, without recovering consciousness. The news was immediately conveyed to the queen, the Prince of Wales and others.

Mrs. Gladstone was the daughter of the late Sir Stephen Glynne, and from him inherited Hawarden castle, the family seat of the Gladstones. The old castle, of which but the ruins remain, dates back to the remotest antiquity, but the new castle was built in 1752, and it is this part, with the additions made thereto, that is occupied at present.

Mrs. Gladstone's father died young, when his eldest daughter, Catherine (Mrs. Gladstone), was scarcely 5 years old. Her father was succeeded in the baronetcy and estates by his eldest son, Stephen Richard, then but a boy of 8.

In 1839 Catherine married William Ewart Gladstone, whose brilliant talents already had foretold his future eminence. The same day her younger sister married Lord Lyttleton.

In her married life Mrs. Gladstone had occupation to the full. She was devoted to her husband. She did not have to look around for her work. Still her assistance was from the first available for any scheme to aid those who needed a helping hand. In short, Mrs. Gladstone became a center for philanthropic work of all kinds.

Of the eight children who came to Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, five are now living. Of the sons, two are in England, one as rector of the village church in which his father and mother were married, the other representing West Leeds in parliament. The third is engaged in commercial pursuits in India. One of the daughters is married, while Helen Gladstone, named for her father's only sister, who died in early womanhood, holds the position of principal of Newnham college at Cambridge. She is one of the most profoundly educated women in England, and the college of which she is the head is one of two founded for the higher education of women.

Personalities In Missouri Convention.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 15.—The Democratic state convention last night elected delegates to the national convention and instructed them for William J. Bryan for president. The resolutions condemn trusts and corporation influence in political matters and pledge the party to fight them on all occasions. This was a defeat for ex-Governor Stone, who introduced and fought for a resolution declaring specifically against agents of corporations holding places of honor in party affairs. His fight was to defeat W. H. Phelps, railway attorney, but the convention made Mr. Phelps a delegate-at-large with Stone. The fight lasted for four hours, and personal matters were injected into the debate.

Widow Will Get Estate.

Boston, June 15.—Because he executed the instrument before he married, the will of John D. Bates was disallowed by Judge McKim in the Suffolk probate court yesterday. Letters of administration were taken out. The will was made April 2, 1870. A bequest of $10,000 was provided for the Boston public library, and $5000, each, was given to the Boston bureau of charities and the Sailors Snug Harbor. The last two institutions were, in addition, made residuary legatees. Mr. Bates married, in June, 1895, and, as he neglected to make another will before he died, the one executed prior to his marriage was declared null under the law.

Free Transportation For Bicycles.

Boston, June 15.—The bicycle baggage law, which was passed by the legislature a month ago, goes into effect today, and hereafter all railroads of standard gauge will carry wheels as baggage free of charge, within the state, except within 10-cent fare radii. Where the single fare is under 10 cents, the railroads have the right to charge for the transportation of a wheel.

Indicted For Manslaughter.

Manchester, Vt., June 15.—Nelson W. Gower was indicted here Thursday for manslaughter, being charged with causing the death of Mrs. Florence I. Hall. Gower was driving late one evening and passed an electric car which Mrs. Hall was boarding, when she was knocked down by the horse, receiving injuries from which she afterwards died.

To Inspect American Exhibits.

Paris, June 15.—The United States honorary commissioners yesterday decided to begin an inspection of the various American exhibits at the exposition, and so notified Commissioner General Peck. The inspection will begin next Monday with the mining section, and a thorough examination will be made.

Unknown Man Found Drowned.

Lewiston, Me., June 15.—The body of an old man was found in the Androscoggin river, a mile below here, but it lacks identification. It was first thought to be the body of Warren J. Barlin, who disappeared four weeks ago, but relatives failed to recognize the corpse.

Miners' Strike Still On.

St. John's, June 15.—There is no change in the strike situation on Belle island. The local magistrate read the riot act. Police are guarding the property with loaded rifles.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

As a result of the recent examination several West Point cadets were found deficient and discharged from the military academy.

William H. Whitmore of Boston, city registrar and historian, died after a few days' illness of a complication of diseases, aged 64.

The University of Rochester has conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon General Elwell S. Otis, who was a member of the class of 1858.

A DIVISION OF CHINA.

Portions of the Country Said to Have Already Been Assigned.

Intentions of Dowager Empress Are Still Equivocal.

Several of the Powers Arranging to Largely Reinforce Their Details.

London, June 15.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says:

"A report has reached here that the British, American and Japanese ministers in Pekin favor the restoration of Emperor Kwang Su, but that the French and Russian ministers insist upon the powers taking charge of China. It is further reported that the respective divisions of the country have already been assigned. The belief is that the withdrawal of the British ships from the Yang Tse Kiang is an indication of Great Britain's disclaimer of the 'sphere theory.'"

Later reports from Tien Tsin confirm the news of the burning of the Japanese legation, but the rumor that a minister has been murdered is not confirmed.

Fifteen hundred Russians, with four guns, have arrived outside of Pekin. This makes 4000 Russians who have landed.

It is regarded as certain that the Japanese government will take active steps concerning the murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation.

Observers at Shanghai and Tien Tsin think there is great deal more trouble ahead for the concert of powers than merely reaching Pekin with 2044 men. Serious disturbances are taking place at Yun-Nan-Fu and Meng-Tze, as well as at other points at a considerable distance from the capital.

The whole Chinese empire seems to be in a ferment. The intentions of the empress dowager are still equivocal, with a balance of testimony on the side of a determination to expel the appropriators of a part of her country or to lose her dynasty in the attempt. It is related of her that on Monday, following the murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation, she was roused to a sense of danger and went personally to the Yung-Ting gate of Pekin, where she advised the rioters to disperse. But she took no steps to apply force; and the appearance of things is more threatening than before.

While Admiral Seymour, with the international relief column, is forcing his way to Pekin, several of the powers are arranging largely to reinforce their details at Tien Tsin. Germany purposes sending 1200 men. Great Britain sent 600 from Hong Kong yesterday and 400 will go Sunday. Italy has ordered 1000 men to hold themselves in readiness. Russia, according to a St. Petersburg dispatch of Wednesday, has decided to bring her force at Tien Tsin up to 6000. Thus the combined forces at Tien Tsin will probably soon be about 10,000 men.

An explicit statement made yesterday in the house of commons by the parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, Mr. Brodrick, with reference to the identity of opinion among the powers upon the question of the application of force and the method of applying it, is accepted by all the morning papers as quite sufficient for the present; and the hope is generally expressed that nothing will happen to diminish the harmony.

The Times publishes the following dispatch from Tien Tsin, via Shanghai, June 14: "A serious engagement has occurred between the international column and the Mohammedan troops of General Tung Fuh Siang, near Pekin." Byron Brennan, British consul at Shanghai, who is now in London, says that these Mohammedan troops are armed with machine guns and repeating rifles.

A Shanghai dispatch, dated yesterday, says: "A Chinese steamer, laden with arms and ammunition, cleared from Shanghai today, bound for Tien Tsin. A notorious murderer, who was delivered by the municipality of Shanghai to the Chinese authorities, is being slowly stoned to death in a cage. Thousands of spectators watch his agonies daily."

Bryan on a Fishing Trip.

Minocqua, Wis., June 15.—W. J. Bryan and party arrived here yesterday, and will spend a few days fishing. Mr. Bryan made a few short speeches from the platform of his car while passing through the Wisconsin valley, being greeted by fair-sized crowds. Mr. Bryan said the three great questions at issue in the coming campaign were silver, trusts and imperialism. Upon these, he said, the Republican party would be forced to take the defensive.

Flaw In Taylor Indictment.

Indianapolis, June 15.—Attorney General W. L. Taylor of Indiana announces that he has discovered a flaw in the indictment against W. S. Taylor of Kentucky. The attorney general says the indictment names the Republican claimant of Kentucky as an accessory, but names no principal in the assassination of Goebel. This he holds to be an important error.

Good Afternoon.

St. Louis is now developing a case of the exposition-head, while preparing for its big show.

The Philippine postal service is not only self-supporting, but turns in a profit to Uncle Sam.

There are Quincys and Quincys, but the one who does not get confused on the Josiah Quincys has a clear head. The Adamses are quite as puzzling.

England consumed 153,798,000 tons of coal last year and the U. S. 193,479,000 tons. That tells the story of the increase of American manufactures in plain figures.

Although Mrs. Gladstone did not die until 5.40 P. M. on Thursday, the Ledger printed the news that afternoon at 2.30. This surprised many, but the Ledger is up to date.

Virginia was once known as "the mother of Presidents," and Ohio seems to have a claim to be known as "the mother of Senators," as eleven members of the present U. S. Senate are Ohio born.

S. N. D. North, chief statistician of the Census Bureau, has issued a circular to manufacturers urging full and complete returns of their business. He believes that the value of the products of our factories will be 33 per cent. larger than if the census had been taken two years ago, before the revival from the low tariff depression.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Admiral Dewey makes frank admission that "somebody else" suggested the idea of his being a candidate for the presidency. In other words, the heroic old sailorman was sold a gold brick.—Philadelphia Call.

☞ It was very wrong of that missing North shore man to turn up all right after a clairvoyant had described his suicide with such particularity for the benefit of a worried daughter. What business has he to give such an impetus to skepticism as regards clairvoyant powers?—Brockton Times.

☞ Hundreds of thousands of children can never be taught directly in our schools to love their fathers or mothers, but they can be taught to be constantly saying kind words and doing kind acts to the lower creatures, and in this way be made better, kinder and more merciful in all the relations of life.—Geo. T. Angell

☞ At a wedding in Illinois the other day no men except the bridegroom and the minister were allowed. Even the ushers were women, and so was the best man." It only needed some woman minister to make the femininity of the occasion complete. And what a pity the bridegroom had to be man.—Waterbury American.

☞ Yes, it costs a lot of money to keep the United States on the trolley, but at the same time there is little room for doubt that the government is run a good deal more judiciously and economically than a vast multitude of country towns where the people themselves directly vote every dollar of the appropriations, and themselves choose the men to spend the money.—Milford Journal.

☞ It seems that, owing to the strict rules of Chinese etiquette, the dowager empress could not ask the male "foreign devils" to explain why they have been troublsome lately, so she had a "kow-tow" with the ladies of the foreign legation. It has not yet developed whether the legation ladies explained the matter satisfactorily, but the indications are that the dowager empress will be forced to kow-tow the mark chalked by the male foreign devils just the same. — Biddeford Journal.

☞ If George Champion is an innocent man he is certainly a remarkably unfortunate being, having, so far as known, been the last person seen with young Poole before the deadly assault made on the latter. He was also the last one of which there is any knowledge who was at the Goodwin farmhouse before the perpetration of the monstrous tragedy at that place, where he went, according to his own story, to escape detection as a witness in the first-mentioned case. If his accounting for his whereabouts be true, it is certainly a striking instance of jumping from the frying pan into the fire. In the light at present afforded, however, it looks as if Champion would yet have the biggest undertaking of his life to clear himself from charges of committing both crimes.—Lynn Item.

☞ "I was up around the old school house last Saturday. The old spring is still there. The school house is nearly a mile from any house, and you know the old country school house has many fond memories and reminiscences in plenty. The boys in the cities generally see nothing about their first days in school to remember, unlike those who went to school with nature all around them. This school was built in 1857, and I venture to say it has never had anything new added to it since, at least not outside, and it still has its charms." Thus writes "J. B." from Philadelphia, and when I read it I could but think it over. But how few stop to think over such things! He who begins his schooling in the country school with only nature about him becomes, when he reaches manhood, the better man,—unlike the child who begins and ends his schooling in the midst of a city with all its temptations, and who is always trying to catch up with the tempter. The latter begins a life which is a perpetual call for money, for money will buy him everything in a city but happiness. There is a vast difference between the man who walked miles in the country to the country school in company with the modest school girl, and the one raised in the brick and mortar school of a city, who learns all too soon to flirt with the "chippies" who run the streets of a great city.—Fibre and Fabric.

Waste of Water.

The annual report of the Metropolitan Water Board says, and there is not much doubt about it, that the waste of water is flagrant. It is the purpose of the board to make a careful investigation into the use, or rather the misuse, and waste of water, in order to determine whether proper measures for the prevention of misuse or waste are either possible or feasible in the future. The consumption of water in the cities and towns of the district which were supplied wholly or in part was, during the year 1899, 88,533,000 gallons daily, of which 87,143,000 gallons per day were supplied by the metropolitan works, and 1,390,000 gallons per day from local sources. The consumption of water per inhabitant in the district supplied was 110 gallons per day—an increase of 7 gallons per day for each inhabitant.

Drowned at Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kent (Georgie Dean Spaulding) of Neponset went to their summer home at Plymouth last week. While rowing on Gallows pond on Thursday Mr. Kent's boat upset and he was drowned. Mrs. Kent was on the shore at the time.

ON THE INCREASE.

Postal Receipts of Quincy Put Her Well Up in the List.

Because of increase in business, the salary of Postmaster Hammond of the Quincy office will be increased on July, from $2,600 to $2,700 per year. It is also reported that the salary at Wollaston will be increased from $2,300 to $2,400, but the consolidation is effected at this time.

The changes in Massachusetts are: Taunton advanced from second class to first class, and Wellesley from third to second class.

Increases in salaries: Athol, Attleboro, Attleboro Falls, Barre, Braintree Brookfield, Canton, Chatham, Chester, Cottage City, East Bridgewater, East Northfield, East Walpole, Edgartown, Florence, Fitchburg, Framingham, Gardner, Highlandville, Hingham, Holyoke, Hopedale, Hopkinton, Indian, Orchard, Lowell, Marblehead, Medfield, Medford, Merrick, Merrimac, Methuen, Nantucket, Natick, Needham, Northampton, North Attleboro, North Andover Depot, Quincy, Reading, Rockport, South Braintree, Southbridge, South Weymouth, Springfield, Taunton, Vineyard Haven, Wakefield, Walnut Hill, Walpole, Waverly, Webster, Wellesley, Wellesley Hills, Williamstown, Winchendon, Woburn, Wollaston.

Decreases of salaries: Athol Center, Concord Junction, East Douglas, East Weymouth, Georgetown, Medway, Mittineague, West Acton, Westboro, West Medford.

The fact that two of the 58 Massachusetts offices to get increases are in Quincy, and that there are over 500 post offices in the state, perhaps 1,000, shows that Quincy is growing more rapidly than the average cities and towns.

The salary of the postmaster at Marblehead, which town will have a government building, is increased from $2,300 to $2,400 which shows that the postal receipts are much smaller, and the gain no faster.

Euchred Again.

Swindlers continue to visit Quincy and storekeepers continue to be easy marks especially where the swindler is a pretty woman with a good gift of gab. The latest in this line was Wednesday, when a young woman arrived in town and by her winning ways contrived to get a pair of bicycle tires worth $8, groceries and other articles that could be readily carried away. The woman is described as being about 30 years of age, tall and of good form, and wore a black straw hat and a black sack.

She gave her name as Mrs. Frank Williams, and said that her husband was a draughtsman at the Fore River Engine Works, that they had just moved to town and lived on Greenleaf street. At one store the proprietor asked her what house on Greenleaf street she lived in. This rather phased the woman and she departed without getting her goods.

Later in the day she was seen to meet a man on Hancock street near the Adams Academy, and the two boarded a car for Boston. At that time she had her arms full of bundles, doubtless goods she had fraudulently obtained of Quincy dealers. The parties swindled had rather their names should be withheld.

G. A. R. Ladies' Night.

A very enjoyable ladies' night was held Thursday evening by Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., at headquarters. It was attended by many of the members of the Women's Relief Corps and the Ladies' Aid society. The programme of the entertainment consisted of vocal solos by Miss Annie Roach, Mrs. Herbert Holmes, and Miss Clara Merrill; piano solo by Miss Sadie Thomas; cornet solo by Miss Hattie B. Pierce readings by Miss Abbie Feltis and Miss Gertrude Boyd, duet by Mr. Walter Holmes and Miss Mary Gardner song, "Tenting tonight on the old Camp Ground" by Comrade Stoddard and chorus and "We are the Old Boys," by Comrade Lennon and chorus. At the conclusion of the entertainment strawberries and cream, cake and iced coffee were served.

Grocery Burglarized.

Burglars entered the store of A. F. Hall on Washington street sometime during Thursday night. Entrance was made by breaking a window in the office, and then reaching in and turning the catch. The parties secured about $5 from the money drawer and a quantity of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes.

Buying Ducks.
There are two ways of securing a duck.
The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.
We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.
Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here in 1621 while exploring the coast.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish quenched his thirst, and carried a supply to the boat.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Private house, not open to public.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams. At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Janitor can be found at Savings Bank building or at his home Maple place. No fee charged, but janitor may be paid for his trouble.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams, house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished also the BIG ship yard now being established at Quincy Point.

New City Hall.

The Committee on Public Buildings of the City Council met Thursday evening and considered the proposition of the Mayor to remodel City Hall. The general impression was that it would not be best to remodel the present building, but that a new City Hall should be erected upon some new site and that the present building should be used as a police station and court house.

LEADING COUNTRY IN GAIN.

Quincy 15 Times Larger in 1890 Than in 1800; United States 12 Times.

Quincy Expects to be Over 23 Times Larger This Year Than in 1800.

From 1850 To 1900 The Showing Will Be Even More Favorable to City.

In a few weeks, probably the grand total of the census enumeration now going on will be made public. Guesses as to the figures which will be shown range all the way from 75,000,000 to 80,000,000 with the probability that they will not be below the former nor above the latter. It may be of interest to see what the population of the United States has been at each of the decennial census previous to this one, both in the United States and Quincy, as shown in the following table:

National Census.	United States.	Quincy.
1790	3,929,214	*
1800	5,308,483	1,081
1810	7,239,881	1,281
1820	9,633,822	1,623
1850	12,866,020	2,201
1840	17,069,453	3,486
1850	23,191,876	5,017
1860	31,433,321	6,778
1870	38,558,371	7,442
1880	50,155,783	10,570
1890	62,622,250	16,723

* Quincy incorporated in 1792.

It will be noted that the population of the United States was in 1890 very nearly 12 times what it was in 1800, while that of Quincy was over 15 times what it was in 1800. If the population of the United States is 75,000,000 this year, it will not be 15 times larger than a century ago, while Quincy with a population of 25,000 will be over 23 times larger than in 1800.

From 1800 to 1850 both the country and Quincy increased nearly five fold, but from 1850 to 1890 the country did not increase three fold while Quincy gained over three fold from 5,017 to 16,725.

Quincy expects to be over 5 times larger this year than in 1850, while the country may be a little over three times what it was then.

In whatever way the growth of this city is compared, the showing is very favorable. It is a marvelous growth.

"TOO BAD, TOO BAD."

Cochato Club Perfectly at Home on Merrymount Alleys.

The Merrymount candle pin team was gallant Thursday evening, when the Cochato team came to Wollaston, for the visitors scored a great victory. Perhaps the Wollaston boys couldn't help it, evidently this was one of the nights when they could not. As the "rooters" said it was "too bad! too bad!"

The Braintrees were accompanied by only a few members of the Cochato club, but Wollaston was largely represented by ladies and gentlemen, and the latter were armed with horns, etc., which applauded every good play of the Merrymount team.

The Cochato boys were without their high man at the recent meet, Mr. Arnold, whose place was taken by Mr. Hunt, but otherwise, the two teams were the same as at Braintree, June 6.

On the first round Merrymount led Cochato 90 to 85, but they lost it all and more too on the second, and the visitors continued to gain to the end of the string, the totals being 418 to 376, or a victory of 42 points for Cochato. White's total was 105 while 83 was the best for the home team.

The first round of the second string was a tie, but Cochato gained in the second, and widened the breech each round, and won the second string 426 to 398.

Cochato made a poor opening in the third string and the Merrymount team seized the opportunity and with their highest total won the third string 400 to 373.

The grand total was in favor of the visitors, who won 1,217 to 1,174.

The summary:

Eight Victims of Explosion.

Winnipeg, Man., June 15.—A dispatch from Canmore, Alberta, says: A terrible gas explosion occurred in Canmore coal mine yesterday, resulting in the instant death of eight men and the injury of several others. The cause of the explosion is supposed to have been the carelessness of one of the miners in opening his safety lamp in a dangerous part of the mines.

Cowardly Double Assassination.

Dallas, June 15.—Henson Williams and his son William, colored, were shot dead from ambush while plowing. THE BUBONIC PLAGUE.

There never was a case in which the old proverb about the ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure was more strictly applicable than in dealing with the bubonic plague.—Chicago Record.

The action taken by the health authorities, who are supported by the police, indicates the gravity of the situation. San Francisco as a center of trade with Asia stands in great danger of a visitation of the plague.—Philadelphia Record.

There is no good reason for great alarm over the danger. Modern science has shown its ability to combat the disease successfully. The bacillus has been identified and inoculation against it has been practiced with some success.—Chicago Journal.

There is no further room for doubt that the bubonic plague has broken out in Chinatown, San Francisco. It is to be noted that the business classes of the city are endeavoring to have as much of the truth as possible suppressed. This may suggest that the plague has gained a firmer hold than the reports would indicate.—Washington Times.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A typewriter has been patented for writing cryptographic letters, the type being arranged around the face of a wheel.

A new invention provides for an arrangement by which turning on a faucet anywhere in the house starts the gas burning under a coil of pipe, thus providing hot water at any hour.

Eggs can be tested and cooked by a new device having a lamp surrounded by a metallic tube, with openings opposite the flame in which the egg is inserted for testing, with a wire frame over the top on which the eggs are placed for cooking.

The path in front of a bicycle is cleared of substances which would puncture the tires by a new attachment, comprising clamps for suspending a small circular brush in front of the forward wheel, with driving wheels to revolve the brush rapidly on the ground.

ANIMAL LIFE.

As many as 4,061 muscles have been counted in the body of a moth.

Every square mile of sea is estimated to contain some 120,000,000 fish.

Horses, giraffes and ostriches have the largest eyes of all terrestrial animals, but among marine animals there are cephalopods, or ink fishes, which have eyes as large as a plate.

Silk of the great spider of Madagascar is strong, fine and elastic. It is used by the natives for fastening flowers to sunshades. The spiders which produce it are busy spinners, and a spider has been known to produce two miles of it in 24 hours.

THE PEDAGOGUE.

John Fiske, the historian, has been offered a chair of history in the University of California.

The average charge for tuition fees in American colleges is $75 a year, while the cost to colleges is $115.

The largest real estate owner of all American institutions is the University of Texas, which holds over 2,000,000 acres of land.

BECAUSE SHE MARRIED.

Kentucky Farmer Was Jealous of His Adopted Daughter and Killed Her and Himself.

Louisville, June 15.—Moved by strange jealousy, Thomas Bach, aged 50, yesterday shot and killed Mollie Bach, aged 18, because she was secretly married, four weeks ago, to Newt Thorne, a young farmer. The tragedy occurred at the Bach farm, 11 miles from Louisville. Mollie Bach was adopted 12 years ago by the Bach family, and given their name. Thomas Bach, although he is a married man, was intensely jealous of the girl, and he had told her, it is said, that he would kill her if she ever married. Yesterday she showed him the license for her marriage to Thorne, which occurred four weeks ago, and had been kept a secret.

Bach immediately grabbed a pistol and started for the girl. She darted through the front door of the house, but he caught her and shot her three times in the back. Pursuing her into the yard, he shot her in the left side. The girl fell to the ground, and Bach put the pistol to her temple and shot her again. With the last bullet in the pistol he shot himself near the heart. As he lay on the ground he reloaded the pistol, crawled over to the girl's body and shot himself again. Bach and the girl died before a physician could reach them.

Met With Accidents, But Won.

Paris, June 15.—The international automobile race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, from Paris to Lyons, was won by M. F. Charron of France. A Frenchman, M. Girardot, was second. The others did not finish, owing to accidents. M. Charron smashed a refrigerating pump when the distance was about half covered, and, when about 13 kilometers from Lyons, he collided with a big dog, with the result that the main spring of the auto car was broken. He finished by holding the spring with his hand. The route covered a distance of 566 kilometer.

Central Vermont Loses a Bridge.

St. Albans, Vt., June 15.—The three-span, wooden bridge over the Missisquoi river, at Sheldon Junction, used by the Central Vermont road, was burned Thursday. This structure was 459 feet long, and was valued at $15,000. An iron bridge will probably replace it.

FOR THE BOERS' USE.

Thousands of Tons of Supplies Have Arrived at Lourenzo Marques.

Botha Shows That He Still Has a Formidable Force.

Buller Is at a Standstill and Rundle Has a Skirmish at Ficksburg.

London, June 15.—Two steamers arrived at Lourenzo Marquez yesterday, bringing several thousand tons of supplies consigned to Portuguese merchants, but destined for the Boers. One hundred Americans, Frenchmen, Germans and Hollanders have arrived there by various steamers en route for the Transvaal.

That Commandant General Louis Botha should have been able to stand for two days against Lord Roberts and then retreat without losing any guns or having any of his men captured is taken to mean that he has a force which the British must still reckon as formidable when acting defensively.

The pacification of the whole of the Transvaal, especially the wide spaces far from the railways, is looked upon as a business requiring months rather than weeks. Meanwhile everything goes well for the British arms.

A Boer bulletin issued June 12 at Machadodorp said: "Both wings of the federal forces touched the advancing enemy at 1 a. m. yesterday east of Pretoria. Fighting continued until dark. The enemy, though in overwhelming numbers, were checked along a line of 26 miles; and the burghers succeeded in driving back their right wing five miles. Two burghers were killed and 10 wounded."

Another Machadodorp announcement is that the first regiment of General Buller's force to attack Almond's Nek was "annihilated;" but as the British were in overwhelming force the burghers were compelled to abandon the Nek.

A dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez says: "President Kruger is holding on to his gold and issuing paper notes from a press in his executive car. The Boer government's coin stock is exhausted; and the officials are now paying out plain gold discs unstamped. Some who have declined to accept notes have taken their salaries in gold bars. The Boer government is still paying out much gold in that way.

General Buller will be unable to advance further until he gets supplies. He will probably wait until the tunnel has been cleared. Nearly every farmhouse his troops passed flew a white flag. The British took nothing without paying for it; and a brisk business was done in milk, eggs, bread and chickens by thrifty housewives, who were pleased to get so much English money.

General Rundle had a sharp skirmish at Ficksburg on June 12. The Boers had been aggressive along the whole Ficksburg-Senekal line and menaced Ficksburg in force. The British outposts retired to the village. General Rundle held the attention of the Boers in front with two guns, while yeomanry were sent round to their rear and drove them off, with a loss to the British of three wounded. Two patrols were also wounded.

President Steyn is at Uitkop. His presence there is supposed to account for the Boer activity.

Fire Was Accidental.

Warren, Mass., June 15.—The assistants of the state fire marshal, who have been here investigating the cause of the fire which destroyed the town hall Wednesday night, have decided that the fire was caused by a kerosene stove in the millinery store of Nora C. O'Brien, and was accidental. The loss on the town hall was about $10,000, and that of Miss O'Brien $1000. Chief Engineer Putnam and George Hopkins were badly burned, and several others were more or less seriously hurt.

Costa Rican Monetary Changes.

New Orleans, June 15.—President Iglesias of Costa Rica has sent to congress a decree making legal the circulation in that country of the money of the United States; also the gold coin of England, France and Germany. As a consequence the value of Costa Rican money improved here 110 points yesterday. The Costa Rican congress is now engaged in forming a national banking law which will conform to the new gold basis system.

Suicide In a Brook.

Manchester, N. H., June 15.—The body of a woman was found in a small brook four miles above this city, Thursday, and it was afterwards identified as that of Mrs. Mary Moran. It is thought that Mrs. Moran was demented. She left four children, and upon leaving her house, over a week ago, bade them all good bye, and was not seen nor heard from afterwards.

Rushed Into Arms of Death.

Biwabik, Minn., June 15.—Five men were killed yesterday by an explosion of dynamite at the Hale mine, three miles from here. A charge of dynamite had been set and the fuse lit in one of the drifts. When the usual alarm was given to enable the laborers to reach places of safety the five men rushed directly into the drift where the charge had been planted.

Japanese to Be Deported.

Washington, June 15.—Commissioner General Powderly of the bureau of immigration has ordered the deportation of 31 Japanese from Port Townsend, Washington, where they had landed in violation of the immigration laws.

Gompers to Use His Good Offices.

St. Louis, June 15.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, arrived here last night. Mr. Gompers said he would do all in his power to bring about an equitable settlement of the strike.

SUGAR PLANTERS' FRIENDS

Carry the Day in the Louisiana Delegates Contest—Vice Presidential Field Open.

Philadelphia, June 15.—With all the work preliminary to the entertainment of the Republican national convention and its attendant throngs practically accomplished, Philadelphia is now contentedly awaiting her visitors. From the big convention hall down to the smallest detail, those charged with the responsibility feel that they have the situation well in hand and the completeness of the preparations seems to justify the belief.

The most interesting event in the national committee yesterday was the seating of the Warmouth delegates from Louisiana, after a very spirited contest. This was an overthrow for the federal office holders of Louisiana, 10 of whom were on the delegation headed by Wimberly, the collector of the port of New Orleans. Although Wimberly is a member of the national committee, and made the strongest possible presentation of the case, the committee declared in favor of his opponent. Among the men thus denied seats in the convention is Mr. Kellogg, former governor and at one time United States senator from Louisiana, who has been a delegate to every Republican convention since 1860. Warmouth and his friends represent the sugar planting interests of Louisiana, and the claim was made before the national committee that recognition of this faction would make it possible to elect three Republican members of congress in the state.

As to the vice presidency, while it is the uppermost topic of discussion, members of the committee and other leading Republicans here seem to be still at sea. Nearly every prominent Republican who says anything about it remarks that "The field is still open, and the best man will win," which is taken to indicate that no one has been accepted by those who are managing the affairs of the party. The avowed candidates are Lieutenant Governor Woodruff of New York, who has friends on the ground hustling for him; Secretary Long, who was launched yesterday as a full-fledged candidate by the general distribution of his picture on buttons, labeled "For Vice President, John D. Long," and Representative Dolliver of Iowa, whose friends are urging him because of his reputation as an orator, and also for geographical reasons. According to the present outlook, beside the three named there will be votes cast for a number of favorite ones, though probably in some instances it will be purely a complimentary vote. Among these are Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, ex-Senator Washburn of Minnesota, Governor Schofield of Wisconsin, Judge Bartlett Tripp of South Dakota, Senator Pritchard of North Carolina, Irving Scott of California and Colonel Jay L. Torrey of Wyoming, while the field is open for any others who may be entered for the race.

Vermont For Bryan and Silver.

Montpelier, Vt., June 15.—The Democratic state convention was held Thursday. The full state ticket was nominated by acclamation, and the convention declared for Bryan and the Chicago platform, and against the "imperial policy of the administration and the Republican party" in no measured terms. The following state ticket was placed in nomination by acclamation: For governor, John M. Senter of Montpelier; lieutenant governor, E. S. Harris of Bennington; secretary of state, H. O. Cummings of Richmond; state treasurer, Elisha May of St. Johnsbury; auditor, C. A. Fitzpatrick of White River Junction.

In the Blue Grass State.

Louisville, June 15.—The Democratic state convention met here yesterday. Senator Blackburn read the report of the committee on resolutions. The report reaffirms the Chicago platform and instructs the delegates from Kentucky to cast their votes for Bryan. The Republican national policy is denounced in its entirety, as are separately imperialism, the Porto Rican tariff bill, the maintenance of an army in the Philippines and the financial policy. Sympathy is expressed for the South African republics. Trusts are denounced. The assassination of Goebel is declared to be the result of a Republican conspiracy, and W. S. Taylor and his official acts are denounced.

The California Convention.

Sacramento, Cal., June 15.—The Democratic state convention yesterday adopted resolutions reaffirming the Chicago platform; favoring election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; an income tax and construction of the Nicaragua canal by the United States; extending sympathy to the South African republics; condemning imperialism; condemning the Porto Rican tariff laws; favoring the abolition of unnecessary war taxes; condemning trusts, and favoring laws for the exclusion of Asiatic laborers. Mr. Bryan received the endorsement of the convention and the delegates were instructed to vote for him.

Georgia Democrats For Bryan.

Atlanta, June 15.—The Democratic state convention met here yesterday. Four delegates-at-large were elected to the Kansas City convention and a state ticket was nominated, headed by Allen D. Candler for governor. The platform adopted endorses the Chicago platform of 1896; declares against the national policies of the Republican party; endorses W. J. Bryan and instructs the delegates to the national convention to vote for him.

Payne Not a Candidate.

Philadelphia, June 15. — Henry C. Payne, member of the national committee from Wisconsin, sent the following dispatch to the chairman of the Wisconsin delegation: "I am not a candidate for vice president or any other office. I hope our delegation will unanimously support Governor Schofield." This was in answer to a letter which suggested that the Wisconsin delegation would present Mr. Payne's name if he would permit it.

For Alleged Theft From Dentists.

Worcester, Mass., June 15.—Fred Church, 29 years old, is under arrest here charged with larceny. Church is believed to be the same man who stole two pocketbooks from dentists' offices in this city. He was formerly employed as a letter carrier in Boston.

MEN OF MARK.

The will of Julius Adams of Boston gives $25,000 to Carney hospital of that city.

William A. King, the successor in congress to Roberts of Utah, is a Mormon, but not a polygamist. He is 37 years old and has been in politics for 15 years.

The will of Captain Thomas Wilson of Cleveland provides for the establishment of a home for aged couples in which preference shall be given to sailors and their wives.

Governor Robert B. Smith of Montana has made a fortune in mining. He is popular in the mining districts, the men regarding him almost as one of themselves, but respecting him none the less.

Senator Beveridge said the other day, "Though it is true that I have been making a life study of the Malay languages, I have as yet mastered but one, and there are some 58 others yet to master."

When Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was recently asked what he had been reading of late, he replied, "For serious work, 'David Harum;' for light reading and amusement I've been going through Gibbon again."

Lord Roberts is fond of music. The members of his staff on various occasions have got up impromptu concerts to please him, and in one campaign the general was always serenaded when he retired to rest.

Edouard Bocher, who died at the age of 90 in Paris the other day, was for many years the confidential adviser of the Orleans family and the center of most of the Orleanist plots during the last 40 years.

Dr. E. T. Allen, one of the Illinois homeopathic doctors in convention at Chicago, declared that irregular eyebrows are a sign of insanity. In his opinion, the condition of the brain affects the growth of the eyebrows.

D. H. Chamberlain, who was governor of South Carolina during the so called "carpetbag" regime, has subscribed for 20 shares of stock in the Charleston Exposition company, which expects to hold a great fair in Charleston next year.

A friend of William M. Evarts reports him as being much amused by having read a recently published account of himself. "This says I am 'gradually fading away' like an old photograph," he remarked, "but I fancy you can still make out the features."

While Judge Kenneth M. Jackson of Alaska is still under 30 years of age, he has received as much as $50,000 as an attorney's fee and cleared up several million dollars on mining properties. He landed in Alaska not many years ago with $250 as his entire fortune.

Eugene Bruce, who has been interested in the lumber business in the Adirondacks for several years, is to be employed by the division of forestry of the United States department of agriculture in preparing working plans for the forest reserves and for the large eastern tracts owned by the government.

President McKinley on horseback will be one of the sights at the national Grand Army encampment at Chicago in August. Since General Grant's last term no president has appeared mounted in any parade. The projected exception is due to the fact that President McKinley has been appointed a member of the mounted staff attendant on Commander In Chief Shaw.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Many young turkeys die from lack of vigor due to inbreeding or lice.

Tobacco stems scattered through the nesting material will help keep lice away.

Sulphur should never be given unless strictly necessary, as it may cause leg weakness.

It is a mistake to select the largest males for next year's breeders. The proper ones to select are those which are active. A lazy, sluggisa young cockerel is sure to be sluggish and clumsy when matured.

Carbolic acid is a poison and will kill poultry if they drink water in which too much of it is used. Twelve drops of the acid in a quart of water is enough. But in cases of cholera a teaspoonful in three pints of water will not be too much.

A hen seldom begins to eat shells until she finds one broken by accident or until she becomes accustomed to eggshells that may be thrown into the yard. On this account eggshells should always be well crushed before they are given to the hens.—St. Louis Republic.

LAW POINTS.

A London magistrate recently decided that a girl was not obliged to return a bicycle she had received as a present from a man whom she subsequently jilted.

The supreme court, says the Boston Journal, is of the opinion that the man who supposed that cigars could pass as drugs on Sunday was the victim of what is colloquially known as a pipe dream.

The highest court of appeal in Great Britain has sustained the decision that a circulating library can be held pecuniarily responsible for libelous statements contained in any of the volumes which it circulates.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 17—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Abiding in Christ.—John xv, 1-10.

In all probability it was while walking up the Mount of Olives to the garden of Gethsemane that Jesus spoke this discourse on the vine and the branches. The vineyards on the slope of Olivet would naturally suggest the beautiful figure that he uses to illustrate the necessary and vital union between Himself and His disciples. Christ is the vine, the Father the husbandman, Christian people the branches and Christian life and works the fruit to be born. And all depends upon union between Christ and the Christian. We must abide in Him and He in us, as the branch abides in the vine.

Union with Christ is a real union. The branch actually abides in the vine. It has a vital, living union with it. The union between Christ and His disciple is no less real. We abide in Him, and He abides in us. We abide in Him by faith. He abides in us by His Holy Spirit, but the union is no less vital and real. We actually abide in Him and receive our life from Him, as the branch abides in the vine and receives its life from it. "It is no longer I that live," says the great apostle, "but Christ liveth in me." This is the ideal relation between Christ and His disciples, and it is no imaginary, mythical relation, but a real, vital union.

Union with Christ is a necessity. It is necessary if we are to bear fruit, the object of Christianity. "Abide in Me and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me." The life and fruitfulness of the branch depend upon its union with the vine. So it is with the Christian. Apart from Christ he can do nothing. He depends absolutely upon Christ for power to live aright and to do what Christ would have him do. As Christians we want to live Christian lives and to bring forth Christian fruit. Let us therefore remember that these results can only be accomplished by abiding in Christ.

Disunion with Christ means spiritual death and destruction. The branch that has no living connection with the vine and hence bears no fruit is cast forth and is burned. This, in the spiritual world, is the penalty of disunion with Christ. Spiritual death awaits the man who abides not in Christ. He is cast forth—forth into outer darkness, away from God, away from heaven. Let us earnestly strive to avoid such a fate. Let us abide in Christ by faith. Let us be united to Him by an imperishable love. Let us be bound to Him by good works. Let us earnestly pray that He in the person of the Spirit, may make our hearts His abiding place, and then all shall be well with us. "In you; you in Me."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

This is a very important topic, containing as it does a most precious and yet often unrealized and unappreciated Christian truth. If possible, get the pastor to open the discussion of the topic by a short explanatory address.

BIBLE READINGS.

Hos. xiv; 8; Math. xv, 13; II Cor. xii, 1-10; Gal. ii, 20; Phil. i, 9-11; iv, 13; Col. i, 21-23; iii, 1-3; Titus ii, 11-14; I John ii, 1-6.

Serving Humanity.

We live in a world of poignant suffering and crying need. Each heart knoweth its own bitterness and every tongue, were it bidden to speak, would a sad tale unfold. The innocent cry of the child is for more, more, more, and the soul even of him who has all that the world can give hungers and thirsts for what the world cannot give nor take away. The world's suffering is not all physical and its need is not bread alone. Under the heaviest burdens of this life throbs the undying consciousness of the soul's deep needs. We have a commendable interest in humanity and a pardonable pride in the future of our church. But if we would best serve humanity and insure the future of our church, we must equip it for the great work of satisfying the hungry soul and filling the sad heart with gladness. No matter what special lines of missionary effort are adopted, the church will never outgrow its God given mission to minister to all of the vital needs of men and to spread abroad in the world its comfort, its solace and its inspiration.—Universalist Leader.

The Unknown Future.

When things get beyond your control, when you face an unknown future and when trying conditions confront you, remember that it is His to bring light out of darkness, joy out of sorrow and hope out of despair. Be patient and acquiescent. Let the Ruler of the universe and the Lord of the individual manage affairs in His own way and at His own time. Neither grow weary nor become too anticipative. Roll upon a covenant keeping God your cares, taking His dispensations as they come and multiplying sorrow neither by distrust nor by foreboding. God unravels the future day by day, hour by hour and moment by moment, accompanying the distribution with His supporting and sanctifying grace.—Presbyterian.

A Hint For Preachers.

Uncle Sidney, in The Advance, tells of a prominent publisher known throughout the land, who wished that his pastor, when he gets up to preach "would tell us what he proposes to tell us." "I really start in with the purpose of hearing every word," he said, "but there is so much preface and homiletic fencing that I begin to lose interest and sincerely wish he would tell us what he desires to tell us." "It seems to me," he added, "that a preacher should, during the first two minutes of his sermon, state his message and what he proposes to drive at."

The International Relief Column May Not Reach Pekin For Weeks.

All Communication With the Ministers Is Cut Off.

Streets of Pekin Seething With Mobs Clamoring For Death of Foreigners.

London, June 16.—A disquieting element in the Chineses situation is the fact that although the Russo-Chinese telegraph line from Pekin, via Kiakhta (eastern Siberia), is working again, the transmission of English messages is rigidly refused.

From Tien Tsin it is reported that the foreign forces in the harbor will attack the Taku forts and if necessary bombard them.

The international column appears to be still at Lang Fang, engaged in slowly repairing the railway, which, according to a dispatch from Tien Tsin to The Daily Mail, dated June 14, cannot be effected for weeks. The force is short of provisions, and as it is without field transportation, it must stick to the railway.

The report that the mixed forces will sieze the Taku forts is taken to mean that the foreign commanders expect no aid from the Chinese government in repressing the disorders, and are determined to make Taku secure as a base from which to operate.

This is the situation in China, as it appears to the Shanghai corerspondent of The Daily Express, cabled last evening:

"It is really a state of veiled war. The members of the foreign legations in Pekin are virtually prisoners; and the Chinese troops are only restrained from attacking them by fear of the legation guards.

"Meanwhile the ministers are altogether unable to communicate with the officers commanding the relief column, which is making an enforced and isolated halt between Tien Tsin and Pekin. The walls of the capital city are guarded by 100,000 imperial troops. The gates are heavily defended with modern guns. General Tung, acting under orders from the empress dowager, says that no more foreign troops shall enter the sacred city.

"On Monday the ministers sent a demand to the foreign office that the gates be opened, declaring that otherwise the foreign troops would enter forcibly. To this no reply was given. A second message went unanswered, or had not been answered when the latest news left Pekin.

"Sir Claude MacDonald's latest message says that the legations are capable of sustaining an effective defense, unless attacked in force."

Russia, this correspondent asserts, notwithstanding assurances to the contrary, sides with China. Some foreign troops are already reported to be in the environs of Pekin, and the attitude of the Chinese troops is increasingly menacing.

"The streets of Pekin," continues the correspondent of The Daily Express, "are said to be seething with anti-foreign mobs, clamoring for the destruction of the delegations and the death of the foreign ministers. Even were the foreign office disposed to restrain the violence of the reactionaries, it is considered highly improbable that they will be able to hold them in check. For the foreign ministers the crisis will arise when the relief colmn comes in sight of Pekin.

"It is still felt here that the foreign force is wholly inadequate to battle with the hordes of Chinese troops massed outside the gates, which now include the imperial troops from Shan-Hai-Kwan."

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says: In competent political circles there is no wish or trace of intention to act in China other than with the great powers. At the same time there is no desire to establish a European concert. Russia, like the United States, reserves to herself independence of action.

Government Urged to Seek Reparation.

Yokohama, June 16.—The murder of the Japanese chancellor of legation at Pekin by the Chinese imperial troops has aroused keen feeling in Japan. The press urges the government to exact ample reparation. Eight warships are to be sent to Taku.

Volunteers From West Indies.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 16.—The British war office has just cabled to the Jamaica government that it is prepared to accept a composite volunteer militia contingent from Jamaica, Trinidad and Demarara for service in Ashanti. Jamaica will supply 200 men and five additional officers. The West India regiment has been ordered to Ashanti forthwith.

Sensational Charges.

Augusta, Me., June 16.—The govern and council have been petitioned for th removal from the Saco registration board of Lewis F. Johnson. The petition presented charged Johnson, who is a lawyer, with association with lewd women, embezzlement of funds he had collected for his clients, willingness to resign his office for a consideration, threats to "trim" Saco Republicans, blackmail and other misdemeanors. The council issued a notice for Johnson to be present at a hearing to be held July 20.

Decision Given to Gardner.

New York, June 16.—Oscar Gardner won on a foul in a bout with Billy Barrett in the 15th round of what was to have been a 25-round bout here last night. Oscar's brother Eddie was matched to meet Barrett, but through a delay on a railroad Eddie was unable to appear. Rather than disappoint the big crowd, Oscar, although suffering from an injured right hand, and serious throat trouble, volunteered his services, and the lads went at it at catchweights. Barrett adopted "dropping" tactics.

An Outbreak of Yellow Fever.

Havana, June 16.—Yellow fever has broken out at Quemados, eight miles from Havana, where United States troops are stationed. Thus far there have been 14 cases, three of which proved fatal. At present only six are under treatment, and all are expected to recover. It had been several years since there was an outbreak there.

South Framingham, Mass., June 16.—The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the inauguration of the town, which began Sunday last, was brought to a close last night, when 15,000 people gathered around the shores of the pond at Saxonville to witness the display of fireworks and the canoe float. The celebration was a complete success.

Minister Relieved of Valuables.

New York, June 16.—While Rev. Frank McCormick of West Swanzey, N. H., who is on a visit here, was walking on Fifth avenue last evening, he noticed a woman about to fall. He hastened to assist her. She told him she had wrenched her ankle and asked him to support her for a moment until the pain decreased. He did so and then bade the woman good night. A few blocks further up the avenue the minister discovered that he had been robbed of a wallet and a package of letters.

New York, June 16.—Final proofs of ex-Governor Boutwell's address at the Cooper Union mass meeting have been received at the headquarters of the Anti-Imperialist league in this city. An edition of 10,000 copies will be ready for distribution in about a week. THE GOODWIN TRAGEDY.

Coroner's Jury Holds Champion Responsible For the Quadruple Murder.

West Newfield, Me., June 16.—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of the murdered persons—George W. Goodwin, Scott G. Goodwin, Fred Bertsch and Mrs. Elsie N. Horne—was as follows: "That they came to their death by violence at the hands of George Champion, and by instruments and weapons to the jury unknown."

Inspector McCausland was the only witness before the jury, and he testified that Champion said that he went to Goodwin's at 4 p. m. on June 7 and stopped there until Sunday night at 9 o'clock, when he left. Witness said Champion stated that Goodwin and Mrs. Horne were there, but that Scott Goodwin and Bertsch were away and had not returned when he left. Witness further said Champion at first declared that he had walked to Union, arriving there at 3 a. m. Monday, and then took a train at 6 a. m. for Boston, arriving at the latter place about 1 p m.; but that Champion later, when questioned by McCausland, acknowledged that he had ridden in a team from Union to Farmington, and that his previous statement was false. Champion had also told witness that when he reached Boston he went to Parker street and spent the night there with his wife, then went the next day to Milford.

The authorities believe that Champion is likely to weaken and make a confession before long, as he appears unable to stand the strain of his condition much longer.

Champion was arraigned in his cell at the county jail at Alfred Friday. Warrants charging the murder of each of the four victums were read to him, and he pleaded not guilty to each, and was then bound over without bail to await the action of the grand jury, which sits on the third Tuesday of September.

Visitors Won't Be "Skinned."

Kansas City, June 16.—Six members of the national Democratic committee's sub-committee on arrangements for the Kansas City convention held a brief meeting here yesterday. The members came particularly to investigate the charges that the Kansas City hotel keepers are demanding extortionate rates for the entertainment of convention guests. Chairman Jones last night issued a statement in which he gives assurance that not only can accommodations be had at reasonable rates, but that, as the situation appears to him, convention visitors to Kansas City may be taken care of at more reasonable rates than has been the case at any former convention.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 16.—Brooklyn won the game by bunching hits in the first and eighth innings. The shortstop work of Dahlen, and a catch by Stahl, in the first inning, were features.

Bravery and Presence of Mind.

Boston, June 16.—At the peril of his own life James Farrell, gate tender at a grade crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, rescued three little children from almost under the wheels of an incoming express train Friday. The gates were down when three children tried to cross ahead of the approaching train. One fell and one of the others tried to pick it up. Mr. Farrell pushed them all out of harm's way just as the train went by, bystanders in their fright thinking that all had been killed.

Posse Didn't Arrive Soon Enough.

Louisville, June 16.—A special to The Courier-Journal, from Barboursville, says: An unsuccessful attempt was made to arrest John L. Powers, under Indictment as an accessory to the murder of Goebel. A posse quietly formed and left town for the home of Powers' brother-in-law, but a runner had been sent out ahead, and Powers had left the house when the posse arrived. Powers' attorney, S. D. Sampson, declares that no one has any authority to arrest Powers, who has been pardoned by Taylor.

Somebody's Blunder Caused Disaster.

Springville, N. Y., June 16.—Apparently by reason of a mistake in the issuing or misunderstanding of train orders, two heavily loaded passenger trains met headon in a deep cut between West Falls and Colden last night. The engines were wrecked and baggage cars telescoped. Engineer Keating was killed and Engineer Mansion was probably fatally injured. Two passengers were severely bruised and cut.

Kaiser Is "Shy" on History.

Berlin, June 16.—The Catholic press attacks Emperor William for a speech at Eisleben in connection with the celebration of the seventh centennary of the Mansfield copper mines, asserting that it contained a number of historical errors. The Cologne Volks Zeitung advises the kaiser to learn the truth before publicly discussing religious topics.

New Hampshire's Old Home Week.

Concord, N. H., June 16.—Governor Rollins has designated Aug. 11 to 13 as the dates for this year's "Old Home Week." Preparations already are being made for a more elaborate celebration of the anniversary than took place last year.

Holiday Notice.

Monday, the Seventeenth of June, the office of the Daily Ledger will be closed. Tuesday's paper will have all the news of the holiday.

Good Afternoon.

Golf is expensive sport, and those who cannot easily pay their board bills had better quit the links.

The fight against the estimates of the School Committee for 1900 is having its ill effects with a vengeance, as Supt. Lull and the principal of the Willard, have received calls, and there are rumors that we may lose several valuable teachers.

The receipt of life insurance is usually a great help where a husband is removed by death. A review of the life insurance business of the state, says that $87,000 was paid in Quincy during 1899. But 23 cities received more. As we rank 22 in population we are holding our own in life insurance.

The influence of the Herald against Mayor Hart's tax bill seems to amount to naught. The Metropolitan daily cannot understand the "flops" when they are back summersaults. It now says the House is "in contempt, or, at any rate, in distrust, of the wisdom of the people." Too bad, too bad.

The receipts of the Marblehead postoffice are between $11,000 and $13,000; those of Quincy, without Wollaston, in excess of $24,000, or twice as much; with Wollaston, three times as much. The Senate has voted an appropriation for a govenment building at Marblehead, and Quincy must brace up for its rights.

The government receives a large net revenue from Quincy in the post office department. The annual receipts of the four offices at Quincy, Wollaston, Atlantic and Houghs Neck are in excess of $40,000. The expenses of the offices in the city are probably less than half this amount, so our claim for a government buiding is good. The net receipts from Quincy are already sufficiently large to pay the cost of land and building.

Brookline has an average school attendance of 2,777 and Quincy 4148, the former less than 70 per cent of the latter. Does Brookline expend less than 70 per cent of the amount Quincy does for the maintenance of schools. Oh, no! Its valuation is $23,885 per pupil and it expends $35.27 per pupil. where Quincy with a vauation of $4,637 per pupil expends $21.51. On first cost of school buildings, Brookline expends more because she can afford to. When it comes to Metropolitan sewers, the principle should be the same. Brookline should pay more than Quincy for the cost of sewers because she has three times the wealth. It should pay more for the maintenance of sewers, as it does for maintenance of schools. The same with Boston, Milton and Newton. These rich communities are against the mill tax for schools which divides according to the school census and they cannot consistently be against the maintainance of sewers by valuation.

POSTAL RECEIPTS.

Quincy May Soon be in the First Class.

A salary of $2,700 for Postmaster Hammond represents postal receipts of over $24,000 for the year ending Mar. 31, 1900, at the Quincy postoffice, while a salary of $2,400 for Postmaster Burns at Wollaston represents postal receipts of at least $13,000.

The basis of the apportionment of salaries is of interest, and is as follows:

$8,000, not exceeding	$9,000	$2,000
9,000, "	10,000	2,100
10,000, "	11,000	2,200
11,000, "	13,000	2,300
13,000, "	16,000	2,400
16,000, "	20,000	2,500
20,000, "	24,000	2,600
24,000, "	30,000	2,700
30,000, "	35,000	2,800
35,000, "	40,000	2,900

When Charles L. Hammond became postmaster in 1898, the receipts of the Quincy office were a little less than $20,000 per year, so that the increase, in salary presents an increase of over $4,000 per year in receipts. Were it not for the fact that the Quincy and Wollaston offices are to be consolidated on July 1, it would be a long time before the postmaster at Quincy received a further increasa in salary, as it would be necessary to increase the receipts $6,000 per year or $500 per month. However, the receipts of the Quincy and Wollaston offices combined would be in excess of $37,000 per year, which would pay a salary of $2,900.

When the receipts amount to $40,000 per year Quincy will become a first class office, and it now looks as if the day was not far off.

SUPT. LULL GOING.

Elected Superintendent at Newport at Salary of $3,000.

A dispatch from Newport, R. I., ssys that Herbert W. Lull of Quincy, Mass., was last night elected as superintendent of schools at that place to succeed Benjamin Baker resigned. There were many applications, the first ballot showing four candidates. The salary is $3,000. Mr. Lull, when seen this morning, said he had not received an official notification that he had been elected as superintendent of the schools at Newport, but presumed it was correct.

When asked if he should accept the position, Mr. Lull said he could no tell until he knew the conditions.

It was not so much regardng the salary as the surroundings and other conditions.

Mr. Lull was taking the train for Boston and no further information could be obtained, other than that he expected to receive official notice of his election sometime today.

Mr. Lull was born in Boston and fitted for Harvard college at Woburn. He was graduated in the class of 1874; he went to Manchester, N.H., teaching there as principal and sub-master of the High school for five years. He then returned to Massachusetts and taught at Milford High school until 1890, when he came to Quincy High school. In 1892 he was elected as superintendent to succeed George I. Aldrich.

Golf Cups in Pawn.

A. G. Lockwood, the golf player, was in the poor debtors court this week, on complaint of a landlady who has obtained judgment for board of Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood in the fall of 1899.

During the examination it was brought out that Lockwood had borrowed $100 from a friend, on the strength of a written agreement to turn over to the friend all the cups he might win this year, the cups to remain the property of the friend until the $100 was paid back. He has won about 20 golf prizes during the past two years.

All those which he won before last February he sent to his father in England. The last one he received is a pewter pot from the Allston Golf club. Two are yet to be delivered to him from the Myopia club and two from the Wollaston. He says he owns no real estate and no personal property exempt from attachment.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Season Promises to be a Good One.

Houghs Neck people had a fine view of the fire at Nantasket Friday afternoon, especially from the top of Great Hill, when even with the naked eye a long sheet of flame could be seen through the clouds of thick black smoke. With marine glasses the view was even better. Several yachts went across to the beach for a closer view.

A party from the State House were taken out by Capt. Pierce in the yacht Ouija, on a fishing trip, today.

M. M. Packard and family of Roxbury are in the Harbor Light cottage.

Charles Grant and family of Dorchester are on Great Hill.

William May and family of Boston are in the Green cottage.

A new timetable on the Houghs Neck line is published in today's Ledger. Half hour time on week days and fifteen minute time on Sundays and holidays.

Mrs. M. E. Coram and Leonard Doty of Brockton are guests at Pierce's.

Maurice Sibley and family of Charlestown are in the Spaulding cottage.

Willard Marble and family of Brockton are in a cottage on Rock Island road.

Mr. Proctor, private secretary to Senator Lodge, is expected at his cottage next week.

Mr. Cotter and family of Boston are at the Mary Esther cottage.

Hotel Fenesmere opens Sunday.

Mrs. Hugh McLaughlin of Boston is in a cottage on Taber avenue.

Mrs. Mary McLane of Dorchester is in the Day cottage on Taber street.

Arthur Crocker and family of Newton are in the Standwell cottage.

F. S. Johnson and family of Boston are in a cottage on Great Hill.

The first birth of the season at the beach was recorded Monday, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs B. J. Macomber.

J. B. Emery and family arrived at the Loretto on Friday.

A band concert is announced for Sunday near the Fensmere.

George W. Rich and family of North Adams are in the Mildred A. cottage.

Mr. Brenan and family of Randolph are in the Vogel cottage.

Princess Zella, the palmist has arrived.

A free steropticon exhibition is to be given tonight near Dunham's post office store.

Everything is opening up in good shape and the season promises to be a good one.

Patrick Connors and family of Charlestown are in the Cavanagh cottage.

Mr. Leonard of Brockton has moved into his new cottage on the Webb estate.

Mr. Kelley's horse ran away Monday evening and for a time created quite a little excitement. The horse started from near Taylor's and ran to the Post office, distributing parts of the team on the way. For a few minutes it looked as though the animal would go through the show window. He did not, however, but went over Arthur Dunham's fence which was broken somewhat.

Photographs for Cuban Teachers

A Committee of the Twentieth Century club of Boston has been appointed to aid in offering courtesies to the many hundreds of Cuban teachers who are to spend two months in our country and who will carry back to every town in Cuba impressions of the character and civilization of the American people. On these impressions largely depends the future attitude of the Cuban people to our nation. It is desirable that they should carrry back with them, not only memories of days crowded with new experiences, but also some visible mementos of their journeys which will bear witness to their pupils and neighbors of the great country that is lending them a helping hand.

To this end the Committee requests the public to send, for it to classify and distribute, mounted photographs or other illustrations of salient features of our life that are little known in Cuba. The photographs should be instructive rather than merely artistic or decorative. Churches, schools factories, libraries, shops, machinery and homes are all good subjects.

Each picture should be mounted on cardboard and should be painly labelled on the back.

Packages will be received until August at the Club rooms, 2 Ashburton place, Boston, Mass. All packages should be labelled "Cuban Teachers," and should be addressed to the Secretary of the Twentieth Century club.

Six Months in Jail.

Henry Webber, the clam peddler, who stole the watch from Mrs. Catherine J. Foley on Whitwell street last week, was released from Deer Island on Friday, and upon his arrival in Boston was arrested on the warrant from Quincy. He was araringned in court this morning and sent to Dedham jail, where for the next six months he will think over his evil ways.

Advertise to be successful.

COST OF SEWER.

Quincy to Pay 5 Per Cent. of Cost and 10 Per Cent. of Maintenance.

More "trouble" for the tax payers. Frederick W. Dallinger, Walter Clifford and Larkin T. Trull, commissioners apponted to apportion the cost of construction, maintenance and operation of the south metropolitan sewerage system among the cities and towns in the system, yesterday submitted their report to the supreme court, and it will be confirmed July 1, if no opposition is made meantime.

The first column gives the per cent. for interest and sinking fund requirements for the five years, 1900-1904, and the second column the per cent. for cost of maintenance and operation.

	Cost.	Maintenance.
Quincy,	4.91	10.06
Waltham,	5.08	10.14
Watertown,	2.66	3.78
Newton,	15.30	13.41
Boston,	42.42	43.30
Brookline,	19.23	7.86
Dedham,	2.13	3 02
Hyde Park,	2.52	5.75
Milton,	5.75	2.68

It will be noticed that Quincy will be called upon to pay over twice as much for maintenance as for the first cost; the cost is evidently based largely on the valuation, while the maintenance may be based upon population. As taxes are generally based on valuation it would seem fairer in this case. Brookline should pay as much, if not more, for the maintenance of sewers than Quincy.

Universalist Grove Meeting.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists met with the Braintree society Thursday. On account of the rain the meeting was held in the town hall instead of the grove close by, as planned.

At 10.30 A. M. Rev. William H. Morrison of the First Universalist church of Brockton opened the session by a praise service. Mrs. Clara B. Beatley, superintendent of the Church of the Disciple [Unitarian] Sunday school of Boston made an address at eleven o'clock on "Sources of success in Sunday school institutions."

This was followed by a discussion, led by Rev. M. S. Nash of Weymouth, president of the association, participated in by Rev. W. H. Morrison and Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Hingham.

Collation was served at 12.30 in the lower hall, when the Braintree Ladies proved themselves able entertainers, after which all returned to the upper hall to a business session, which was called at 1.45 P. M.

At two o'clock Rev. M. C. Ward spoke on "The home department of the Sunday school," followed by Rev. J. F. Thompson of Plymouth. Rev. J. S. Bell of the South Braintree M. E. Church, Dr. F. W. Hamilton of Roxbury, and Rev. M. S. Nash, on the same subject.

Rev. F. W. Hamilton then addressed the association on "The Larger Universalism."

There were present also Rev. L. W. Atwood of South Weymouth and Rev. C. H. Pennoyer of Braintree.

Delegates were present in large numbers from Plymouth, Norwell, Abington, Brockton, Hingham, South Weymouth, North Weymouth, Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy.

The next meeting will be held in Weymouth the second week in October. Credit is due the Braintree ladies for the success of the day.

Train without "Women Folks."

Boston, June 16.—The Massachusetts delegation to the Republican national convention left for Philadelphia this morning, traveling in a palatial special train. There was not a woman on it. For this reason some of the delegates who wanted to take their wives along had to arrange to travel by the regular trains.

Serious Blaze at Lewiston.

Lewiston, Me., June 16.—A fire started in a large barn owned by F. K. Belleau Friday and spread to a building owned by Robert Owen, and the large barns and outbuildings of both places were totally destroyed. One horse, four hogs, 70 hens and carriages and farming utensils were burned. The loss is $5000.

Death of Hannah Leavitt.

South Manchester, Conn., June 16.—Miss Hannah Leavitt, who was stricken with apoplexy about three weeks ago while on the way to the altar in St. James church, to become the wife of John Wrenn, is dead. Miss Leavitt did not regain her strength after the shock.

Egyptian Fanatics Corralled.

Alexandria, June 1.—A new Mahdi recently appeared at Wady-Halfa, preaching and proclaiming that Christ would soon be seen again in the flesh upon earth. He was arrested by the government, together with 45 adherents.

More Dynamite at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 16.—A car on the Baden division of the Transit company's system was wrecked by dynamite last night. The front wheels and motor were shattered and the conductor badly bruised. The car carried no passengers.

FRESH AIR WORK.

Will Quincy Assist to Give Children a Day's Outing.

A conference was held between Mr. B. J. Weeks Superintendent of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company and Mr. William F. Hoehn General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association recently, regarding the Fresh Air Work which is being done by the friends of the children throughout our surburban cities. There are in Boston today crowds of children who live in the tenement districts away from the sights and pleasures which nature affords in such a place as our own beloved city and its immediate vicinity. An article in the Ledger of a day or so ago concerning an outing of the children of a Kindergarten school by Miss Graham was of interest and appeals to all. It was proposed by Mr. Weeks that a sum of money be raised to provide for the entertainment of 100 children among the people of Quincy, and if this was done, the Quincy & Boston Street Railway and the West End Street Railway Company of Boston would each provide two large cars for the carrying of the children free of charge; they would also secure Lovell's grove for the purpose of this outing.

Arrangements of getting together the children in Boston has been satisfactorily solved by Mr. Hoehn. The work being not strictly in line with that of the association, Mr. Hoehn has turned the matter over into the hands of some of the women of Quincy as representing the churches, and will shortly call a meeting in regard to the same. If the appeal in carrying out this work meets with favor by our citizens and they are willing to contribute for this purpose they may do so by sending their contributions to the Ledger office, or Mrs. Grace L. Hoehn, who will act as treasurer for such fund. All subscriptions will be acknowledged in the column of the Ledger.

"The ability to earn an honest living is the first qualification for good citizenship, and therefore the first thing to be aimed at in the training of children. The accumulated wealth of the world, if nothing were added to it, would keep us in existence no more than two or three years at the most. He, therefore, who takes out of the scanty store and, while able to do it, puts nothing in, whether he be king or beggar, is at any rate a thief. Education is not first or chief by the mere learning of certain facts or principles; it is such a development and training of faculty as makes one master of himself and his conditions."

Three-fourths of the pupils in the public schools go up "two stairs at once" from their street and home life, every morning, when they enter the school-houses. Within the past twelve years, I have visited thousands of school rooms, in thirty American States. I have been in a good many "low down" places, but never found myself in a community where the ideal of personal character in the school was not above the average habit of the town. What a power for good is this training of personal character to the thirteen millions of school-children in our beloved land." There is no impediment in the present state of American society to any child, preserved in life and health, becoming a good member of society, and a good citizen." —Dr. Mayo.

The high scchool has been oragnized and is maintained by the people to uplift and strengthen the elementary school to give completeness and symmetry to the processes of education; to open the doors of the technical school to those who wish to become skilled laborers and artisans; to make a college education possible for ambitious boys and girls of slender means; to maintain political equality and an active sympathy among all classes of men; to insure the safety of the state by educating men who have the gift of leadership; to extend far and wide, directly and indirectly, the beneficient results of thorough training and sound learning; and to keep the heart of the nations' life pure by inculating on the minds of young men and women such principles of philosophy and ethics as are found in the teachings of Him who said: "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." —E. J. Goodwin.

We have failed in arranging our educational courses to recognize one of the most vital factors in any civilized society, namely: Vocation. As the home is the unit and the very soul of our social order, as everything that is best and most effective—forming habits and opinions and establishing character—centres there, and as it is the birthplace and seat of those pure affections, and high aspirations that sweeten and ennoble our mortal life, so it must be conceded voccation is its chief cornerstone. Vocation is labor dedicated to the highest purposes, to wit: the cherishing of the family and the home. The honest farmer or mechanic of the present day, the fruits of whose labor minister to the support of a well-ordered home and insure happiness to wife and children, is no less worthy of respect than Plato, Michael Angelo or Edison. As vocation is the chief support of the home and tends to develop individual character and manhood, so it clearly underlies the welfare, and prosperity of the nation. Considering, then, the great importance of vocation in determining the quality of manhood and citizenship, the question, "What ought education to do in this connection?" is certainly a pressing one. It becomes especially so when we consider the social and industrial changes during the past fifty years. Social changes have brought the bulk of our population into cities, where every idle and shiftless member of the community is a menacee to the public peace and welfare.

—S. T. Dutton.

BRAINTREE.

Mr. Crathern is in Mason, N. H., for a few days' vacation. Owing to the kind offers of assistance which came from far and near, the work of the parish will be ably conducted in his absence.

The Moses Dyer farm on Pond street, South Braintree, was sold at public auction Tuesday afternoon by auctioneer Crane of Quincy. C. S. Hannaford's bid of $1400 was accepted.

The employes of D. B. Closson & Co's shoe factory have organized a ball team with Frank W. Jackson as manager. They wish to secure dates with other shoe shop nines. The Williams, Kneeland & Co's preferred.

By the breaking of the tandem owned by John Goodnow and Harry Burrell those two riders were badly used up Monday evening. Burrell received a bad fall, his right arm was dislocated and both arms were badly scratched. Mr. Goodnow escaped with a sprained wrist.

There is great interest being created in the 100 yard dash to take place Saturday, June 23, near the town hall. "Bob" Gardner of South Braintree and "Tom" Greenough of Braintree are the contestants. Both men are training hard, each one expecting to win the purse of fifty dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace P. Mercer of Lisle street welcomed a little daughter Wednesday morning.

John Gagin of Commercial street injured his ankle quite severely with a steel rod while at work at Quincy Point on Thursday

Henry J. Lampe at one time a great favorite base ball player, but now a police officer in Boston, was badly injured while stopping a runaway horse in that city Tuesday.

Mrs. Hannah Sherman Bauer of Lynn, formerly a teacher in Alfred University, N. Y., is visiting her niece, Mrs. Sidney Sherman of Union street. Mrs. Bauer is seventy years of age but is as spry as a school girl. She has traveled a great deal, has broad ideas and is very interesting in her conversation.

Children's day will be observed at he Methodist church on Sunday. In the morning sermon to the children. In the evening a concert will be given by members of the Sunday School. The Miller Chapter of the Epworth league last Sunday evening made a generous contribution to the Frederick N. Upham Organ Memorial fund.

Rev. C. H. Pennoyer will preach in Cochato hall Sunday afternoon at 5.15 on "The authority, motive and fellowship in the religion of the coming age."

Mrs. Eliza D. Leavitt died at her home last night, leaving to mourn their loss two sons George and Alvin; and two daughters, Mrs. Jane McGoon and Mrs. Williamson. The funeral will be held tomorrow at two o'clock.

The fond mother dreams great dreams of baby's future as she holds the sleeping little one in her arms. But the dreams will never come true unless she has given him a strong body and a healthy mind. Children die in hosts, or live to struggle through life feeble of body and dull of mind because the mother was unfit physically and mentally for motherhood. Women who use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription endow their children with strong bodies and bright minds. It is every mother's duty to give her child the advantages of a healthy body and mind. A weak or sickly woman cannot do this. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Mrs. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I now am. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 11 pounds, and I was only sick a short time, and since I got up have not had one sick day. I have not had any womb trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all of my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

A FRAGMENT.

Sweet as the dewfall, splendid as the south,
Love touched with speech Boccaccio's golden mouth;
Joy thrilled and filled its utterance full with song,
And sorrow smiled on doom that wrought no wrong.
A starrier luster of lordlier music rose
Beyond the sundering bar of seas and snows
When Chaucer's thought took life and light from his,
And England's crown was one with Italy's.
Loftiest and last, by grace of Shakespeare's word,
Arose above their quiring spheres a third,
Arose and flashed and faltered, song's deep sky
Saw Shakespeare pass in light, in music die.
No light like his, no music, man might give
To bid the darkened sphere, left songless, live.
—Algernon Charles Swinburne.

A CLEVER MAKE UP.

Story of a Fancy Dress Ball.

Henry Apps of Hoxton completed the fixing of the wires on the lawn of Hasleigh court. He looked up at the dim light in the dressing room and chuckled softly as he bent the last yard of wire.

"A trip in time," says Mr. Apps, "saves nine."

He threw the rope ladder gently in the air, and at the first effort it caught the projecting nail.

"Once on board the lugger," quoted Mr. Apps facetiously, as he mounted the rope ladder, "and the girl is mine."

He opened the window very gently and soon stood inside the dressing room. Near the table in the corner of the room was an iron safe.

"Well, I'm jiggered!" exclaimed Mr. Apps. He loosened the flaps of his fur cap and mopped his brow with the back of his hand. "Well, I'm jiggered! If they 'aven't been and left the key in it for me. I might have saved myself a lot of trouble if I'd a known."

Mr. Apps swung open the heavy door of the safe and listened to the music down stairs. Young Lady Staplehurst was giving, as Mr. Apps very well knew, a dance, a fancy dress dance, on her return from the continent after her term of widowhood.

"I'll just see first of all," he said, "that the coast is absolutely clear, and then—then for a bagful."

Henry Apps stepped out into the broad passage. He slouched, with his jimmy sticking out of his capacious side pocket, a few steps toward the stairs. Suddenly a girlish figure turned the corner.

"Bless my 'art!" cried Mr. Apps.

"Why, how do you do?" said the young lady, stepping forward. She gave a soft laugh that was very pleasant. "This is really delightful. Do you know, I recognized you in spite of the costume?"

She held the hand of Mr. Apps for a moment, causing that gentleman to gasp for breath, and called one of the maids.

"Just bring me a pencil and a card," she said, "I must arrange for a carriage to take Captain Norman back to his hotel in the morning. I wasn't sure that he would come."

"I can walk," remarked Mr. Apps, with restored self possession.

"I won't hear of it. When shall we say, now?"

"Say in an hour's time," said Mr. Apps. "I can go up stairs again alone, change my togs and do all I want to."

"And can't you stay longer?"

She gave the card to the maid and ordered it to be dispatched at once.

"I've got a busy night before me," urged Mr. Apps excusingly. He thought of his dog waiting on the lawn and feared it might give an inopportune bark. Besides, the safe was still open, and the diamonds were waiting for him. He had noticed with satisfaction that Lady Staplehurst was wearing none.

"You were always an active man, captain."

"Always a-doing something," agreed Mr. Apps. "If it isn't one thing, it's another." He shook his head reflectively. "I often wonder I don't write a book about it all."

"I don't believe you will know anybody here, Captain Norman," she said, as they walked down stairs, "but I couldn't help sending you a card, seeing how friendly we were on the Peshawur. Do you remember those evenings on deck in the Red sea?"

She was really a very fine young woman, and in her costume she looked extremely well.

"Do I not?" said Mr. Apps, with much fervor. "Shall I ever forget 'em?"

"And then the journey from Brindisi, you know, and that funny little German—you remember him?"

"He was a knockout, that German was."

"And the girl who played the banjo, and"—

"It was great," agreed Mr. Apps—"great."

The large ballroom was very full. A small covey of brightly dressed young people flew toward the young hostess to complain of her temporary absence from the room, and a broad shouldered gondolier shook hands with her and took up her card with something of an air of proprietorship.

"I thought I had left the key in the—excuse me." The young hostess took back her card from the gondolier. "I am engaged to Captain Norman. You don't know him? Allow me."

"Pleased to meet you," said Henry Apps. "'Ow's the world using you?"

"That's an original costume of yours, Captain Norman," remarked the gondolier. "I don't know that I've ever seen anything so daringly neat before."

"Well, wot of it?" demanded Mr. Apps, with sudden aggressiveness. "Wot's the odds to you wot I like to wear? You needn't think you're"—

"Captain Norman," interposed the young hostess laughingly, "you must not overdo the part. Look here, I've put your name down for this waltz, but if you like we'll sit it out—that is, if you promise to keep up that diverting east end talk. I like it. Do you think you can manage to do so?"

"Rather," said Apps.

"And it is a capital make up, Captain Norman," she went on. "Do you know that at first, just for one moment, I thought you were a real burglar."

"Fancy that now!" said Apps. He was relieved at seeing an obvious way out of his difficulty. "There's nothing like doing the thing in a proper, strite-forward w'y."

"And," said Lady Staplehurst, with her fan on his arm as they walked across the room, "you have got the east end accent capitally."

"'Tain't so dusty, is it?"

She beckoned to the gondolier.

"Captain Norman and I are great friends," she said in an explanatory way. "He has not been long home from abroad, and he knows scarcely any one."

"Not a blessed soul," echoed Mr. Apps.

"Isn't it capital?" asked Lady Staplehurst of the gondolier delightedly. "How much more interesting it would be if every one would only talk to me in their character!"

"Well, blow me," said Lady Staplehurst, screwing her pretty mouth in her effort to imitate the cockney's accent—"blow me if this ain't a fair take—I mean like dah!" she laughed. "It's no use, Captain Norman, I can't talk as you can."

"It's a gift," said Mr. Apps. "That's what it is."

"You don't want to be introduced to anybody here, I suppose?"

"Not me."

"You have heard of"—

She pointed in the direction of the gondolier.

"All I want to."

"He's really making a big name in the house, you know. I watch his career with great interest."

"Thinks a jolly lot of himself."

"Oh, I think a lot of him, too," remarked Lady Staplehurst pleasantly. "And is that a jimmy sticking out of your jacket pocket? This is indeed realism. You don't know how it works, I suppose?"

"Well, I've got a kind of hidea," said Mr. Apps. "Look 'ere. You put this end in, and"—

Mr. Apps found himself getting quite excited in the explanations that he gave. It was a new sensation to meet one who showed an intelligent interest in his profession, and he could not help feeling flattered. Looking up, he saw the gondolier gazing at him.

"He don't look 'appy, that chap," said Mr. Apps.

"Will you excuse me for one moment?"

"Wot are you going up to?" he said apprehensively.

"I want to speak to him."

"Oh," with relief, "I don't mind that!"

While Lady Staplehurst was making the gondolier resume his ordinary expression Mr. Apps thought and thought. The couple promenading after the waltz looked curiously at him.

"You are in the worst fix you were ever in, 'Enery," said Mr. Apps. "You're 'aving 'em on toast, you are, but you'll be glad to get up stairs agen. You want them diamonds, that's what you want. Time means money to you, 'Enery."

Lady Staplehurst hurried toward the doorway. A murmur of amazement went through the room as the guests saw a new arrival in the costume of a police constable accompanied by a man in plain clothes. Mr. Apps, thinking over his exploits, gazing abstractedly at his boots, regretting their want of polish, did not see them until the plain clothes man tapped him on the shoulder.

"What, Apps again!" exclaimed the man.

"Yus," said the burglar discontentedly. "Yus, it is Apps agine, Mr. Walker. And vurry glad you are to see him, I've no daht."

"Always a pleasure to meet a gentleman like you," said Mr. Walker cheerfully, as he conducted him to the doorway. "I've wanted to run up against you before."

Much commotion in the ballroom at the diverting little scene. General agreement that Lady Staplehurst was a perfect genius at entertaining.

"But, loveliest," said the gondolier confidently to Lady Staplehurst, "isn't this carrying a joke rather too far? That's a real detective."

"I know," said the loveliest girl, trembling now a little. "That's a real burglar too."

"A real"—

"Yes, yes. Don't make a fuss. I don't want the dance spoiled. Take me down to supper, like a good fellow."—Columbian.

A Skater's Daring.

Few feats of skating have ever excelled the exploit of one of Napoleon's officers performed shortly after the fight at Jena in 1806. The emperor dispatched an officer to Marshal Mortier requiring him to seize certain important towns without delay. When the officer arrived at the mouth of the Elbe, where the river is 7½ miles wide, he was threatened with serious loss of time. The river was just covered with ice, therefore to row over was out of the question. He could not cross by the nearest bridge without going 20 miles out of his way on roads heavy with snow, and he grudged the time that would thus be wasted. So he resolved to skate across the thin, freshly formed ice. Had he tried walking he would have sunk at once, but by skimming along on his skates at the top of his speed he got over the river both dry and unharmed. By this daring if dangerous deed he saved six hours, did what Napoleon bade him do and won great credit for his bold and clever exploit.

Castle Square Theatre.

The immediate and pronounced favor with which the Castle Square theatre production of "The Village Postmaster" was received last week fully warrants the announced continuance of this attraction throughout the coming week and the great advance sale makes another series of immense audiences an assured certainty. The picturesque drama of New England life forty years ago afford a fascinating study of the types of character and events associated with the smaller communities of New Hampshire before the civil war, and all these are faithfully and realistically presented in the Castle Square production. The scene of the parade on "training day," with its sudden shower of real wet rain, the laughable incidents of the annual donation party, the thrilling episode of the threshing operation and the typical scene of harmony in the village church all add their full share in the notable attractions of the play and supplement the efforts of the players most happily. The usual distribution of choice chocolate bon bons will be made at the Monday matinee.

—The statement by some correspondents that the Paris Exposition is a good deal of a humbug, will be soothing to very many of us who don't intend going to it, anyway.

THE NERVES OF WOMEN
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Suffering from Overwrought Nerves.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful for the benefit derived from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I wish you to publish this testimonial that others may know the value of your medicine. I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all and was too weak to walk across the floor without aid. The disease had reached a condition where my heart was affected by it, so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."—MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Thin, Sallow and Nervous

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was thin, sallow and nervous. I had not had my menses for over a year and a half. Doctored with several physicians in town and one specialist, but did not get any better. I finally decided to try your medicine, and wrote to you. After I had taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three of Blood Purifier, my menses returned, and I feel as well and strong as I ever did, and am gaining flesh."—MISS LENA GAINES, Visalia, Tulare Co., Cal.

Madame Yale's
HAIR TONIC
Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.
All Dealers sell it, $1 per bottle. Mail orders may be sent direct to the manufacturer,

THE WAR HAS BEGUN.

International Fleet Fired Upon by Edict of Empress Dowager of China.

Battle Begun by Taku Forts, Which Were Captured.

Thirty-Two Warships Said to Have Taken Part In the Engagement.

London, June 19.—China bid defiance to the powers of the world when the Taku forts opened fire upon the international fleet.

The accounts of what took place are still unsatisfactory, the best semi-official information being the dispatch received at Berlin from Chee Foo, which announced that the Taku forts had been captured after a combined attack by the foreign warships. Three men on the German warship Iltis were killed and seven were wounded. The dispatch added that the foreign settlements at Tien Tsin were being fired into by the Chinese. When the dispatch left nothing had been heard from the German detachment sent to Pekin or from the German legation there.

The unofficial narratives, coming by way of Shanghai, vary widely and bear internal evidence of supplementing the main facts with guess work. One dispatch says that the Yorktown participated in the bombardment. Another asserts that American marines formed part of the storming party of 2000.

An Associated Press dispatch from Chee Foo, dated yesterday afternoon, says: The forts on both sides of the Taku are now occupied. The Chinese opened fire unexpectedly. The casualties to the mixed forces were as follows: Killed—British, 1; German, 3; Russian, 16; French, 1; wounded—British, 4; German, 7; Russian, 45, and French, 1. The Chinese torpedo boats were seized.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday, says: "The forts began firing in obedience to orders from Pekin, conveyed in a personal edict of the empress dowager, by advice of Kang Yi, president of the ministry of war. Several warships were struck by shells from the 12-inch guns of the forts. The heavy Russian losses were due to the blowing up of the magazine at Mandshur. Four hundred Chinese are reported to have been killed. The Chinese, when retreating, fell into the hands of the Russian land force."

The Daily News has the following from Chee Foo: "Two of the forts were blown up. The 32 warships at Taku aggregated 200,000 tons and carried more than 300 guns."

The failure of Admiral Seymour's column and its retreat to Tien Tsin increases, it is presumed, the peril of the legations in Pekin.

The situation at Niu Chwang is reported critical. The British consul at Kiu Kiang has ordered all foreigners to leave Ku Ling and Nau King Chang.

The powers are taking prompt action. Four thousand German trops have been ordered to China; 10,000 French troops are waiting to embark at Saigon, capital of French Cochin-China, and from 3000 to 5000 more Russians have been ordered from Port Arthur to Taku.

The news of the shelling of the forts at Taku has created great excitement throughout Japan. It is reported that the powers will ask Japan to send 2000 troops to suppress the revolt. It is probable that the government will consent. Additional transports are being prepared.

Taku is situated at the mouth of the Pei Ho, southern bank of the river, about 67 miles from Tien Tsin, with which it is connected by a railroad. It is noted for the three engagements that have taken place there between the British and the Chinese.

Part of the Tien Tsin army corps has modern organization and arms and is stationed at the Taku forts. Between Taku and Tien Tsin, the center of the defences and chief arsenal of northern China, are permanent camps, where there are usually 30,000 troops, infantry, cavalry and artillery, armed with Mauser rifles and Krupp guns.

The cavalry also carry Mauser carbines. These troops have been well instructed for 10 or 12 years by foreign officers. The armament of the Taku forts consists of very heavy Krupp guns, and the approaches to the forts from the Gulf of Pechli are extremely difficult.

The fortifications consist of three forts; a large one on the right bank and two smaller ones on the left. All the forts are armed with numerous guns of the most varied systems and calibers.

In the construction of all forts of the second zone the muddy clay soil of the coast was used, which, during the dry season, becomes cracked and crumbles very easily, and the garrison is continually making repairs. In Taku are the materials for closing up the mouth of the Pei Ho. All the coast fortifications have mines.

The Convention Opened Today With Address by Senator Wolcott of Colorado.

Dolliver Now the Most Dangerous Rival of Secretary Long for the Nomination.

Philadelphia, June 19.—Fourty-four years ago today General John C. Fremont was nominated by the first Republican convention, held at Musical Fund hall, on Locust street, in this city.

The national Republican convention assembled today in the great export exposition building in West Philadelphia. Here, amid the swelling memories of half a century, and in the presence of men who saw the blood-stained clouds lie across the sunrise of the party, the Republicans met in the high tide of their glory to name their national candidates and enunciate the platform for the coming campaign.

SENATOR EDWARD O. WOLCOTT.
Temporary chairman of the Republican national convention.

The preliminary routine business was quickly disposed of, and Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado, temporary chairman of the convention, made the opening address, saying, in part:

Since the first party convention in these United States, there was never one gathered together under such hopeful and auspicious circumstances as those which surround us today. United, proud of the achievements of the past four years, our country prosperous and happy, with nothing to regret and naught to make us ashamed, with a record spotless and clean, the Republican party stands facing the dawn, confident that the ticket it shall present will command public approval, and that in the declarations of its principles and its purposes, it will voice the aspirations and hopes of the vast majority of American freemen.

We need "no omen but our country's cause;" yet there is significance in the fact that the convention is assembled in this historic and beautiful city, where we first assumed territorial responsibilities, when our fathers, a century and a quarter ago, promulgated the immortal Declaration of Independence.

The first and pleasant duty of this great convention, as well as its instinctive impulse, is to send a message of affectionate greeting to William McKinley. In all that pertains to our welfare in times of peace, his genius has directed us. He has shown an unerring mastery of the economic problems which confront us, and has guided us out of the slough of financial disaster, impaired credit and commerical stagnation, up to the high and safe ground of national prosperity and financial stability. Through the delicate and trying events of the late war he stood firm, courageous and conservative, and under his leadership we have emerged triumphant, our national honor untarnished, our credit unassailed, and the equal devotion of every section of our common country to the welfare of the Republic cemented forever.

Mr. Wolcott here paid tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Hobart, and, continuing, said:

When Mr. McKinley became president he took the reins of government after four years of Democratic administration. No summary of the unmerciful disasters of those four years can convey an idea of a tithe of the ruin they wrought.

In the four years preceding Mr. Cleveland's administration we had paid $260,000,000 of the national debt; he added $230,000,000 to its burdens. He found a tariff act, bearing the name of his successor and our president, fitted to meet the requirements of our necessary expenditures, to furnish the needed protection to our farmers and manufacturers, and to insure the steady and remunerative employment of those who labor. Instead of permitting manufacture and commerce that repose and stability of law which are essential for working out economic conditions, he at once recommended violent and radical changes in revenue and tariff provisions, recommendations which his party in congress proceeded partially and disastrously to execute. The appalling result of his policy is still fresh in the memory of millions who suffered from it.

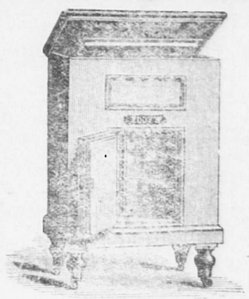

Facing these difficulties, the president immediately upon his inauguration convened congress in extra session, and summarized the legislation essential to our national prosperity. The industrial history of the United States for the past four years is the tribute to the wisdom of his judgment. Under the wise provisions of our tariff laws and the encouragement afforded to capital by a renewal of public confidence, trade commenced to revive. The looms were no longer silent and the mills deserted; railway earnings increased, merchants and banks resumed business, labor found employment at fair wages, our exports increased, and the sunshine of hope again illuminated the land. There isn't an idle mill in the country today. The mortgages on western farms have been paid by the tens of thousands, and our farmers are contented and prosperous. Our exports have reached enormous figures. Our manufactured articles are finding a market all over the world and in constantly increasing volume. We are rapidly taking our place as one of the great creditor nations of the world. Above and beyond all, there is no man who labors with his hands, in all our broad domain, who cannot find work, and the scale of wages was never in our history as high as now.

Mr. Wolcott here briefly referred to other legislation of the past four years which had proved beneficial to the country. Coming to the question of trusts he said that aggregations and combinations of capital find their only encouragement in prosperous days and widening commerce. Democratic administration in this country has universally meant industrial stagnation and commercial depression, when capital seeks a hiding place instead of investment. The Republican party has always maintained that any combination having for its purpose the cornering of a market or raising or controlling the price of the necessaries of life was unlawful and should be punished. We shall meet it in some efficient way, and, as a party, shall have the courage to protect every class of our citizens.

The campaign four years ago was fought on the currency question. The Populistic Democracy insisted that the United States alone should embark on the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting the concurrence of any other nation. The Republican party insisted that the question of bimetallism was international, and that until it should be settled under agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, gold should continue

Good Afternoon.

There is general regret that there is any probability that Supt. Lull may go to another city. He has successfully maintained the high reputation of the Quincy schools, and has the respect and friendship of pupils, teachers, school committee and taxpayers.

If the Quincy city government is to make any opposition to the apportionment of the cost and maintenance of the Metropolitan high level sewer for five years, it must be done at the meeting of the City Council tonight, the last regular meeting this month. The apportionment will be confirmed July 1 if no remonstrance is offered. Possibly the work of the commission is as satisfactory as Quincy can reasonably expect, but there is considerable to be considered and we should not jump at conclusions. The impression of several is that the percentage for operation and maintenance is too heavy upon Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It was a New York man who had often asked in vain a pretty widow to marry him, and who renewed his request when the doctors said he was on his death bed. She, the tender-hearted creature, yielded. They were married—and he did not die. The meanness of some men is way beyond comprehension.—Lynn News.

☞ A Washington man has invented a machine for sawing wood, the motive power for which is supplied after the manner of running a bicycle. What a fine substitute for the wheel this will prove for the farmer's boy who has been coaxing his father to give him a chance to exercise properly on a bike. —Waterville Mail.

☞ Interest in collegiate aquatics turns, as it has turned in other years to the Thames river in the land of wooden nutmegs, where Harvard and Yale are to battle for supremacy with the oar. These athletic contests are pleasing incidents in college life, and afford a relaxation from the confining work of the class room. They likewise show the developement of the body is no less important than that of the mind.—Brockton Times.

☞ It is to be hoped that the Cuban teachers who are coming for guidance among us will be directed in the way that will be most helpful to them in their special task. What they need is the ability to teach is the best possible manner the things usually called simple, but which are in reality as difficult, if well taught, as the "higher" studies, and of greater value. Since for some time to come the schooling in Cuba must be of the primary branches, it is peculiarly necessary that these shall be treated with all the skill and intelligence that can be brought to bear on them. Our Cuban guests will find that in our own system the kind of work they will be confined to is regarded with much less respect than it deserves when done in the best way, and they will discover in the great body of our teachers an ambition to get out of it and into the sorts that are more highly esteemed and better paid. It would be a good thing for them and for their people if they could be inspired with the idea that their work is worthy of all honor, and if our Government would establish the true plan of paying it accordingly. —New York Times.

HOLIDAY YACHT RACING.

Races on Saturday and Monday Under Auspices of the Quincy Yacht Club.

The Hanley Won Leg for Algonquin Club---Omeme Defeats Cleopatra.

The Handicap Races of Monday Won by the Hustler, the Tautog and the Omeme.

One of the snappiest races, which has ever been sailed under the auspices of the Quincy yacht club, was the one given for the H. O. class and other 25-footers for the first leg in the Algonquin cup and cash prizes and incidentally for the Omeme and Cleopatra.

At the time of the start, 2.20 P. M.; the wind was due west, a good wholesail breeze prevailing, with occasional flaws.

The big triangle was used. As one leg of it was to be windward work, if possible, the boats were started for Peddock's bouy doing the windward work on the last leg from Red Spar No. 2 in Hingham channel to the club house. Distance, 12 knots, twice around. The Omeme and Cleopatra sailed over the 7 knot triangle.

At the start the Hanley held close to the judges float and got the weather position and a slight advantage in crossing the line. The Al Kyris, however, hung on to the flag float, and, in doing so showed excellent judgment, as she kept well out from under the lee of Great Hill and had more wind and was soon leading the class. Balloners were sprung on all of the boats on the run to Peddocks. The All Kyris still led and was followed around the buoy by the Hanley, Empress, Little Peter, Eleanor and Early Dawn. She held this lead until the Hingham channel buoy was rounded, when the Hanley under the celebrated Joe Turner's handling slowly forged ahead and held that position until the finish. The race was undoubtedly won by the Hanley through Turner's skilful windward work.

This is the first race which the H. O. boats have been pitted against each other as well as against the regular Y. R. A. 25-footers.

In the 21 foot class the Omeme and Cleopatra sailed, over the seven knot triangle. This race does not count for the silver cup which these two boats with the Autocrat are to race for.

The Hanley gets 100 per cent. for the cup, the All Kyris 60 per cent. and the Little Peter 30 per cent. while cash prizes of $20, $15 and $10 go to the boats in the same order.

The judges of the race were Commodore E. E. Davis, Vice Commodore J. S. Whiting, W. C. Harrison, J. L. Whiton, Jr., and Frank White.

The next race for the 25-footers will be on the afternoon of July 4th, at 3 o'clock.

The first handicap race under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club was held Monday off the club house at Houghs Neck.

Class A had ten starters. The Beatrice which has shown the fleet her heels many times in the past led the fleet for the first time around but after rounding Sheep Island buoy on the run home she was distanced and came in fifth on corrected time.

In Class B, Lincoln's Taupog proved herself to be the fastest boat and won first place. The honors in the special class were captured by W. P. Barker's, Omeme, and it was nip and tuck for the Cleopatra and Autocrat.

WOLLASTON HANDICAP.

The first of a series of the handicap club races scheduled by the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Monday over course No. 2 four miles and repeat.

The preparatory gun was given at 2.10, followed five minutes later by the starting gun. The Thelma II, Vice Commodore A. E. Merrill at the wheel, held the best position in the manoeuver and crossed the line thirty seconds later, followed by the West Wind, "Toney" Chase handling the tiller, eight seconds in his wake. The Ziska took one minute and thirty seconds to do the trick while the Edna and Sea Gull by some misunderstanding were late in starting, thus losing the interest of being among the leaders. When they started all had from one to two reefs, but soon shook them out and ran under full sail as the strong easterly which prevailed early in the game suddenly came down to a good whole sail breeze.

The Thelma II made the triangle in forty-nine minutes and thirty seconds, followed by the West Wind seven minutes and thirty-seven seconds later. The Ziska was a good third with the Edna and Sea Gull crowding hard.

On the second leg the little West Wind jammed hard and gained one minute and fifty-three seconds on the Thelma II, finishing second in the race; the Ziska coming in third.

There was considerable local interest in the race, which was witnessed by a large gathering on the shore at the foot of Beach street.

The judges Messrs. A. T. Barstow, C. W. Page, Edgar W. James, H. E. Nelson and E. G. Jones, were comfortably quartered on the Yacht Neried, though the courtesy of Messrs. A. W. Lundholm and H. O. Fletcher.

The summary follows:

Squantum Open Race.

An open race under the auspices of the Squantum Yacht club will be sailed on Saturday, June 30, a start to be made at 1 o'clock. There will be classes for 25-footers, 21-footers and 21-foot cabin, 18-footers and 15-footers.

There will also be a special open handicap for boats under 30 feet. The race will be under the rules of the Massachusetts Y. R. A.

There will be prizes offered of $12 and $8 for the 25-footers, $10 and $5 for the next three classes, and $5 and $3 for the 15-footers. Three prizes of $12, $8 and $5 will be given in the handicap class.

The other fixtures arranged for the season are the races for the second Burkhart cup, and on Aug. 18 there will be a race for the third Burkhart cup.

Quincy A. A. Won.

Heavy hitting and many errors characterized the ball game at the park Monday morning between the Quincy A. A. and the Y. M. C. A. nines. With one exception every man on both sides made one or more safe hits, and several were two baggers.

City Band Picnic.

The City Band held its first grand picnic of the season on Monday at Merrymount Park. The outing was largely attended and a grand good time was enjoyed. Shortly after noon the band marched from Quincy Adams to the park. Concerts were given by the band during the afternoon and in the evening there was a display of fire works. During the afternoon there was a series of sports which resulted as follows:

100 yard dash,—won by T. Murphy; second, E. Elkson.

Hop, step and jump,—won by W. Elkson; second, J. Currier.

Putting shot,—won by John Casey; second, G. Maver.

Half mile run,—won by W. Smith; second, S. Talbot.

Girl's race,—won by Olive Smith; second, Annie Smith.

Woman's race,—won by Mrs. Russell; second, Mrs. Marr.

Boy's race,—won by W. Meerkins; second, F. Robertson.

No admission was charged to the park, but quite a revenue was obtained from the sale of tonics and refreshments.

Third Hill Standpipe.

The erection of the great storage reservoir and stand pipe on Third Hill, Wollaston, will be commenced early in July. The time for filing the bids closes on the 26th of this month. The Metropolitan Water Board's engineers staked out the location of the proposed reservoir early in the month. During the past fortnight the location has been carefully inspected by prospective bidders. The tower, which will be of iron encased in granite, will resemble the keep of some medevial castle. It will be surmounted by formidable ramparts. The top will be available for observation purposes. The tower will be 90 feet high and 40 feet in diameter.

The reservoir, which will be located at the south of the tower will have a storage capacity of 5,000,000 gallons.

Brockton Pleased.

The choir festival at Brockton on Sunday in which Quincy and Wollaston assisted St. Paul's church was a marked success. Christ church contributed 40 voices and St. Chrysostom's 26 which with St. Paul's made over 100 singers. The Enterprise says, "All of the numbers were rendered with excellent effect and the unity of the voices was especially good. It would be a difficult matter to select any special numbers for commendation, as equal excellence was shown in all. The pure young voices were heard to the best possible advantage, and their work reflects great credit upon their drill master."

Council Business.

But little business is on the docket for tonight's meeting of the City Council, although new and important business may come up. In the calendar are orders granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for seventeen poles on Howard street and the Massachusetts Telephone Co. a location for five poles on Billings street. The Committee on Finance will probably report on the Wollaston Hose house, and the Committee on Ordinances on the widening of Copeland street.

Found in Boston.

The 4-year-old son of John O'Brien of Hillside street went to the Park, Monday afternoon, to attend the picnic. When night came on and the little fellow did not return his parents became alarmed and notified the police. A search for the boy was kept up all night without result. He was found during the night by the police of Station 11, Boston, and returned to his parents this morning.

City Council this evening.

The exercises in speaking for the Adams gold medal and other prizes will be held in the Stone temple Monday, June 25, at 11 A. M.

An automobile from Boston gave out on Washington street, Monday afternoon and it was necessary to send to Boston for the hospital machine to tow it home.

A special car on the Quincy & Boston street railway Sunday, bound for Brockton became derailed at Franklin and Water streets, and was delayed about half an hour.

At Houghton pond, Milton, on Sunday, Vainos Ward of Hyde Park, while attempting to swim across, was seized with cramp, and sank twice. He was rescued by Officer O'Connor.

Through cars on the Nantasket line from Neponset were put on Sunday and half hour trips will be run daily and Sunday. The cars leave City Square at 20 minutes past and 10 minutes of the hour on Sundays, and 10 minutes past and 20 minutes of the hour on week days.

Dr. George B. Pierce of Milton, the alternate from this district to the Republican convention, is taking a prominent part in the preliminary work. In the assignment of the Massachusetts delegation he is one of the committee to see the Colorado delegates.

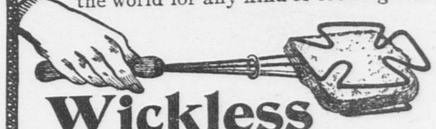

Mrs. Annie A. Peet (formerly Miss Annie A. Bass) and her sister Mrs. Beach and son from Chicago are guests at The Greenleaf. Mrs. Peet is niece of Miss Ann Bass, who lived so long in the house opposite the Public Library, and she has made an almost annual visit to Quincy for about thirty years.

The first band concert of the season was given in City Square Saturday evening and was listened to by a large crowd, who thoroughly appreciated the music. There are some people however who think these concerts of no benefit to the public. The mere fact that they always attract a large crowd would seem to indicate that the people who do not appreciate the concert are in a hopeless minority.

Some visitors at the cairn upon Penns Hill were telling the story about John Quincy Adams and his mother who saw the smoke from Bunker Hill upon the day whose anniversary is with us. A mistake was made in the age of the boy who was to be our chief magistrate when some little girls, who had quietly joined the party, modestly corrected the speaker and told the whole story glibly. "You can go down there and see their birth places" said one. These children were from the Adams school.

DELEGATE SHAW.

Important Work Devolves on Him at Republican Convention.

Hon. John Shaw of this city, one of the delegates from the Tenth Mass. district to the Republican National Convention, has been assigned two important duties. A dispatch to the Herald says: At the Massachusetts delegation meeting Sunday, a committee was appointed, consisting of ex-Congressman Francis W. Rockwell, M. J. Murray and John Shaw, to interview Secretary Long by telephone with a view to ascertain his exact position relative to the presentation of his name to the convention.

Again, when the Massachusetts men were assigned to work among the other States, Mr. Shaw was placed with Senator Lodge and C. A. Cook to see the New York delegates. As this is the pivotal state, the most diplomacy is needed.

In another Sunday dispatch we read: This evening the streets are thronged with sightseers, out to get a peep at the notables. Some very funny mistakes were made in the identity of not a few of the delegates. A colored man, evidently out airing his knowledge of politicians to his best girl, was passing the Massachusetts headquarters. Suddenly he said: "Look, that is Chauncey Depew." The writer looked, as well as the girl. The man on the steps was John Shaw of Quincy, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 10th district. Where the resemblance between the New York senator and Mr. Shaw came in the writer could not see, but the girl evidently was impressed with her escort's knowledge of politicians.

A Herald correspondent tells this story of Delegate Shaw:

A big crowd had gathered in front of the Hotel Stenton, where the Massachusetts men are stopping, to welcome the Colorado delegation, which was to put up at the same hostelry. Morton Cobb of Newton, who, by the way, has made himself indispensable whenever a demand is made for cheering, was leading the crowd in cheers for Colorado, Massachusetts and John D. Long.

Mr. Shaw is possessed of a vigorous pair of lungs, and he was feeling as enthusiastic as any of the younger men. In fact, he was so overcome by the excitement of the moment that he raised his arms as well as his voice, and waved both hands aloft. While in this attitude a member of the light-fingered gentry, who couldn't resist the temptation thus afforded quickly responded, and attempted to relieve the deleagte from Quincy of the contents of his waistcoat pockets. Mr. Shaw will not confess to having been mulcted of more than $4.

Firemen's Playout.

The playout at Highland park, Saturday, resulted in the Hancock of Brockton capturing the first prize of $100, distance 173 feet, 2 1-4 inches, the Butcher Boy of South Braintree, the second of $50; distance 171 feet, 2 1-4 inches. The Alabama Coon of Randolph the third of $25; distance 170 feet, 5 3-8 inches, while the Union of Braintree was last with 154 feet, 4 1-2 inches.

New Cat Boat.

Dr. H. A. Jones and Walter Ellis have bought a large cat boat of Mr. H. H. Sears of East Dennis. She measures 25 feet 6 inches on the water line and weighs about seven tons.

Dr. Jones, Ralph and Ellsworth Arnold, C. Frank White and Mr. Perry went to the cape last June 9, and in company with H. H. Sears, Dr. Hart and Samuel Chapman of East Dennis sailed her to East Braintree.

The party left East Dennis at nine o'clock that night, with a strong wind blowing from the north-west which increased in force, making reefing necessary. Soon the sea was so rough the boom buckled and broke about three feet from the mast. Wellfleet harbor was reached in safety where the boom was spliced and the remainder of the voyage was without incident except for a calm off Scituate. They arrived in Braintree Sunday evening.

A. O. H. CONVENTION.

Daniel J. Reidy of East Weymouth Elected President.

The Norfolk County Divisions, A. O. H., held their biennial convention, Sunday, at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy. The convention was very largely attended. Every section was represented and when the credential committee reported, their report showed 106 of the 111 delegates present, representing 22 divisions.

President O'Dowd presided, and the first business was the election of officers. The office of County President entitles the incumbent to a trip to the next National convention in Detroit, and there was quite a contest for this office. There were three candidates, but the third man withdrew after the second ballot, leaving the contest between William J. Sullivan of Norwood and Daniel J. Reidy of East Weymouth. Mr. Reidy was elected on the third ballot, receiving 53, while Mr. Sullivan had 52. The election of Mr. Reidy was made unanimous.

Other officers elected were: Vice President, James P. Flanagan of division 18, Quincy; secretary, William J. McMahan of Brookline; Treasurer, Patrick Brady of Randolph. The reports of the officers showed the present membership to be 2,947, in 22 divisions; an increase of 400 members and two divisions since the last convention; the funds have increased in two years $3,000.

Resolutions of sympathy for the Boer cause and congratulations for the unification of the Irish party, and the Ladies' Auxiliary for its good work, were passed. A vote of thanks was also given to the retiring officers.

The delegates were given a banquet. The committee in charge of the reception and banquet were: Thomas Murphy, Division 5; J. J. Curtin, Division 4; J. J. Cunningham, Division 18; Frank P. Foley, John E. Dolan, M. J. O'Brien, Charles O'Farrell, Division 22; Mrs. Edward Powers, Miss Mary G. Powers, Mrs. Thomas Cotter, Mrs. Charles Sullivan.

Contracts for Warship.

Apparently Quincy is not "in it," but wait and see. The Washington correspondent of the Herald says: Great interest is shown by ship builders in the prospective competition for contracts for the new warships. Beside the Cramps, Union iron works and the Newport News company, the Neafie & Levy Ship & Engine Company is expected to enter the competition. There are five battleships and six armored cruisers to be built, and with these firms interested no doubt is expressed that the bids will be as low as they think they can safely go.

There will be a large number of bidders for contracts for the three protected cruisers to be constructed. The William R. Trigg Company of Richmond, Va., the Bath iron works, Lewis Nixon of Elizabeth, N. J., and other firms are expected to compete for these contracts.

The circular prescribing the armor for these new vessels has been issued and invites bids on contracts for 35,700 tons. Bids will be opened on Aug. 10.

New Superintendent.

Quincy will doubtless have a new Superintendent of Schools Sept. 1. Superintendent Lull will doubtless take his departure for Newport, R. I., where last Friday he was elected as superintendent at a salary of $3,000. When seen Saturday Mr. Lull said he had not received official notification of his election, and there were some matters in relation to surroundings he should want to be informed about.

When seen this morning, Mr. Lull said that he had received official notice of his election, but had not accepted as yet. He, however, thought in all probability that he should accept. His election was from Sept. 1, and he would therefore in any event remain in Quincy until that time. The public schools close next week for the summer vacation.

Children's Sunday.

Children's Sunday was observed at both the Unitarian and the Baptist churches at Wollaston on Sunday. At the Unitarian there was an appropriate sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Frank Wright Pratt, and also special music.

The pulpit was profusely decorated with plants and flowers. Three little children were christened, Theodore Cary Pratt, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Pratt; Robert Cotton Merrill, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred C. Merrill; and Dorothy Sprague, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sprague.

There was a large attendance at the services at the Baptist church and an excellent sermon by the Rev. Preston Gurney and the usual fine music.

Goshen, Ill.

Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.:

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it home and gave it a trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank.

Respectfully yours, A. C. JACKSON, M. D.

Bible Class Outing.

The members of the Young People's Bible class of the Park and Downs Congregational church held their picnic at Houghton's Pond.

Monday about 9 A. M. the barge started from the church; a stop was made at Lorings Corner where fish horns were bought and another stop at the fruit store at Norfolk Downs where tonic, peanuts, bananas, crackers, etc., were put on. About 11 Houghton's pond Milton, was reached and the driver, Mr. Bates, found the class a good spot. Music was enjoyed, also all kinds of games and boating. The class thank Mr. Bates for entering into the sport, and also for showing them around.

Among those present were: Mrs. E. M. Cash, Miss Elvira Hirtle, Miss Carrie Saunders, Miss Winnie Seaman, Miss Hattie Chisholm, Miss Lillian Bowles, Miss Jennie Saunders, Miss Addie Conrads, Miss Alda Shay, Miss Julia Marr, Miss Alice Hirtle, Miss Emily Hirtle, Harry Hey, William Schrader, William Anderson, Arthur Marr, Clarence Seaman, Charles Locke, Arthur Seaman, Herbert Shaw, Harry Coles, and Louis Cleaves.

Rose Drill.

The rose drill at St. Mary's hall, Monday, by the children of St. Mary's Sunday school, was largely attended and was finely rendered, reflecting great credit upon Miss Genevive White under whose direction it was given. The programme opened with a chorus, "Sunrise song," and was followed by a series of tableaux: "Wild Rose Welcome," "June Enters," "Rose drill" "Rosebuds" "Sweet Brier Roses" "Red Roses," Yellow Roses. The drill in the afternoon was for children, and in the evening for adults.

K inspected the sand pit near the Quincy line last week. The military company will hold target practice there this summer and a better location would be hard to find.

Many interesting stories have been told of the summer resort of Principal Field and the young men at Lake Webb, Maine. Mr. O. W. Allen and Dr. H. O. Jones have recently returned from a few days' visit there and they also have interesting accounts. They say it is an excellent place to catch trout and salmon and for beginners at fresh water fishing they had great luck.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Annie W. Wason, widow of T. Henry Wason, died suddenly Monday, just before midnight of heart disease aged 54 years. Mrs. Wason has not been in the best of health for some months, but when she retired she was apparently as well as usual. Shortly before midnight she was taken ill and expired in about fifteen minutes. She leaves three sons, Harry A., Alfred and Norris. The eldest son is an assistant at the Braintree High school.

Keith's Theatre.

The manner in which the auditory of Keith's Boston playhouse is cooled during the summer months renders it possible for the patrons to enjoy the admirable programmes with all the comfort they could expect to find on a roof garden. For the week beginning June 18 the following artists have been engaged: Harry and Kate Jackson, who have been making a distinct hit in the varieties, in their laughable sketch, "A Bachelor's Home," which Neil Burgess says is "one of the prettiest bits of nature I ever saw; I congratulate you on your great success;" A. O. Duncan, the greatest of all American ventriloquil comedians, who always has something new and funny to put in the mouths of his amusing dummies; and Herbert's trained poodles, the handsomest troupe of canine actors in the world. The biograph will have an unusually interesting series of motion pictures, and some beautiful colored views of scenes in Japan will be shown in the stereopticon.

"Just see, father, how this stocking is ruined, and I've only worn it once. I thought it was because Jane had rubbed it too hard, but mother says it's all the fault of the soap that Jane used. And she wants you to be sure and order a box of Ivory Soap to-day."

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Since the relocation of the hotel Fensmere beach is a pretty spot and promises to be popular when warm weather arrives.

Madame Yale's
HAIR TONIC
Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

to be the standard of value in these United States. Upon that issue we triumphed. As we grow year by year more firmly established as a creditor nation, the question concerns us less and other countries more. No impairment of national credit can be contemplated by an honorable nation. We have made advances enough; this country can better afford than any other to enter upon the contest for commercial supremacy with gold as its standard, and for us the time has come to give fair notice to the world that we, too, make gold our standard and redeem our obligations in that metal. For 12 years the platforms of the party have declared in favor of the use of gold and silver as money.

The provisions of the bill secure to the people a needed increase in the volume of the currency, prevent the future depletion of the gold in the treasury, and encourage a more extended use of our bonds by the national banks of the country. But, above all, the success attending its passage has demonstrated that our own people and the nations of Europe have faith in the permanence of our institutions and our financial integrity.

Before the expiration of Mr. McKinley's first term, we shall have passed a law relieving certain articles from a portion at least of the burdens they now carry because of the war revenue act, and meanwhile we have, out of surplus revenues, already paid and called in for cancellation $43,000,000 of outstanding bonds. The coming winter will see enacted into law, legislation which shall revivify and upbuild our ocean merchant marine, and enable us to compete on fair terms with the subsidized ships of foreign nations. And above all, we shall pass a law under which we shall build and own and operate as property of the United States, under exclusive American dominion and control, a ship canal connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific. Through it in time of peace the commerce of the world shall pass. If we shall be unhappily engaged in war, the canal shall carry our warships and shall exclude those of the enemy, and under conditions which shall violate no treaty stipulations.

This is the brief account of our stewardship for four years. During a portion of that period we were involved in a war that for a time paralyzed business and commerce, and would have taxed heavily the resources and credit of any other country than ours. During the weeks and months preceding the outbreak of hostilities with Spain, the President of the United States stood firmly upon the ground that a peaceful solution could be found. And when that awful occurrence took place in the harbor of Havana he faced popular clamor and heated counsels, and still believed that the wrongs of Cuba could be remedied and redressed without an appeal to the arbitrament of war.

The folly of Spain and the indignation of the American people forbade a peaceful solution. Then the president, seconded by a Republican congress, before a gun was fired, declared to the world the lofty and unselfish motives that alone actuated the nation. No man now, or in the centuries to come, when history recounts the marvelous story of the war which changed the map of the world, shall ever truthfully say that this republic was animated by any but the noblest purposes. Recorded time tells of no such war, for it was fought, with bloody sacrifice, by a great and free republic, for the freedom of another race, while its own liberties were unassailed.

This is not the time or the occasion to dwell upon the incidents of the war, crowded with successive victories and illumined with countless examples of individual bravery and gallant conduct. Its living heroes are honored by a generous country; its dead have ennobled the race, and will live forever in the hearts of a grateful people. Throughout all its anxious days the president, commander-in-chief of our armies and our navies, planned and directed with unerring hand. His wise diplomacy saved us from threatened international complications. From the commencement of hostilities until their close the conduct of the war was unassailable, and the paltry criticisms of two years ago are already buried in the limbo of oblivion.

We assumed dominion of Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines for reasons differing as to each of them.

We took to ourselves the little island of Porto Rico because it lay under the shadow of our own shores, and because its continued occupancy by Spain or by any foreign government would be a constant menace to the states and to that great inter-oceanic waterway which we shall build and own and operate as an American canal. The recommendations of the president were fully and satisfactorily complied with; the people of the island are content, the trade of the American people approve, and we have avoided precedents that might vex us when we come to deal with the problems that finally await us in the establishment of our permanent relations towards the people of the Philippine islands.

The circumstances associated with our possession of Cuba are new and unparalleled in the history of conquests. The cruelties practiced upon its people induced the war. Before we commenced hostile proceedings, however, and that the world might know that our hands were clean and that we were not animated by lust for territory, we solemnly disclaimed any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, or control over the island except for its pacification, and asserted our determination, when that was accomplished, to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

To this declaration we still rigorously adhere. The island was divided into municipalities and the registration provided for. And on the 18th of June, municipal elections were held all through the island, as the first and preliminary step towards the establishment of a national government and the adoption of a constitution.

And in this connection it is fitting to say that the peculations and frauds committed in Cuba by subordinate officials have made every American blush with shame, and until the last of the guilty men is arrested and convicted and sentenced that shame will know no abatement. It is no more to be charged to the party than would a theft by a trusted employe be charged against the character of the merchant who employed him.

We are dealing with Cuba in a spirit not only of fairness but of generosity and of absolute unselfishness, and whenever the inhabitants of that island evince and declare their ability to take over its government and control, that day they shall receive it.

Had there been no war with Spain this republic, inclined by principle and instinct and tradition to peaceful ways, would have continued the development of our national resources and character within its existing borders, content in the future, as throughout the century just ending, with that path of national duty.

The future of nations, however, like the future of man, is hid from mortal vision, and, no more than man may a nation choose its own duties. When this war ended and we faced our victory in all its completeness, we found 8,000,000 of people living upon uncounted islands delivered into our hands. Abandonment of them would be confession that while the oppression by Spain of 1,500,000 Cubans demanded our armed interference, greater barbarity and cruelty to millions of Filipinos, less able to protect themselves, was a subject of no concern to us. No civilized nation in the world, no Christian nation, could have turned these people back to Spain. Our commissioners, when they insisted upon our retention of the Philippines, voiced the sentiments and wishes of the American people; and this nation has assumed with open eyes and with full realization of the difficulties which may be encountered, the grave responsibilities imposed upon us by the treaty of Paris.

We havn't been there long, but long enough to reach two conclusions: One is, that the first thing we intend doing is to suppresss the Tagal insurrection and to establish law and order throughout the archipelago. That is the first thing we shall do. And the last, the very last thing we intend doing, is to consider, even for a moment, the question of giving up or of abandoning these islands.

The insurrection against our legitimate authority, which, for the time, impedes our efforts to establish a government for the Filipinos, involves us in a sacrifice of lives and of treasure. The difficulties we encounter in the Philippines are many, but the chief inspiration and encouragement of the Tagal insurrection comes from the Democratic headquarters in the United States.

The obstacles to the establishment of a civil government in the islands are many, but we shall overcome them. Mistakes will undoubtedly be made, but we shall remedy them. We shall in time extend over that archipelago the aegis of our protection and o ffree government, and we shall gradually, but surely, lift these alien and savage races into the light of civilization and Christianity. Meanwhile, American enterprise and ingenuity and push may be depended upon to develop the resources of the islands, and make them an added source of wealth to our country. The wise statesmanship of the president and our able secretary of state has already brought from the countries of Europe a recognition of our right to share in the vast commercial advantages which will follow the opening of the Chinese empire to foreign trade; the Nicaraguan canal will soon be constructed; Hawaii, with its valuable harbor, is ours; we possess the best of the Samoan islands, with its magnificent roadway; the Philippines are almost at the door of China, and if counsels of fear do not prevail, this generation will see the American nation girdling half of the globe with its flag, extending its foreign commerce to the uttermost parts of the earth, and taking its place among the great world-nations, a power for good, for peace, and for righteousness.

Yesterday was a day of conferences on the vice presidential situation. Beginning with a gathering in the room of Governor Roosevelt, it was continued in the rooms of Senator Hanna later, when nearly all the leaders in the city were from time to time in conference with the chairman of the national committee. When the last man had disappeared Senator Hanna looked weary, but satisfied. He was ready to announce that Governor Roosevelt would not be nominated; that the men who were going to make the nomination would accept the declaration of Roosevelt made during the day, and supplemental of more emphatic declarations made some time ago, as final, and would not force the nomination upon him. Among the last men to see Senator Hanna were Chairman Odell of the New York committee and L. E. Quigg, who discussed the situation at great length. It was with these men that Senator Hanna labored. He told them that six weeks ago Roosevelt was wanted as a vice presidential candidate. He and other warm friends of the administration believed he would be a very satisfactory candidate. The bare suggestion brought out a protest from Roosevelt, a declaration in emphatic terms that he would not accept the place. After this declaration had been reiterated several times it was taken up by Senator Platt, who publically announced that Governor Roosevelt was not to be considered as a vice presidential candidate. Then other candidates appeared and in a dignified manner their interests were put forward by their friends throughout the country.

This plain talk from Senator Hanna cleared up what had been in doubt all day. It was evident that Hanna was not going to lie down. It was a distinct show of fight and a signal to the friends of the administration that opposition to forcing Roosevelt upon the ticket against his will would meet with favor. This tip did not circulate until quite late in the evening, but the effect was soon apparent. There were many real friends of Roosevelt who accepted his declaration as absolutely voicing his wish. It changed the current of talk and men who were confident 24 hours ago that Roosevelt's nomination was a foregone conclusion began asking: "Well, who will it be?"

The answer was generally John D. Long of Massachusetts. At once delegates began to reason that Long must be perfectly satisfactory to the administration of which he is a part, or he would not be a candidate for the place. This idea received encouragement in quarters which made the Massachusetts man a prime favorite.

A Sad Domestic Tragedy.

IN A FLOURISHING CONDITION.

New England Crops Greatly Benefited by Favorable Weather of Last Week.

Boston, June 19.—The United States department of agriculture, climate and crop service of the weather bureau, New England section, issues the following bulletin for the week ending June 18:

Boston, June 19.—Following is a statement of the weather and crop conditions of New England, compiled from the reports of correspondents of the weather bureau throughout the section, for the week ending June 18:

Crops, generally speaking, are in good condition, and in some localities are luxuriant. With abundant sunshine and temperature near the seasonal average, together with a fair amount of precipitation in the most acceptable form, light showers, the conditions have been favorable for the rapid advancement of all vegetation. Bugs, beetles, worms, and crop pests generally, are increasing and becoming more or less numerous. However, up to the present writing no serious or general injury has resulted to crops.

The haying season is practically at hand. Taking the district as a whole, the prospect is very favorable to an average crop and an excellent quality of hay.

Winter grain continues in good condition; cereals generally promise good crops. There is little complaint of injury from rot or insects, and with a continuation of favorable weather good crops are certain.

Excepting peaches, the yield of which will be light, conditions could hardly be more favorable to a plenteous crop of fruit, especially apples. Pears will be plentiful, plums a fair supply, and berries of all kinds give prospect of a bountiful supply of the first quality.

Vegetables remain in a promising condition. Reports are very favorable to truck farms and gardens, which promise large yields of all kinds of vegetables.

Tobacco setting is about completed, and cultivation has begun. The present outlook is very favorable to the crop.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 19.—Tenny's fumble of Cross' grounder and three singles in the eleventh inning gave Brooklyn three runs and the game.

A Vice Presidential Possibility.

Indianapolis, June 19.—B. F. Shively of South Bend would, it is believed by his close friends, accept a nomination at Kansas City for vice president, though he will not be an active candidate. He said last night: "I am not a candidate for the office in any sense. I have made no canvass for the nomination and I intend to make none." On campaign issues he says: "I believe imperialism and militarism will be the questions of vital importance in the campaign.

Price of Gas Goes Up Again.

New York, June 19.—The Consolidated Gas company has issued a statement that "on and after June 20 the price of gas suppied by the company will be restored to the legal rate of $1.05 per 1000 cubic feet." This formal notice marks the end of the great war of the gas companies, which for a year has made the price of gas to consumers in Manhattan 65 cents per 1000 feet.

The Situation at Bell Island.

St. John's, June 19.—The Bell Island strike is not yet ended. The strikers threaten to demolish the piers and steamers on the first attempt to resume loading, if the demands of the men are not satisfied. Four ships are now awaiting cargoes. This may compel the companies to take action which may lead to an outbreak.

Princess a Victim of Thieves.

London, June 19.—Princess Radziwill of Russia was robbed of jewelry worth £10,000 at her hotel here. Among the jewels was her historic rope of 150 pearls, each weighing 22 grains, and a bracelet of emeralds, the gift of the Ameer of Afghanistan. Fortunately most of her diamonds were in a safe at Coutts' bank.

Said to Have Swindled Farmers.

Boston, June 19.—Henry B. Favor of Malden has been arrested on the charge of using the mails to defraud. The United States authorities allege that Favor sent circular letters to farmers soliciting their produce, and to have failed to pay for it in several cases.

Italy's Cabinet Steps Out.

Rome, June 19.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday, Premier Relloux announced that the cabinet had resigned owing to the deadlock arising from the opposition's uncompromising attitude on the question of the rules of procedure.

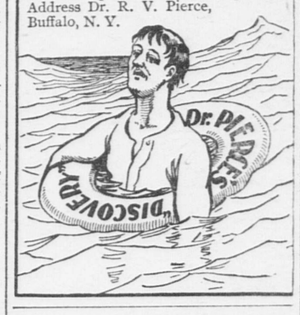

Wheeler Relieves Wade.

LODGE NOMINATES McKINLEY.

HON. WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

A Triangular Contest for Vice Presidency between Long, Dolliver and Woodruff.

New York Delegation Now for Woodruff But New England is Solid for Long and His Nomination is Predicted.

HON. JOHN SHAW.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Philadelphia, June 20, 9 A. M.—I predict Long's nomination. Throw McKinley and Long banner to the breeze.

John Shaw.

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE.

Philadelphia, June 20.—Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff will be presented to the national Republican convention as the candidate of New York for vice president. It was decided to do this after a four hours' stormy session of the New York delegation, during which every kind of appeal was made to get Governor Roosevelt to say that he would accept a nomination.

The vice presidential situation is still mixed because it is asserted that New York makes this move so as to go into the convention with a candidate, and yet hoping that Governor Roosevelt will be nominated. Senator Hanna has stated that he controls the delegates to such an extent that he can nominate any candidate he pleases, and it is not known that he has withdrawn his objections to Mr. Woodruff. The latter was as much surprised as anybody over the result. In general, the idea is prevalent that Secretary Long is the most favored candidate, with a probability that Roosevelt may still be nominated.

"What is the situation, Senator?"

"Roosevelt is out of it, and will not be nominated."

The question was put to Senator Hanna, and that is the way he answered. This was after another effort to stampede the delegates to Roosevelt. As before, the effort was made by New York and Pennsylvania. Platt and Quay worked all day to make Roosevelt the candidate. The stampede which had been checked and turned Monday night was begun early Monday morning. Many stories were circulated. Roosevelt was quoted as saying absolutely that he would accept, if nominated. He was also quoted as having had a change of heart, and wanted a nomination. In fact all kinds of rumors were in circulation, and the situation remained cloudy all day, and did not clear very much in the evening.

One thing definitely developed. There is to be a fight. The nomination is not to be made without a contest. Senator Hanna is doing all he can to defeat Roosevelt, and he has determined to continue that line to the end. He is lining up the friends of the administration against Roosevelt. In this he is acting in harmony with the wishes of Roosevelt, who has urged all delegates visiting him not to vote for him for vice president.

The next serious proposal that confronts Mr. Hanna is what he shall do as between Long and Dolliver. The is a popular sentiment for Dolliver in the west that is hard to overcome. Long is regarded as a passive kind of candidate, and while no objection is urged against him, he does not attract the delegates. But he is Mr. Hanna's personal choice, and is preferred by the president. Dolliver's friends have pointed out to Senator Hanna that the Iowa candidate has now got into the fight so far that he wants to win, to which Hanna replied that defeat would not injure Dolliver. He has already acquired a great deal of prominence, says Senator Hanna, and he will not be injured if he should be defeated by a candidate like Secretary Long.

In making the fight against Roosevelt Senator Hanna finds the opponents of Roosevelt divided, some for Long and some for Dolliver. The uestion of transferring the vote from one to the other without nominating the man they wish to defeat is the difficult problem.

The contest has not assumed any such definite form as to even approximate the strength of the candidates. The action of different delegations have some significance. New Jersey, with 20 votes, and California, with 18, declared for Long. Other states evinced a desire to support any candidate agreeable to the administration, while there are a number of states in the west that are determined to vote for Roosevelt.

In Maryland there was a curious action. The delegation was favorable to Roosevelt, but decided to take him at his word and not support him. Then a number of them sent word to Hanna that Long's nomination would be difficult to carry in that state on account of the feeling for Rear Admiral Schley, who is a native of Maryland. The delegates preferred to vote for Dolliver for

New Advertisements Today.

Announcement—Music Hall Pharmacy.
Grain-O.

Good Afternoon.

Do you were surprised to read in yesterday's Ledger the opening address in full of Senator Wolcott at the Republican convention, which some of the Boston dailies are printing today. But today the Ledger gives its readers the speech of Senator Lodge, renominating President McKinley.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The situation in China grows worse instead of better, and it may become necessary for this government to send soldiers from the Philippines to properly protect American interests in China. The administration has not the slightest desire to meddle with China, but it intends to protect our large and increasing commercial interests in that country at all hazards.—Milford Journal.

☞ Mrs. Donald McLean of New York, having assured the Whittier Home association that Barbara Frietchie actually did wave the star spangled banner in the face of a rebel host commanded by Stonewall Jackson and dare them to fire upon their country's flag, we feel decidedly better. Now let the iconoclasts who have been striving to shake public confidence in Whittier's legend, hunr their respective holes.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It is a good thing to have a temper, and enough of it, but it is better still to have that temper well under control. A man without a temper is a man of putty. He is moulded at will by anyone with whom he comes in contact. He never has a mind of his own, and, if he has preferences, has always to give way to others. The man with no temper is unable to defend himself from imposition. He can never make his way in the world, but he is hustled and elbowed this way and that by those around him.—Milwaukee Journal.

☞ By the way of rewarding the colonists for their loyalty in the Boer war the British house of lords has passed by a vote of 118 to 31, a bill legalizing marriage with the sister of a deceased wife, when celebrated in a colony, and making the marriage valid throughout the empire. The bishops, true to the traditions of their orders, resisted to the last. Now, we presume, the colonists will feel themselves amply repaid for all the sufferings and sacrifices on the battle fields of South Africa, and deceased wives' sisters will account no expenditures of men and money too great so long as deceased wives' husbands remain to console them.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ "I can never sufficiently express my disgust," said the woman of wisdom, "for those superficial men who are always amusing themselves with jokes about the woman who patronizes bargain sales and devours the advertisements in the papers. One can't go to all the bargain sales, but the woman who studies the advertisements is the wise woman. It is just as much her business to keep in touch with the shops, to know what is being sold, and at what prices, as it is for the man to study the stocks and know whether prices are up or down. The only trouble is that women do not take these things seriously enough. It is one of her serious duties to purchase household supplies to the best advantage. One great trouble with women is that they do not treat household matters with sufficient respect. If they did they would not have to go to clubs to develop their faculties as they would have them developed if they were trying to devote to

The same committee reported a loan order for $2,500 to cover the amounts in the two above orders. Ordered to a second reading.

COPELAND STREET.

The Committee on Ordinances reported as correctly engrossed the order for $21,000 for widening Copeland street.

Councilman Poland hoped order would not pass in its present form. He did not think Quincy should be called upon to pay land damages. The abutters should pay these and the city build the street. The award was exorbitant. Quincy at large would not be benefited.

Councilman Badger: This is the connecting link between West Quincy and South Quincy and the centre. The street is paved as far as the school where it enters a tunnel. There was as much tonnage over this street as any in the city. He did not think abutters should pay the damages. Much of the money was for damages, and setting buildings back. He hoped Council would look at it in a business light.

Councilman Freeman thought the awards were excessive as they came from the Street Committee. He would like to ask how they based their awards, which were in excess of Assessors' valuations.

Councilman Poland took up several estates and told how the award was made. Thirty dollars were allowed for a tree or anything that could be called a tree, even shrub trees being awarded $30. There were but few good houses on the street and the improvements would demand new buildings. If the abutters had even agreed to give the trees and land that was below the sidewalk or if they had said the assessed value would be satisfactory it would have been right. Crescent street was a good street and is less than 100 feet from Copeland street and could be used. If they want the traffic on Copeland street they should pay part of the cost. No one took stock that the street was in a dangerous condition.

Councilman Elcock: The last speaker would have you believe there was no necessity to widen the street. He seems to be opposed to everything in connection with it. He did not state it all. He did not think there was any one but would sell their estates for assessed value, but when you take it to their door there is damage. The improvements are for the benefit of the whole community. He underates Ward Four. Last year there was 33,850 ton of granite shipped from West Quincy which was carted back and forth; beside what was sent from South Quincy. This represents over $1,000,000 of business. Not one pound of this came over the Quarry railroad.

Councilman Nichols had been much interested in this measure and had visited the location several times. It was necessary sometime to widen this street [illegible] the present location o[illegible] was an uncon[illegible] plans [illegible] to b[illegible] and [illegible] would before this passes we should know what they will be willing to accept. There should be an understanding as to damages they would agree to accept. He believed the present award to be in excess of what they were entitled.

There were many minor improvements needed that would be a benefit to a greater number of persons.

Councilman Badger said, at the Ash estate the city takes a less of the 11 feet frontage. Cowell has 10 feet frontage and they take 8 feet. The Parsons buildings owned by the Woodward trustees have to be moved back. Desmond loses six feet of his frontage, and Hayes part of his piazza. He did not think there would be any suits for damages.

The order was passed to be ordained by the following vote.

Yeas—Allen, Badger, Callahan, Cleverley, Elcock, Freeman, Gasset, Hogan, Johnson, McLennan, Newcomb, Nicol, Packard, Smith, Walsh, Wilson—13.

Nays—Le Normandie, Faxon, Hill, Nichols, Poland—5.

Absent—Hultman.

The committee on Public Buildings reported ought not to pass on the order for $1800 for a bath house at Quincy Point. Accepted.

There were two orders before the Council for bath house, one for $1800 and the other for $2000. As the latter order had been passed the former was disposed of as above.

NOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Freeman offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five under the fifth clause of the Dr. Woodward will, to look over the trust fund with the managers and to report to the Council within thirty days. Adopted.

A Diver's Experience.

The Quincy Yacht Club house at Houghs Neck was thronged on Tuesday evening by an audience of yachtsmen eager to hear Capt. Hiram W. Phillips, the famous diver give a brief account of his sub-marine adventures. Capt. Phillips had set up in the hall a complete diving-suit, with air pipes, lines, and pumps. For upwards of an hour and a half he thrilled the audience with stories of adventure in a hidden world of hair breadth escapes from death of the exploration of the hulls of the ill-fated "City of Columbus" and the wrecked Vanderbilt yacht "Alva" of the intelligence of fishes and crustaceans; and of countless curious incidents which have befallen him in his thirty odd years of exploration in this little known marine world.

Suicide at Milton.

John Monihan, of 146 Thornton street, Roxbury, committed suicide at Milton, Tuesday noon, by drinking carbolic acid. Shortly before noon the man called at the residences of Granville Webster and Dr. Albert Simpson on Adams street, near the Milton line, and asked for writing materials. His request was not granted, however, and shortly after he was found laying on the curbstones. Before assistance could be rendered he died. Near him was a bottle that had contained carbolic acid from which he had evidently drank the contents.

He was removed to the Police station. The only thing to serve as a means of identification were two advertisement clippings, in which John Monihan, 146 Thornton street, Roxbury, advertised that his wife Elizabeth J., had left him, and that he should pay no bills for her contracting.

The clew was followed up and late that night it was learned that he was undoubtedly John Monihan. He had lived on Thornton street with his wife and children, but for some reason unknown he and his wife had separated some weeks ago.

Buying Ducks.
There are two ways of securing a duck.
The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train, hire a guide and a boat; slog around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.
We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.
Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

New Advertisements Today.

Announcement—Music Hall Pharmacy.
Grain-O.

Good Afternoon.

So you were surprised to read in yesterday's Ledger the opening address in full of Senator Wolcott at the Republican convention, which some of the Boston dailies are printing today. But today the Ledger gives its readers the speech of Senator Lodge, renominating President McKinley.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The situation in China grows worse instead of better, and it may become necessary for this government to send soldiers from the Philippines to properly protect American interests in China. The administration has not the slightest desire to meddle with China, but it intends to protect our large and increasing commercial interests in that country at all hazards.—Milford Journal.

☞ Mrs. Donald McLean of New York, having assured the Whittier Home association that Barbara Frietchie actually did wave the star spangled banner in the face of a rebel host commanded by Stonewall Jackson and dare them to fire upon their country's flag, we feel decidedly better. Now let the iconoclasts who have been striving to shake public confidence in Whittier's legend, hunt their respective holes.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It is a good thing to have a temper, and enough of it, but it is better still to have that temper well under control. A man without a temper is a man of putty. He is moulded at will by anyone with whom he comes in contact. He never has a mind of his own, and, if he has preferences, has always to give way to others. The man with no temper is unable to defend himself from imposition. He can never make his way in the world, but he is hustled and elbowed this way and that by those around him.—Milwaukee Journal.

☞ By the way of rewarding the colonists for their loyalty in the Boer war the British house of lords has passed by a vote of 116 to 31, a bill legalizing marriage with the sister of a deceased wife, when celebrated in a colony, and making the marriage valid throughout the empire. The bishops, true to the traditions of their orders, resisted to the last. Now, we presume, the colonists will feel themselves amply repaid for all the sufferings and sacrifices on the battle fields of South Africa, and deceased wives' sisters will account no expenditures of men and money too great so long as deceased wives' husbands remain to console them.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ "I can never sufficiently express my disgust," said the woman of wisdom, "for those superficial men who are always amusing themselves with jokes about the woman who patronizes bargain sales and devours the advertisements in the papers. One can't go to all the bargain sales, but the woman who studies the advertisements is the wise woman. It is just as much her business to keep in touch with the shops, to know what is being sold, and at what prices, as it is for the man to study the stocks and know whether prices are up or down. The only trouble is that women do not take these things seriously enough. It is one of her serious duties to purchase household supplies to the best advantage. One great trouble with women is that they do not treat household matters with sufficient respect. If they did they would not have to go to clubs to develop their intellects and they would have more [illegible] to devote to [illegible]

A $300 Fire.

The alarm from Box 65 at 5.30 Tuesday night was for a lively fire in the house of Henry Shaw on Madison street, Atlantic. The fire started in the kitchen from an oil stove. Mrs. Shaw had just lighted the stove and had gone to another part of the house. Upon her return she found the kitchen a mass of flames. The fire worked up through the floor to the chamber above, both rooms being gutted. In the kitchen there was lot of Mr. Shaw's clothing which was destroyed. The loss will not be far from $300.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train, hire a guide and a boat; shoot around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through the experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Fresh Air Fund.

A conference was held between Mr. B. J. Weeks Superintendent of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company and Mr. William F. Hoehn General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association recently, regarding the Fresh Air Work which is being done by the friends of the children throughout our surburban cities. There are in Boston today crowds of children who live in the tenement districts away from the sights and pleasures which nature affords in such a place as our own beloved city and its immediate vicinity. An article in the Ledger of a day or so ago concerning an outing of the children of a Kindergarten school by Miss Graham was of interest and appeals to all. It was proposed by Mr. Weeks that a sum of money be raised to provide for the entertainment of 100 children among the people of Quincy, and if this was done, the Quincy & Boston Street Railway and the West End Street Railway Company of Boston would each provide two large cars for the carrying of the children free of charge; they would also secure Lovell's grove for the purpose of this outing.

Arrangements of getting together the children in Boston has been satisfactorily solved by Mr. Hoehn. The work being not strictly in line with that of the association, Mr. Hoehn has turned the matter over into the hands of some of the women of Quincy as representing the churches, and will shortly call a meeting in regard to the same. If the appeal in carrying out his work meets with favor by our citizens and they are willing to contribute for this purpose they may do so by sending their contributions to the Ledger office, or Mrs. Grace L. Hoehn, who will act as treasurer for such fund. All subscriptions will be acknowledged in the column of the Ledger.

Were Handicapped.

Some of the skippers in Class A, who participated in the handicap races of the Quincy Yacht Club Monday, were evidently a little green at the business. Usually skippers keep as close to the line as possible to wait for the starting gun. Instead of doing so several of the skippers kept half a mile away from the line and when the flag went found that the old skipper had considerable start of them.

Loca Brevities of the City of Presidents.

Class Day at Radcliffe college today.

Mrs. Nellie Sargent of South Royalston is the guest of Mrs. Charles Safford.

The Gypsy cantata to have been given at Bethany chapel Tuesday evening was postponed.

The Squantum cars were well patronized Monday. Each trip the car went crowded.

Miss Skates, after an absence of a year, is again the guest of her sister, Mrs. Mansfield of Davis street.

Councilman Callahan returned Tuesday evening just in time to vote for the Copeland street widening. He and Mrs. Callahan visited Woonsocket, Milford, and other places.

The other evening Miss Addie Conrad of Norfolk Downs attempted to lead one bicycle while she rode another. in coming down the hill on Beale street the two bicycles collided and she was thrown. Her side was injured and the wheels smashed.

Arthur Flowers was arrested by Constable Furnald Tuesday upon a warrant charging him with larceny of money from Blanche Lillicrap at Quincy. Later in the day the boy was bailed out. When the case was called this morning he failed to appear and he was defaulted.

The Music Hall pharmacy, the successor of the drug department of the Durgin-Merrill Co., has been opened in the Music Hall building, and makes an attractive appearance. It is under the management of Mr. Delcevare King, who has engaged Mr. Stephen E. Pierce as prescription clerk.

There were a great many visitors at the John Adams birthplace the Seventeenth. Besides scattering callers there was a party of ladies from the Gen. Thomas Lothrop Chapter, D. A. R. Flags decorated the outside of the house. Adams Chapter members received the guests during the morning.

Capt. and Mrs. Atkins of Bromfield street entertained about fifty friends on the holiday. They came from Providence, R. I., Roxbury, Dorchester and City Point. It was intended to be a lawn party, but the temperature was so chilly that the party adjourned indoors. A few of the party went to the beach and took their first dip of the season in salt water. In the evening there were games and music.

Made to Order.

The following yarn relative to the last words of President John Quincy Adams are from the New York Sun and should be taken cum grano salis:

"Not long before his death I called on Dick Thompson, for so he is best known, and listened with unusual interest to his political reminiscences, dating from 1848, when he was in Congress, and running on down to his retirement as secretary of the navy department," said Congressman Landis of Indiana. "I had asked him about John Quincy Adams, when the latter was a member of the lower House. After he had answered, he said:

"Landis, I haven't much longer to live, and I want to make a little confession to you. It is not important, perhaps, but I am the only one living who knows the secret, and I think I shall feel better to know I have told it. I was in the House when John Quincy Adams had the attack which resulted in his death two days later. I was one of the four who carried him into the speaker's room. He never regained consciousness. After his death we who had carried him out of the House met and questioned one another until each confessed that he had not heard Mr. Adams say anything after we picked him up. In those days the last words of great men had an interest which does not attach to last utterances in this age. And so it was agreed that, inasmuch as Mr. Adams had no chance to say anything for himself, that we would make some last words for him, commensurate with his worth.

"I was selected to formulate something suitable. It was no easy task, but I finally reported as his last words, "This is the last of earth." One of the four who had helped to carry him out replied, "I am content." These last words were not intended to be credited to Mr. Adams. The member who said "I am content" meant that he was satisfied with my report, but I did not so understand him at the time. I thought that the words were intended as a sort of amendment and added them. As they seemed quite appropriate, we concluded to let them stand, and there they are as they have been quoted for 50 years."

"Mr. Thompson was not a destroyer. He was not the man to mar, jostle or change, but the assured me that he wanted to be put right on this last words business, as he called it, and I tell you the story as he told it to me. I suppose Mr. Adams spoke some last words somewhere, but they were not the same which you and I have read about in our time".

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here in 1621 while exploring the coast.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish quenched his thirst, and carried a supply to the boat.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams. At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Janitor can be found at Savings Bank building or at his home Maple place. No fee charged, but janitor may be paid for his trouble.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished also the BIG ship yard now being established at Quincy Point.

It Was Great Sport.

A hay fight at Norfolk Downs made great sport for a crowd Tuesday evening. Mr. West claims to have purchased a lot of standing grass at Atlantic. Mr. Landers however cut it. West came along and found it all cut, and had nearly loaded it when Landers appeared. Landers jumped aboard and attempted to unload while West forked it back just as rapidly. The horse was started homeward and the drama continued. A stand was made on Davis street, and the unloading and loading continued. Finally it was agreed that West should go to Atlantic to ascertain who was the owner. During his absence the hay was loaded onto Landers team and carted off. The streets are littered to tell the tale.

—A notable feature of the educational exhibit at Paris, is a series of nineteen monographs on various topics written by experts and giving a complete resume of educational conditions in the United States at the close of the nineteen century. The series is edited by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University. These monographs are for free distribution to visitors and may be obtained on application to the Director.

RUNDLE THREATENED.

Fears That Boers May Break Through a Line Weakly Held.

Boers' Flow of Supplies Temporarily Interrupted.

British Lost Men in Two Skirmishes Which Are But Just Made Public.

London, June 20.—The Boers are gathering in force in front of General Rundle near Ficksburg. His forces stretch for eight miles. As some parts of the line are weakly held, the British fear that the Boers may break through. Outpost skirmishes are of daily occurrence. The Boers there are commanded by Devilliers and Hermann.

Mr. Steyn is at Bethlehem, the temporary capital of the Free State.

According to dispatches from Lourenzo Marques the Malana bridge has been destroyed. One account says it was blown up. Another asserts that it was undermined by a patrol from Swaziland and so collapsed under the weight of a train. This will temporarily interrupt the flow of supplies to the Boers from Lourenzo Marques.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing June 16, says that Lord Roberts is getting huts for 30,000 men, and is arranging retransport for a part of his army, although his plans are not to take effect immediately.

The Lourenzo Marques correspondent of The Daily Express says: A German-American, well known to the New York police, is alleged to have planned a desperate attempt to steal some of the bar gold from the trucks attached to President Kruger's traveling capital. He is said to have carried off some bars before he was discovered.

The casualties made public by the war office, including a long list of missing, show British losses in engagements hitherto not reported. In an attack on a construction train at Leeuw Spruit on June 14, three were killed, five wounded and 60 captured. Leeuw Spruit is 40 miles north of Kroonstad. This was the day of the Zand river attack, 80 miles distant. Another list shows 9 wounded and 11 missing in an action at Vredefort, on June 7, no previous mention of which has been made.

The Daily Mail points out that it is quite possible the wires have again been cut in Lord Roberts' rear, as no dispatch later than June 16 has been received.

Warring Labor Factions.

Washington, June 20.—Two gatherings of the Knights of Labor of North America, each claiming to be the regular and legally constituted legislative body of the order, were in full swing here yesterday, each assembly having for its avowed object the deposing and removal from office of the leader of the rival faction. Neither faction expects to fully accomplish what it has set out to do without invoking the aid of the civil courts; and even then it seems doubtful if a split in the organization can be averted.

Charges of Extravagance Untrue.

Havana, June 20.—General Wood has issued the following statement: "The examination by expert accountants of the treasurer's office from the date of its inception, last year, has been completed. The office was found in excellent condition. It has also been conclusively proved that the charge of extravagance in the matter of salaries to Americans from the island funds is absolutely without foundation. The reports of extravagance in transportation and the like are absolutely false."

Fatalities at North Adams.

North Adams, Mass., June 20.—While Mrs. Buel G. Cole was driving through West Main street her horse became frightened and ran away. Mrs. Cole jumped from the wagon, crushing her skull, and died within an hour. Frank Bougeau, 14, was playing on a pile of empty barrels, which started to roll, carrying the lad under the wheels of a coal cart, which ran over and instantly killed him.

A Loss of Two Millions.

Bloomington, Ills., June 20.—Fire has left almost half the business portion of Bloomington in ashes. The courthouse and many of the best business blocks were swept away. The total loss is estimated at $2,000,000. Robert L. Schmidt, 17 years old, died as the result of shock occasioned by the destruction of buildings.

Forgery and Embezzlement Charged.

Chicago, June 20.—Count De Toulis Lautrec, who claims to be a French nobleman, and who was arrested here for the police authorities of Montreal charging him with forgery and embezzlement, was turned over to a Canadian officer yesterday and left in custody for Montreal.

Wants to Remain Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., June 20.—Governor Beckham, the youngest governor this state has ever had, and the youngest governor in the United States now, has issued a statement formally announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Almanac, Thursday, June 21.

Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:24.

Moon rises—12:01 a. m.

High water—5:45 a. m.; 6:15 p. m.

The temperature continues below the seasonal average in the Atlantic coast and southern states, and is 10 degrees to 15 degrees above the normal in the northwestern states. No well defined storm appears within the region of observation. In New England it will be fair and warmer. Along the coast fresh east to northeast winds will prevail.

Do not wash your hands and face with a common laundry soap, or if you do, don't complain when you find them rough, hard and chapped. Ordinary laundry soaps are good for scrubbing floors, but not for the skin. Ivory Soap makes a creamy lather that rinses easily and takes the dirt with it. The natural oil of the skin washed with Ivory Soap is not removed, and the skin is left soft and smooth.

LODGE NOMINATES M'KINLEY.

these reasons. The Kansas delegation determined to vote for Roosevelt, and told him so. Wisconsin is another state which seems to be determined to vote for Roosevelt. While there has been a great deal of talk about the influence of the administration in the vice-presidential contest, it is taken for granted that the President favors Long or the secretary would not be a candidate, but no one seems to have authority to use the president's name in a way to make delegates feel obliged to vote for any particular candidate.

TIMOTHY L. WOODRUFF.
Whose name will be presented for vice presidential nomination.

The convention was called to order shortly after noon today, and Senator Lodge, who was made permanent chairman, made the following address nominating William McKinley for the presidency:

We meet again to nominate the next president of the United States. Four years have pased since we nominated the soldier and statesman who is now president, and who is soon to enter upon his second term. Since the Civil war no presidential term has been so crowded with great events as that which is now drawing to a close. They have been four memorabe years. To Republicans they show a record of promises kept, of work done, of unforeseen questions met and answered. To the Democrats they have been generous in the exhibition of unfulfilled predictions, in the ruin of their hopes of calamity and in futile opposition to the forces of the times and the aspirations of the American people.

In 1897 we took the government and the country from the hands of President Cleveland. His party had abandoned him and were joined to their idols, of which he was no longer one. During the last years of his term we had presented to us the melancholy spectacle of a president trying to govern without a party. The result was that his policies were in ruin, legislation was at a standstill, and public affairs were in a perilous and incoherent condition.

We replaced this political chaos with a president in thorough accord with his party, and the machinery of government began again to move smoothly and effectively. Thus we kept at once our promise of better and more efficient administration. In four months after the inauguration of President McKinley we had passed a tariff bill. For 10 years the artificial agitation, in behalf of what was humorously called tariff reform, and of what was really free trade, had kept business in a ferment, and had brought a treasury deficit, paralyzed industries, depression, panic, and, finally, continuous bad times to a degree never before imagined. Would you know the result of our tariff legislation, look about you! Would you measure its success, recollect that it is no longer an issue; that there is not a state in the Union today which could be carried for free trade against protection. Never was a policy more fully justified by its works, never was a promise made by any party more absolutely fulfilled.

Dominant among the issues of four years ago was that of our monetary and financial system. The Republican party promised to uphold our credit, to protect our currency from revolution, and to maintain the gold standard. We have done so. We have done more. We have been better than our promise. Failing to secure, after honest effort, any encouragement for international bimetallism, we have passed a law strengthening the gold standard, and planting more firmly than ever in our financial system, improving our banking laws, buttressing our credit, and refunding the public debt at 2 percent interest, the lowest rate in the world. The only argument the Democrats can advance today in their own behalf on the money question is that a Republican senate, in the event of Democratic success, would not permit the repeal of a Republican law. This is a precious argument when looked at with considerate eyes, and quite worthy of the intellects which produced it. Upon this theory, because we have defeated the soldiers of Spain and sunk her ships, we can with safety dispense with the army and navy which did the work. The supremacy of the party that has saved the standard of sound money and guarded it by law is as necessary for its security and for the existence of honest wages and of business confidence now as it was in 1896. Sound currency and a steady standard of values are today safe only in Republican hands.

But there were still other questions in 1896. We had already thwarted the efforts of the Cleveland administration to throw the Hawaiian islands back to their dethroned queen, and to give England a foothold for her cables in the group. We then said that we would settle finally the Hawaiian question. We have done so. The traditional American policy has been carried out. The flag of the Union floats today over the cross-roads of the Pacific.

We promised to deal with the Cuban question. Again comes the reply, we have done so. The long agony of the island is over. Cuba is free. But this great work brought with it events and issues which no man had foreseen, for which no party creed had provided a policy. The crisis came, bringing war in its train. The Republican president and the Republican congress met the new trial in the old spirit. We fought the war with Spain. The result is history known of all men. Here they are, these great facts:

A war of 100 days, with many victories and no defeats, with no prisoners taken from us and no advance stayed, with a triumphant outcome startling in its completeness and in its world-wide meaning. Was ever a war more justly entered upon, more quickly fought, more fully won, more thorough in its results? Cuba is free. Spain has been driven from the western hemisphere. Fresh glory has come to our arms and crowned our flag. It was the work of the American people, but the Republican party was their instrument.

War, however, is ever like the sword of Alexander. It cuts the knots. It brings many results not to be foreseen. Spain sued for peace. How was that peace to be made? The answer to this great question had to be given by the President of the United States. We were victorious in Cuba, in Porto Rico, in the Philippines. Should we give those islands back to Spain? Never! was the president's reply. Would any American wish that he had answered otherwise? Should we hand them over to some other power? Never! was again the answer.

Would our pride and self respect as a nation have submitted to any other reply? Should we turn the islands, where we had destroyed all existing sovereignty, loose upon the world to be a prey to domestic anarchy and the helpless spoil of some other nation? Again the inevitable negative. Again the president answered as the nation he represented would have had him answer. He boldly took the islands, took them knowing well the burden and responsibility, and with an entire faith in the ability of the American people to grapple with the new task. When future conventions point to the deeds by which the Republican party has made history they will proclaim with especial pride that under a Republican administration the war of 1898 was fought, and that the peace with Spain was the work of William McKinley.

So much for the past. We are proud of it, but we do not expect to live upon it, for the Republican party is preeminently the party of action, and its march is ever forward. We are not so made that we can be content to retreat or to mark time.

The living present is ours, the present prosperity and activity in business, of good wages and quick payments, of labor employed and capital invested, of sunshine in the market place, and the stir of abounding life in the workshop and on the farm. It is with this that we have replaced the depression, the doubts, the low wages, the idle labor, the frightened capital, the dark clouds which overhung industry and agriculture in 1896. This is what we would preserve, so far as sound government and wise legislation can do it.

This is what we brought to the country four years ago. This is what we offer now. Again we promise that the protective system shall be maintained, and that our great industrial interests shall go on their way unshaken by the dire fear of tariff agitation and of changing duties. Again we declare that we will guard the national credit, uphold a sound currency based on gold and keep the wages of the workingmen and the enterprise of the man of business free from that most deadly of all evils, a fluctuating standard of value.

We are prepared to take steps to revive and build up our merchant marine, and thus put into American pockets the money paid for carrying American freights. Out of the abundant resources, which our financial legislation has brought us, we will build the isthmian canal, and lay the cables which will help to turn the current of eastern trade to the Golden Gate. We are on good terms with all nations, and mean to remain so, while we promise to insure our peace and safety by maintaining the Monroe doctrine, by ample coast defences, and by building up a navy which no one can challenge with impunity.

The new problems brought by the war we face with confidence in ourselves, and a still deeper confidence in the American people, who will deal justly and rightly with the islands which have come into their charge. The outcry against our new possessions is as empty as the cant about "militarism" and "imperialism" is devoid of sense and meaning. Regard for a moment those who are loudest in shrieking that the American people are about to enter upon a career of oppression, and that the republic is in danger. Is true freedom to be secured by the ascendancy of the party which seeks to establish through infamous laws the despotic rule of a small and unscrupulous band of usurpers in Kentucky, who trample there not upon the rights of the black men only, but of the whites, and which seeks to extend the same system to North Carolina and Missouri? Has it suddenly come to pass that the Democratic party which today aims whenever it acquires power to continue in office by crushing out honest elections and popular rule? Has it indeed come to pass, I say, that that party is the chosen protector of liberty? If it were so the outlook would be black indeed.

No. The party of Lincoln may best be trusted now, as in the past, to be true, even as he was true, to the rights of man and to human freedom. We will be faithful to the trust imposed upon us, and if among those to whom this great work is confided in Cuba, or elsewhere, wrongdoers shall be found, we will punish these basest of criminals to the extent of the law.

For the islands of Hawaii, and Porto Rico, the political problem has been solved, and by Republican legislation they have been given self-government, and are peaceful and prosperous under the rule of the United States.

In the Philippines we were met by rebellion, fomented by a self-seeking adventurer and usurper. The duty of the president was to repress that rebellion, to see to it that the authority of the United States, as rightfully and as righteous in Manila as in Philadelphia, was acknowledged and obeyed. That harsh and painful duty President McKinley has performed firmly and justly, eager to resort to gentle measures wherever possible, unyielding when treachery and violence made force necessary. The restoration of peace and order now so nearly reached in the Philippines shall be completed. Civil government shall be established, and the people advanced as rapidly as possible along the road to entire freedom and to self-government under our flag. We will not abandon our task. We will neither surrender nor retreat. We will not write failure across this page of our history. We will do our duty, our full duty, to the people of the Philippines, and strive by every means to give them freedom, contentment and prosperity.

We do not mean that the Philippines shall come without our tariff system or become part of our body politic. We do mean that they shall, under our teaching, learn to govern themselves and remain under our flag with the largest possible measure of home rule. We make no hypocritical pretence of being interested in the Philippines solely on account of others. While we regard the welfare of those people as a sacred trust, we regard the welfare of the American people first. We see our duty to ourselves as well as to others. We believe in trade expansion. By every legitimate means within the province of government and legislation we mean to stimulate the expansion of our trade and to open new markets.

Greatest of all markets is China. Our trade there is growing by leaps and bounds. Manila, the prize of war, gives us inestimable advantages in developing that trade. It is the cornerstone of our eastern policy, and the brilliant diplomacy of John Hay in securing from all nations a guarantee of our treaty rights and of the open door in China rests upon the

We ask the American people whether they will throw away these new markets and widening opportunities for trade and commerce by putting in power the Democratic party, who seek under cover of a newly discovered affection for the rights of man to give up these islands of the east and make Dewey's victory fruitless? The choice lies between this Democratic policy of retreat and the Republican policy which would hold the Islands, give them freedom and prosperity, and enlarge those great opportunities for ourselves and our posterity.

We take issue with the Democrats who would cast off the Philippines because the American people cannot be trusted with them, and we declare that the American people can be trusted to deal justly, wisely and generously with these distant islands and will lift them up to a higher prosperity, a broader freedom and a nobler civilization than they have ever known. We have not failed elsewhere. We shall not fail here.

Those are the questions we present to the American people in regard to the Philippines. Do they want such a humiliating change there as Democratic victory would bring? Do they want an even more radical change at home? We ask the American people whether they will put in the White House the hero of uncounted platforms, the prodigal spendthrift of words, the champion of free silver, the opponent of expansion, the assailant of the courts; or whether they will retain in the presidency the Union soldier, the leader of the house of representatives, the trained statesman who has borne victoriously the heavy burdens of the last four years; the champion of protection and sound money, the fearless supporter of law and order wherever the flag floats?

But there is one question we will put to the American people in this campaign which includes and outweighs all others. We will say to them: You were in the depths of adversity under the last Democratic administration; you are on the heights of prosperity today. Will that prosperity continue if you make a change in your president and in the party which administers your government? How long will your good times last if you turn out the Republicans and give political power to those who cry nothing but "Woe! Woe!"

Do you not know from recent and bitter experience what that arrest of movement, that fear of the future, means? It means the contraction of business, the reduction of employment, the increase of the unemployed, lower wages, hard times, distress, unhappiness. We do not say that we have panaceas for every ill. We point to the adversity of the Cleveland years lying dark behind us. It has been replaced by the prosperity of the McKinley years. Let them make whatever explanation they will, the facts are with us.

It is on these facts that we shall ask for the support of the American people. What we have done is known, and about what we intend to do there is neither secret nor deception. What we promise we will perform. Our old policies are here, alive, successful and full of vigor. Our new policies have been begun, and for them we ask support. When the clouds of impending civil war hung dark over the country in 1861 we took up the great task then laid upon us, and never flinched until we had carried it through to victory. Now, at the dawn of a new century, with new policies and new opportunities opening before us in the bright sunshine of prosperity, we again ask the American people to entrust us with their future. We have profound faith in the people. We do not distrust their capacity of meeting the new responsibilities even as they met the old, and we shall await with confidence, under the leadership of William McKinley, the verdict of November.

The Addicks delegation from Delaware was last night seated by the committee on credentials, 38 to 9. The fight between the Dupont and Addicks factions has been waged ever since 1895, and the struggle last night before the committee was the hottest they ever had. Both sides had a long array of legal talent to speak for them.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE

Unconfirmed Report of the Killing of All Foreigners In Pekin.

Seven Hundred Chinamen Killed In Taku Forts.

Hundreds of Christians Attacked at French Mission Settlement and Many Killed.

London, June 20.—A dispatch from Shanghai announces that the United States transport Thomas, with troops for Manila, was diverted at Nagasaki and has arrived at Taku with 1200 men.

"The Russian relieving force arrived outside of Pekin this morning," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, "and immediately began to attack the city on two sides, employing numerous artillery.

"The force apparently arrived in the nick of time, for the Chinese assert that the attack upon the legations had been successfully renewed. On the night of June 16 the Chinese troops attacked the legations and set on fire five European buildings. Nothing definite is known as to the result except that the Chinese were disappointed, although other reports, utterly discredited by foreigners here, are that the Chinese, infuriated by the destruction of Taku, have since massacred all the foreigners in Pekin."

A modified version of these rumors received at Berlin is that the French, as well as the German minister, has been killed. The English at Shanghai think that the Chinese had foreign advice in organizing the defenses at Taku, because of the precision with which their attack was delivered.

The wires connecting with the harbor mines were cut by the boats of the warships the night before the bombardment. It is now reported at Shanghai that it was on board the Russian cruiser Korietz, and not the Mandschur, that the explosion occurred, killing and wounding more than 50. It is reported that no fewer than 700 Chinese were killed in the forts.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express says he is officially informed that Japan is mobilizing 25,000 men for immediate transport. The whole fleet of the Japanese merchant shipping company has been chartered.

The British cruiser Undaunted arrived at Shanghai yesterday, cleared for action and took up a position commanding the Chinese forts. There are three Chinese cruisers in the harbor.

The new Chinese cruiser Hai Yang has been taken into custody at Taku by the British and Russians.

At Yum Nan Fu, where the rising has been gathering force for several days, 680 Christians have been attacked at the French mission settlement, many being put to death. The French consul and three missionaries are still in prison.

The disorderly elements have secured the upper hand at Wuhu and Czechuan, where the native Christians have been massacred.

A thousand Boxers have gathered on the outskirts of Tien Tsin.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily News, telegraphing yesterday, says: "The Chinese officials here assert that they have news from Pekin up to June 17. The situation was then very serious. Beyond that they claim to have received nothing; but they deny that dispatches have been withheld. Although I am not willing to adopt the alarmist reports, my impression, gathered from the consuls and the Chinese authorities, is that the worst is to be feared in Pekin.

"Admiral Seymour's column is now in the middle of an arid plain, with no food and no good water, and surrounded by hostile forces."

Man and Woman Wounded.

St. Louis, June 20.—There were two shooting affairs last night as a result of the strike. As a passenger wagon was passing a transit line car some of its passengers taunted those on the car by calling them scabs. Some one on the car fired a shot at the wagon, the bullet lodging in the foot of Peter Bonifer, one of the passengers on the wagon. Miss Minnie Allen was shot and seriously wounded under similar circumstances.

Hamlin to Defend Champion.

Alfred, Me., June 20.—George Champion, the suspected West Newfield murderer, has secured Charles S. Hamilton of Biddeford as his counsel, and the latter had a two-hours' interview with the prisoner in his cell yesterday afternoon. It is thought that the change of Champion's weakening or making a confession have been materialy decreased since his latest move in securing counsel.

A Legislative Investigation.

Boston, June 20.—As a result of the order which passed the Massachusetts house recently, relative to an investigation of the charges of corruption on the Westminster Chambers bill, the committee on rules yesterday opened the investigation. It was carried on behind closed doors. The investigation is unfinished.

Killed by Electricity.

Lowell, Mass., June 20.—Edward McCaffrey, aged 17, while cleaning a chandelier under an electric light in a clothing store, lost his balance on a step ladder and to save himself grasped the wires, forming a circuit through his body, killing him instantly.

Probably Fell From Wharf.

Gloucester, Mass., June 20.—The body of Lawrence Collins, 5 years old, was found floating in a dock Tuesday night. The boy had evidently fallen overboard while playing on the wharf.

Peasants Killed by Military.

Bucharest, June 20.—The insurrection in Bulgaria is spreading. Fifty peasants have been killed by the military at Duran Lekar.

The Pinkham Remedies

For disorders of the feminine organs have gained their great renown and enormous sale because of the permanent good they have done and are doing for the women of this country.

If all ailing or suffering women could be made to understand how absolutely true are the statements about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, their sufferings would end.

Mrs. Pinkham counsels women free of charge. Her address is Lynn, Mass. The advice she gives is practical and honest. You can write freely to her; she is a woman.

McKINLEY AND ROOSEVELT.

Senator Hanna Unable to Stem the Tide in Favor of Rough Rider From New York.

COLONEL THEODORE ROOSEVELT, U. S. V. From HARPER'S WEEKLY.

Candidates Are Nominated by Acclamation at Republican Convention.

Platform Adopted--Endorses McKinley Administration in Wisdom and Patriotism.

Philadelphia, June 21.—Theodore Roosevelt probably will be nominated for vice president by acclamation. The plan is simple and the result sought can easily be brought about. There will be no necessity for a rollcall. When the time arrives for nominating a vice president, the roll of states will be called. When Iowa is reached some delegate will arise and withdraw Dolliver and place Roosevelt in nomination. Massachusetts will follow, withdrawing Long and seconding the nomination of the New York man. This is the plan, and if it is done there will be no need of a ballot. The stampede which began on Sunday and which seemed to have received a check on Monday will have ended in the nomination of Roosevelt.

The original program was to renominate McKinley yesterday, and to nominate the candidate for vice president today. But the national Republican committee had made a compact with the local Philadelphia committee to keep the convention here for three days, and it was feared that if the nomination for president was made the convention might take the bit in its teeth and wind up the proceedings before dark. Knowing the temper of the delegates and the crowds, Mr. Hanna decided to take no risks and consequently the immense crowds which blackened the vast amphitheatre were compelled to content themselves with the routine incidents connected with the permanent organization, an oration by Senator Lodge, the permanent chairman, and the scene which attended the unanimous adoption of the platform. They then returned to the city to wait another 24 hours for the nominations which they have traveled, some hundreds, some thousands of miles, to witness. It was a great disappointment to most of them.

The machinery of the convention moved so smoothly that the session did not afford them an opportunity to let off steam. There was not the slightest jar. The wheels moved as noiselessly as a Corliss engine. The hand of Hanna was at the helm. He is an experienced and accomplished engineer.

At one point, when the convention scraped on a sand bar, over a proposition advanced by ex-Senator Quay of Pennsylvania to cut down the representation from the southern states in future conventions to a basis of votes polled for the Republican candidate, the lever was reversed and the convention promptly backed off, thus avoiding the threatened shoal by postponing a decision upon the subject until today.

The southern delegates, without regard to color, race or previous condition, are much incensed over what they regard as a blow at their power in national conventions, and the growl they emitted indicates that they propose to fight in their effort to avert it.

Mr. Quay's resolution is the principal topic of discussion among the delegates. Those from the southern states are working like beavers to stem the tide which seems to be running towards the adoption of the resolution. They declare that its adoption means death to Republicanism in the south. They are presenting their case to every northern delegation. Many of the delegations held informal caucuses, but as a rule no definite decision was reached. Many individual delegates from northern states openly declare their intention of supporting the resolution, either in its present or in its proposed amended form. The proposition has strong backing in the New England states, in New York and Pennsylvania, and in the northwestern states.

Again Governor Roosevelt carried off the honors. His entrance was again the signal for the most pronounced demonstration of the session. He still wore his rough rider hat. Some of his austerity had departed. With the relaxation of Mr. Hanna's opposition the governor realized that he must succumb to the inevitable. And he appeared resigned to his fate.

Senator Lodge made a fine figure as he delivered his address as permanent chairman. His finely-poised head, closely-cropped iron-grey beard, delicately chiseled features, and slender, athletic frame, were clearly outlined. As he faced the convention his voice, though resonant, has a down east raspiness, but his delivery is pleasing and forceful, and his speech was the scholarly, clear-cut effort expected of him.

But it covered the same general ground Senator Wolcott went over Tuesday, and though some of the fine periods elicited applause, as a whole, it did not stir up any great enthusiasm. Neither did the reading of the platform, a very strong document, by Senator Fairbanks, and for the same reason. Both in different forms of epitomes of the record of the administration upon which the party will ask the country to return it to power—a record eloquently placed before the convention by Senator Wolcott.

The most striking incident of the day was the appearance on the stage of 15 of the survivors of the original convention, held in Locust street in 1856, in this city. All the stirring memories of the exciting days when the country was on the verge of a great bloody con-

Good Afternoon.

Gov. Roosevelt was never more popular with the people of the country than he is today. He has the qualities which stir the enthusiasm of men.

There is a lively rivalry among the ship-builders to get the contracts for constructing the five battleships and six cruisers authorized by the late session of Congress.

Hon. John A. Kasson, ex-minister to Austria, and one of the best authorities on international law in this country, said: "The U. S. would be warranted in landing an unlimited force on Chinese soil if it is developed that the Chinese government is unable to protect the sanctity of the American legation and the person of its minister."

As all the successors of Col. Parker, as superintendents of Quincy schools have been teachers of the city, it is probable that the successor of Supt. Lull will be one of the present or past teachers of Quincy. We do not know that any are candidates, but no mistake would be made if the School Committee elected either Miss Dearborn, the principal of the Coddington; Mr. Finch the principal of both the Wollaston and the Massachusetts Fields schools, or Mr Harper, the headmaster of the High school. As all of our superintendents Parker, Brown, Aldrich and Lull—have taught in Manchester, N. H., it may not be possible to make a change, and therefore it looks very much like Supt. Dearborn, who came to Quincy from that city. Women as superintendents are an exception, but Quincy establishes precedents.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Mark Twain asserts that he has written more than 400 dramas. But it may be that he is playing with the public.—Portsmouth Chronicle.

☞ The civilized nations would be glad to listen to a few remarks from our yellow-jacketed and peacock-feathered friend, Li Hung Chang.—New Haven Paliadium.

☞ Mr. Van Wyck should take exemplary measures against the men who got him into a trust and then made him rich while he was preoccupied with other things.—Chicago Record.

☞ Many immigrants have come to this port of late, who are regarded as suspicious cases, of doubtful fitness for admission. There is always one safe rule to apply to them: In case of doubt reject them.—New York Tribune.

☞ Let it be supposed for a moment that China has been politically dismembered. How will the qualities which have been enumerated, namely, conservatism, utilitarianism, virility, and solidarity, work out their result under the changed conditions? It will be of little use to institute a comparison between India and China under alien administration. The difference between the Indian and the Chinaman cannot be spanned by any mental bridge. One thing, to be sure, they have in common—enormous mass; and the comparatively small impression that English civilization has made upon the masses of India may be a slight indication of what we shall find in China; but even thus the superior energy, thrift, and vitality of the Chinese will relegate the whole matter to the realm of probabilities. — The Outlook.

Nominated for President by Acclamation.

Roosevelt the Choice for Vice President.

A Roll of the States Was Called at 1.58 Today.

[Special to the Quincy Ledger.]

Philadelphia, 2 P. M.—Hon. William McKinley was renominated for President by acclamation, at the Republican convention this afternoon. Gov. Roosevelt seconded the nomination.

Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, was then placed in nomination for Vice President by Col. Lafayette Young of Iowa, and at 1.58 the convention proceeded to a ballot. Gov. Roosevelt was practically the unanimous choice of the convention and enthusiasm was unbounded.

Sargent-Shepherd.

Just as the sun was setting Wednesday night the clouds broke away and the sky cleared, leaving a rosy light over all the earth. May this be a happy omen for the bride, Miss Elizabeth J. Shepherd and the groom, Mr. Ezekiel C. Sargent, who were united in marriage at eight o'clock on that evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shepherd of River street.

Only the two families, relatives and intimate friends were present. The bride was attended by a matron of honor, Mrs. Arthur W. Harris, and the groom by his brother, Mr. Walter L. Sargent. Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy solemnized the marriage—the double ring service being used. The bridal party stood in front of a bank of green and white, above which was suspended two letters, S. S., one of pink roses and the other of white roses. Miss Ida J. Cameron presided at the piano and played the wedding march.

The bride looked charming in her white bridal robes. Her veil was caught up with maiden hair ferns and roses and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. The matron of honor was dainty in a white organdie over blue taffeta, with garniture of blue ribbon rosette and streamers. She carried a bouquet of white pinks.

During the informal reception which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sargent were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shepherd, and the groom's mother, Mrs. C. E. Sargent.

The house was beautifully decorated with June roses and green foliage, by friends of the bride. There were many presents from the hosts of friends.

After the wedding supper and congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Sargent left amid a shower of rice for a ten days' trip. On their return they will reside on Newcomb place, where they have a prettily furnished home. They will be at home to their friends, on Wednesday evening, October tenth, from eight until ten.

On Opposite Sides.

Representatives Sheppard and Sprague were again on opposite sides in the legislature on Wednesday. The question was on substituting Mr. Apsey's bill for the 75-cent gas bill for Boston, the former giving the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners power to annul contracts made between gas companies where the price is greater than the cost of manufacture by the purchasing company. Mr. Sheppard voted yea and Mr. Sprague nay. Then the former was in favor of referring to the next General Court while the latter opposed. The nays won each time.

Miss Lulu Nelson of Atlantic street will start Wednesday for New Haven, Maine, where she will stay two months at the summer residence of H. W. Champlin of Boston, as his private stenographer.

The street railway announces that as permission to locate a band stand in City square has been refused, no more Saturday night concerts will be given. This will be a disappointment to the thousands who enjoy these concerts.

Rocker for Auntie Pratt.

Tuesday evening a surprise party was given Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt at her home on Washington street, to assist her in celebrating her 70th birthday. About thirty of the Relief Corps and twelve of her neighbors and friends contributed toward a rattan rocker and lamp. The rocker was presented by Miss Elvira Ewell, who spoke as follows: "Dear Auntie Pratt—We are gathered here this evening, representatives the Woman's Relief Corps, to assist you in commemorating the 70th anniversary of your birthday. It has been our intention to leave something as a token of the love we have for you, therefore, I take pleasure, Auntie Pratt, in presenting you this chair, in remembrance of your three score and ten years of useful life, and pray that within its arms you will rock out many more such years. Accept it, I pray, in the name of the ladies of our Corps." The lamp was presented by Mrs. George Crane. A collation was served and after bidding Auntie Pratt many happy returns of the day, the guests departed at 10 o'clock.

HAS ACCEPTED.

Supt. Lull Notifies Newport School Committee.

The Progress in Quincy During His Term.

He Combined Literary Talent With Business Sagacity.

Herbert W. Lull, superintendent of our public schools, has forwarded to the School Committee of Newport, R. I., his acceptance of the office of superintendent in that city, to take effect Sept. 1, much to regret of those interested in Quincy schools.

Supt. Lull has been a success in Quincy; a gentleman of literary ability who set a high ideal for our schools; a gentleman of executive ability, who secured good teachers and had no demoralized school rooms; a business man, who handled prudently and well the appropriations entrusted to him; a gentleman who was among the leaders at educational conventions and literary meetings, a ready and a forcible speaker, whose remarks always had considerable meat.

Mr. Lull is the fourth superintendent of the Quincy schools. Col. Parker, the first, came in April, 1875, and was succeeded in April, 1880, by Sylvester Brown. Supt. Aldrich came in April 1883, and Mr. Lull succeeded him in January, 1892. The terms of Messrs. Lull and Aldrich will be almost identical in length each serving eight years and two terms.

Under the superintendency of Mr. Lull four brick school houses with 38 rooms have been erected, and a fifth of nine rooms is building. These are the Lincoln erected in 1892, the High in 1894, the Gridley Bryant and Massachusetts Fields in 1897, and the Cranch school now building.

In Jan. 1892, there were 71 teachers, and in Jan. 1900, there were 119, an increase of 48. But 27 of the teachers previous to 1892 now remain. In Jan. 1892, the average number of pupils was 2,865 and the average daily attendance 2,733; in Jan. 1900, the average number of pupils was 4,555 and the average daily attendance 4,250; an increase of 1,690 in the number and 1,517 in the attendance, or about 60 per cent. The High school has grown immensely popular, and during the same period has increased more than three times the attendance of Jan. 1892.

Progress is further shown by the introduction of sewing into the grammar schools in 1892; of cooking into the High school in 1892; and of vertical writing into the schools generally in 1896.

The economical management of the school is shown by a recent report to the Legislature which showed the expenditure per pupil in Quincy to be but $21.54, while the average for the State was $24.27. One town in Norfolk county expended $49.42 per pupil, and another $35.27.

That educational authorities recognize Supt. Lull's ability, is shown by the fact that he is in demand at the summer institutes. At present he is engaged to lecture at the Salem Summer Institute, July 5-13; and the Plymouth, N. H., Summer Institute, August 15-21; on the Subject: "Educative desk work and primary school management."

—It is estimated that at the beginning of the new century England will have 83,000,000,000 tons of coal still unused and available.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; shop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

Kincaide's Way.

He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it

Is Superior.

It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

Kincaide's Way.

He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it

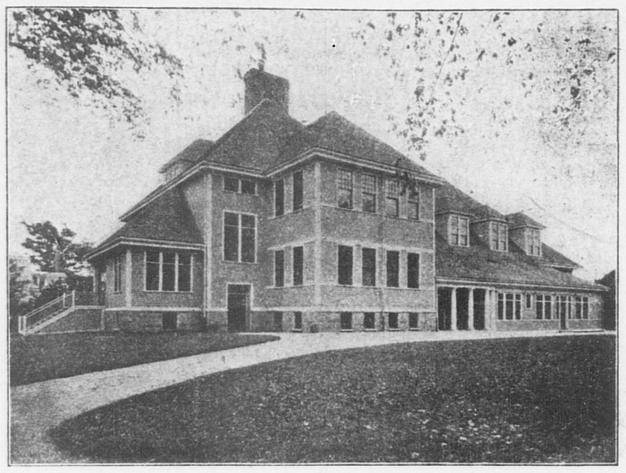

Is Superior.

It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

GRADUATION AT THE WOODWARD.

A Stated Meeting of Debating Society One of the Features of the Program.

A class of 21 Quincy-born young ladies, who have completed a six-years' course at the Woodward Institute was graduated Wednesday evening in the school hall, in the presence of an audience which crowded the building. The hall was fragrant with fern, large brakes banking the blackboards, while laurel festooned the drawing of Dr. Woodward, and other pictures. The program was one of great excellence, and the only adverse criticism we would make would be upon its great length, there being enough for two evenings. It was as follows:

Woodward Hymn, Alumnae and school.
Salutatory, Janet F. Carr.
Chorus, School,
(a.) "Clouds," Hatton
(b.) "Daybreak, Deane.
Essay, "Needed Reforms in American Politics," Eleanor P. Randall.
Discussion, "Quincy and its Needs,"
Woodward Institute Debating Society.
Chorus, School,
(a.) "Hope in the Lord," Handel
(b.) "Sunset," Hugo Jungst.
Class Prophecy,
Mabel E. Pierce,
Catherine A. Lennon.
Valedictory, Helen H. Baxter.
Class song,
Address, "Books and Reading,"
Professor E. Charlton Black.
"Dear Woodward," School.
Presentation of Diplomas,
By Rev. Ellery Channing Butler.
Chairman of the Board of Directors.
March, School.

The Woodward's reputation for singing is well established and all the musical number under the direction of Prof. Buckingham were very pleasing.

The salutatory was unusually bright and original, and couched in excellent language. The sentiments, too, met with favor, and the verdict of the audience was "very good."

The essay of Miss Randall handled her subject "without gloves," if we may use a homely comparison. The essayist seemed to get at the root of political evils, and suggested changes. There were sharp thrusts for politicians, voters who neglect their duties and others. One remedy was the education of women and giving her the franchise.

The unique feature of the evening was the part taken by the Woodward Institute Debating Society, which held a stated monthly meeting. Miss Louise E. Joss, the president, was in the chair. Miss Edith G. Olney, the secretary, read the report of the last meeting, which summed up at length papers pro and con on College Education as essential for public school work. The transaction of business followed. The essayist at the meeting was Miss Ethel F. Babcock, who read a paper, "Quincy and Its Needs." Miss Babcock could not say Quincy was perfect. It was famous for history, but Hancock hall or the Hancock House were not fitting memorials to the first signer of the Declaration of Independence born here. In brief, Adams street should be beautified by a stone railroad bridge, shade trees should be planted, the Mt. Wollaston cemetery was too worldly, the view of Blacks creek from Hancock street should be preserved, the natural beauty of Merrymount park should remain untouched. Quincy would soon be an ideal place, and we might expect it to be as firm and stable as its granite.

It was voted that the discussion be made informal, and it became animated. It was not at all one-sided, and only a verbatim report would do it justice.

The subject for the next meeting was a very appropriate summing up: Resolved that the 20th century has begun.

The class prophecy was not overdrawn as is frequently the case, and greatly amused the graduates in particular.

The valedictory was a superior production which emphasized character and other ideals of the class.

Prof. Black's address contained food for much thought on the lines: how to read; what to read. He said there was danger that public libraries would be demoralizing, and would have people read books which elevate.

Rev. E. C. Butler presented the diplomas in his usual interesting way.

An exhibit of drawings was made by the school. There were congratulations to Miss Small and the other teachers, as well as the graduates for the excellence of the work at the Woodward.

The graduates: Ethel Frances Babcock, Helen Hoyt Baxter, Elisabeth Agnes Burns, Estella Cannon, Janet Faxon Carr, Elizabeth Frances Curley, Caroline Angelia Glover, Phebe Ethel Harris, Annie Siverina Johnson, Louise Elizabeth Joss, Mary Agatha Keefe, Tina Marie King, Catherine Ann Lennon, Annie Louise Hylande Mahoney, Margaret Westland Milne, Breta Frances Mitchell, Edith Gibson Olney, Alice Beatrice O'Niel, Mabel Elizabeth Pierce, Elinor Pickering Randall, Myra Harlow Spear.

The class of 1900 will give a reception this evening at the Institute

Teacher Surprised.

A surprise party was given Miss Grace G. Howard, teacher in the seventh grade of the Adams school, Wednesday evening. A hurdy-gurdy played a cakewalk and Miss M. Gladys Chubbuck danced it. Several waltzes were greatly enjoyed by the youthful couples. Games were played and refreshments were served. The young ladies present were: Misses M. Gladys Chubbuck, Ethel M. Pearson, Mabel Silva, Flossie Flowers, Kate Gilcoine, Kate Skinner, Mildred G. Rogers, Frances and Lizzie Desmond, Mary McDonnell, Flossie Nightingale, Agnes Neagle, and Annie McAuliffe. Thirteen actually proved to be an unlucky number in two instances. Miss M. G. Chubbuck sang a solo, and the Misses Frances and Lizzie Desmond, Ethel Pearson, Kate Skinner, and Flossie Flowers sang, "A Voice From The West." The evening was greatly enjoyed by all. Miss Howard is a general favorite.

Wedded At City Hall.

Shortly before noon today a hack drove up to City Hall. A young lady and gentleman alighted and entered the City Clerk's office. A marriage license was quickly obtained and then entering the bridal room the pair were soon made one. City Clerk Cleaves performing the simple ceremony. The service over and congratulations extended the bridal party with their witnesses took their departure. The young gentleman was Eunico Brogiolo and the lady, Amelia Cacciagnia, both of Quincy.

The Atlantic Depot.

The foundation for the new depot at Atlantic was completed this morning. Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting a solid foundation and an unusual amount of granite was therefore required, the amount being 10,000 cubic feet. At the Quincy station but 3750 cubic feet was required. The stone was furnished by E. J. Sandberg

SEYMOUR IS AT PEKIN.

Relief Column Reported to Have Reached the Capital on Sunday.

Bombardment of Taku Forts Was Gory In the Extreme.

Report of Murder of the Emperor and Suicide of the Empress Dowager.

London, June 21.—A news agency dispatch from Shanghai, dated June 20, says: "After an ardous march and frequent fighting with the Chinese, Vice Admiral Seymour arrived at Pekin Sunday afternoon. On five occasions the Chinese attacked the column in great force. There were many mounted men among the Chinese, but most of the natives were badly armed. At times they fought with admirable courage and bravery. The losses of the Chinese during the march are estimated at 500 killed. The losses of the foreigners were trifling. The exact state of affairs inside Pekin it is impossible to describe, in view of the many conflicting reports, nothing having been received from the legations or foreigners there."

BARON VON KETTELER.
[Reported a victim of the Boxers.]

Reports of Admiral Seymour's arrival at Pekin and of the safety of the foreign legations, originating from Chinese sources and cabled to this city from Shanghai, are still unverified. However, the Italian consul at Shanghai has wired to the Italian foreign minister that the legations are safe.

The rebellion is spreading far and wide. There is an impression in diplomatic circles here and on the continent that the allies have not yet grappled with the situation effectively and that even 50,000 troops would be powerless to do much to control 4,000,000 square miles.

The latest story sent out by the Shanghai gossips is that Prince Tuan, president of the Chinese foreign office, has burned the imperial palace at Pekin and murdered the emperor, and that the empress dowager has committed suicide.

The effect of the bombardment of the Taku forts, as described by the Shanghai correspondents, was gory in the extreme—nothing less than "rivers of blood" and "multilated corpses piled up inside the forts."

The Russians guarding Tien Tsin, according to another report, fired artillery and rifles June 15 at a range of 50 yards into dense crowds of attacking Boxers, and killed 300.

Japan, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Yokohama, intends to land an expedition at Foo Chow.

"Invincibles'" Appeal Is Overruled.

Washington, June 21.—The appeal which was taken in the case of Fitzharris and Mullet, who are in New York under orders for deportation, has been decided against them, and the men will be deported. Fitzharris and Mullet were recently released from English prisons, where they had been serving sentences for their share in the Phoenix park assassination. They are deported under the section of the immigration law forbidding the landing of convicts, theirs being held not to have been a political crime.

Was Whirled to Death.

Riverpoint, R. I., June 21.—James Ford, 17 years old, employed as a washer tender at the bleachery of the Clyde print works, was caught by a belt and whirled around the shaft. Before the engine could be stopped Ford's lifeless body, from which both arms and one of the legs had been torn, was flung to the floor.

No Signs of Crookedness.

San Juan, P. R., June 21.—Postal Inspector Sinclair sailed for New York yesterday after completing his examination of 70 offices. The accounts were found in perfect order, and no shortages developed. Mr. Sinclair expressed himself as pleased with the general efficiency of the postmasters.

The K. of L. Muddle.

Washington, June 21.—The two factions of the Knights of Labor, each claiming to be the only legal body, continued their sessions here yesterday The adherents of both sides have been given assurances by their attorneys that they have a good standing before the court.

Bogus Bills In Circulation.

New York, June 21.—The secret service officers are in Jersey City trying to locate a gang of counterfeiters who are distributing bad $10 silver certificates bearing the likeness of Vice President Hendricks. The bill is fairly easy of detection.

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT.

flict over slavery swelled up as those old lovers of liberty faced a new generation, bearing in their hands the faded, tattered flag of a generation that has passed into history. Senator Hawley of Connecticut was the only one of the 15 who still holds a prominent place upon the stage of the present. The cheer that went up at the sight of them shook the building. It rose again even more tumultuously when their spokesman announced their unwavering allegiance to the party they had helped to bring forth.

Two historic gavels, one from the trees under which the immortal Garfield won his star at the battle of Middle Creek, Ky., another made from the wood of the old capitol at Providence, R. I., and adorned with bronze from the hull of America's cup defender Columbia, were presented to the convention during the day.

Hanna's Announcement.

Senator Hanna last night authorized the following statement:

"The administration has had no candidate for vice president. It has not been for or against any candidate. It has deemed that the convention should make the candidate, and that has been my position throughout. It has been a free field for all. In these circumstances several eminent Republicans have been proposed; all of them distinguished men with many friends.

"I will now say that on behalf of all of those candidates, and I except none, that I have within the last 12 hours been asked to give my advice. After consulting with as many delegates as possible in time within my disposal I have concluded to accept the responsibility involved in this request. In the present situation, with the strong and earnest sentiment of the delegates from all parts of the country for Governor Roosevelt, and since President McKinley is to be nominated without a dissenting voice, it is my judgment that Governor Roosevelt should be nominated for vice president with the same unanimity."

This announcement of Senator Hanna was made after a long consultation with many leaders of the party. He called all the newspaper men in one of the rooms where the consultations had taken place and read it from manuscript.

Just before the statement was given out Chairman Odell of New York spent a few minutes in the room and when he came out he said: "The whole matter got into a snarl and was left to Senator Hanna to arbitrate, and his decision is that the vice presidency should go to New York and Roosevelt will be nominated."

The program is to have Iowa withdraw Dolliver and nominate Roosevelt, Massachusetts will withdraw Long and second the nomination. Probably other states with candidates will follow suit.

This will enable the convention to finish its business and adjourn today.

Immediately following Mr. Hanna's announcement of the withdrawal of all the other candidates and the nomination of Governor Roosevelt for vice president by acclamation, Mr. Dolliver authorized the following statement:

CONGRESSMAN J. P. DOLLIVER.

Cheerfully makes way for Roosevelt.

"My candidacy has been wholly unsolicited. I have not up to this moment spoken one word seeking the nomination to even a member of my own delegation. Tonight Mr. Long, Mr. Scott and myself placed our candidacies in Mr. Hanna's hands to dispose of as he saw fit. It was agreed that our names would not be presented to the convention, and upon my request Lafe Young of my state will place Mr. Roosevelt's name in nomination in behalf of the nation. I believe that the name of Governor Roosevelt on the ticket will give it greater strength and enthusiasm than the name of any other man in America."

TEXT OF THE PLATFORM.

Republicans Have Carried Out Pledges Regarding Tariff and Currency.

The expectation in which the American people, turning from the Democratic party intrusted power four years ago to a Republican chief magistrate and a Republican congress, has been met and satisfied. When the people then assembled at the polls, after a term of Democratic legislation and administration, business was dead, industry paralyzed and the national credit disastrously impaired. The country's capital was hidden away, and its labor distressed and unemployed. The Democrats had no other plan with which to improve the ruinous conditions which they had themselves produced than to coin silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. The Republican party, denouncing this plan as sure to produce conditions even worse than those from which relief was sought, promised to restore prosperity by means of two legislative measures—a protective tariff and a law making gold the standard of value. The people by great majorities issued to the Republican party a commission to enact these laws. This commission has been executed, and the Republican promise is redeemed. Prosperity more general and abundant than we have ever known has followed these enactments.

And while the American people, sustained by this Republican legislation, have been achieving splendid triumphs in their business and commerce, they have conducted and in victory concluded a war for liberty and human rights. No thought of national aggrandizement tarnished the high purpose with which American standards were unfurled. It was a war unsought and patiently resisted, but when it came the American government was ready. Its fleets were cleared for action. Its armies were in the field and the quick and signal triumph of its forces on land and sea bore equal tribute to the courage of American soldiers and sailors, and to the skill and foresight of Republican statesmanship. To 10,000,000 of the human race there was given "a new birth of freedom" and to the American people a new and noble responsibility.

We indorse the administration of William McKinley. Its acts have been established in wisdom and in patriotism, and at home and abroad it has distinctly elevated and extended the influence of the American nation. Walking untried paths and facing unforeseen responsibilities President McKinley has been in every situation the true American patriot and the upright statesman, clear in vision, strong in judgment, firm in action, always inspiring and deserving the confidence of his countrymen.

Adhered to Gold Standard.

We renew our allegiance to the principle of the gold standard, and declare our confidence in the wisdom of the legislation of the Fixty-Sixth congress by which the parity of all our money and the stability of our currency upon a gold basis has been secured. We recognize that interest rates are potent factors in production and business activity, and for the purpose of further equalizing and of further lowering the rates of interest we favor such monetary legislation as will enable the varying needs of the season and of all sections to be promptly met in order that trade may be evenly sustained, labor steadily employed and commerce enlarged. The volume of money in circulation was never so great per capita as it is today. We declare our steadfast opposition to the free and unlimited coinage of silver. No measure to that end could be considered which was without the support of the leading commercial countries of the world.

We recognize the necessity and propriety of the honest co-operation of capital to meet new business conditions and especially to extend our rapidly increasing foreign trade, but we condemn all conspiracies and combinations intended to restrict business, to create monopolies, to limit production or to control prices, and favor such legislation as will effectively restrain and prevent all such abuses, protect and promote competition and secure the rights of producers, laborers and all who are engaged in industry and commerce.

We renew our faith in the policy of protection to American labor. In that policy our industries have been established, diversified and maintained. By protecting the home market competition has been stimulated and production cheapened. Opportunity to the inventive genius of our people has been secured, and wages in every department of labor maintained at high rates, higher now than ever before, and always distinguishing our workingpeople in their better conditions of life from those of any competing country. We favor the associated policy of reciprocity so directed as to open our markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce in return for free foreign markets.

Restriction of Immigration Favored.

In the further interest of American workmen, we favor a more effective restriction of the immigration of cheap labor from foreign lands, the extension of opportunities of education for working children, the raising of the age limit for child labor, the protection of free labor as against contract convict labor, and an effective system of labor insurance.

Our present dependence upon foreign shipping for nine-tenths of our foreign carrying is a great loss to the industry of this country. The national defense and naval efficiency of this country, moreover, supply a compelling reason for legislation which will enable us to recover our former place among the trade carrying fleets of the world.

The nation owes a debt of profound gratitude to the soldiers and sailors who have fought its battles, and it is the government's duty to provide for the survivors and for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen in the country's wars.

We commend the policy of the Republican party in maintaining the efficiency of the civil service.

Negro Disfranchisement Condemned.

It was the plain purpose of the 15th amendment to the constitution to prevent discrimination on account of race or color in regulating the elective franchise. Devices of state governments, whether by statutory or constitutional enactment, to avoid the purpose of this amendment are revolutionary, and should be condemned.

Public movements looking to a permanent improvement of the roads and highways of the country meet with our cordial approval.

We favor the extension of the rural free delivery service wherever its extension may be justified.

We favor home rule for and the early admission to statehood of the territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma.

The Dingley act, amended to provide sufficient revenue for the conduct of the war, has so well performed its work that it has been possible to reduce the war debt in the sum of $40,000,000. The country is now justified in expecting and it will be the policy of the Republican party to bring about a reduction of the war taxes.

We favor the construction, ownership, control and protection of an isthmian canal by the government of the United States.

New markets are necessary for the increasing surplus of our farm products. In the interest of our expanding commerce we recommend that congress create a department of commerce and industries in the charge of a secretary with a seat in the cabinet. The United States consular system should be reorganized under the supervision of this new department.

The American government must protect the person and property of every citizen wherever they are wrongfully violated or placed in peril.

President McKinley has conducted the foreign affairs of the United States with distinguished credit to the American people. In releasing us from the vexatious conditions of a European alliance for the government of Samoa his course is especially to be commended. By securing to our undivided control the most important island of the Samoan group and the best harbor in the southern Pacific, every American interest has been safeguarded.

We commend the part taken by our government in the peace conference at The Hague. We assert our steadfast adherence to the policy announced in the Monroe doctrine. The provisions of The Hague convention were wisely regarded when President McKinley tendered his friendly offices in the interest of peace between Great Britain and the South African republics.

Philippine Policy Endorsed.

In accepting by the treaty of Paris the just responsibility of our victories in the Spanish war, the president and the senate won the undoubted approval of the American people. That course created our responsibility before the world and with the unorganized population whom our intervention had freed from Spain, to provide for the maintenance of law and order and for the establishment of good government and for the performance of international obligations. Our authority could not be less than our responsibility, and wherever sovereign rights were extended it became the high duty of the government to maintain its authority, to put down armed insurrection and to confer the blessings of liberty and civilization upon all the rescued peoples. The largest measure of self-government consistent with their welfare and our duties shall be secured to them by law.

To Cuba independence and self-government were assured in the same voice by which war was declared, and to the letter this pledge shall be performed.

The Republican party, upon its history and upon this declaration of its principles and policies, confidently invokes the consideration and approving judgment of the American people.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

Kites Sent Up Nearly Three Miles to Aid In Scientific Observations.

Boston, June 21.—On Tuesday at Mr. Rotch's observatory on Blue Hill, a kite used in the exploration of the air was sent to the height of 14,000 feet, which exceeds the greatest height previously obtained there by 1440 feet. The temperature at this height was 15 degrees below the freezing point, the wind velocity was about 25 miles an hour from the northeast, and the air was extremely dry, although clouds floated above and below that level.

The kites remained near the highest point from 5 to 8 p. m. They were then reeled in rapidly by a small engine. On the way down the kites passed through a stratum of thin ragged clouds at the height of 1½ miles. These were moving with a velocity of about 30 miles an hour.

At this time the wind at the observatory, about 600 feet above the general level of the surrounding country, had fallen to a calm, and the small revolving cups which register the velocity had ceased to turn. The kites entered this calm belt at a height of about 700 feet above the hill, and fell rapidly to the ground.

The highest point was reached with 4½ miles of music wire as a flying line, supported by five kites attached to the line at intervals of about three-fourths of a mile. The kites were box kites of the improved form devised at the observatory. They have curved surfaces, modeled after the wings of a bird. The three kites nearest the top of the line had an area of between 60 and 70 square feet each, and the two others about 25 feet each. The total weight lifted into the air, including wire instruments and kites, was about 130 pounds.

This flight was one of a series being carried on by Messrs. Clayton, Ferguson and Sweetland. On Monday the kites reached a height of 11,500 feet. They were sent up a second time Monday evening, and remained throughout the night at a height of nearly 10,000 feet. At this height during all of Monday and Tuesday the temperature remained from 5 to 10 degrees below freezing.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all, but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

LINES ARE REOPENED

Roberts Reports British Successes In Three Brushes With the Enemy.

Transvaal Is Penetrated as Far as Machadodorp.

One Report Says Kruger Is at Alkmaar, While Another Says He Has Escaped.

London, June 21.—Lord Roberts' dispatch of Wednesday's date, showing that his lines are restored to Cape Town and reporting British successes at Krugersdorp, Heilbron and on the Rustenburg road, dispels the anxiety which had existed in some quarters where it was feared that his silence since June 16 meant that the line of communications had been re-cut.

The capture of two guns by Hutton between Rustenburg and Pretoria Tuesday will, as Lord Roberts says, have a considerable effect in pacifying that section, since the Boer armament is by that much reduced.

In the northern and eastern Free State things seem to be going less smoothly, though communication to Pretoria is restored. The Boers alleged to be hemmed in by General Rundle began shelling Ficksburg June 19. It is said they apprehend that a force is marching from the north upon them, hence they will endeavor to break through southward. The Boer operations against the Bloemfontein-Pretoria railroad are also being conducted with vigor and daring, Lord Kitchener himself narrowly escaping capture near Rhenoster last week.

The British have penetrated Transvaal territory as far as Machadodorp. Passengers who arrived yesterday at Lourenzo Marques from the Transvaal assert that heavy artillery was engaged and that the Boers abandoned Machadodorp, retiring northward.

President Kruger is still at Alkmaar. Boer bulletins regarding General De Wet's operations along Lord Roberts' communications assert that two convoys were captured and 300 workmen, with 50 military, taken prisoners.

A member of the British house of commons, who has had an important connection with South Africa, is telling a story of a telegram alleged to have been received from Cape Town, which says that Mr. Kruger has really escaped and is already on the seas bound for Europe, and that the person occupying the executive car is not Mr. Kruger, but a substitute.

Advices from Pretoria, dated June 17, say that an official warning has been issued to the effect that any further wrecking communications will be followed by the demolition of the farms for five miles on both sides.

The Pretoria correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a despatch dated Sunday, says: An informal truce for five days is in operation between Lord Roberts and Commandant General Botha.

What the Irish Nationalists Want.

Dublin, June 21.—The Nationalist convention concluded its sessions yesterday. The convention adopted a constitution for the United Irish league, the provisions including the abolition of the right of the crown to challenge jurors in political cases except for cause; the repeal of the treason-felony and arms acts; educational equality for Catholics; compulsory extension of the laws providing agricultural laborers with cottages and acre allotments, and similar demands. A resolution condemning the war in South Africa and expressing a hope that the two republics would maintain their independence was adopted.

Brown University's Big Lift.

Providence, June 21.—At the dinner following the exercises of the 132nd commencement of Brown university, announcement was made of the completion of the $1,000,000 fund raised for the university. John D. Rockefeller some time ago offered $250,000 on condition that the balance of $1,000,000 was raised by commencement. The sum required was exceeded by about $100,000, the total as announced Wednesday being $1,096,006, the last $100,000 being practically raised in a day.

Aguinaldo's Surrender Anticipated.

Manila, June 21.—General MacArthur today formally announced President McKinley's order of amnesty. Prominent Filipino leaders are greatly pleased, as they believe that, under the amnesty, they can bring about the surrender of Aguinaldo, who, they declare, is ready and willing to consider the peace platform adopted by the Filipino leaders with a few insignificant exceptions.

The Jolly Girl

Often changes to the jaded woman. "I can't see what's come over Mary; she used to be such a jolly girl," was the remark of a young woman visiting a married schoolmate. Marriage changes a woman. The drains and pains which are so often the sequence of marriage rob her of all vitality. Give her back her former strength and she'll be as "jolly" a wife as she was a maid. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives back the lost strength by re-establishing the health of the delicate womanly organs. It dries the drains and stops the pains. It cures ulceration, inflammation and female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"For two years I had been a sufferer from chronic diseases and female weakness," writes Mrs. Allen A. Bobson, of 1125 Rodman Street, Philadelphia, Pa. "I had two different doctors, and they gave me medicine which only relieved me for a time. My niece advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I concluded that to open a correspondence with you for your advice would be safest, so I did, and have been highly benefited. I find that after taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and following your advice in regard to local treatment, I am now a strong woman. Accept my sincere thanks for the interest manifested in my case and the happy results obtained."

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

THE UNANIMOUS CHOICE.

McKinley for President and Roosevelt for Vice President.

A Ticket Which is Sure to Sweep the Country at the National Election.

Speeches by Foraker, Roosevelt, Young and Murray Create Intense Enthusiasm.

Philadelphia, June 22.—The Republican national convention unanimously nominated William McKinley for President of the United States, and Governor Roosevelt of New York for vice president. Senator Foraker made a strong speech placing Mr. McKinley in nomination; he was ably seconded by Governor Roosevelt and others. During the latter part of the speeches there were many demonstrations and calls for a vote. Some of the states not only voted for McKinley, but pledged their states for him in November. The total vote cast was 930, all of which were for William McKinley. Colonel Lafayette Young of Iowa withdrew Dolliver's name from the convention and made the speech placing Governor Roosevelt of New York in nomination for the vice presidency. The nomination was seconded by several speakers. Secretary Long's name was withdrawn by M. J. Murray of Massachusetts.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

The scenes attending the selections were tumultuous. Such unanimous demonstrations in honor of the nominees of a national convention have never been equalled, perhaps, in the history of politics in this country.

The wrangle expected over the question of reducing the representation in the south was averted by the withdrawal of Mr. Quay's proposition. The great hall became quiet as Senator Lodge, standing before 15,000 eager faces, announced that nominations for President of the United States were in order. The reading clerk advanced to the front of the platform. He was about to call the roll of states for the presentation of candidates. When Alabama was called a thin, red-whiskered delegate from that state arose and surrendered the first right to speak to Ohio. A flutter of handkerchiefs filled the air and a cheer went up from the delegates in the pit as Senator Foraker of Ohio strode toward the platform. The air was surcharged with electricity as he mounted the steps, and when he turned about, standing there with gray eyes calmly sweeping the cheering thousands, the magnetic orator must have been conscious of his power to call up a storm that would sweep through the amphitheater. Below him, above him, on either side were banked men and women frantically waving hats, handkerchiefs and pampas plumes. In full view of the convention he stood erect waiting for the applause to cease. With resonant, ringing voice and graceful gesture he stilled the noise. Said Senator Foraker:

Senator Foraker's Speech.

Alabama yields to Ohio, and I thank Alabama for that accommodation. Alabama has so yielded, however, by reason of a fact that would seem in an important sense to make the duty that has been assigned to me a superfluous duty, for Alabama has yielded because of the fact that our candidate for the presidency has in fact been already nominated. He was nominated by the senator from Colorado when he assumed the duties of temporary chairman. He was nominated again by the senator from Massachusetts when he took the office of permanent chairman; and he was nominated for a third time when the senator from Indiana read us the platform. And not only has he been thus nominated by this convention, but he has also been nominated by the whole American people, from one end of this land to the other.

Four years ago the American people confided to him their highest and most sacred trust. Behold with what results. He found the industries of this country paralyzed and prostrated, and has quickened them with a new life that has brought to the American people a prosperity unprecedented in all their history. He found the labor of this country everywhere idle; he has given it everywhere employment. He found it everywhere in despair; he has made it everywhere prosperous and buoyant with hope. He found the mills and shops and factories and mines everywhere closed; they are now everywhere open.

And while we here deliberate, they are sending their surplus products in commercial conquest to the very ends of the earth. Under his wise guidance our financial standard has been firmly planted high above and beyond assault, and the wild cry of 16 to 1 has been put to everlasting sleep alongside of the lost cause and other cherished Democratic heresies, in the catacombs of American politics. With a diplomacy never excelled and rarely equalled, he has overcome what at times seemed to be insurmountable difficulties and has not only opened to us the door of China, but he has advanced our interests in every land.

And it is no exaggeration that in all American history there is no chapter more brilliant than that which chronicles, with him as our commander, our victory on land and sea. The American name has a new and greater significance now. The flag has a new glory. It not only symbolizes human liberty and political equality at home, but it means freedom and independence for the long-suffering patriots of Cuba and complete protection, education, enlightenment, uplifting and ultimate local self-government and the enjoyment of all the blessings of liberty to the millions of Porto Rico and the Philippines. What we have so gloriously done for ourselves we propose most generously to do for them.

We could not turn back if we would, and we would not if we could. We are on trial before the world, and must triumphantly meet our responsibilities, or ignominously fail in the presence of mankind. These responsibilities speak to this convention here and now, and command us that we choose to be our candidate and the next president—which is one and the same thing—the best fitted man for the discharge of this great duty in all the republic.

On that point there is no difference of opinion. No man in all the nation is so well qualified for this trust as the great leader under whom the work has been so far conducted. He has the head, he has the heart, he has the special knowledge and the special experience that qualifies him beyond all others. And, Mr. Chairman, he has also the stainless reputation and character, and has led the blameless life that endear him to his countrymen and give to him the confidence, the respect, the admiration, the love and the affection of the whole American people. He is an ideal man, representing the highest type of American citizenship, an ideal candidate and an ideal president. With our banner in his hands it will be carried to triumphant victory in November next. In the name of all these considerations, not alone on behalf of his beloved state of Ohio, but on behalf of every other state and territory here represented, and in the name of all Republicans everywhere throughout our jurisdiction, I nominate to be our next candidate for the presidency, William McKinley.

When Mr. Foraker concluded by placing McKinley in nomination, not on behalf of Ohio, but all the states and territories, a clap of thunder shook the building. The previous whistlings of the storm were but the rustlings of a summer's night breeze. For a moment the magician leaned over the platform as if to satisfy himself that his work was accomplished. Then seeing that the effort had been successful, he retired to the rear of the stage. The sight was a grand and inspiring one. Over the acres of spectators bedlam reigned. All at once a delegate bearing the standard of Kentucky rushed forward to the stage. The effect was magical. Standards of the states were torn loose and yelling delegates climbed upon the platform to rally around their leader. With state guidons pointed to a common center they made a canopy over the head of the Warwick of the Republican party. Then higher still climbed Hanna. He mounted a table where he could look out upon the cheering multitude. Beside him suddenly appeared a young girl arrayed in the national colors. At this sight the cheers were redoubled.

Roosevelt's Stirring Address.

The demonstration all told lasted exactly 15 minutes. This protracted outburst was but the forerunner of the pandemonium that reigned a moment later when Roosevelt mounted the platform to second the president's nomination.

As he stood there facing the yelling multitude the roar could have been heard for blocks. Several times he raised his hand, but the cheering continued. His jaw was firmly set as he surveyed the scene. Only once did his face relax. That was when he caught sight of his wife in the reserved seats overhanging the pit on his right. Then he smiled till his teeth showed, and Mrs. Roosevelt fluttered back her handkerchief. When finally he was allowed to begin, he plunged directly to the heart of his subject. His address follows:

I rise to second the nomination of William McKinley, the president who has had to meet and solve problems more numerous and more important than any other president since the days of mighty Abraham Lincoln; the president under whose administration this country has attained a higher pitch of prosperity at home and honor abroad than ever before in its history. Four years ago President McKinley was triumphantly elected on certain distinct pledges, and those pledges have been made more than good. We promised that if President McKinley were elected not only should the national honor be kept unstained at home and abroad, but that the mill and the workshop should open, the farmer have a market for his goods, the merchant for his wares and that the wage-worker should prosper as never before.

So it has been in foreign affairs. Four years ago the nation was uneasy because right at our doors an American island lay writhing under the curse of tyranny and misrule. President McKinley turned to this duty as he had turned to others. He sought by every effort possible to provide for Spain's withdrawal from the island, which she was impotent longer to do aught than oppress. Then, when pacific means had failed, and there remained the only alternative, we waged the most righteous and brilliantly successful foreign war that any country has waged during the lifetime of the present generation. It was not a great war, simply because it was won too quickly; but it was momentous indeed in its effects. It left us, as all great feats must leave those who perform them, an inheritance both of honor and of responsibility; and, under the lead of President McKinley, the nation has taken up the task of securing orderly liberty and the reign of justice and law in the islands from which we drove the tyranny of Spain, with the same serious realization of duty and sincere purpose to perform it that has marked the national attitude in dealing with the economic and financial difficulties that face us at home.

This is what the nation has done during the three years that have elapsed since we made McKinley president, and all this is what he typifies and stands for. We here nominate him again, and, in November next, we shall elect him again; because it has been given to him to personify the cause of honor abroad and prosperity at home, of wise legislation and straightforward administration.

We have at last put our financial legislation on a sound basis, but no possible financial legislation can save us from fearful and disastrous panic if we trust our finances to the management of any man who would be acceptable to the leaders and guides of the Democracy in its present spirit. No secretary of the treasury who would be acceptable to, or who could without loss of self-respect serve under the Populistic Democracy, could avoid plunging this country back into financial chaos.

Copyright, 1900, by Rockwood, N. Y.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Nor have they any longer even the excuse of being honest in their folly. They have raved in denunciation of trusts, and, now, in my own state, their foremost party leaders, including the man before whom the others bow with bared head and trembling knee, have been discovered in a trust which really is of infamous, and, perhaps, of criminal character; a trust in which these apostles of Democracy, these prophets of the new dispensation, have sought to wring fortunes from the dire need of their poorer brethren.

We have nearly succeeded in bringing peace and order in the Philippines. The war still goes on because the allies in this country of the bloody insurrectionary oligarchy have taught their foolish dupes abroad to believe that, if the rebellion is kept alive until next November Democratic success at the polls here will be followed by the abandonment of the islands; that means their abandonment to savages who would scramble for what we desert until some powerful civilized nation stepped in to do what we would have shown ourselves unfit to perform. Our success in November means peace in the islands. The success of our political opponents means an indefinite prolongation of misery and bloodshed.

It rests with us now to decide whether, in the opening years of the century, we shall march forward to fresh triumphs, or whether, at the outset, we shall deliberately cripple ourselves for the contest. Is America a weakling, to shrink from the work that must be done by the world powers? No. The young giant of the west stands on a continent, and clasps the crest of an ocean in either hand. Our nation, glorious in youth and strength, looks into the future with fearless and eager eyes, and rejoices as a strong man to run a race. We do not stand in craven mood, asking to be spared the task, cringing as we gaze on the contest. No, we challenge the proud privilege of doing the work that providence allots us, and we face the coming years high of heart and resolute of faith that to our people is given the right to win such honor and renown as has never yet been granted to the peoples of mankind.

NO NEWS FROM PEKIN.

Consuls at Shanghai Regard the Fact as Particularly Threatening.

American Gunboat Monocacy Shot Through the Bow.

Report of the Bombardment of Tien Tsin Indicates a Change For the Worse.

London, June 22.—A dispatch to the Associated Press from Shanghai, dated yesterday, says:

The consuls met today to consider the situation which, in the absence of news from Pekin, is looked upon as particularly threatening. Grave fears still exist as to the safety of the Europeans in Pekin. It was agreed to wire to the senior consul at Chee Foo to communicate with the senior officers at Taku asking for immediate assistance in communicating direct with Pekin, which they believe can be brought about through Sheng, director of telegraphs. They advise that Sheng be asked to explain the interruption of communication.

The stoppage of trade has thrown 10,000 coolies out of work at Shanghai. All the English women at Tien Tsin left there Saturday by a train for Taku. Shanghai wires that they had some exciting experiences and would not have gotten through except for the assistance of the Chinese troops. The Boxers made several desperate attempts to attack the train.

Taking advantage of the present disorders, bands of robbers are pillaging in the vicinity of Sam Chun. The Chinese authorities are powerless.

Precautions have been taken to prevent disturbances in British territory.

The explanation given at Hong Kong of the failure of Li Hung Chang to go to Pekin is that there is a rising on the border of the Kow Ioon hinterland.

A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Shanghai says that the missionaries from Tsang Chou have safely arrived at Wei Hai Wei.

The United States gunboat Monocacy was two miles up the Pei Ho river when the international fleet began the bombardment of the Taku forts. According to the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express she was shot through the bow. The correspondent says that Chinese riflemen on both sides of the river attacked her, but unsuccessfully.

The scantiness of authentic news with reference to the situation continues. Admiral Kempff's dispatch to the United States navy department announcing that Tien Tsin is being bombarded was prominently used by the London papers and commented upon as indicating a change for the worse.

The British admiralty does not believe the report of the death of Admiral Seymour, commander of the international relief column; and semi-official assurances are given that there seems to be not the slightest evidence to back up such a report. It is pointed out that Admiral Seymour had sufficient supplies to enable him to get to Pekin or to get back. "We are hopeful," says the semi-official announcement, "that since he has not done the latter he has done the former."

Looks Bad For Rathbone.

Havana, June 22.—It is probable that Estes G. Rathbone, the suspended director of posts, will be arrested within the next few days. The postal inspectors assert that they have evidence implicating him beyond any question. It is also understood that the authorities will ask for the extradition of the head of the printing firm at Muncie, Ind. The defendants will be Neely, Rathbone, Reeves, Rich and the Muncie printer. Rich will be accepted as state's evidence.

A Sensational Announcement.

Berlin, June 22.—A sensation has been caused by a declaration of Herr Mertel, a member of the reichstag, and editor-in-chief of an agrarian organ, who, in the course of a political speech at Ebernburg, said: "Our next war will be naval and against England. Of this we have been quietly assured by the government; and it was because of this assurance that the agrarians voted for the naval bill."

Possible Compromise at Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., June 22.—It is believed the strike for the eight-hour day in this city is on the verge of settlement, indications pointing to a compromise on the basis of the granting of an eight-hour day beginning Jan. 1, 1900, and the striking employes returning to work for the remainder of this year on the present time schedule of nine hours.

Merchants Are Protesting.

St. Louis, June 22.—The general boycott inaugurated by the American Federation of Labor to help win the battle for the strikers is making itself felt. Representatives of various business houses besieged the headquarters of the Street Railway union yesterday protesting against boycotts; declaring they were unmerited and unjust.

Bicycles Collided.

Boston, June 22.—While riding a bicycle in the Back Bay fens Miss Nora Nolan was thrown from her wheel by collision with a wheel ridden by a colored man and suffered a fracture of the skull. She is in a precarious condition. The police are looking for the negro.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Some of the sensational dispatches about the strike sent from St. Louis are consistent in one respect. They can be searched through and through without the discovery of a single grain of truth.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

☞ What a pity that we ever took to calling our parkways "boulevards"! Roads" is a better word every way, and it is a word that every one can pronounce aright. But the affected French designation we have given to our principal avenues is hardly ever prounced correctly. Almost every one says "bully-vard," which is neither French nor English, nor good polyglot.—Boston Transcript.

☞ The candidacy of Gov. Long was conducted in a way that leaves no regret. The delegation did everything in the power of its members to advance the interests of the favorite son of Massachusetts, but it was of no avail. The Secretary of the Navy conducted himself throughout in a dignified and self-respecting manner, and nothing unpleasant attaches to him or to his name by its mention in connection with the Vice Presidency.—Lynn Item.

☞ Queen Victoria has reached ripe old age, yet it is said by insurance experts today that her life is safer risk than that of her son, the Prince of Wales. She has reigned many years, reared many children and suffered many sorrows. When her medical advisor was asked his secret for assisting her to so well to preserve the strength with which nature endowed her, he was wont to reply, "Do anything you like, but do nothing to excess."—Beverly Times.

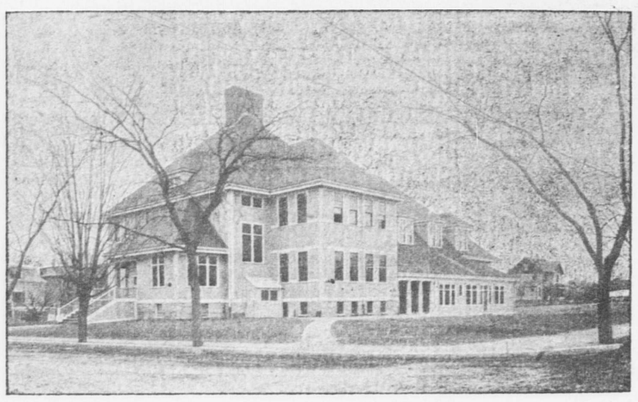

☞ It is announced that General Wood will appoint an extraordinary commission to inquire into the grounds on which corruption is charged in connection with American officials in Cuba. It is better to know the exact facts than it is by the lack of inquiry to leave room for suspicion that rumor may be telling the truth. General Wood does not assume either that the tales are true or false. He simply says that he wants to find out, and that he believes it is best to find out. An investigation conducted in such spirit cannot fail to be useful.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Evidence is multiplying upon every side that whatever the modern girl sets out to do she can do. If she takes it into her head to win a senior wrangler's prize in Oxford or Cambridge she does it. If she sets her mind on a diploma and a license to practice medicine, dentistry, law or to preach the gospel, she accomplishes it. The newspapers are telling strange stories of the enterprise and courage of girls every day. Some take the place of their fathers and run farms; others take the management of business, often at the point of failure, and restore them to prosperity. There are enterprising American girls at this moment who are editing newspapers, directing manufacturing concerns, superintending building operations and rising to successful leadership in countless other occupations.—Philadelphia Call.

A Lot of Children.

Clerk Churchill of the district court was examining a surety this morning, as to his financial standing. Among other questions propounded by Mr. Churchill was this "Have you any money, stocks or bonds? "No," he quickly replied," but I have a lot of children." Mr. Churchill thought they could hardly be considered as collateral, and the court smiled.

RECEPTION OF CLASS OF 1900, WOODWARD INSTITUTE.

The reception by the Class of 1900 of the Woodward Institute Thursday evening at the school hall was a society event, as well as enjoyable milestone for the graduates. The same decorations as at the graduation exercises remained, the class motto "Character is higher than intellect," and Dr. Woodward's picture being conspicuous over the platform.

Miss Small, the principal, and the class officers, received directly in front of the platform. The officers are: Miss Helen Hoyt Baxter president, Miss Alice Beatrice O'Neil vice president, Miss Mabel Elizabeth Pierce secretary and Miss Estella Cannon treasurer. The ushers were members of the second class. During the reception sweet music was rendered by Richardson's orchestra.

The whole building was opened to the invited guests, and all admired the finely appointed school building with its newly tinted walls. In one of upper rooms was creditable exhibiton of drawings which showed progress over other years, the Class of 1900 being the first to take the six years' course.

Frappe was served at different places by members of the second and third classes.

The reception was from 8 until 9.30, and from 9.20 until 11 P. M., dancing was enjoyed to inspiring music.

The cut of the building printed above is a different view from the half tone given yesterday.

BURGLARS ESCAPE.

Officer Murray Overhalled Them But Darkness Shielded Them.

Did Quincy's street lights burn all night as they should, two burglars would doubtless be behind the bars today. Early this morning the police received notice that burglars had entered Bradley's stable at North Weymouth and stolen a number of harnesses. Officer Murray was on the look out for the parties. About 2.30 o'clock he heard a team coming, but it was so dark that objects ten feet away could not be seen. The officer however located it and as the horse was moving slowly he had no difficulty in stopping it. The carriage proved to be an extensive top carryall. Officer Murray placed his hand under the seat and finding what appeared to be parts of harnesses, he jumped into the team with the remark that he would have to detain them. He took the reins and turned the animal around. As he did so the traces became detached and the horse walked out of the shafts. At the same time the two men jumped, and in an instant were lost in the darkness. Had the street lights been burning a shot from a revolver might have winged one of the two men. The team proved to contain three of the harnesses stolen from North Weymouth.

Muriel May Badger of Park street Wollaston, gave a party to thirty of her little friends and class-mates Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6.30. There was a special entertainment for the little folks including cake walk by Pouline and Master William Chamberlain of Brookline. Supper was served on the lawn at 6 o'clock.

Farewell Party.

On Saturday evening last a farewell party was held at the home of Mrs. David Ramsay on Forrest avenue, West Quincy, to give her a hearty hand shake previous to her departure for Scotland. A very large number of friends gathered and spent a most enjoyable evening with songs and dancing. Among the vocalists were Messrs. P. Barry, James Gray, A. M. Pirie and William Ramsay, and they gave some pleasant entertainment but they were easily eclipsed by the ladies. Mrs. S. McCormick and the Sisters Barry were a whole vocal exhibition in themselves. Mr. Dannie Ford gave some splendid readings, among which were: "The face on the barroom door" and "Hostler Joe." They were well rendered and greatly appreciated. Music for the dancing was supplied by thebbrothers Ramsay from East Boston.

During the evening in a few well placed remarks Mrs. John McCormick presented Mrs. Ramsay with a handsome gold watch and chain, in behalf of those present. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay replied. After the presentation a collation was served and then the fun was resumed until the "wee sma' ooes ayout the twal." There was a large representation from the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, also The Companions of the Forest.

As Mrs. Ramsay has been failing in health for some time, she is going home to bonnie Scotland to regain some of her lost strength, and all wish her a safe passage and a speedy return.

Castle Square Theatre.

The great popularity which has been gained for "The Village Postmaster" by its performances at the Castle Square Theatre, has made it imperative to continue this attraction a third week to meet the demand for seats. It is generally conceded by all familiar with earlier productions of this play that its many merits are more successfully brought out in the Castle Square performances than ever before, and the enthusiastic applause called out by its principal scenes is a just recognition of the good work done in all the departments of the organization maintained at this popular play house. The picturesque scenes, characteristics found in the drama appeal most successfully to the natives of New England and afford to others a fascinating study of the pecularities of the small communities scattered through the less populous section of the Eastern States. The usual distribution of chocolate bon bons will be made at the Monday matinee and also that of Wednesday. A spectacular production of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" is in preparation at this theatre.

FAXON AGAINST IT.

Regards Copeland Street Appropriation as Extravagant.

To His Honor, Mayor Hall,
Quincy, Mass.,
Dear Sir:—

I notice by the papers that the City Council on the 19th inst., appropriated $24,000 to widen Copeland street. In the present condition of the finances of the city, I regard it as extremely unwise to expend so large a sum for such a purpose. Moreover, there is no certainty that the sum named will not be largely increased before the work of widening the street is completed, judging from what we know of the reckless action of the Council in the past. It is time to call a halt in these unnecessary improvements. Our city government is simply a political beehive, and those who are bearing the financial burdens are being stung to death. I am often reminded that many Councilmen are puffed up with a feeling of wealth when they are spending other people's money. It is very easy for politicians to vote for extravagant appropriations when they themselves are not contributing anything thereto. They also lose sight of the fact that money borrowed on long terms for city affairs will have to be paid with interest by future generations.

I sincerely hope you will veto the Copeland street measure, and thus teach the careless manipulators of the city's finances that it is time the welfare of those who are bearing the burdens of excessive taxation should be respected.

Very truly yours,
HENRY H. FAXON.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

Junket with fresh strawberries. Make a plain junket, flavoring with vanilla, and pour into individual junket glasses filling each one two-thirds full. When just ready to serve, fill with luscious ripe strawberries dusted with powdered sugar, and then heap over this whipped cream. If you wish, dot the top with a few of the berries. Raspberries may be substituted for the strawberries, but canned or preserved raspberries or strawberries may be added to the milk and allowed to form in a plain junket.

The Experiment

Of the Publishers of the Daily Ledger last week shows that Quincy wants an Eight-Page paper on Saturdays. The issue of June 16 had all the Saturday features, but nevertheless the people were disappointed.

The Saturday Eight-Page Ledger Is Popular,

And it will be continued. It will be the aim of the publishers to make it indispensable to every family in Quincy. Further, the publishers hope to receive sufficient encouragement from business men of the city to warrant the publication in the fall of an eight-page Ledger every day.

We Are Working For The City Along All Lines.

Will you help us and thereby boom the City? Every family should be a daily Reader; every business man an Advertiser.

THE PHILIPPINES.

Private McCabe Writes Home an Interesting Letter.

Another Philippine letter has been received from William A. McCabe, the Quincy soldier boy in the service of Uncle Sam. He writes interestingly of the country and inhabitants :

Philippine Islands,
April, 1900.

These islands are very fertile in the inland country and all sorts of fruits and flowers of all tropical countries are found here. Oranges and bananas and grape-fruit and mangoes and papaus grow right around our quarters.

Rice and sugar-cane are the principal articles of industry and the people of this country are only second to the Chinese in their consumption of rice. The mountains are very numerous although their altitude seldom exceed two miles. They are covered with a thick growth of bamboo and mountain ash. The highest mountain in the northern range is Mt. Austificio which is 16,575 feet in height; the highest in the southern range, Mt. Frerio, 12,350 feet. The rivers here are for the most part small streams which in the wet season swells to large rushing torrents.

The islands are very numerous and the languages spoken by the various tribes are altogether different although there is a similarity in their looks.

The people here are a mixture of the Malay race, and the Spanish. That is, great numbers have intermarried with the Spanish.

They have a kind of nut here called the beetle nut, which they chew and it stains their teeth worse by far than the tobacco used by the Caucasians.

They wash their clothes on the banks of the river, beating them against the side of a rock and rinsing them out again and again, until they are as white as the most experienced washerwoman in our country could get them.

They eat for the most part with their fingers and all drink out of one vessel. Their regular midday meal always, at least in the great majority of cases, consists of rice and tropical fruits.

They are very early risers being always up around four o'clock, cooking their morning meal. The dogs are very numerous, nearly every shack, for one cannot call them houses except in the larger cities, having four or five dogs. They howl all night, at the least noise, and thus give the natives timely notice of our near approach. The women do the largest part of the work. The men work in the rice and sugar fields while the women wash and keep small stores and hull the rice and work in the sugar mills.

The people are a very religious class, nearly every "homhes," as they are called, going to church in the morning at 5 o'clock. They are all members of the Catholic church which religion was taught them by the Spanish two hundred years ago. They have priests here whom they call Padres, but they are not recognized by the Pope as being ordained, being for the most part self-appointed.

The people make a great deal of their dead, that is they all turn out to funeral and carry the dead to their last resting place. They are usually preceded by a string band composed of four or five violins and a couple of cornets.

The wealthier class here dress very well and there is very little difference between their dress and American dress, but the poorer class are well dressed if they have on a cotton waist and a shirt of cambric. Both the men and women of the poorer class go about bare-footed.

They are very unhealthy, principally from the poor water they drink, for they drink the water just as it comes from the well, while we Americans here boil all our water, thus destroying all germs. Then large numbers of them live in small huts and they pay no attention to sanitation whatever. They have a disease called Doble-itch which is somewhat like eczema in our country, but which comes on the feet in terrible proportions causing the sufferer to temporarily lose the use of those members.

These people resemble the American Indian in the stealthiness of their movements; and their high cheek bones puts one forcibly in mind of the red man of our own country.

They are thoroughly civilized and understand the use of most of our modern implements and appliances. Some of them are well versed in engineering, for a railroad has been running through the country for about fifteen years.

But they are all poor marksmen, a fact illustrated very plainly in all of their engagements with our troops. They have some sharpshooters such as the insurercto was who picked off Gen. Lawton, but they are few and far between.

In time to come, with the help of American culture and industry, these islands may prove a valuable acquisition to United States, but in the opinion of the writer the cost will overcome the profit, for they cannot understand the United States, thinking we will treat them with the same cruelty the Spanish did. But whatever happens I stick by the United States in right or wrong, for she is my mother-country.

I must now close with love to all.

Your affectionate friend,
William A. McCabe.

Victory for Wollaston Park.

The Wollaston Park A. A. visited Savin Hill on June 18th and admistered a crushing defeat to a local nine by the score of 23 to 10. The features of the game were Kolson's effective pitching, he allowing only seven safe hits, the fielding of J. Atkins, E. Atkins, and Orcutt, the batting of Saunders, E. Atkins, Dinegan and Orcutt for Wollaston, and the all around playing of Ford and Fultz of Savin Hill.

Mr. Walter E. Gardner of Weymouth, bookkeeper at the office of the Quincy and Boston street railway, and Miss Mildred H. Sampson of Quincy Point were united in marriage Thursday afternoon. The wedding was a quiet affair, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Edward Anderson. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner left in the early evening for a brief trip, returning from which they will take up their residence in Quincy at Wollaston Park.

Blow at 80-foot Drawer.

An important amendment to the Quincy Point bridge bill is pending in the House. On Thursday Mr. Spear of Medfield moved to amend bill by striking out the section for an 80-foot draw unless the Fore River company pays a portion of the expense, the decision as to the width to be left to the county commissioners. Mr. Mellen moved to postpone to Friday was done.

The Suffolk County Woman's Auxiliary, I. O. G. T., were entertained by Mrs. Albion H. Howe and Mrs. Fannie R. Chubbuck, at the home of the latter, on Tuesday June 19, on Bennington street, Quincy. All were delighted with the trolly ride and charmed with the fine scenery around Quincy.

Prize for Photographs.

The Art Department of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston offers a prize of $25 for the set of a dozen photographs illustrating most effectively the disfigurement by advertisements of highways and landscapes in Massachusetts. The photographs may be accompanied by such particulars as will add to their effectiveness, e. g., the price paid to the owner of the land for its use in advertising; the opinions of residents in the neighborhood; whether the law has been infringed, etc.

These sets of photographs must be sent to the club rooms, 2 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass., by October 1, 1900. Each photograph should be mounted and labeled with the name of the sender and the locality photographed.

Whoever paints or puts upon, or in any manner affixes to any fence, structure, pole, rock, or other object, the property of another, whether within or without the limits of the highway, any words, device, trade-mark, advertisement, or notice, not required by law to be posted, thereon, without first obtaining the written consent of the owner, or tenant of such property shall, on complaint of such owner, or his tenant, or any municipal or public officer, be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars.

Any word, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice, painted, put up, or affixed within the limits of a highway in violation of the provisions of the preceding section of this act shall be deemed to be a public nuisance; and may be forthwith removed or obliterated and abated by any person.— Mass. NO BETTERMENTS.

Large Outlays by City Because of Street Railway.

Editors Daily Ledger:

The passing of the order appropriating $24,000 for the widening of Copeland street from its junction with Crescent street to the West Quincy depot again calls attention to the fact that the city is repeatedly called upon to widen streets at an expenditure of thousands of dollars solely because they are traversed by electric cars which monopolize from one-third to one-half of the width of highways which were originally laid out for vehicles.

Another instance in point is the widening of Coddington and Sea streets from the Junction at Washington street to the locality commonly known as "The Willows," an approximate distance of two miles at an expense of about $50,000 to the taxpayers. It is self evident that this widening of the street was ocasioned by the electric car tracks. The tracks have been relocated on a strip of land taken from the Adams estate and others. This land, which was bought solely for these tracks by the city and the subsequent grading, has entailed a heavy burden upon our already over-taxed municipality. In return for this great outlay the electric company gives to the city nothing, even refusing, it is so understood, to grant the small concession of free transfers over this particular branch.

It is not my purpose to criticise the Council for its prodigious bounty to this rich corporation, which annually pays a dividend of seven per cent. But nevertheless it does seem as though the city government in conducting the negotiations for the relocation of the tracks to Hough Neck should have exacted in writing from the railway company an agreement for free transfers, new rails and ties the entire distance to the Neck terminus and other concessions equally tenable under the law of 1898, relating to street railway companies. It is now too late to rectify this blunder.

The Mayor has before him the order for the widening of Copeland street, from Crescent to the West Quincy depot, at an expense of $24,000 that,—no betterments to be assessed and no clause by which the Quincy & Boston Street Railway should assume a proportionate share of the expense. It seems to many people that the widening of this street is a necessity owing to the cramped condition caused by the traversing of its entire length by the car tracks. The order was not drawn to protect the interests of the city. It seems to me that the Council would have done well to have widened this street under the provision of Chapter 51 of the Public Statutes, commonly known as "the Betterment Act," and, incidentally this would have brought in the Quincy & Boston Street Railway to assume a porportionate share of the expense, as the Acts of 1898, chapter 78, Sect. 20, provides as follows:

"Whenever a street or highway in which the tracks of a street railway have been located for a period of five years is altered, or the grade thereof changed, under the provisions of Chapter 51 of the Public Statutes, said company shall pay such a proportion share of the expense thereof, including as a part of such expense the necessary cost of changing its railing to conform to such alteration or change of grade, as may be assessed upon it, provided that no such assessment shall exceed the aggregate amount of all the betterments assessed upon real estate and that no such assessment shall exceed one quarter of the total cost of such alteration or change of grade."

If the Council had made this widening under the Betterment act it would have made the expenditure upon behalf of the city but a fractional part of what the taxpayers are now called upon to stand.

To show how some street railway corporations value franchises similar to those our Council has been giving away, I will cite the instance of the proposition which the Boston & Worcester Street Railway made to the selectmen of Brookline in January last. It agreed if the double track location petitioned for on Boylston street be granted to pay its regular taxes, sell tickets to school children at half rate and fix its fare to regular patrons at all hours at the rate of six tickets for 25 cents, or single fare for five cents between the Brookline terminus and Newton Highlands, and lastly to provide suitable electric lighting for the streets as directed by the selectmen.

In contrast to this bid for a franchise is the attitude which the management of the Quincy & Boston Street Railway assumed towards our people when the Mayor demanded free transfers. Not until the railway was coerced by Mayor Hall appealing to the Railroad Commissioners did its president agree to give free transfers, beginning June 27 or thereabouts. A flat refusal was the answer for free transfers over the Houghs Neck line, upon which the city is at present expending $50,000 in relocating the tracks.

It is painfully evident that the Council is repeatedly outgeneralled by the management of the Street Railway Company.

BEE BUZZES.

A queen will live three or four years.

The average life of a worker bee is 45 days.

The best time to feed bees is just at night.

Wooden troughs are best in which to feed bees.

All particles of comb should be saved and melted into wax.

A worker bee is hatched in 21 days after the egg is deposited.

There is no economy in wasting time with black bees and box hives.

There is no advantage in rushing honey on the market as fast as it is obtained.

For contracting the space in hives division boards can be used to good advantage.

The ground occupied by an apiary is of no value unless planted to small fruits of some kind.

To hive a swarm right is to hive all the bees. If the queen is there at all, she will likely be in the hive along with the rest of them.

Avoid working with bees in cool, cloudy days; also avoid handling them very early in the morning or late in the evening, as they are more irritable at such times. —St. Louis Republic.

Traffic in Human Life.

New York, June 22.—The filing of a deed of sale of a baby with the register of New York county yesterday constituted an act decidedly out of the ordinary. The mother, Pauline Mathis, gave her 3 months old child for the consideration of $100 in cash. In explanation of her act the mother said she was so poor —in fact, starving—that it was her wish that some one adopt the child. Mrs. Annie Gross is the grantee in the deed, and she was desirous of possessing the little one.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE.

Senator Thurston, John W. Yerkes, from the Blue Grass State, and Governor Mount of Indiana also seconded McKinley's nomination. Then the roll of states was called and delegation after delegation rose in solid blocks and cast their votes for McKinley. When Chairman Lodge made the announcement that the president had been renominated for the term beginning March 4, 1901, there was the same wild storm which had been raised by Foraker, and when it was over Roosevelt's nomination for the vice presidency evoked a succession of similar demonstrations.

Roosevelt Nominated For Vice President.

Lafe Young of Iowa, who was with Roosevelt in Cuba, nominated him on behalf of the state which had originally come to Philadelphia for Dolliver. Mr. Young spoke as follows:

I have listened with profound interest to the numerous indictments pronounced against the Democratic party, and as an impartial reader of history, I am compelled to confess that the indictments are all only too true. If I am to judge, however, by the enthusiasm of this hour, the Republican relief committee sent out four years ago to carry supplies and succor to the prostrate industries of the republic has returned, to make formal report that the duties have been discharged.

But, my fellow citizens, you know my purpose, you know the heart of this convention. The country never called for patriotic sons from any given family, but more were offered than there was room for on the enlistment rolls. When this convention and this great party called for a candidate for vice president, two voices responded, one from the Mississippi by birth, another by loving affection and adoption.

It is my mission, representing that part of the great Louisiana purchase, to withdraw one of these and suggest that the duty be placed upon the other. I, therefore, withdraw the name of Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa, a man born with the thrill of the Lincoln and Fremont campaigns in his heart, and with the power to stir the hearts and consciences of men as part of his birthright.

We turn to this other adopted son of the great middle west. At this moment we recall that two years ago today as many men as there are men and women in this great hall were on board 60 transports lying off Santiago harbor.

On board these transports were 20,000 soldiers that had gone away from our shores to liberate another race, to fulfill no obligation but that of humanity.

As a campaign follower there were those who witnessed this great spectacle of that fleet, and on the ship Yucatan was that famous regiment of rough riders of the far west and the Mississippi valley. In command of that regiment was that fearless young American student, scholar, plainsman, reviewer, historian, statesman, soldier of the middle west by adoption, of New York by birth.

That fleet, sailing around the point, coming to the place of landing, stood off the harbor two years ago tomorrow, and the navy bombarded the shore to make a place for landing, and no man who lives who was in that campaign, as an officer, as a soldier or as a camp follower, can fail to recall the spectacle, and if he closes his eyes he sees the awful scenes in that campaign in June and July, 1898.

The landing being completed, there were those who stood upon the shore and saw these indomitable men land, with their accoutrement on and their weapons by their sides. And the leader in that campaign of one of those regiments shall be the name that I shall place before this convention for the office of vice president of the United States.

In many respects the years 1898 and 1899 have been the great years of the republic. There is not under any sun or any clime any man or government that dares to insult the flag of the United States. We are a greater and a broader people on account of these achievements. Uncle Sam has been made a cosmopolitan citizen of the world.

No one questions his prowess or his bravery, as the result of these campaigns, and as the result of the American spirit, my fellow citizens, the American soldier, 10,000 miles away from home, with a musket in his hand, says to the aggressor, to those who are in favor of tyranny, "Halt, who comes there?" and the same spirit says to the beleaguered hosts of liberty: "Hold the fort, for I am coming."

Now, gentlemen of the convention, I place before you this distinguished leader of Republicanism of the United States, this leader of the aspirations of the people, whose hearts are right, and this leader of the aspirations of the young men of the country. Their hearts and consciences are with this young leader, whom I shall name for the vice presidency of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt of New York.

The nomination of Mr. Roosevelt was seconded by Delegate Murray of Secretary Long's state, and Delegate Ashton of Washington, which came here for Bartlett Tripp.

Chauncey Depew wound up the oratory on behalf of the state which declared for Woodruff. Depew's speech aroused intense enthusiasm when he pictured the dazzling dreams of the country's future.

At 2:14 the convention which had done the unparalleled thing of nominating both candidates unanimously adjourned. Governor Roosevelt drove from the convention hall with Mr. Odell, seated in the rear of an open landau. He lifted his broad brim hat to the continuous salvos that greeted him as he passed through the densely packed streets like a conquering hero fresh from new victories.

Although no definite time has yet been fixed for the notification committee to wait upon the president and formally notify him of his nomination, it is known that the president has indicated that it would be entirely satisfactory to him if the committee would visit him at Canton on July 12. He and Mrs. McKinley expect to leave Washington for Canton not later than July 1, and it is not improbable that they may leave in time to reach Canton on June 30. According to present plans they will remain there through the month of July. It is understood to be the president's purpose not to make any speeches during his absence from Washington.

Closer Than In '96.

London, June 22.—The morning papers make but brief reference to the renomination of President McKinley. The Daily Express, which goes more fully into the subject than the others, discusses the relative chances of Mr. McKinley and Mr. Bryan, and concludes that there will be a closer fight this year than in 1896.

The Useful Kicker.

Here's to the man whose wrath will make
The people round him shiver,
Who rails until the menials quake
And quite upsets his liver,
For when, forsooth, nobody jogs
The laggard to his duty,
He goeth straightway to the dogs
And lands as satan's booty.

So hail, good kicker! I would fain
Walk placidly behind you,
There's naught which tempts me to complain
Whenever I can find you.
No more the churl once chid by thee
Talks quick and travels slowly;
His terror bids him courteous be
E'en to the meek and lowly.

TO CUT BOER FORCES.

British Plan to Isolate De Wet and Steyn From Botha and Kruger.

Transvaal Government Said to Be Short of Cash.

Alleged Boer Bulletin Says France Has Declared War Against England.

London, June 22.—British activity in South Africa seems to be chiefly directed toward cutting the opposing Boer forces in two by a meeting of the wedges which Roberts and Buller are driving through the southern Transvaal from opposite directions. With Steyn and DeWet isolated in the northeastern Free State from Kruger and Botha in the eastern Transvaal, each Boer force could be attended to in detail.

Buller's advance westward from Volksrust is somewhat slow, but it is hoped in London that he will shortly be reported at Standerton, where he will aid in cutting communication between the Boer forces in the Orange River colony and the burghers in the Transvaal, and in completing the combined movement to surround Steyn and De Wet, to which Lord Roberts referred in a recent dispatch.

The war office has issued a list of casualties in engagements around Heilbron, previously undisclosed.

Lord Roberts has adopted the Transvaal mining regulations for military administration.

A dispatch from Lourenzo Marques says: The Boers have printed and posted at every corner the following: "Machadodorp, Monday. The Paris exhibition has closed and France has declared war against England. Fifty miles of railway has been destroyed in the Free State and 30,000 British have surrendered."

Five miles of telegraph between Konati Poort and Koop Maiden are down and native runners traverse the citance. The Boers continue to assert that they have successes east of Pretoria.

The colonial office publishes a notification by the military government at Johannesburg of the stoppage of a check for £40,000 drawn for the French bank in South Africa upon the National bank of the South African republic, and warning all persons against dealing in the check, as the funds of the National bank are the property of her majesty's government.

The Transvaal government, according to the Lourenzo Marques correspondent of The Times, is reduced to severe financial straits and is endeavoring to meet the emergency with treasury bills, but the people refuse to accept them.

The first train for Pretoria left Cape Town yesterday.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 22.—The house of representatives yesterday passed to a third hearing, without division, a bill providing for 90-cent gas in Boston, with an amendment excepting Charlestown and East Boston from its provisions.

By a vote of 65 to 55 the house refused to compel the incorporation of the New England Gas and Coke company.

The Fitchburg railroad lease matter came up on the calendar, but again went over until Monday.

In the senate the Boston and Albany lease bill was discussed, but no vote was reached.

Pembroke Academy Burned.

Suncook, N. H., June 22.—Pembroke academy was destroyed by fire Thursday. The library, pictures and nearly all the contents were removed in a more or less damaged condition. Loss on the building, about $5000. The loss on the contents and furnishings will amount to several thousand dollars. The fire is thought to have been caused by someone smoking in an outbuilding.

Giant Powder Used on Bridge.

Gunnison, Colo., June 22.—The Colorado and Southern Railroad company's iron bridge across Gunnison river, 2½ miles above this town, was wrecked by an explosion of giant powder yesterday. The explosion is believed to have been caused by sympathizers with the strikers at the Baldwin coal mines.

Bad Accident on Canadian Pacific.

Caribou, Me., June 22.—A mixed train on the Canadian Pacific railroad, consisting of nine cars, broke through the second span of the Grand Falls bridge over the St. John's river, and the entire train went into the river. Several persons were more or less seriously injured, two probably fatally.

AMERICANS TAKE PART

Eight Hundred From Our Warships Participated In Fight at Tien Tsin.

Consuls at Shanghai Think Ministers at Pekin Safe.

Empress Directs Li Hung Chang to Negotiate For Settlement of Points at Issue.

London, June 23.—The report that Tien Tsin is being bombarded presumably by Chinese regulars, and that much of the foreign settlement has been destroyed, together with the Shanghai rumor that 1500 foreigners have been killed, will cause the gravest anxiety. It must now be assumed that the attack came from Chinese regular troops. It must also be assumed that they are acting under instructions from those in authority. If that be so then it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that a state of war exists in which China deliberately has arrayed herself against the combined military strength of the great powers.

The silence of Pekin continues unbroken. Four thousand men of the allied forces were having a sharp defensive fighting at Tien Tsin Tuesday and Wednesday with a prospect of being reinforced Thursday. This is the situation in China, as set forth in the British government dispatches.

"Eight hundred Americans are taking part in the fighting at TienTsin," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, cabling last evening, "and they apparently form a part of a supplementary force, arriving with Germans and British after the conflict started. It is impossible to estimate the number of the Chinese there, but they had a surprising number of guns."

This information appears to have been brought by the United States gunboat Nashville to Che Foo, and telegraphed thence to Shanghai.

The Chinese are deserting Shanghai in large numbers, and going into the interior. Reports from native sources continue to reach Shanghai of anarchy in Pekin. According to these tales the streets are filled day and night with Boxers, who are wholly beyond the control of the Chinese troops, and who are working themselves up to a frenzy and clamoring for the death of all foreigners.

The English consulate at Shanghai is said to have received from influential natives reports of a tragedy in the palace at Pekin, though precisely what is not defined. The consulate thinks that Admiral Seymour, commander of the internal relief column, was misled by information from Pekin, and, consequently, underestimated the difficulties in his way, and the Chinese power of resistance with Maxim guns and Mausers.

The consuls at Shanghai still believe the foreign ministers at Pekin safe, although Japanese reports received at Shanghai allege that up to June 15 100 foreigners had been killed in Pekin.

A dispatch from Vienna says: Li Hung Chang has wired the various Chinese legations in Europe, directing them to inform the governments to which they are accredited that he is called to Pekin by the empress to act as intermediary between China and the powers, to negotiate a settlement of points at issue, and he instructs them to beg the powers to facilitate his mission by ceasing to send trops to China.

Shang, director general of telegraphs, wires from Shanghai to the Chinese legations in Europe that the foreign legations in Pekin are safe.

It is reported that the British government will immediately send 1200 marines to China, and possibly, according to some of the morning papers, 10,000 of the regulars now with Lord Roberts.

Li Hung Chang, who was interviewed in Canton yesterday, said he would leave for Pekin on June 27, in obedience to an order from the empress, to suppress the Boxers and to make peace with the powers. He endorsed the opinion that he was the only man in China capable of coping with the situation. He said he believed the Boxers to be a "rabble led away by fanaticism and anti-Christian feeling," but he also declared that the native Christian leaders were much to blame, inasmuch as they engendered litigation in the native courts. He asserted that he did not regard the Boxers as a political society, and that in his opinion, the empress had been misinformed.

Prince Li said he had been officially informed that the Taku forts fired upon the allied fleet because the admirals sent an ultimatum calling for the removal of the soldiers. He does not interpret that act as a declaration of war, and he has not received any instructions to the effect that war has been declared.

His remedy for the situation is to decapitate the leaders of the Boxers, to send their ignorant followers home, and to make peace with the powers.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: The view expressed by both the press and politicians here is that Russia should make common cause with the other powers in meeting the common danger in China. It is pointed out, however, that when once the time arrives to settle the Chinese question, Russia must regulate her true interests, which differ greatly from those of the other powers, and prevent her more particularly from definitely embarking in hostilities against the vast Chinese empire, her neighbor. This is also understood to be the government view of the situation.

BICYCLE IS NOT A CARRIAGE.

Massachusetts Supreme Court Makes a Decision of Interest to Wheelmen.

Boston, June 23.—In the case of Laurania Richardson against the town of Danvers, the defendant's exceptions are sustained, the supreme court holding that a bicycle is not a carriage within the meaning of the terms of section 1, chapter 52 of the public statutes, which provides that highways and other ways named shall be kept in repair, at the expense of the town, city or place where they are situated, "so that the same may be reasonably safe and convenient for travelers, with their horses, teams and carriages at all seasons of the year." This statute was enacted in 1786, and has been in force ever since.

In the case before the court it appeared that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle on a highway which the defendant was bound to keep in repair, and that she was injured in consequence of encountering a depression in the way, which caused her to fall from her wheel.

The supreme court says that while a bicycle may for many purposes be considered a vehicle or a carriage and thus made subject to the law of the road, yet in the present instance the statute does not apply. "The statute in question," says the court, "was passed long before bicycles were invented, but, although, of course, it is not to be confined to the same kind of vehicles then in use, we are of opinion that it should be confined to vehicles ejusdem generis, and that it does not extend to bicycles. It seems to us that the legislature by the use of the word 'carriage' had in view a vehicle would carry passengers or inanimate matter not to exceed with its load more than six tons. . . . A bicycle is more a machine than a carriage. . . . A bicycle is of but little use in wet weather or on frozen ground. Its great value consists in the pneumatic tire, but this is easily punctured, and no one who uses a wheel thinks of taking a ride of any distance without having his kit of tools with him. A hard rut, a sharp stone, a bit of coal or glass, or a tack in the road, may cause the tire to be punctured, and this may cause the rider to fall and sustain an injury. It would impose an intolerable burden upon towns to hold them bound to keep their roads in such a state of repair and smoothness that a bicycle could go over them with assured safety."

On the Diamond.

New York, June 23.—The New Yorks lost another game to the Bostons because of weak batting, Willis being very effective, with the exceptions of the fifth and seventh innings. Mercer was an easy mark for Boston throughout.

The Philadelphia game developed into a farce, and culminated in a forfeiture against the locals. The home team began to delay the game in the 11th inning by sending men to base on balls, and refusing to put them out when the opportunity offered. Umpire O'Day then gave the game to Brooklyn, 9 to 0.

Result of Filipinos' Meeting Not Known.

Washington, June 23.—Perhaps because he was not himself prepared to make any recommendation upon them, General MacArthur did not transmit to the war department the results of the meeting of the Filipinos at Manila Thursday, at which they drew up the terms for the settlement of the differences between the leaders of the insurrection and the United States government. The general impression is that General MacArthur will leave the Philippine commission to deal with such matters.

Safe Blower Proved Handy.

Frankfort, Ky., June 23.—The inside doors to the cash and bond boxes in the state treasurer's vault, the combination of which was lost when the Democratic state treasurer took charge of the office, were opened yesterday. Frankfort machinists worked on the doors for three days, but made no progress. Finally, Frank Simmons, a safe blower, was brought from the penitentiary and blew open the doors in half an hour.

Salvationists Will Aid the Poor.

New York, June 23.—The Salvation Army in this city has arranged to supply ice in the tenement districts at the rate of six pounds for 1 cent. The movement is headed "Penny Ice," and at the price stated there is no profit and the margin of loss is expected to be met by voluntary contributions.

Death Sentence Suspended.

Baltimore, June 23.—William Black, a negro, was convicted in the criminal court here yesterday of assault upon Jessie Bradford, a 15-year-old white girl. Sentence was suspended, pending arguments on a new trial. The punishment for such an offense in this state is death.

Neely May Be Sent to Havana.

Washington, June 23.—It is understood here that the United States attorney at New York will take action within the next day or two looking to the prompt removal of Neely, the alleged embezzler of Cuban postal funds, to Havana for trial. There are two indictments against Neely.

Government Aid Invoked.

St. John's, June 23.—The Belle Island strike deadlock remains unbroken. The companies will try to unload the steamer Regulus, carrying freight. They have applied to the government for police protection and an armed force will join the ship and attempt to work the freight off.

MR. PLATT IS PLEASED.

Thinks Roosevelt's Election More Certain Than If He Ran For Governor.

Depew Cannot See How Republicans Can Fail to Win.

Secretary Long Denies Rumors of His Intended Resignation From the Cabinet.

New York, June 23.—Senator Platt has made the astonishing statement that Governor Roosevelt's ability to carry the state a second time for governor had been questioned. There had been no hint during the contest over the nomination for the vice presidency in Philadelphia that any fear of this kind existed. Certainly the idea never entered the head of the governor himself.

"The people wanted Roosevelt," said Platt at the Fifth Avenue hotel. "They would have him, and now they have got him. I am very glad it came about that way—our way. He will make a good run. He will certainly make a better run as a candidate for vice president in this state than a candidate for governor. I think a winning ticket has been nominated, and I believe it will be elected."

Referring to the ticket nominated at Philadelphia, Senator Depew says: "It is a wonderful ticket. McKinley will capture every reasonable man above 40 years of age, by appealing to his judgment. Roosevelt will capture every man under that age by appealing to his imagination. Roosevelt is the ideal of the American boy. Among the western delegates, especially, there was wild devotion to him. Taking both ends of the ticket, it is the most popular nominated in a generation."

Naval Secretary Denies a Rumor.

Boston, June 23.—A rumor was published to the effect that Secretary Long intended to resign his position in the cabinet, but when he was seen at his home in Hingham he had no hesitancy in saying that there was no foundation for the rumor. He declared that he had every intention of filling out his entire term as secretary of the navy. In conversation further, he said: "I really had no serious expectation that the nomination would come to Massachusetts, for political reasons which are very obvious. Personally, it is not the slightest disappointment to me that my name was not selected. Roosevelt is a good man for the place. He'll add strength to the ticket."

Bryan on Filipinos' Rights.

Knoxville, June 23.—The Sentinel prints a letter addressed to it by W. J. Bryan, in which he expresses his views upon the relations of the Filipinos and the Cubans and their rights. It says: "I believe that the rights of the Filipinos and the rights of the Cubans are identical. The recognition of the rights of the Cubans by resolution did not create those rights. They existed before. If the Filipinos have a right to their independence the fact that they fought for it does not justify us in carrying on a war of conquest." Mr. Bryan declares that if the Bacon resolution had been acted upon there would have been no war with the Filipinos.

Won't Make Way For Woodruff.

New York, June 23.—Chairman Odell of the Republican state committee had his attention called to the statement that Governor Roosevelt would probably resign, making way for Mr. Woodruff in the executive office, the expected result being the nomination of Woodruff for governor. Mr. Odell said: "Governor Roosevelt will not resign. He will serve out his term, as Governor Cleveland did after he was nominated for president. There is no reason why he should resign."

Loss of Arm Caused Death.

Lowell, Mass., June 23.—Herbert E. Pressy, 30 years old, a spare freight conductor on the Boston and Maine railroad, had his left arm amputated at the shoulder while "staking" a car at Wilmington Junction. He died a few hours later.

ELEMENTS IN A FURY.

Gale, Hail, Rain and Lightning Created Much Damage In Many Places.

Nantasket, Mass., June 23.—The worst summer storm known for 10 years here prevailed for two hours Friday afternoon. There were three distinct storms, the first one starting about 1:30 o'clock. The rain came down in such torrents that the roadways were practically running streams of water. The force of the storm was aggravated by a terrific gale that threatened to sweep everything before it. In a few minutes the rain turned to hail, which came in frozen stones about the size of peas and with such force that existence without shelter was almost unbearable.

In the midst of it all thunder and lightning flashed and crashed intermittently. It seemed as if the elements had gone completely mad, and as if certain destruction of everything in sight was bound to follow.

Women on the piazzas of the Hotel Nantasket were swept off their feet when running to places of safety. Some lashed their babies to posts or any stationary object that was handy to insure their not being carried away in the gale. All movable objects about hotel piazzas, such as settees and chairs, went skating with the wind across verandas, and in many instances were piled up in broken pieces by the force of the storm.

No serious accidents were reported, though the telephone lines are disabled, and it is impossible at the present time to learn the full extent of the injury that may have been done to life and property.

Lightning's Damage at Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass., June 23.—The thunder storm which passed over this city yesterday raised havoc with property. A large cross was blown from the tower on St. Anne's church. Portions of the missile went through the roof of the church and a house across the street. A double cottage was damaged by a bolt of lightning. A house on Cross street was struck, and a falling chimney damaged the adjoining house.

Severe Storm at Hingham.

Hingham, Mass., June 23.—The worst thunder storm for years passed over this town Friday. The feed wires of the third rail and street railway at Broad bridge were struck by lightning and torn down, delaying traffic on both systems for several hours. Mrs. Atkinson Nye's house was struck and slightly damaged. The telephone and telegraph service was crippled for several hours.

A Victim of Lightning.

Kent, Conn., June 23.—During an unusually severe electrical storm here, Walter Hall, a farmer, aged 50, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Mr. Hall was sitting at the dinner table in his home at the time.

Are Historians Mistaken?

New York, June 23.—The Patriotic League of the Revolution announces that the essential feature of monitor vessels was invented by Theodore R. Timby, now living in Washington, and not by Ericsson, and that the latter usurped the fame that rightfully belonged to Timby. Mrs. Titcomb, president of the league, has started a movement to have official declaration made of Timby's right to the glory now attached to the name of Ericsson.

What Kentucky May Do.

Philadelphia, June 23.—Ex-Governor Taylor of Kentucky, who is still here, says: "We shall carry Kentucky by such an overwhelming majority that they will not dare to count us out. Kentucky is not lost to McKinley and Roosevelt. If the national committee will give to the Republicans of Kentucky the co-operation and aid they require the state will be found in line for McKinley and Roosevelt next November."

Quiet Day at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 23.—Friday was one of the quietest since the inauguration of the strike by the employes of the St. Louis Transit company. Cars were run on every division without molestation. The most important event of the day was the arrest of Ora Havill, a Transit company employe, on suspicion of being connected with the recent dynamite explosions along the lines of the Transit company.

Was a Cigaret Fiend.

New York, June 23.—The autopsy on the body of Charles F. Meal brought out the verdict of death from excessive cigaret smoking. A Chinese physician said he had pneumonia. The lad had smoked as many as 10 packages of cigarets a day, and he finally used camphorated oil to supply the craving for a narcotic. His stomach was in a frightful condition.

Indiana Farmers Suffer.

Indianapolis, June 23.—One of the hardest rainstorms in years swept Indiana yesterday. The Wabash river is out of its banks and still rising. Much damage has been done. In some sections the storm was like a cloudburst, washing out railroad tracks and embankments. Thousands of acres of corn will have to be replanted.

Loss of Over $300,000 by Fire.

Pittsburg, June 23.—A fire in the heart of the city's business district for a time threatened to wipe out an entire square of handsome buildings. The Eichbaum building was completely destroyed, and many other buildings were badly damaged. The loss is likely to exceed $300,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Goshen, Ill.

Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.:

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it home and gave it a trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank.

Good Afternoon.

Last Monday, June 18, the five-hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Guttenberg, the inventor of cut metal type, was celebrated in Berlin, Germany, by an immense gathering of printers in the circus Schumann. At Frankfort it was celebrated by a meeting of the civil and military authorities, together with a street parade, culminating in the decoration of the Gutenberg monument.

The order to consolidate the Atlantic postoffice with Quincy has been rescinded, which means that this section of the city will not have the free delivery system July 1, as expected. It is thought, however, if a petition is forwarded immediately to Congressman Naphen that it may be possible, even now to have the consolidation go into effect July 1, as originally ordered. No time, however, should be lost in forwarding the petition, as a few days' delay will postpone the free delivery system for some time.

Draft of Opinion.

☞Annexations are proving a mistake, Greater New York and Greater Chicago have got beyond the control of the people. We should learn wisdom from other' failures. A city should not throw away entirely the old town meeting ideas of government. It is best to keep the responsibilities as near as to the people as possible. Then we get some true home rule. A large population is merely a matter of sentiment. Thousands af people come to Boston daily to do business and they are practically Bostonians. We have within 50 miles of city hall about three millions of people. If the area they occupy was all all Greater Boston it would simply multiply the present municipal problems tenfold. Is it not much wiser to have those people governed in their own small city or town than it is to have them in one great body.—Boston Globe.

VISIT TO HOUSE ROCK FARM.

President C. M. Bryant a Breeder of Rhode Island Reds.

Farm and Poultry for June has the following account of a visit to President Bryant's hennery which will be of local interest:

Friday, May 4th, was one of my lucky days. For the afternoon of that day I accepted an invitation to visit House Rock Farm, one of the coming poultry farms of this vicinity. The proprietor of this farm is Mr. C. M. Bryant, a Boston business man whose tastes give him an enthusiastic interest in many forms of outdoor occupation and recreation. He has for some time been interested in the breeding of both land and water fowls for pleasure, but not on the business scale on which House Rock Farm is now embarking.

Mr. Bryant's residence is at Wollaston. Here he keeps a few fowls, few as compared with the larger stock on the farm which is located at South Weymouth. His specialty is Rhode Island Reds, and in Reds his specialty is to have and breed only the best. The foundation for his breeding lines was laid by the purchase of the first and second prize pens in each variety of Reds at Boston in 1900. In addition to these he has bought here and there as he found birds that suited him until he has a stock which few breeders of this breed can duplicate. The breeding males are the most uniform lot I have seen, and the hens run remarkably even. Those who are interested in the development of Rhode Island Reds may count it fortunate that a man of Mr. Bryant's energy, taste and business ability, has taken up the breed with the intention of making it a specialty on a farm where both fancy and utility are to be given prominence. House Rock Farm must be counted henceforth as one of the fixtures in this part of the poultry world. It is not designed to be the largest farm here. The owner's ambition is to make it one of the best.

At Wollaston we saw several of the breeding pens of Reds and a number of birds used in special matings.

A part of the houses here were built originally for Game fowls and are excellently adapted to small matings. The largest house in the place is a new one built in the same style as the houses on the farm at South Weymouth. This farm was purchased, and is still used principally as a game preserve. The farm house is an interesting old building, built in the days when steel screws were not to be had and door hinges and latches were forged by hand. The barn, too, is old, but had so far succumbed to the elements that the exterior had to be recovered with clapboards and shingles, giving it a modern appearance outside, though within it still shows its antiquity.

The part of the farm which will be devoted to poultry is admirably located for that purpose. Several buildings which have been on the farm for some time have been used the past winter, but I understand these are to be replaced with better ones. Four new buildings were just about completed when I saw them. Each of those were 14x30, 5 feet high at the eves and 12 feet at the peak, the roofs being pitched at an angle of forty-five degrees. These houses are substantially built and neatly painted. Each is designed to hold about fifty fowls. There are no partitions in them. The roosts are in the middle of the building, not coming in contact with the outside walls at any point, equally distant from the south and north walls and also from the east and west walls. With the roosts located thus there is a constant circulation of air around the hens at night, yet they are not exposed to drafts. Provision is made to bring fresh air into the house in abundance, but in such a way that there is no draft which can strike the fowls. There are windows in the front or outside. The door is at one end and there is an opening, at the will of the poultryman, for air at the opposite end, but as a tight partition the width of the roost platform extends from floor to roof at each end at each platform the birds cannot be reached by a current of air. The principal objection I saw to the house as constructed was that the light admitted at the windows would, I thought, be insufficient on a cloudy day, and the roost platform was too close to the ground to give the fowls full use of the floor under it. These things however are easily remedied if it proves in practice that the objections exist. In these houses Mr. Bryant followed quite closely the plan in use by one of the most successful egg farmers of his acquaintance.

Each house has a large yard with strong wire fence surrounding. Shade trees were being set in the yards. Other houses of the same style are to be erected as needed. Other buildings which it is proposed to erect are long brooder houses, and one or more long houses for breeding stock. As has been stated, both fancy and utility are to be considered here. The plan is to keep the breeding hens in large flocks in the houses described until about the time their eggs are desired for hatching. It is expected that kept in this way they will be healthy and lay some—not enough to affect vitality. During the fall and early winter the pens in the large breeding house will be occupied by stock from which eggs are to be used for hatching squab broilers. Then toward spring the regular stock breeders will go to the breeding house and the other hens will go in to the colony houses. The artificial system will be used for market stuff, but not for stock birds. At the time of my visit there were about a hundred and fifty little Reds running about, from the newly hatched up to the chick of nearly a pound and a half weight. Many of the latter were very promising in color.

A most interesting feature of this farm is its flock of wild geese. These have been bred here for some years to furnish decoys for the wild goose shooting in the fall. At the other end of the farm, on the shore of a large pond Mr. Bryant has gunning stand. To this the wild geese kept in captivity are moved when the hunting season comes, and here, picketed by a strong string tied to one leg and to a peg driven in the sand they are used to lure the flying wild geese within reach of the guns of the hunters concealed by a mass of boughs. But in the spring the general flock of unmated wild geese and mongrels are happy at pasture, while the breeding geese are disposed in pairs in various small inclosures about the farm; the females attending to the incubation of their eggs, each male standing guard over his mate to protect her from intruders.

There is talk of a ball game between the Comonwealth club of Weymouth and Braintree club. Arrangements will probably be made next week to that effect.

While the lightning of yesterday played havoc with many street railway lines, the Quincy & Boston escaped scott free.

The Merrymount candle pin team did it again in three straight at the Cochato alleys at Braintree Thursday evening, the strings resulting 416—380, 436—406 and 432—389. Totals, Merrymounts, 1284; Cochatos 1175.

A happy surprise party was held at Miss Mary Manning's at South Quincy, June 17. At six o'clock a large spread was given. The rest of the evening was spent very pleasantly in playing games and listening to music. Her guests including about twenty-five presented her with a gold ring, set with a costly stone.

The telephones in Kavanagh Bros. and Swingle & Falconers office on Penn street were burnt out by the lightning yesterday afternoon. One of the men employed in Cavanagh Bros'. shed also received quite a shock. He was carried into the sheds and revived in a few minutes. Several of the telephones poles in that vicinity were splintered.

The main road through Braintree is built of stone and stands the heavy teaming very well. When going to Quincy we notice such a difference after crossing the line. We hope Quincy's road commissioner, Mr. Knowlton, will repair the road between Bennington street and the Braintree line.—Braintree Observer.

Mr. Z. C. Collins, who was with the Army Commission with the Fifth regiment and is now at San Juan, Porto Rico, writing to a friend in Quincy, says the weather there is very hot and he longs for a breath of New England air. He wishes to be remembered to the boys of Co. K, and says he expects to return to Massachusetts in October.

THE POINT BRIDGE.

Suffolk and Plymouth Counties Not to Assist.

The bill for a new bridge over the Weymouth Fore river was ordered to a third reading in the House yesterday, but not until an important amendment had been adopted.

Mr. J. Sullivan of Boston moved to amend so that the cost should not fall in part on Suffolk county. Mr. Garfield of Brockton moved to exempt Plymouth county and Mr. Burrington of Franklin moved to exempt Norfolk county.

Mr. Kyle of Plymouth and Mr. Francis of New Bedford all followed on the same side.

Mr. Hersey of Hingham opposed the amendment recommended by the committee on counties, which provided that the counties benefited should not be assessed.

Mr. O'Brien of Abington favored exempting the counties and assessing the city and towns directly benefited.

Mr. Hunt of Weymouth favored the bill.

Mr. Whelan of Weymouth favored the bill, and opposed all the proposed amendments.

Mr. Spear of Medfield withdrew his amendment to leave the width of the draw to the commission, and favored having the cost paid by the towns directly interested.

The committee's amendment was adopted by a vote of 71 to 49, and the bill was ordered to a third reading.

Window Display.

Persons interesied in an attractive window display should not fail to inspect the windows of L. Herbert Parcher "The Sea Food Market," Wollaston.

The scene represents an ancient saw mill of the olden times. The power being furnished by the old fashioned overshot waterwheel, which propels the saw at an extremely high rate of speed.

At this writing the help are very busy sawing out dimension lumber, and judging from the amount of work they are doing, one would suppose they were busy on the order for the New Ward 5 hose house.

No doubt the order will be filled in good season.

Personal opinion is that Mr. Parcher received the idea of the saw mill from the name of the young lady he is to marry on the 27th inst.

Mr. Parcher is certainly an up-to-date business man and deserves great credit for the manner in which his store is conducted.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Vol. 12. No. 146. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, JUNE 23 1900. PRICE 2 CENTS.

A FALSE STEP.

Sweet, thou hast trod on a heart!
Pass! There's a world full of men.
And women as fair as thou art
Must do such things now and then.

Thou only hast stepped unaware (Malice not one can impute),
And why should a heart have been there
In the way of a fair woman's foot?

It was not a stone that could trip,
Nor was it a thorn that could rend.
Put up thy proud underlip!
'Twas merely the heart of a friend.

And yet, peradventure, one day,
Thou sitting alone at the glass,
Remarking the bloom gone away,
Where the smile in its dimplement was,

And seeking around thee in vain,
From hundreds who flattered before,
Such a word as, "Oh, not in the main
Do I hold thee less precious, but more."

Thou wilt sigh, very like, on thy part,
"Of all I have known or can know
I wish I had only that heart
I trod upon ages ago!"

—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

A TRANSVAAL CINDERELLA

Boer women have very often fought alongside of their husbands and fathers and brothers in the wars of the republics of South Africa. Some of them are capital marskwomen, and nearly all have the fanatical courage which is noticeable in religious enthusiasts of all climes. The women who today are fighting in the trenches against the British are doing no new thing. Their mothers and grandmothers assisted in the defense of many a laager against the rush of Zulu impis. Far from detracting from their womanly fascinations, the young men of the Transvaal look upon such masculine prowess as greatly enhancing them. Rifle skill and amazonian dash in time of war on the part of the maids compel the admiration of the young men, as witness the recent case of Marie Dutoit:

Marie was a little Cinderella of the veldt. Not all the glamour of fairydom could, however, have persuaded a prince that little Marie was pretty. She was, indeed, quite homely. The child was an orphan and lived with the Van Pelts, her uncle and aunt, and her elder cousins, Hendrick, a young man, and Greta and Anna, who may be said to have taken the place of Cinderella's ill conditioned sisters. These latter were belles of Boerland and well portioned, but Marie had been left, a skinny babe, without a penny. This, with her homeliness, lessened her chance of ever being nicely married, for the shrewd Boer has a careful eye on a girl's dowry. An old maid or a bachelor is a byword and a thing of abhorrence in the Transvaal. So Marie's lot was sad.

Oom Kris Van Pelt was not a bad man by any means. He was a typical farmer and hunter of the Transvaal, a tall, broad, bearded, grave, religious patriot. When Marie's parents died, he gave the child a home more from duty than affection or pity and after that paid little heed to her. Tante Anne, his wife, was another matter. She would never have turned away the little Marie, partly from a sense that such conduct would scarcely have been Scriptural, but chiefly from a fear of what her neighbors would say. But she did not conceal her opinion that the Dutoits had sinned greatly in dying without leaving a provision for their child.

In the hard years when the mealie crop was burned by the sun and the oxen perished from lack of water Tante Anne made things unpleasant for little Marie, for she was a feverish, complaining woman.

"Another such year," she would cry, "and we will be ruined. The good Lord knows best, but there are so many mouths to feed, so many mouths!"

Such outcries were absurd, for the Van Pelts were better off than many burghers. Her neighbors knew this and smiled at the worrying old woman, but Marie took it very seriously and redoubled her labors. From babyhood she worked until her hands were hard as a boy's and her face was darkly tanned. A hard childhood was that of Marie Dutoit, whose older cousins were in nowise distressed to see how she slaved. There is only one career open to the average Boer girl, and that is marriage. Marie was plain. Marie was poor. Greta and Anna complacently and leisurely looked forward to taking their choice of suitors, but Marie could only sigh and be resigned and secretly dream of some impossible day when the prince would ride over the veldt and sound his bugle horn. She always roused herself sharply from such extremely foolish dreams and dashed more reluctantly than ever at the drudgery of the farm.

Yet one great delight was hers, and that was when Hendrick, her big, silent cousin, took her out on the broad plain when he was shooting at the targets and taught her to handle a rifle. Sometimes he even took her on a hunt, and so keen were her eyes and so firm her grip and so steady her open air trained nerves that Marie Dutoit when 16 years old was nigh as good a shot as Hendrick himself. When she was 16, the troubled days began, and the Transvaal declared war against Great Britain.

Veldt Cornet Hausmann brought the news, but it was not altogether news. All night the beacon fires had been burning on the higher kops. All night Kaffir runners had been scouring the country with messages from the commandants to the burghers. All night in many farmhouses the women had been at work preparing the rations of biltong and cleaning the arms of the patriots. All night throughout the length and breadth of the land prayers had gone up and the veldt had echoed the deep voiced songs of David.

The cornet was a close friend of Hendrick Van Pelt. A rich man was he and influential insomuch that he was even in the councils of Paul Kruger himself.

Very popular also was Rick Hausmann, and so well looking that even without his wealth the maidens would have been gracious to him. It may be imagined that in the course of the little Marie's day dreams the prince who galloped so cavalierly over the veldt was not altogether unlike the young cornet.

"It's war," he said gravely as he sat down in the farmhouse. "I have come for Oom Kris and Hendrick. If they are ready, we will join the commando together. Yes, thank you, Greta; thank you. Anna, I will take coffee."

Marie had made the coffee, but her cousins served the cornet. Tante Anne and they hovered about him and chorused denunciations of the rooineks and eulogies of the Boer patriots. Then first Rick Hausmann smiled on Greta, and again he was cordial to Anna. When Greta smiled, Anna frowned, and when Anna beamed Greta tossed her handsome head and sniffed. But Marie made coffee and hid her homely face and looked not at all at the prince of the veldt. When the Van Pelts were ready, the women hung about their horses, delaying them to make sure that nothing was forgotten—the biltong, the coffee, the sugar, the home grown tobacco. Tante Anne, in tears, caressed her spouse and son, but the daughters were more solicitous about the rich and handsome veldt cornet. They were quite cheery. They had no doubts of the outcome of the war.

"Slay them as the Philistines were slain," they cried to Rick. "Drive the uitlanders into the sea. Oh, how I wish I was a man to go and fight them!"

"Oh, yes, to be a man!" cried Greta; "to be brave and strong"—

"To be such a horseman!" cried Anna, cutting out Greta.

"We will make much of you when you come back victorious!" they cried together.

"And reward me, I hope," said the handsome cornet, but he looked at both and smiled at both, so that the girls when they had smiled back at him frowned on each other.

"Goodby, Marie," said Hendrick.

"Goodby, cousin," said Marie. "I wish I was going with you."

Then they rode off to join the commando, and Rick only waved his hand to Marie, and all the veldt for her grew chill and gray. The prince was galloping over the veldt, but no glad bugle horn had sounded its call for her. Tante was more peevish than ever. The girls were sulky.

"Marie, you've let the coffee get cold!" Tante Anne screeched.

Marie was at the open door staring after the horsemen and did not hear nor answer.

"Come in and attend to your work!" her aunt cried. "What are you about? Do you think the cornet will kiss his hand to you?"

The sisters laughed shrilly, but Marie hung her head.

"No," she thought; "he will never wave his hand to me. I am too ugly and too poor, but—I should like to take a rifle and be beside him and fight the Englishmen, and—and watch over him."

The fight had begun in a series of skirmishes, but when morning came the Boers and British were in pitched battle. The speaking of the great guns could be heard at the farm. Sometimes even the rattle of the rifle fire reached across the plain. The women folk were terribly excited. War was now very close to their doors, and it was not so easy a thing to sneer at the courage of the rooineks. Aunt Anne rocked in her great chair; the girls were white and unnerved; Marie was restless, with great bright eyes. All night long spider carts and wagons and litters had been jolting across the veldt with burdens of dead and crippled men who were being carried by native servants and friends to nearby homes for burial or for nursing.

Suddenly, before the glaring sun had yet reached its noontide height, a ragged Kaffir came running and leaping from the distant kopjes, where the battle raged and roared. His eyes were protruding with fright, and his dark face was now gray.

"It is M'Pangwe!" Marie cried as he came, and they all went out to meet Oom Kris' servant, who had followed his master to the war as in olden times the henchmen followed the knights and squires. The Kaffir ran up weary and exhausted. A dirty rag bound his arm where a bullet had pierced the flesh.

"Why have you left your baas?" the women cried, and Tante Anne shook her fist at the trembling boy. "You coward dog, if you have run away I will use the sjambok on you myself!"

"Ni!" cried the servant. "No run. Baas Hendrick, him dead in trench. Big baas him fight and shoot, shoot, shoot. Big baas him say to M'Pangwe, 'Get cart; take Baas Hendrick to Tante Anne.' Me come, run all way."

There was a wailing then in the farmhouse and terrible cries for vengeance, but the Van Pelts were too sorrow stricken to obey the poor stern father's will. On Marie fell the task, as on Marie usually fell the harder tasks. She had loved Hendrick, but she was dry eyed. Her face was still and stern.

"Is Oom Kris hurt?" she asked the boy, and he told her the old man was safe as yet as they harnessed the horse.

Her back was turned to him.

"Did you see the Veldt Cornet Hausmann?" she asked.

"He shoot, shoot, shoot, with big baas," said the boy.

When the cart was ready, Marie went inside and filled a great canteen with coffee. She took some biltong and bread also. Then she got Hendrick's old rifle, which she had often used, and went into the house for a belt of ammunition.

"Tante Anne," she said, "I am going to the trenches with M'Pangwe. He says the battle is hard. The commandant must need every good shot he can find, and I am a good shot. Besides, they have killed Hendrick, and I loved him."

Tante Anne screeched again.

"I need you here!" she screamed. 'What can my girls and I do, broken down as we are? Who will help in the house?"

"Greta and Anna must do that unless they will come with me."

At that the girls cried out.

"The trenches are no place for girls," they said.

"Oh," said Marie Dutoit hotly, "there are women there already helping the men. A woman also has a right to defend the fatherland. My mother fought the Zulus with my father in laager, and Tante Anne herself when she was younger could hit a deer."

She drove off with the Kaffir, sorrowing much for Hendrick, her childhood's friend, but hot with bitter anger and vengeful wrath against the English. Also there was a dread in her heart that arriving she should find yet another lying dead in the trenches on the hillside.

No doubt this would seem unmaidenly conduct in the eyes of seminary girls, but, you see, Marie had never been to school. She could only with difficulty spell out her Bible, was quite uncultured and a very simple and natural product of the veldt, possessed with all the primitive passions of love and hate and jealousy and revenge.

The trenches were reached from the rear of the army, with only the rocky difficulties of the kopje to overcome. When, however, they came near to them, the Kaffir shook with fear as the great shells came shrieking from the British guns to plunge into the earthen breastworks or burst near by, scattering horror. He cowered in the cart, but Marie sat erect, although her face was white and her lips indrawn. They halted some distance away in the shelter of a great rock, and Oom Kris himself carried his dead boy to the cart. Poor old patriot, he was weeping, but he could not leave his place to accompany Hendrick's remains, anxious though he was that they should be buried at home near the old farm and not in the dreadful trenches, perhaps by British hands. He dispatched the Kaffir's cart and expressed no surprise when Marie followed him on hands and knees, creeping to Hendrick's place. The old man, like every old Boer, had been used in other days to see his women folk by his side defending the wagons of the trek against savage foes.

"It is right, little Marie," he said simply. "He loved you, my Hendrick. Say a prayer and aim carefully."

On the Boer girl's other side lay the field cornet. He nodded to Marie and smiled approval.

"Who should conquer us," he said, "when our girls are ready to die to defend the land? Why did not Greta and Anna come? They are fair shots, and Hendrick was their brother."

Marie said nothing, but color came back to her cheeks, for it was the first time the prince of the veldt had spoken to her so cordially. Then she listened to him as he pointed out to her, peeping over the breastworks, the position of the English and directed her fire. She grew warm with the fierce excitement of the thing, but her aim was steady, and her bullets sped truly. Rick was earnest in his encouragement.

"I did not know," he said enthusiastically, "that you were such a brave girl and capital shot. You were always so quiet."

Then Marie, even in the middle of horrors, was almost happy.

All the afternoon the shells came shrieking. All the afternoon cries and groans and hoarse commands filled her ears, with the ceaseless crash of the rifles and the thunder of the big guns. Other sounds there were also, when now from the right and again from the left some God fearing patriot would begin to sing. Then along the line of the trench the deep voices would rise to heaven, now in the heart stirring melody of a volkslied, now chanting the solemn measures of the psalm. Marie sang too. Her voice and those of a few other women and boys with the commando rose high above the men's. Never before was seen so strange a congregation praising the Lord.

At last, when the day was far spent, the enemy tried new tactics, since their artillery could not disperse the Boers in the trenches. From far in front a body of kilted highlanders moved forward with a great cheer, and the shells came plunging down in a more furious storm than ever. One of these burst near Marie. A piece tore past her face and hit old Oom Kris. The fine old man's rifle fell from his hands. He gave one short, sharp cry and fell back. He had followed his dear son. So hot was the fight, so urgent it was that now if ever the Boers should not slacken their fire, that little Marie could only murmur a prayer, but dared not cease firing. Rick Hausmann found time to touch her hand and whisper in sympathy.

"It was for God and country," said he. "It is well with him."

Tears were in Marie's eyes as she looked at him gratefully.

"For God and country," she repeated, and turned steadily to the approaching rush of highlanders. They were coming on with tremendous dash, not cheering now, for every breath was needed as they faced the steep hill. With fixed bayonets they came on and on and on. The fire of the Boers was furious, a continual roar of volleying rifles. The Scotchmen suffered cruelly. Here, there, like wands in wind, men wavered and dropped, but the rest came on and on and on, and the ghastly looking bayonets were thrusting forward, nearer and nearer. At sight of the cold steel, glancing in the sun, Marie began to quake. Not she alone; the Boers all round were paling. Dropping still from the line of kilted warriors before the tempest of bullets, men lay scattered on the hillside, some writhing, some very still; the highlanders came closer and closer.

"Cornet Hausmann," Marie cried, quivering. "I must go—I must fly. I cannot stand and face those—things!"

Hausmann looked up to speak and then another shell burst, and he fell with a broken leg. At the same instant many Boers, unaccustomed to face such a weapon, began to fall back, leave the trench and retreat. Hausmann saw them, and in spite of his agony, ordered and implored them to stay.

"Stand firm!" he cried. "They are exhausted. Stand firm—continue firing, and we'll drive them back yet. Oh, cowards, will you fly? Marie, show them an example. You are no coward! Steady, Marie! Keep on firing! You won't desert me, will you?"

Marie's strength was renewed. Even her awful dread vanished at the prince's entreaty. She stood beside him as he reached up to her hand.

"No," she said; "I forgot for one moment. No; I will not desert you."

Now the Scots were within 100 yards. They came on, but they were staggering and gasping.

"Firm! Stand firm!" cried the wounded Boer chief to the Boers who had not fled.

"Rush them, lads!" roared the tall British officer.

They came. Marie covered that officer steadily. He fell as she fired, but his men came on and on. Their bayonets were within 50 yards, and the Boers, without any such weapon to meet them, broke at last and scattered.

Marie looked down at the cornet. He had fainted from pain. With a great effort she lifted him up, for she was strong from much outdoor work, and staggered with him from the lost trenches to the shelter of the great rock which had previously hid the cart. Her soul was full of bitterness because the trench was taken, but yet her heart was glad when the prince opened his eyes and smiled on her. At least she had saved him from the frenzied demons with the bayonets.

The Scots, however, could not hold the position for long. Boer artillery from other kopjes was trained on them. They in turn retreated, and night fell upon the battle.

Behind the rock Marie gave the cornet water and eased his agony as best she could while waiting for the surgeon and ambulance. Hausmann's eyes were always on her face.

"Marie," he said at last, "these fellows would have killed me if you had not staid by me. You saved my life when you did not desert me, like the others. Marie, little Marie, Oom Kris has gone, and Hendrick has gone, and you are alone. I, too, am alone. Stay with me, then—never desert me."

The prince of the veldt had called on his bugle horn.—Washington Post.

The Rules of the Shop.

In one part of Washington there is an exclusive settlement of negroes. They have their little shops in which the necessaries of life are kept on sale. The prices range from a cent up to a quarter. In one of the shanties is a barber shop. It has two chairs of the most primitive style. On the wall is a torn colored picture of a colored fire company in a frame without a glass. Underneath this is a paper on which are written these rules:

Shave, 5 cents. Spot cash.
One hair cut 10 cents. Spot cash.
Shampooin Saturday, 5 cents Extra.
Other days, except Sunday, 3 cents.
No shavin Sunday.
Boss takes tips.
Shine, next door.
Shut on holidays.
No credit in the Store.
Gamblin barred.
Except pints on races.
No politics lowed.
Same on religion.

He Aimed High.

President Lincoln once had a singular interview with a persevering stranger. This was a man who had been noticed hanging about the White House in Washington. Asked his business, he said he wanted to see Mr. Lincoln and was not going away until he had seen him. Ultimately the president granted the visitor an interview.

"Say, Mr. Lincoln," he began, "do you want a secretary of war? For, if you do, I'm your man."

The president informed him that at that moment he was not in need of such an article.

With that the stranger withdrew, but as he was leaving the room he turned and said, "Say, Mr. Lincoln, have you such a thing as a pair of old trousers?"

After a hearty laugh, Lincoln told his visitor he almost deserved the secretaryship, "because," he added, "you aim high."

Wouldn't Have Altered Results.

"John Simpson, this superstitious affectation of yours about the thirteenth day of the month is simply nonsense. All sorts of great undertakings have been begun on the thirteenth. Why haven't you had the courage to test the matter by starting some venture on that date?"

"There is only one I can think of that I might have launched then. I might have married you, my love, on that date. And—and I'm willing to confess that I really don't think it would have made much difference."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OUTBREAK OF BOXERS.

Thurlow Weed Barnes Discusses the Chinese Situation.

OPPOSED TO EMPIRE'S PARTITION.

China's Future, He Says, Rests Largely Upon the Attitude of the United States Government—Facts About the Empress Dowager and Her Octogenarian Advisers.

Thurlow Weed Barnes, who has traveled extensively in the far east and who has lately received grants of valuable mineral privileges in China, said recently to a reporter of the New York Journal that but for the disturbances caused by the Boxer outbreak China would today offer the most favorable inducements for the investment of capital of any country in the world.

"It is idle," said Mr. Barnes, "to attempt to foretell what political results will follow this uprising, which to me has a very serious aspect. It may be that the powers will step in and assume some sort of joint jurisdiction, as was lately done with the island of Crete. Such a solution, however, would not meet the situation. In my opinion, China must either bestir herself and ruthlessly put down the Boxers or else be partitioned among the nations of Europe, with perhaps a province given over to the United States.

up the empire and any part is coming our way it seems to me the United States, after making a strong stand to preserve the present dynasty, would err in refusing to accept Fuchau and its hinterland. The 'open door' policy, as advocated by Mr. Hay, was the best for us, but that was advocated by us on the assumption that China would not be partitioned. I hope the situation, when spheres in China are to be distributed, for the sake of the peace of the world, will not arise either now or in the future.

"The present conflict recalls an old proverb to the effect that 'a stitch in time saves nine.' Last January the government at Peking could easily have averted this complication. It was in January that Dr. Brooks was murdered in Shangtung. Local officials took no step to punish the perpetrators of the outrage. It was said—I do not know whether or not with accuracy—that the son of the ruler of the province was among the Boxers who did the deed. The central government, spurred on by the foreign ministers at Peking, sent for the ruler of the province, an ultra conservative official. He went up to Peking. His punishment was demanded by the foreign element in China and by the reform party of natives as well. But instead of his getting any punishment he was invested with the insignia of the Order of Happiness and later was made an official of high rank in the province of Shansi. This was a false step on the part of the government. Friends of China regretted it deeply at the time. It encouraged the turbulent antiforeign element all the way from Shangtung to Tang-King; it frenzied the Chinese reform party, who now plot secretly to overthrow the whole Manchoo combination; it disgusted and disheartened the true friends of China everywhere.

"A short time ago the Boxers became active in Pe-chi-li, the Empire State province of China. A part of the Belgian railway runs from Peking to Pao-Ting-Fu, where at present the Boxers are especially aggressive. The extension of the railway leaves Pao-Ting-Fu and runs south. It is on this section that construction work is now in progress under a corps of Belgian engineers. The Boxers made a demonstration against these men, who took fright, rather too precipitately, and fled toward the capital or toward Tien-tsin.

"The ease with which the agitators expelled the foreigners from this railway work undoubtedly encouraged them considerably. They said to all who hesitated: 'You can see how easily we have driven away the foreign dev-

I hope the situation, when spheres in China are to be distributed, for the sake of the peace of the world, will not arise either now or in the future.

"The present conflict recalls an old proverb to the effect that 'a stitch in time saves nine.' Last January the government at Peking could easily have averted this complication. It was in January that Dr. Brooks was murdered in Shangtung. Local officials took no step to punish the perpetrators of the outrage. It was said—I do not know whether or not with accuracy—that the son of the ruler of the province was among the Boxers who did the deed. The central government, spurred on by the foreign ministers at Peking, sent for the ruler of the province, an ultra conservative official. He went up to Peking. It encouraged the turbulent antiforeign element all the way from Shangtung to Tang-King; it frenzied the Chinese reform party, who now plot secretly to overthrow the whole Mantchoo combination; it disgusted and disheartened the true friends of China everywhere.

"A short time ago the Boxers became active in Pe-chi-li, the Empire State province of China. A part of the Belgian railway runs from Peking to Pao-Ting-Fu, where at present the Boxers are especially aggressive. The extension of the railway leaves Pao-Ting-Fu and runs south. It is on this section that construction work is now in progress under a corps of Belgian engineers. The Boxers made a demonstration against these men, who took fright, rather too precipitately, and fled toward the capital or toward Tien-tsin.

"The ease with which the agitators expelled the foreigners from this railway work undoubtedly encouraged them considerably. They said to all who hesitated: 'You can see how easily we have driven away the foreign devils. If you join our government, we will be able to drive the whole of them out of China.' This argument has proved weighty with the populace. The dry season is now at hand in Pe-chi-li. The drought is worse than in several years. The hot weather has come, and even our experience with riots and strikes proves that turbulent elements are more easily aroused in summer weather than they are in winter. The great labor strike on the New York Central railroad took place in August of 1877.

"At Peking the empress dowager, who has had a firm grip on Chinese government for 40 years, is largely influenced by two or three octogenarians who are distinguished members of the ultra conservative party. These men are scholars in the Chinese sense, and from a local standpoint they are intelligent statesmen. They would like to have all the foreigners expelled from China, and every one is ready to believe that which he heartily wishes to believe. These octogenarians saw how easily the Belgians took fright and were driven off. They believe that the Boxers, if left alone, may work up an excitement which will lead to the expulsion of all white races from the entire empire.

"Kang-Yi, a member of the privy council, is a man 75 years of age, and Hsu-Tung is a man considerably over 80. Tung is private tutor to the present nominee to the throne, whose name is Pu-Tsin. Tung is so conservative that a little while ago, when the street in Peking on which he lives was being macadamized, he ordered the workmen to make a detour in front of his residence, and they have done so.

"These are the advisers who are in constant touch with the empress, and she has felt the influence of their bad counsel. Brought up in accordance with Chinese civil service principles, by which they have thrived all their lives and now have risen to great influence, these men see nothing that they can gain by the introduction of western methods, and they are perfectly sincere in the belief that China would really get on far better if all the foreigners were compelled to leave the country.

"Their minds are partly clouded by the use of opium. They smoke it every night, lie in bed recovering from the effects until late the day following, are hardly suited to think intelligently, even at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and have never had any genuine experience with practical questions of government policy.

"For a time the empress dowager was favorably disposed toward foreign syndicates and western methods. But since the so called 'Brice' concessions, which I negotiated in April, 1898, the empress has inclined the other way, and except for important mineral rights, granted to another American group in 1899, no Chinese government concessions have been negotiated. With regard to the latter, by the way, a party of American engineers, now in one of the mineral districts near Peking, engaged in making expert examinations under imperial protection, have reported that there are sections where precious metals abound, though it will require very expensive machinery to work out profits.

"These sections have been under investigation for about 18 months, and the desirable regions have been secured either by American, English, French or Russians. When all preliminaries have been arranged and the present political disturbances have been quieted, there is no doubt but that a great deal of money will be made by the Americans who have had the capital and the courage to secure the best localities.

"It is amusing to see some of the reports that get out in regard to the China situation. One of the papers said the other day that Russia could land 20,000 troops at Taku. Why, Russia today has 200,000 troops between Vladivostok and Port Arthur, and in case she wanted to do so every man of them could be flung at Peking. Japan's power is another conspicuous element in this problem. Japan has nearly 100 ships of war in or near Chinese waters. If Japan waits for Russia to finish the Siberian railway before striking a blow to insure her influence in Korea and China, it will be only because England or the United States stays the hand of the mikado.

"China's future will rest to a great extent upon the attitude of Washington. She is fortunate in having for her representative at this time a statesman so alert and sagacious as his excellency Wu Ting Fang."

Off For Paris.

To the Paris exposition
People now are on the go,
All with bright anticipations
Of the sights at that big show.
There are millionaires and others
Who have wads of cash to burn;
There are many nervy fellows
Who don't know how they'll return.

Some are going in the cabin
Of the finest ship afloat,
Never caring for expenses
When their pleasure they promote.
Some are going in the steerage
Of a boat unknown to fame,
Disregarding ease and fashion,
For they'll get there just the same.

Some have taken many lessons
From professors who teach French,
And the natives they'll astonish
When that language gets a wrench.
Some declare that good old English
Is enough to get them through,
And their minds they will not burden
Even with a "parley voo."

But no difference how they get there,
And no difference how they talk,
They will do the exposition,
And do all the sights they'll flock.
They will take in all the Midway,
Halls of industry and art;
Everything that's worth the seeing
They will see ere they depart.

They'll at first be entertaining
When they get back home again,
For the exposition's glories
Will be new to listeners then,
But we shudder when we're thinking
Of how often they'll repeat
That old "When I was in Paris"
Every time we chance to meet.

CITY EXPENDITURES OF 1900.

A Total of $174,266.87 on Account of 1900 and $145,040.84 on Account of 1899---The Balances of June 1.

The first monthly statement of 1900 which has contained the appropriations and balances was issued to the City Council this week. City Auditor Sidelinger reports expenditures on account of 1900 to amount to $174,266.87, and on account of 1899 to amount to $145,040.84.

The 1899 expenditures include $100,000.00 to cancel a loan in anticipation of taxes, $14,477.07 on account of Coddington street, $7,561.58 for sewer construction, $5,500.00 for lot for fire station at Wollaston, $5,000 for Cranch hill school lot and smaller amounts.

The 1900 expenditures include $30,938 89 for salary of school teachers, $15,213.61 for water construction, $17,718.87 for streets, $12,815.00 for interest on water debt, etc.

The balances on the various items are perhaps of most interest, and they speak for themselves. The expenditures are for five months. The report is given in full:

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

The Wheat Crop Disaster.

Chicago, June 23.—The Times-Herald today publishes a crop report prepared by Snow, the crop expert, who has just completed a two weeks' trip through Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. He declares the wheat failure the worst ever known. He estimates the Dakotas as promising only 20,000,000 bushels each and Minnesota 35,000,000 bushels, a total of 75,000,000 bushels, against 200,000,000 bushels last year and 235,000,000 bushels in 1898.

Kincaide's Way.

He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it

Is Superior.

It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than

BRAINTREE.

Last Wednesday morning was parents' day at the Pond school, and in consequence nearly 150 parents and friends visited the four grades of the school. This is spoken of as the largest number of visitors ever seen there.

John Goodnow of South Braintree had a narrow escape from death early Wednesday morning while going to work at D. B. Closson & Co.'s shoe factory. He was riding his wheel at a fast clip across the electric car track on Washington street, to go down Pearl street, when his wheel slipped from under him and threw him in front of the 7.15 electric car from Brockton. He grasped the fender and the brake rod and held on until the car was stopped. Mr. Goodnow escaped with a slight bruise on his hip and a bad shaking up.

Juniors' day was inaugurated at the High school Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

There was a large attendance at Grand Army hall, Thursday evening, when the new camp of Sons of Veterans was formed. Junior Vice commander Blanchard of the State department was in the chair. And the following officers were elected:

Wednesday, Parents' day at the Middle street school, was a very happy occasion. Promptly at ten A. M. the room was filled with pupils and visitors. The little ones were remarkably unconscious of themselves and made a creditable showing in their games and exercises. Each child was given some small special part to perform. Their mechanical work had been artistically arranged in books by the teacher.

The Butcher Boys will attend the firemen's muster at Everett July 4, and the annual muster of the League at Waltham in August.

The first roll off in two weeks was held at the Kenwood alleys Tuesday evening, and the prize was won by "Billy" Stetson with a three string total of 255 pins.

The Sunday School picnic of the South M. E. church will be held on Wednesday, June 27, at Randolph grove, leaving the church at 9.30 A. M.

The scholars of the High school sent a floral tribute to the chemistry teacher, Harry A. Wason of Quincy, as a parting tribute to Mr. Wason's mother, who died last Monday.

Harold, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Woodworth of Mount Vernon avenue, celebrated his sixth birthday Thursday afternoon. About twenty of his young friends were present each receiving a basket of candy know as a favor, and a piece of cake. This birthday cake was made by Schraut Brothers, bakers.

Saturday evening seems to be the most popular evening at the Cochato club, for at this time the members, both ladies and gentlemen, gather in large numbers and the privileges of the club are enjoyed to the fullest extent. Last Saturday evening an Italian orchestra of three pieces, harp, violin and clarinet, entertained a large company on the broad piazza.

Miss Josephine B. Colbert has been appointed an assistant inspector by the president of the Massachusetts W. R. C.

The public schools of Braintree have closed for the long summer vacation. They will open again Tuesday, September 4.

Samuel B. Sampson, eldest son of the late Thomas Sampson, was elected second lieutenant of Battery I, Heavy Artillery, M. V. M., of Brockton, in that city, Monday evening.

At a meeting of the Thayer Academy base ball team held Friday, L. W. Newell of Braintree was elected captain of next year's team. This is a very happy choice as Mr. Newell is eminently fitted for the position, having played on the team during the last three years, he has developed into one of the most clever outfielders among the preparatory schools in this vicinity and while his batting average of 275 is not extraordinary, he is generally lucky in getting his base and is also a very good emergency batter. His winning personality and fine executive ability should make him one of the finest captains Thayer Academy has ever had.

Keith's Theatre.

Lockhart's baby elephants, which come to Keith's on Monday next, June 25, are the most marvelously intelligent and amusing animals that have ever been seen on the stage in this country. Their playing of musical instruments, their balancing feats, their standing on their heads and their hind legs, their comical antics and their general ability as actors are wonderful, and they are acknowledged in Europe, as well as America, to be the greatest performers among the brute creation, who have ever been seen in public. The fact that the elephant is the brainest animal next to man, in the scheme of creation, which is a well known scientific fact, has never before been so fully demonstrated as in the case of these extraordinary performers. To make the act more realistic, a special and unique stage setting will be given it, representing the exterior and interior of a circus tent, and several other acts will be shown therein, so that for an hour the patrons of Keith's will not have much difficulty in imagining themselves in the vicinity of a sawdust arena.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 24—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Our eternal destiny.—Math. xiii, 47-50.

THE PARABLE.

The parable of the net, which forms our study, has usually been associated with that of the tares. The tares teaches the impossibility of successfully separating the good and the evil in this world. The net teaches that God will make this separation "at the end of the world." Christ in this parable likens the kingdom of Heaven to a net cast into the sea. Every kind of fish are gathered into the net, and when it is full it is drawn to the shore. The good are put into vessels; the bad are cast away. "So shall it be at the end of the world; the angels shall come forth and sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire; then shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth."

THE INTERPRETATION.

The sea is the whole world; the net is the church. Those who cast the net are Christ's apostles and ministers. The fish are those who come into the church and profess to be disciples of Christ, some good, others bad; some sincere, others false in their profession. At the end of the world is the judgment, and at that time the angels of God, with unerring discrimination, shall eternally separate the good and bad, the sincere professor and the hypocrite.

THE APPLICATION.

This parable can be strikingly applied to our eternal destiny. It teaches great and important truths concerning our destiny beyond the grave; it teaches:

First.—There is an eternal destiny. That death does not end all is clearly the teaching of this parable. The end of the world is portrayed. But men are not dead. All are alive, both good and bad. Science, philosophy and theology unite in teaching this great truth today as never before. The greatest scientists and philosophers today, as well as the theologians, firmly believe in a future life. It is not all of life to live nor all of death to die. We shall live again. Our destiny is not temporal, but eternal.

Second.—There are two conditions of existence in eternity, and God Himself, through His angels, will separate men for the destiny that awaits them. The good fish were put into vessels and the bad cast back into sea; the good men were separated from the evil and the evil cast into the furnace of fire; the good remained forever with God, and the evil were cast forever from Him. There are two conditions of existence in the future. Men cannot here separate the good and evil, but "the Lord knoweth them that are His and will one day bring these confusions to an end, separating the precious from the vile, the gold from the dross, the true kernel of humanity from the husk in which for awhile it was enveloped."

3. Our eternal destiny is determined by our relation to Christ in this world. It is here that we are good or bad, just or unjust, sincere or false, and it is in this life therefore that we are determining what shall be the character and condition of our eternal destiny. What shall it be, viewed in the light of our present attitude toward God in Christ? Are we true or false? Are we possessors or simply professors? Upon the answer to these questions depends our eternal destiny, and we cannot deceive God.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Arrange a special programme with prepared papers or addresses on (1) science and the future, (2) philosophy and the future and (3) the Bible and the future. This is a splendid opportunity to make a comprehensive study of this great and important subject.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. i, 1-6; xxiii, 1-6; Eccl. xii, 13, 14; Dan. xii, 3; Math. xxv, 31-46; Rom. vi, 23; xiv, 12, 13; 1 Cor. xv, 51-58; 1 Pet. i, 1-5; Rev. ii, 10.

Suggestive.

If a strenuous soul be sad, so much the worse for him and his cause. So far he is a man of mistake and unfaith. He is trying to shoulder more of the universe than one man can carry. More than a man can carry comfortably is a man's share; there is so much to be carried. We ought to strain and stagger at times, but not to stagger long faced. Let us trust God, and right in the strain we may find our mouth filling with His gift of laughter. Loneliness, moroseness, discontent, impatience, anxiety—leave them for unreligiousness. The grim face, the "brow contracting sort," belongs not to one who feels as he walks that he walks with God. For him the open look, the laughing eye, the ready greeting to any and all, as from "a heart at leisure from itself."—Rev. W. C. Gannett.

More Truths.

Flowers that come from a loved hand should be more prized than diamonds.

It is better to sacrifice one's love of sarcasm than to indulge in it at the expense of a friend.—Christian Instructor.

Following Him.

"Master, I'll follow Thee; follow
Whither Thou wilt command!"
"Tarry thou there by life's millstone, Lending a helping hand."

"Master, I'll follow Thee; follow
Whither Thy steps shall lead!"
"Follow the furrow of sorrow, Dropping My precious seed."

"Master, I'll follow Thee; follow
Whither Thy hand shall point!"
"Yonder—in pain and in prison—
Go, and their wounds anoint!"

"Lord, I will follow Thee ever,
Even unto the end!"
"Bear thou the burdens of others;
So shalt thou be My friend!"

STREET WIDENINGS.

Railway Company Finds Them Very Expensive—A Reply.

Mr. John R. Graham writes the following open letter in reply to the communication of James S. Whiting in Friday's Ledger:

Mr. J. S. Whiting,
Quincy, Mass.

I was greatly amused while reading the letter published in yesterday's Ledger headed, "No Betterments." "Large Outlays by City Because of Street Railway."

While perusing your letter it occurred to me that about a year ago you caused a letter to be published in the daily press in regard to the car service on the Houghs Neck line, which you were afterwards compelled to acknowledge was a parcel of lies. Taken in connection with your letter published in Friday's issue of the Ledger, I must say that you can make more statements that are untrue than any man I ever met.

Coddington and Sea streets were widened for the benefit and on the petition of the people of Houghs Neck; the railway company never requested it and was perfectly satisfied with the location it had. Incident to the widening of these streets it has been put to an expense of $15,000. Has not the railroad paid its share? The Council could not have exacted any conditions other than those contained in the original franchise, and the money we spent in renewing our tracks and making other improvements in our Houghs Neck line was spent voluntarily. You say that it annually pays a dividend of seven per cent. That is another statement that is not in accordance with the truth.

In the widening of Copeland street the expense of changing our tracks will amount to more than any benefit we could derive from said widening or any betterment that could be assessed on the railway company.

In regard to the street railway franchise, it was obtained when the Town Fathers were exerting themselves to attract and encourage anyone to build street railways within the limits of the town. They were willing to grant to any responsible parties, anything in the way of franchises, and no one will deny that their concessions have resulted in as great benefits to the City of Quincy as to the stockholders of the Railway Company.

Men of your caliber are always the first to criticise the promoters of projects which benefit the public, but under no circumstances could they be induced to risk a dollar in furthering a scheme which had for its object the convenience and benefit of the community.

You say, "Not until the railway was coerced by Mayor Hall appealing to the Railroad Commissioners, did its president agree to give free transfers, beginning on June 27 or thereabouts." That statement is not true, and I may add that your statement "that the Council is repeatedly out-generalled by the railway company," is also untrue.

In answering your letter I have endeavored to make myself plain, and have tried by pointing out some of the untrue statements contained in it, to impress upon you the necessity of keeping somewhere within the bounds of truthfulness in any future communications you may make to the public.

Yours very truly,
John R. Graham.

EDUCATIONAL.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control.
These three alone lead life to sovereign power;
Yet not for power (power of herself
Would come uncalled for) but to live by law,
Acting the law we live by without fear;
And, because right is right, to follow right
Were wisdom in the scorn of consequences."

"The question whether a republic can be a permanent form of government is at bottom a question of education; more than a monarchy a republic must struggle against ignorance and the evils that attend it. If Europe must educate leaders, we must educate the masses, but for both education is indispensable."

Discipline is as essential to the growth of character as attention to the growth of intellect. Order and discipline are often spoken of as if they were one, but they are related, not identical. Order aims at securing prompt obedience to commands, discipline at making commands unnecessary; order is the result of government, discipline a preparation for self-government; order says to a child "You must;" discipline teaches him to say "I will."

—David Samon.

He who plants a tree does well; he who fells the tree and saws it into planks does well; he who makes a bench of the plank does well but he who, sitting on the bench, teaches a child, does better than all the rest.

—Canon Farrar.

The old days illustrated the survival of the fittest. The conditions of school life were exacting. The idea of making school life pleasant was often forgotten. Many discouraged boys and girls fell out by the wayside. Many, nevertheless, survived the full term of school life. Some are alive today. They possess qualities of sturdy self-reliance. They trace these traits to those days when they liked to go to school in spite of the hard discipline to which they were subjected.

—Walradt.

In his latest report the Secretary of the State Board of Education writes as follows regarding the classification of absences from school as "excused" and "unexcused:" "Until recently it was left by law wholly to the local school authorities to determine what excuses for absence should be accepted as valid, and what should not be so accepted. In 1898 the Legislature provided that the local school authorities might excuse cases of "necessary absence." Therefore the school authorities are legally entitled to know the reasons that exist for absence." The School Committee of Concord, taking a similar view of the legal situation, adopted a rule requiring that parents, whenever their children were absent from school, should include in the oral or written excuse heretofore required, a statement of the reason for the absence. A brief record of the reason assigned is made by the teacher, and the absences themselves are classed as excused or unexcused. Absences that are due to "sickness from pupil, or sickness in his family, or some urgent necessity," are the only ones that are excusable under the rules of the Board. Parents should bear in mind that the teachers have no discretion in these matters, but must enforce the rules of the School Committee. Any annoyance or vexation caused by such enforcement should not be expressed against a teacher, but is to be charged to a regulation made necessary by the school laws of the State, and unquestionably required for the efficient management of the public school system.

Whatever may be the excellence or the defects of our school system, it is true that the great body of school problems is still unsolved. Like Newton we are still picking up a few sands upon the beach with the boundless ocean of truth before us. The best subjects of study for the young and the best methods of instruction, the whole question of school discipline, the degree of freedom which shall be given to every pupil, the effects of punishment of every kind, the right treatment of truants and school offenders, the relations between the school and the home and between the school and society and the state, all invite the most careful and serious study. It is given to each generation to make some advance over the past; but every worker must find his highest inspiration in the thought that he who comes after him will improve upon his efforts, that the schools of the future are to do their work better than the schools of today, and that he is permitted to participate in the most important duty which each generation passes on to the next.

OUR NATIONAL FORUM.

American Civic Federation Embracing the Entire Country.

AN ADVISORY COUNCIL NAMED.

Committee, With Franklin H. Head as Chairman, Selected Its Five Hundred Members—Meetings to Be Held Annually In Different Localities. Organization Will Be Nonpartisan.

As the result of a movement begun shortly after the trust conference held last fall under the auspices of the Civic federation of Chicago, the National Civic federation has been organized to take up and discuss at conferences to be held in various cities matters of interest to the entire country, says the Chicago Tribune. The first step taken was toward the formation of an advisory council, a national body of 500 members, and this work has just been completed.

In former years the Civic federation in Chicago has called together four national conferences, at which the topics of industrial arbitration, municipal reforms, foreign policies and combinations and trusts successively were considered. These conferences all attracted wide attention, particularly the one held in Chicago last fall to consider combinations and trusts, but after that meeting ended the feeling was general among members that in the future it would be better to handle such gatherings through a national rather than a local organization. It was then that the organization of the advisory council was decided on.

A committee, of which Franklin H. Head was chairman, was named to do the work of organizing the National Civic federation, and as a result of its efforts the advisory council now embraces a membership of 500 men in all parts of the United States, including representatives in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. Among the members of the national body are leading manufacturers, agriculturists, bankers, preachers, educators, editors, labor leaders, lawyers, railroad men, the presidents of many great universities and professors of political science and economics, bishops and eminent churchmen and the chief officers of nearly all important national labor organizations. These represent practically every branch of trade and industry, every sect in religion, every party in politics.

The prospectus of the organization states its object to be: "To provide for study and discussion of questions of national import affecting either the foreign or domestic policy of the United States, to aid in the crystallization of the most enlightened public sentiment of the country in respect thereto and, when desirable, to promote necessary legislation in accordance therewith."

The plan provides for an executive committee of 30, an advisory council of 500 and a large membership throughout the country, composed of representative, practical men of affairs, irrespective of party or creed. The bylaws provide for standing committees on the following subjects: Foreign relations, insular affairs, banking and currency, industrial combinations, interstate and foreign commerce, consular and diplomatic service, labor, municipal government, taxation, civil service, Indian affairs and the negro question.

Franklin H. Head, chairman of the committee on organization, in announcing the advisory council said:

"The manufacturers have their national organization and meet annually to discuss the questions that affect their special interests, the agriculturists have their national grange meetings and farmers' congresses to discuss their interests, the great labor bodies of the country have their annual meetings devoted to their special questions; also the National Bankers' association, American Bar association, American Economic and Social Science associations, the great church bodies, mercantile, trade and traffic associations and many other strictly class organizations meet annually or oftener to discuss their various interests.

"The object of the National Civic federation, in addition to creating departments to study national problems, will be to provide a national forum by means of which representatives of all these great divisions of society may come together and discuss the problems in which all have a common interest. There are many such today, outside of political questions, in the solution of which such a body may assist in an educational way.

"The meetings will be held annually or as often as conditions suggest and in different localities. The organization will be absolutely nonpartisan. That there is a field for such an organization is evidenced by the 500 acceptances received on the advisory council and the hearty indorsement of the plan contained therein. The date of the first meeting and the subjects for discussion will be decided by the executive committee and announced later."

In accepting membership in the advisory council, many persons wrote letters containing expressions of approval of the plan for a national organization.

Bowls For Japan's Soldiers.

Over 60 workmen are now engaged in the Osaka arsenal in the manufacture of aluminium bowls for the use of the soldiers in the Japanese army, says The Japan-American Commercial Journal of Tokyo. The daily output averages 750, and the vessels cost about $1.15 apiece. The use of aluminium for these articles was decided upon as the result of close investigation of the merits of different wares.

Coming down on the street car, the big red-faced man was talking for the benefit of all on board in telling of a little animal he had bought for his boy to drive, and dilating on its good points.

"Does it belong to the 'equus asinus' family?" asked the scholarly and quiet-appearing man across the aisle.

"No, sir; it belongs to me."

"Same thing," and the red-faced man never turned a hair.—Detroit Free Press.

What Is It?

A man who has been running a race with steam and electricity for years, finds himself suddenly stopped. It seems as if a cold hand clutched his heart. His brain whirls; he can hardly see. "What is it?" he asks himself as the attack passes. If his question meets a right answer, he'll be told that his seizure is a warning to pay more attention to his stomach, which is already deranged by irregular meals and rich foods.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates from the blood disease breeding poisons. It makes the blood rich and pure, and furnishes a foundation for sound, physical health.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach," writes Mr. Wm. Connolly, of 515 Walnut Street, Lorain, Ohio. "It got so bad that I had to lay off quite often—two and three days in a week. I have been treated by the best doctors in this city, but got no help. Some said I had cancer of the stomach, others catarrh, others dyspepsia. Then I wrote to you for advice. You advised the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' These medicines I have taken as directed. I commenced to get better from the start, and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I feel tip-top, and better than I have for ten years."

Keep the bowels healthy by using Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They don't gripe.

WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Buller's Advance, Under Dundonald, Has Entered Town of Standerton.

Wide Net Around Steyn's Men Will Now Contract.

Principal Condition For Peace Is That Kruger Be Allowed to Stay in the Country.

London, June 23.—General Dundonald, with the Third cavalry brigade, occupied Standerton yesterday without opposition. The burghers left Thursday, after having blown up the railroad bridge and doing other damage. The infantry marched 22 miles yesterday and camped at Kaatsbosch Spruit last night.

General Steyn's forces in the Orange River Colony are for the time drawing most of the attention of Lord Roberts, rather to the neglect of Commandant General Louis Botha and President Kruger. The severance between the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony was completed yesterday, as Lord Roberts said it would be, by the arrival of General Buller's advance, under Lord Dundonald, at Standerton.

The wide net around the 6000 or 7000 men under General Steyn will now contract. Adroit maneuvering and brisk fighting are likely to take place, because until all resistance south of the Vaal is at an end the British line of communications will not be safe.

President Kruger's sons, who surrendered to General Baden-Powell, are back on their farms and working peacefully. General Baden-Powell rode with only 300 men from Mafeking, and he made the last section of his ride to Pretoria with only 35. Lord Roberts met him in the outskirts of the town and escorted him to the presidency.

General De Wet's farmhouses have been burned by the British.

General Buller has issued a special order eulogizing the services of Strathcona's horse.

Captain Jones and the brigade from H. M. S. Forte have been ordered back to the ship at the admiral's request.

It is announced that the British war office has bought 40 batteries of Krupp field artillery.

A Lourenzo Marques dispatch says that President Kruger's principal condition for immediate peace is that he be allowed to stay in the country.

There are 5000 British sick and wounded at Pretoria.

Mrs. Reitz, wife of the Transvaal state secretary, and her family, who arrived at Lourenzo Marques en route for Europe, had so little money that the Dutch consul purchased second class steamship tickets for them.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 23.—The bill for the approval of the lease of the Boston and Albany railroad to the New York Central railroad passed to a third reading in the state senate yesterday. Numerous attempts were made to amend the bill, but with the exception of one of slight importance, they all failed when it came to a vote. The bill has still another reading in the senate before it goes to the house for approval.

The principal action in the house yesterday was the refusal to reconsider the adverse vote of Thursday on the bill compelling the incorporation of the New England Gas and Coke company.

The Oats Got Mixed.

Washington, June 23.—Several weeks ago the president nominated John M. Oats for the position of postmaster at Honolulu and the nomination was confirmed by the senate. It is now learned that the man appointed is the brother of the one whom it was intended should fill the position. Joseph H. Oats was formerly postmaster general of Hawaii, but through an error the name of his brother, John, was sent to the senate. John M. Oats lives at San Francisco and has no desire to go to Honolulu. The commission will be cancelled and Joseph M. Oats will be appointed.

Moonshine Whisky Joint Raided.

New York, June 23.—Revenue Agent Thompson and deputies yesterday confiscated an illicit still operated by Lewis Freiman and Joseph Goldstein in Mount Vernon. Forty barrels of sugar mash and 150 gallons of new made whisky were seized. According to Agent Thompson the profits of the still, in full working order, would be about $500 a day. The prisoners are Russian Jews.

Yellow Fever Spread by Rain.

Havana, June 23. — The unusually heavy rains that have been falling throughout Cuba have caused yellow fever in places where it had been unknown for several years. Fortunately, except at Santa Clara and Quemados the United States troops have escaped. Havana has developed only three cases thus far.

Admits Stealing From the Mails.

New York, June 23.—Arthur S. Hunkele, vice president of the New York branch of the National Post Office Clerks' association, was arrested Friday on a charge of stealing from the mails. He was held in $2000 bail for the grand jury. Hunkele had confessed his guilt to Inspectors Jacobs and James.

A Remarkably Large Cargo.

Boston, June 23.—The largest sailing vessel in point of capacity that ever appeared in this port arrived Friday. She is the Liverpool, a four-master, and has made a voyage of over 12,000 miles, from Calcutta, with a cargo of 26,168 bales of jute and jute cuttings, equal to 5250 tons deadweight.

Strikers Wounded by Guards.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 23.—During a riot at the Boston mine, near here, two strikers were wounded by guards. The trouble was the result of an attempt on the part of the colliery superintendent to operate the mine with non-union men.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Bradstreet's Finds That a Large Volume of Trade Is Being Transacted.

New York, June 23.—Bradstreet's says: Midsummer dullness in distributive trade and industry and further reductions of prices of manufactured goods, particularly iron and steel, and raw textiles, but a marked upward movement in nearly all agricultural products are the leading features of the business situation this week. Political interest has in some degree, of course, tended toward the quiet in general business, while the lowering of the prices of many raw and manufactured products has grown out of a desire to meet present conditions of demand and supply. The heavy increases in railroad earnings, however, testify to a large volume of business being done.

The advance in agricultural products, notably the cereals, has been mainly due to renewed and reiterated reports of wheat crop damage in the northwest. It should not be forgotten of course that this is the "crop killers' " own particular time.

Crop damage has also been a moving cause for the advance in the price of cotton.

Wool is lower, and the woolen goods market is rather quiet.

Weakness of prices is still the leading feature of the iron trade and lower quotations are noted for pig iron. Structural material has also verified predictions in a heavy decline.

Reports from the boot and shoe industry are of rather unsatisfactory trade prospects, and leather and hides are rather weak at the east, but strong at Chicago, where heavy purchases for Philippine army purposes have strengthened the situation.

Failures for this week number 167, compared with 180 last week, 199 in this week a year ago, 229 in 1898, 215 in 1897 and 218 in 1896.

Democrats May Nominate Coler.

New York, June 23.—When Comptroller Coler was asked last night if there was any truth in the current talk that the Democratic leaders of the state were going to nominate him for governor of New York, he said that it was substantially correct. He would not say, however, that he would accept the nomination. The comptroller would say nothing further concerning the situation.

Have Left the Bryan Camp.

Philadelphia, June 23.—Governor Wells, Thomas Kearns and Charles E. Loose, three of the six delegates from Utah, announce that they have each forwarded checks for $50,000 to Chairman Hanna as a contribution to the campaign fund. Four years ago these three delegates were Bryan leaders. They contributed $25,000 each to the Bryan campaign.

For Governor of Florida.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 23.—The state Democratic state convention last night nominated William S. Jennings for governor on the 44th ballot, after a deadlock up to the 37th ballot. Then other candidates withdrew. The nominee is a first cousin of William J. Bryan of Nebraska.

Smith Disqualified For Fouling.

New York, June 23.—Joe Bernstein met Solly Smith at the Broadway Athletic club last night, and after fighting 14 rounds Smith was disqualified for fouling. The men were matched to fight 25 rounds at 124 pounds. From the outset, Smith seemed inclined to lose on a foul.

Suspicion of Smallpox.

New Bedford, Mass., June 23.—Another suspected case of smallpox is reported, a mill operative named Labreeque being the person suspected. The state board of health expert on the disease has been sent for. Two other reported suspected cases proved not to be smallpox.

Revolution Not Ended.

Caracas, June 23.—The Colombian revolutionists have occupied Bucaramanga, on the Venezuelan frontier. Cucuta, a town in the department of Santander, also on the Venezuelan frontier, continues in possession of the revolutionists.

Relieving Force Lost Heavily.

Prahsu, June 23.—There is no fresh news to hand from Kumassi, but the local authorities think that the relief of the town may now be effected any day. The casualties of the relieving force, all ranks, aggregate 300 already.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE?

The Powers Facing a Serious Problem In Dealing With Chinese Question.

Position of the International Forces In Extreme Peril.

Thousands of Casualties Said to Have Been Caused by Bombardment of Tien Tsin.

London, June 25.—The powers are said to have fatally underestimated the numbers, desperation and armament of the Chinese, who for three years have been accumulating rifles at the rate of 20,000 a month.

The question here is, what are the powers going to do? Japan is preparing to trans-ship this week 10,000 additional troops. Russia is sending down from Vladivostock all her available forces, estimated at from 8000 to 9000 men, although recent events have shown that the number of Russians on the Pacific coast has been overestimated. The Indian council held a special meeting at Simla yesterday and considered the feasibility of sending more troops.

The position of the international forces in the section of northern China, where 10,000 men are striving to keep a footing and to succor the legations in Pekin, appears to increase in peril with every fresh dispatch. Pekin has not been heard from direct for 14 days. The last dispatch was one imploring aid. Admiral Seymour's column of 2000 was last heard from 12 days ago. At that time it was surrounded midway between Pekin and Tien Tsin. Possibly now it has reached Pekin.

The 2000 internationals at Tien Tsin were hard pressed and fighting for their lives on Thursday, and a relieving force of less than 1000 had been beaten back to Taku Friday. Observers on the spot think that 100,000 men would not be too many to grasp China firmly.

The admiralty has received the following from the British rear admiral at Taku: "Che Foo, June 23.—Only one runner has got through from Tien Tsin for five days. No information could be obtained except that the foreign settlement had been almost entirely destroyed, and that our people were fighting hard. News is received as this telegram is dispatched that an attempt to relieve Tien Tsin on June 22 was repulsed, with some loss."

The telegram also said: "The allied admirals are working in perfect accord, with the Russian vice admiral as senior officer."

A press message from Shanghai, dated yesterday at 4 p. m., embodies some later information. It says: "Official Japanese telegrams confirm the reports of a defeat of the allied forces at Tien Tsin. The foreigners there are now placed in a most desperate situation. The Russian admiral, Hillebrandt, yesterday sent a mixed force of 4000 from Taku to attempt the relief of Tien Tsin. Nearly half of the force consisted of Japanese. The remainder was made up of contingents representing the other nations.

"The bombardment of Tien Tsin continued Friday. Bomb shelters were hastily erected by the foreign troops, largely constructed of wetted piece goods. The food supplies are insufficient, and the continued shelling is reported to be telling terribly. Among those killed of the relief force Friday was the commander of H. M. S. Barfleur. The foreign casualties were 300.

"Japan is making every effort. Her troops are now arriving at Taku in large numbers. The Chinese troops in the province of Chi Li include 60,000 auxiliaries, who have been drilled by Russian and German officers."

It was reported from Shanghai last evening that the allied forces had blown up the Taku forts, and that every available man had been sent to the relief of Tien Tsin. Two thousand three hundred Chinese bodies are alleged to have been cremated at Taku, and upwards of 4000 Chinese are said to have been killed at Tien Tsin.

Chinese runners who have arrived at Taku report that a foreign force was engaged several days ago with an overwhelming body of Chinese 40 miles west of Tien Tsin. At Shanghai it is assumed this force was Admiral Seymour's.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express says: "I learn from a mandarin who stealthily left Pekin on June 16, and who succeeded at great hazard in getting clear, that the Boxers are massed around Pekin, and that more than half of the northern and western portions of the city, including the foreign settlement, were aflame when the mandarin left. He could tell me nothing as to the fate of the foreigners, nor much as to the general situation, but he had heard that the empress dowager was preparing to go to the province of Shan Si."

A Che Foo dispatch to The Daily Mail, dated yesterday, says: "The attack on the Tien Tsin relief force was made by 20,000 Chinese, using machine guns and modern field pieces. The allies were wise in retreating. Forwarding detachments in this manner is suicidal, and the defeats of the foreigners, even though in small force, greatly aids the movement of the Boxers, which is gaining enormously through the inability of the foreigners to make headway against it. Practically the whole of northern China is ablaze. Hostilities are now conducted on an extended scale, due to direct orders from Pekin. General Yann Shi Kai, governor of Shan Tung, commands 11,000 foreign drilled troops, organized to a high pitch of excellence and equipped with Mausers. It was in the plans that these troops should go to Taku, but the seizure of the forts was effected before they could get there."

At Canton, the Boxers are posting inflammatory placards, of which the following is a sample:

"Kill all Germans, French, Americans and English. To have peace prevail in the hearts of the people all foreigners should be driven out. This end can be attained in a few days if we unite our strength."

LAMP USED AS A WEAPON.

Burning Oil Spread to Mrs. McKenna's Clothing and Caused Her Death.

Providence, June 25.—Catherine McKenna, 47 years old, was fatally burned as a result of a quarrel with her husband, in which a lighted lamp was broken, setting fire to her clothing. The husband left the house immediately. Neighbors extinguished the flames and she was taken to a hospital, where she died. The husband was arrested four hours after the occurrence. He was under the influence of liquor when arrested and denied all knowledge of any trouble.

A married daughter who witnessed the affair states that in the quarrel her father slapped her mother's face and she slapped him, and shortly after he slapped her again, whereupon she seized the lamp and made a motion to use it as a weapon and had struck the lamp, knocking off the upper part, the oil pouring over the woman, igniting and burning her. The man is held by the police, pending an investigation.

Object of Their Adoration Killed.

Bedford, Ind., June 25.—Albert Roberts and Oscar Jeans have been rival suitors of Miss Jennie Russell. While Roberts and Miss Russell were out driving they met Jeans and a pistol duel between the two men followed. Miss Russell leaped from the buggy and rushed between them, but they continued shooting and the girl was fatally wounded. Roberts grabbed the girl in one arm as she fell and continued firing with the other. Miss Russell died in a few hours at her home. Roberts is now almost insane. Jeans escaped and warrants are out for his arrest.

Sports Lost Heavily.

Chicago, June 25.—Sidney Lucas, almost neglected in the betting at odds of 20 to 1, won the 13th American derby at Washington park. Six lengths behind him was the eastern colt, James, and still further back, struggling to no avail, was the vaunted public choice, the even money favorite, Lieutenant Gibson. That rush of Sidney Lucas through the stretch fairly stupefied the 20,000 spectators, and there was no tumultous applause for the winner when the contenders cantered back to the judge's stand.

Americans the Better Workmen.

Havana, June 25.—A strike has occurred among the laborers employed by the Havana Electric company, Cubans and Spaniards, on the ground that they do not receive the same wages as Americans who do similar work. They claim that the Americans receive 40 cents a day more. To this the contractors reply that Americans are worth far more than Cubans as workmen.

A Fine Runner at 58.

Cleveland, June 25.—J. L. Smith, 58 years old, successfully defended his title as champion runner of the G. A. R. against Gilbert Barnes, 55 years old, thereby retaining the G. A. R. silver trophy, and winning $600 in wagers. Smith covered 10 miles in 59½ minutes, and beat Barnes by half a mile.

A $56,000 Fire at Laconia.

Laconia, N. H., June 25.—The Central block, on Main street, was gutted by fire Sunday, entailing a loss of $56,000. The block was in four sections, and was occupied by several business firms. The fire originated in Mallard's drug store, and was probably caused by spontaneous combustion.

Halifax, June 25.—Michael Lynch, the sculler, has lost his left foot, an old injury having taken a serious turn, necessitating amputation. Lynch had already defeated leading oarsmen and finished a close second to Gaudaur at Halifax.

Frankfort, Ky., June 25.—David B. Hill is believed here to be the choice for vice president by a majority of delegates from this state to the Democratic national convention, and there is little doubt that he will receive Kentucky's vote.

Gentlemen: My mamma has been a great coffee drinker and has found it very injurious. Having used several packages of your GRAIN-O, the drink that takes the place of coffee, she finds it much better for herself and for us children to drink. She has given up coffee drinking entirely. We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

RAILROAD DISASTER IN SOUTH

Evening Train Runs Into a Washout and Very Few Passengers Escape.

The Wreck Took Fire and the Whole Train Was Destroyed.

Dead Said To Number 35---Cloudburst Broke Over Section About 6 P. M.

Macon, Ga., June 25.—There was a heavy loss of life in a wreck Saturday night on the Southern railroad. A passenger train ran into a washout, 1½ miles north of McDonough, Ga., and was completely wrecked. The wreck caught fire, and the entire train, with the exception of the sleeper, was destroyed. Every person in the train, except the occupants of the Pullman car, perished. Not a member of the train crew escaped. Thirty-five people in all were killed.

The train left Macon at 7:10 and was due in Atlanta at 9:45 Saturday night. McDonough was reached on time. At this point connection is made for Columbus, Ga., and here every night the Columbus train is coupled and hauled through to Atlanta. Saturday night, however, for the first time in many months, the Columbus train was reported two hours late on account of a washout on that branch, and the Macon train started on to Atlanta without its Columbus connection.

Camp's creek, which runs into the Ocmulgee, was over its banks, and its waters had spread to all the lowlands through which it runs. About a mile and a half north of McDonough the creek comes somewhat near the Southern's tracks and, running alongside it for some distance, finally passes away under the road by a heavy stone culvert. A cloudburst broke over that section of the country about 6 o'clock Saturday night and presumably shortly after dark washed out a section of track nearly 100 feet in length. Into this the swiftly moving train plunged.

The storm was still raging and all the car windows were closed. The passengers, secure as they thought, and sheltered comfortably from the inclement weather, went to death without an instant's warning. The train, consisting of a baggage car, second-class coach, first-class coach and Pullman sleeper, was knocked into kindling wood by the fall. The wreck caught fire a few minutes after the fall and all the coaches were burned except the Pullman car.

Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished in the disaster. There was no escape, as the heavy Pullman car weighted down the others, and the few alive in the sleeper were unable to render assistance to their fellow passengers.

For a brief time there was silence. Then the occupants of the Pullman car recovered from the bewilderment and after hard work managed to get out of their car. Flames were seen coming from that part of the wreckage not covered by the water. As the wreck began to go to pieces under the destructive work of both flames and flood, human bodies floated out from the mass and were carried down stream by the swift current. The storm did not abate in fury. Flashes of lightning added to the steady glow of the burning train and lit up the scene with fearful distinctness.

Flagman Quinlan, who was one of the first to get out, at once started for the nearest telegraph station. Making his way as rapidly as possible in the face of the blinding storm he stumbled into the telegraph office at McDonough, and after telling the operator of the wreck fell fainting to the floor. Word was quickly sent to both Atlanta and Macon, but no assistance was to be had except in the latter city, as the interrupted track prevented the arrival of any train from Macon.

Superintendent Jones of the Southern railway said of the affair: "It can only be explained as one of the inevitable acts of God. It seems that it was the result of a terrific rainstorm or cloudburst, something similar to the one which caused the Johnstown flood."

Explosion at a Pleasure Resort.

Greenwich, Conn., June 25.—By the explosion of the boiler of a merry-go-round at Edwards' Grove, Rye Beach, L. Nelson, Charles Hallett and John Wood were badly burned and bruised, and Wood is not expected to live. Wood was the engineer, and is 19 years old. Nelson and Hallett conducted the affair. John Wade was badly scalded. About 25 women and children were on the horses at the time of the explosion, but none of them were injured.

Fishing Schoonar Sent to the Bottom.

Norfolk, June 25.—Steamship Hamilton, Captain Doaz, from New York to Norfolk, reports that as the Hamilton was about two miles from Northeast End Lightship of the Delaware coast Saturday night she suddenly and without warning crashed into the fishing schooner J. H. Ker of New York, sending her to the bottom of the ocean, but not until all hands had been rescued. The fog was so thick at the time of the accident that it was impossible to see 100 yards ahead.

Another Victory For McGovern.

Chicago, June 25.—At Tattersall's Saturday night Terry McGovern upheld his reputation as king of all featherweights by defeating George Dixon, the ex-champion, in six rounds. Dixon, although not knocked out, was in distress and holding on for dear life as the bout ended. The fight was fast and furious from beginning to end, with Terry on top of his man all the time.

Cars Liberally Patronized.

St. Louis, June 25.—Cars were run on all branches of the Transit company's system Sunday without molestation, and thousands of persons rode to and from the parks and other pleasure resorts. This week will see the force of deputy sheriffs on duty reduced to 500 men, who will be kept on guard wherever the necessity exists for their presence.

Stinson Met With Mishap.

Providence, June 25.—It did not require much exertion for Burns Pierce, the vanquisher of Jimmy Michael, to defeat H. C. Stinson at Crescent park Sunday, in the 20-mile motor-paced race. Stinson's pace was poor, one machine going wrong in the first mile, giving Pierce a big lead. Had Stinson's machine been right he would have given Pierce a hard race.

Good Afternoon.

Dr. Hallowell of the School Committee has been suggested as a desirable Superintendent of Schools. As a member of the board for several years he has been in close touch with our schools and education in general. He was formerly a school teacher, and is a college man, and has many of the qualifications necessary for the position if he would accept.

All that the Woodward Institute needed to make it the most desirable school for Quincy born girls has been granted this year by the managers. Beginning with the fall term in September free text books will be furnished to all pupils. With the gymnasium, large corps of teachers, etc., the Woodward offers unusual opportunities which girls now in the crowded grammar schools, or who are about to be graduated from these schools should, thoughtfully consider. The High school is an excellent school, but so popular that it is overcrowded. Thus far pupils at the Woodward have not been handicapped by a crowd, but each has received personal attention, and the results are very gratifying. The courses of study include English, history, natural science, geometry, news of the day, drawing, music, gymnastics algebra, chemistry, physics, French, Latin, German, Greek, bookkeeping, commercial arithmetic, stenography, typewriting, political economy, etc. Quincy girls are certainly favored.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Suppose the sweet girl graduate does think she knows it all. She will learn better later on.—Chicago Record.

☞ The gas situation in Boston is well calculated to breed the suspicion that it is as rotten as it is scandalous. —Milford Journal.

☞ Ninety cent gas for Boston is the war cry of the house of representatives now, but we will believe it when we see it. It is really too much to expect that our solons are truly anxious to take the Boston gas situation by the horns. It requires more courage than we think they possess.—Haverhill Gazette.

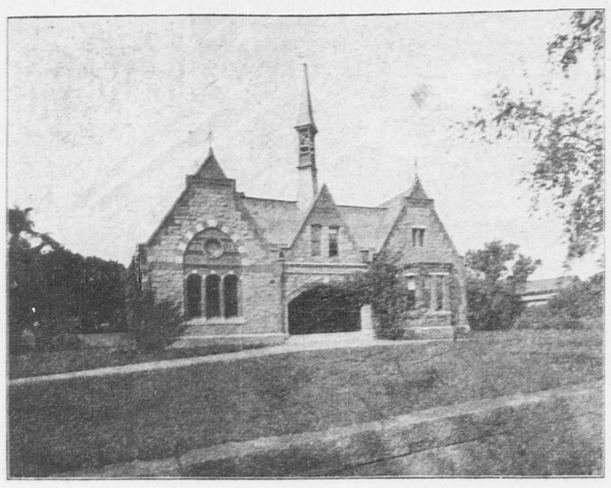

☞ The kind of study that can best be pursued by children in summer time is precisely the kind that developes understanding and the ability to see a thing when it is looked at. No better preparation for the winter's work in mathematics or in Latin can be had than summer work with Nature. No worse preparation could be invented than the idleness or undirected activity of a long vacation.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

Council Business.

A public hearing will be given at tonight's meeting of the City Council on the petition to lay out Warren avenue. The Committee on streets will report orders for public hearings on the acceptance of Intervale and Upland streets. They will also report on the orders laying out Morton street; electric light poles on Franklin street and New England Telephone poles on Howard and Franklin street; sidewalk on Beale steet; repairs on Kendrick avenue; and lights on Avon way and Whalley road.

The matters in the calendar are the loan order, and the order for $600 for the Wollaston hose house.

ROYAL A. MOORE WINS MEDAL.

Annual Declamations by Students of Adams Academy at the First Church Today.

The annual prize declamations of the Adams Academy for the Adams gold medal and the award of scholarship prizes was held this morning at the First church. The attendance was unusually large. Many of the alumni as well as many ladies being present.

Previous to the exercises Dr. Everett announced that the selections were those chosen by the master, which should be taken into consideration in marking.

The boys entered into the spirit of the selections assigned them, and their delivery was such as to merit applause. Where it was neccessay to show feeling or force it was done. Considering the youthfulness of the boys, for such they are, the declamations can be said to equal if not excell any for the past few years.

The gold medal for which all were striving was not awarded hastily, the judges consuming considerable time in reaching their decision. It was finally awarded to Royal Archibald Moore.

The Masters' or second prize was awarded to Robert A. Hardwick.

The Alumni prize was awarded Odo Howard Molenaer, and he was to have delivered his oration, but as he had been suddenly called to Philadelphia by the death of his guardian this was omitted.

The judges were: Mayor Hall, Prof. Archibald Cooledge, Fred B. Rice and Rev. James Eales.

The order of exercises was as follows:

1. "What the Constitution has done for us," Webster

The Woodward Alumnae.

The second annual meeting of the Woodward Alumnae Association was held at the Institute on Saturday evening. There were about sixty present, including the class of 1900, and members of the faculty.

The business meeting was called to order at 7.30 by the president Miss Eugenia M. Hatch '98, and the following list of officers were elected for the ensuing yearr: President, Miss Grace Eaton, '99; Vice President, Anna Whitham, '96; Secretary, Mary G. Dolliver, '98; Treasurer, Mary F. Jones, '99 and an executive committee consisting of the above named officers and Helen Woodward, '97.

The business meeting was followed by a social during which the following program was given. "College Work," Florence Carr, '99; "The Business Woman," Alice Thompson, '97; violin solo, Edith Olney, '99; "Gymnasium Work," Maud Macfarlane, '98; "Domestic Science," Elouise Flood, '96; solo, Alice O'Neil, '99. The papers were of unusual excellence, and of special interest, being practical observation obtained from actual experience. The musical numbers were greatly enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the regular program, Miss Small, the principal, talked informally on matters of interest to the Association. Refreshments were served, and dancing and music concluded the evenings' entertainment.

What Say The Abutters?

Mayor Hall has written personal letters to the abutters on Copeland street, whose land is to be taken by the proposed widening, asking them if they are willing to accept the award of damages made by the City Council in full payment. It is understood that while some of them are willing, there are those that are not satisfied, which probably means a suit for damages if order becomes a law by the Mayor's signature. It depends now upon the abutters.

☞ We shall not waste words about the seating of Addicks, nor mince them. It is a disgrace to the members of the credentials committee who voted for it and to their ill-advisers—high or low. It is a stain on the record of the national convention of 1900. It is a crime against political morals and decency. The Republican party has been needlessly and shamefully wounded in the house of its friends.—Hartford Courant.

Mrs. Robert Beattie and son William of West Quincy, sailed on Wednesday last for Scotland on the steamship "New England." They will spend July and August there, returning about Sept. 1st.

After the rain Friday, the streets in Atlantic which have been newly laid with gravel were in excellent trim, and Mr. O'Neil, the overseer, walked about viewing the results with supreme satisfaction.

It was Rally Day at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday and all the services were largely attended. The children took a prominent part with recitations and songs. The choir and a male quartette assisted.

Accident.

A man who gave the name of Chapman of Boston, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Washington street, Sunday evening. He was riding on running board when he was struck by a pole and knocked from the car. He held onto the car and was dragged a considerable distance, letting go his hold just in time to escape coming in contact with a tree. Although severely shaken up and bruised he escaped serious injury.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Walker, William O'Brien and Edward Carney were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Jeremiah Murphy and Arthur Hayes were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Milton.

James Grumb was arraigned for non support of his family at Weymouth. Grumb said that he had the grip last winter and was in poor health. The court imposed a sentence of three months in the house of correction with the remark that perhaps a little rest in Dedham jail would do him good.

John Hill, John Linquist and Lucius Whitman were arraigned for violating the fish and game law by fishing at Braintree. They were fined $3 each.

Charles Cunningham was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Arthur Flowers was arraigned for the larceny of $8 from Blanche E. Lillicrap at Quincy. Case continued until next Tuesday.

The continued cases of William Askew, Joseph Lezott and David Norrie for the larceny of a float from A. E. Linnell at Quincy was heard.

THE MILTON CANDIDATE.

Dr. Pierce a Favorite Among the Massachusetts Delegation.

Popular among the Massachusetts delegation to the National Republican convention, and a worker among the delegates at large in the interests of Secretary Long was Dr. George B. Pierce of Milton, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Tenth Massachusetts district. The gentleman has been in other political contests, having successfully managed his father's campaign, and also the campaign of Hon. E. D. Wadsworth of Milton when he was elected Norfolk county commissioner.

Mr. Pierce has a commanding figure, a straightforward manner, is social and makes friends, and although the son of wealthy parents he has not been spoiled by riches. He has a business air, and is a student of human nature and public questions. He has secured a thorough medical education at home and abroad.

Dr. Pierce is the son of Edward L. Pierce of Milton and the nephew of the late Hon. Henry L. Pierce. He was born in Milton and is about 30 years of age. He was educated in the public schools of the town, and then at Roxbury Latin and Phillips Exeter academy. He was graduated at Harvard in the class of 1893, taught school a year, and then entered the Harvard Medical school from which he was graduated in 1898. Later, he was surgical house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and has also taught at the Harvard Medical school.

Dr. Pierce began his political career as a member of the Milton town committee, and has served seven years. He has been a delegate to numerous conventions, both representative, senatorial, county, congressional and State, and was an alternate to the recent National convention.

The nomination as Congressional candidate is not of his own seeking and he did not enter the field until assured of support from various parts of the Tenth district. The Republicans of the district have expressed a desire for a new candidate, and he has yielded to the pressure, and if elected would ably represent the district and the State.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget with the News in a Nut Shell.

Graduation week.

City Council meeting this evening.

Several Sunday school picnics will be held the last of the week.

Mr. Thomas V. Keating of West Quincy spent last Sunday in Bangor, Maine.

There is local interest in the Harvard-Yale varsity race scheduled for Thursday of this week.

The water pipes are being laid through the section of Beale street which skirts the base of Third Hill.

The Hanley was disabled in the H. O. race at Nahant, Saturday, and the Al Kyris defeated the Empress 58 seconds.

Miss Mary B. Keating has returned from her school on Cape Cod, where she has taught very successfully for the past two years.

The National Guard band gave concerts Sunday afternoon and evening at Houghs Neck. It was a good beach day and crowds were present.

Rev. W. W. Dornan has just received a second call from a church in Scotland, and has written for particulars. Quincy pastors are in demand.

The Lookout, the 21-footer which A. H. Higginson will race against the Hostess for the Quincy cup, is afloat. She and the Tashmoo, the Lawrence challenger, will have friendly trial races.

Although the air was a little cool Saturday night for an open air concert, a very large crowd was present upon short notice in the Daily Ledger to listen to the concert in City Square by the National Guard band. It is something remarkable that in a city like Quincy that as large a crowd can be kept together for two hours and in such an orderly manner. Two officers were on duty but they had little to do, other than to keep the crowd off the church lawn.

About noon Saturday, two electric cars went to Squantum whizzing along to the music of a lively band, and chartered by two hundred or more lumber merchants of Boston, who made Squantum the scene of a jolly picnic. The beauty of this quondam island is rapidly becoming famous.

A special service for the Orangemen and Protestant Associations of Eastern Massachusetts will be held in the United Presbyterian church in this city on Sunday at 10.30. Rev. W. W. Dornan, the pastor, will preach. Large delegations in uniform are expected from Boston, Everett, Malden, Somerville, Cambridge, Bockton and elsewhere.

A crowded house greeted Mrs. Mary A. Livermore at the Universalist church, Hingham Sunday evening A very able and interesting address occupying nearly one hour in its delivery was listened to with the utmost attention and pleasure. Quite a number from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and other places went to Hingham to hear this eloquent old lady who is in her eightieth year.

Pleasure Marred.

Editors of the Ledger:

A resident of Wollaston with his daughter, while waiting for a Norfolk Downs car at Neponset bridge one evening this week, occupied their time in looking about the place. They noticed a sign reading "Boats to let," on looking over the side at the landing. Several young fellows were just leaving a boat and while engaged in securing her to the float, indulged in language that was shocking even to the depraved mind. Many ladies and gentlemen doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity of a pleasant row at that place, but should they be obliged to listen to such foul talk as heard that night, their first visit would most likely be their last. It is a pity restrictions against such language could not be part of the conditions on which a boat could be hired.

A TIE GAME.

At West Quincy Saturday there was a brilliant 12-innings game which resulted in a tie. The West Quincys had an up-hill game for their opponents, the Holbrooks made five runs in the second innings. Much credit for the fine showing of the local team was the battery work of Donaher and Forbes, Donaher striking out 13 in the nine innings. The West Quincys closed in the run getting in the eighth innings, when their four tied the score at 11. Four more innings were played, and then the game was called, as the Holbrooks had to catch a train.

QUINCY A. A. DEFEATED.

It was a close game at North Weymouth Saturday between the Quincy A. A. and the North Weymouth club. Runs were numerous in the first three innings and the score stood 8 to 7 in favor of the home team. When the Quincy closed their half of the ninth inningss the score was 11 to 11, but after two outs the North Weymouths scored the winning run. Gallagher, Corcoran and Sullivan did good stock work for the Quincys.

QUINCY POINT WIN.

The Quincy Point club played their first home game of the season on the South street grounds Saturday, with the Unions of South Boston, winning by a score of 15 to 4. The feature of the game was the clean fielding of the home team, and the catching of Barrett for the visitors.

The score by innings;

Quincy Point,	3	0	3	0	0	0	5	4	0	—15

OTHER GAMES.

Two nines from Stone & Forsyths played at Wollaston Saturday, the store team defeating the factory team 19 to 11.

Tomorrow the last league game in Boston until July 19 will be played—Boston vs. Philadelphia.

The Norfolks of Weymouth were defeated Saturday by the Roxburys 4 to 3.

Representative King of Holbrook will pitch Friday for the Massachusetts Legislature in its game with the Boston city government, Senator Wo[illegible]sum of Braintree will be on hand as a substitute.

Childrens Day.

Children's day was observed at the Universalist church Sunday afternoon. The church was prettily trimmed with roses and potted plants. Special music was rendered by the choir, including solos by Miss Holton and Mr. Green. An interesting sermon was preached by the pastor on the theme, "Ideals in life." Six children were christened, Doris Irving Condon, Vira Mildred Seeley, Bernice Stoddard, Mildred Stoddard, Charles Herbert Holmes and Earl Adlebert Winslow.

The chances are nine in ten that the office boy will bring a cake of Ivory Soap if sent for "a cake of good soap." But be sure of it. Each cake of Ivory Soap is stamped "Ivory."

CORPORATIONS.

Tendency of City Council to Show Too Great Favoritism.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Two interesting and suggestive communications touching matters of vital interest to the taxpayers of Quincy appeared in your paper of issue of 22d instant. The one, by Mr. Whiting, treating of the new highway construction and widening, and discussing so comprehensively the manner the Quincy and Boston street railway has been absolved by City Council from bearing its equitable part of the cost incident to the proposed street widening; and the other embodying the characteristic and deservingly caustic utterances of Mr. Henry H. Faxon.

Certainly, it would appear nothing more than reasonable, that, a street railway corporation which at the outset secures gratis and appropriates for its uses a large portion of a highway should be called upon to defray when increased public travel necessitates the street to be widened, a proper proportion of the needed expense.

It is well known that street railways have, all too frequently, obtained grants from municipalities for little or nothing, and thereupon, have valued their franchises highly — constantly assuming, as they do, still greater value whilst by comparison, a railroad chartered and operated by steam power has to buy, or to take under the general railroad law, the requisite land, construct its grade, build its bridges, supply way stations and fence its location.

I fully endorse the criticism and conclusions set forth in both communications, asserting withal, that the tendency of our City Councils has been to show too great favoritism to corporate interests which together with lavish appropriations of the public moneys have necessitated the present double butted burden of high valuation and high tax rate; deterring people from locating within our borders and driving others out. It does not augur well for our city that men of property and high reputation should loose their interest in their native town and be driven to seek residence elsewhere in consequence of present and ever impending oppressive taxation. For an instance: One townsman of eminent ability widely distinguished for his literary attainments, manifesting, as he did, for years and in many ways, educational, civic and otherwise, a deep and generous interest in the town of his ancestors and whom it was of great local value to retain, never did a wiser thing personally, in my opinion than when he divested himself of citizenship in Quincy.

Lewis Bass.

Royal Arcanum Day.

John Adams Council, No. 1210, Royal Arcanum, of Wollaston, celebrated Royal Arcanum day on Saturday. the members and ladies partaking of one of Remick's famous fish dinners at Hotel Shelton. A special electric car took the party from Wollaston to Adams shore. After the banquet the Rev. Edward A. Chase, of the Wollaston Congregational church responded to the toast "Fraternity;" Mayor Hall to "Royal Arcanum;" and ex-Mayor Sears to "The ladies." After the remarks there was music by the orchestra, songs and a social time.

The Strenuous Life.

The house fly lit on a big bald head.

Hard were the words the owner said
As he lifted his fat hand up.

The house fly lit on a plate of hash.
Zimmity-buzz-ty-squish!
What the diner said we write with a dash.
As he wildly "shooed" the dish.
(Whish!)
Zimmity-buzz-ty-zum-m-m,

The house fly lit on a maiden's cheek.
Zimmity-buzz-ty-ping!
She slapped herself so it was red for a week
As she called her a horrid thing.

Said she to the mixer, "This is his."

And deposited seventy million eggs
And died with her duty did.

Getting It Down Fine.

"We use the expression colloquially, 'out of his head,'" the instructor remarked, "to describe a man's condition when he is not in his right mind, or, as we sometimes say, is 'beside himself.'"

"Ah, yes," said the foreigner who had mastered the language in its plainer forms and had advanced to the study of idiomatic English, "and when a man ees out of hees head and beside heemself it ees at such time he can climb up on hees ear!"—Chicago Tribune.

Living Exemplification of a Theory.

"We are what we feed on," quoted Mr. Hixson, laying down his book. "And I am willing to say the author is right. For example"—

"I am already a believer," Mrs. Hixson interrupted. "You will insist on having lobster for supper always."

And Mr. Hixson, mortified, grew very red.—Brooklyn Life.

THE REED MYSTERY

Believed to Have Been Cleared Up by the Arrest of Two Men.

Grant and King Are Charged With the Double Crime.

Robbery Probably the Motive For Slaying Aged Shylock and His Sister.

North Adams, Mass., June 25.—Alexander Grant, aged 41, and David King, 36, of Clarksburg, were both placed under arrest late Saturday afternoon, charged with the murder of Henry F. and Blanche M. Reed on the morning of Aug. 7, 1897. The arrests were made after the closing session of the coroner's jury, which has been in session here for several days, and were made by Detective George Dunham, under the direction of the attorney general's office.

Grant and King, who have been on the stand numerous times, were again put on the stand Saturday. Grant was first examined, and was permitted to go, but Police Captain Jones immediately followed him with a warrant, and placed him under arrest. King, who was examined at the inquest subsequently to Grant, was not permitted to leave the courtroom, which is connected with the police station. On leaving the stand he was placed under arrest by Chief Dineen.

Grant was born in Leith, Scotland, and learned the trade of baker. He came to the United States 11 years ago. King was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, and landed in this country six months before Grant. King went to live at Newport, R. I., and was located there as a gardener. Grant, very soon after King's going to Newport, went there also, and the two became fast friends. Grant was married before he left Scotland, but King is a bachelor. At the time of his arrest, and for many months preceding it, King worked on Grant's farm, receiving nothing but his board and very little to wear. When placed under arrest he looked like a tramp. Grant has had complete mastery over him, getting his wages whenever he worked anywhere, and making him do as he pleased at home on the farm. This transformation in King's character those who knew him at Newport are at a loss to understand. Grant is not the man's real name. His name is Keith, he having changed it on coming to this country. Mrs. Grant gave birth to child on Thursday, and the officers sent a trained nurse to her home to take care of her, and will see that she wants for nothing. She took the news of the arrests very calmly.

Henry F. Reed and his sister were murdered about 1:10 a. m., on Aug. 7, 1897. Reed was killed while in bed in a room off the kitchen, by blows from a mallet. The sister, Blanche, who slept upstairs, was killed by pistol wounds. She had been shot four times. Reed was a moneylender, and had had dealings with almost every man in straitened circumstances within a radius of 20 miles. He loaned money on all kinds of personal property as well as real estate. His house was actually so full of things that it was impossible for a stranger to make his way through it. The sister lived in perfect squalor, and her bed looked as though it had not been made up for years. She slept in it by simply lying across it.

Grant, at the time of the murder, worked as a baker in this city, riding from and to his home every night and morning. King at the same time worked in the Arnold print works in this city and rode back and forth with Grant. Grant kept his horse in the day time in Reed's barn and had kept it there several months.

The case of the officers is purely circumstantial, and what has transpired during the past few weeks they refuse to make public. They are confident, however, that they can break down the alibi of the prisoners and prove that the men were in this city when they claim to have been at home, and that according to King's own story, told to seven different persons subsequent to the murder, King was on the premises the night before as late as 10 o'clock, when, he said, everything was all right.

Grant was the first person on the premises the next morning, having gone there to put his horse in the barn and go to his work as usual. He was on the premises a reasonable length of time, but did not discover the crime.

Conductor Shot by Tramps.

Putnam, Conn., June 25.—Conductor Billings of the "boat freight," which left this city for Boston about 8:20 o'clock Sunday morning, was seriously wounded by one of a gang of six tramps who were put off the train and retaliated by firing a revolver at the conductor. The bullet lodged in Billings' hip. Sheriff Park, with half a dozen deputies, who started in pursuit in a special train, made a search along the line as far as Webster, Mass., and rounded up six tramps, three of whom, it is believed, were in the party put off from Billings' train. Billings was taken to a Boston hospital.

Miners Had a Close Call.

Belleville, Ills., June 25.—While miners were blasting in the Oak Hill coal mine Sunday they made an excavation into an abandoned mine which was filled with water. The water poured into the Oak Hill mine with great force, flooding and completely wrecking the mine. Fifty workmen in the mine had a narrow escape from death, being rescued by the heroic work of the mine engineer.

A Denial From Hanna.

Cleveland, June 25.—Senator Hanna says that his attention has been called to the story to the effect that three mine owners in Utah who supported Bryan in 1896 had each contributed $50,000 to McKinley's campaign fund. "I want to say," said Senator Hanna, "that there is absolutely no foundation for this story. It is a pure fabrication."

RAILROAD WRECK IN WISCONSIN.

Passenger and Freight Trains Collided, Resulting In Killing Eight and Injuring Many.

Green Bay, Wis., June 25.—A passenger train on the Chicago and Northwestern road, loaded with excursionists, collided at 10:15 o'clock Sunday morning with a freight train at Depere, five miles south of here. Eight persons were killed, one is missing and 34 were injured.

The accident happened just as the passenger train was pulling into the station. A double-header freight was backing into a side track to let the passenger by, but had not cleared the main track. Those injured were nearly all in the second coach. When the two trains came together the first car, which was a combination smoking and baggage, was driven through the second coach, where the loss of life occurred. The dead were taken out of the wreck and to an undertaking establishment at Depere. The injured were first taken to the Depere high school, which was converted into a temporary hospital, and later were brought to a hospital in this city. None of the trainmen were injured, and the engine crews jumped in time to save themselves. Both engines were badly damaged, and two coaches broken into kindling wood.

The first two coaches of the passenger train were telescoped and demolished, few of the passengers escaping injury. Some were killed outright, others were terribly mangled, and legs and arms of some were broken. Others were badly crushed and maimed—all hemmed in among the debris of the wrecked cars. The other cars were not dislodged from the track and remained uninjured.

The cause of the accident, so far as is known at this time, was the failure of the freight crew to give the passenger the right of way.

Must Keep an Eye on Powers.

Boston, June 25.—Senator Lodge, Governor Shaw of Iowa and George H. Lyman, collector of the port of Boston, were the chief speakers at the Essex club dinner Saturday afternoon. Referring to the criticisms of the administration's war policy, Senator Lodge said that the Republican party is one which does things, and any man or party who does things is sure to meet with criticism. He said the Chinese question is the great one of the day. The interests of our own nation and of humanity make it imperative that we shall protect our own in the east and prevent any one great power from gobbling up the Chinese empire.

Murderer Quickly Disposed Of.

New Orleans, June 25.—Mrs. Josephine Coates, aged 60, was assaulted and murdered in her home in an isolated neighborhood in Livingston parish. Frank Gilmore, a white man, who was seen to leave the house, was charged with the murder. A crowd gathered at the Coates house, where Gilmore was being held, and took him out in the nearby timber. There he confessed to the crime. He was promptly strung to a tree limb. The branch broke and the mob riddled his body with bullets before he could arise from the ground. A hole was dug under the tree, Gilmore's body was tumbled into it and then the mob dispersed.

Terrible Deeds of a Madman.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 25.—Charles Mofford, 27 years of age, became insane and escaped from his home. He plunged through a window at the home of James Fitzsimmons, and, armed with an axe, split open Fitzsimmons' head, and seriously injured Mrs. Fitzsimmons and her daughter. Joseph Drake, who came to their assistance, was struck over the head and probably fatally injured. After running several blocks Mofford fired a bullet through his left breast, and as the police came upon him, he sat down on the curb and put a second bullet through his head, dropping dead.

Steamer Badly Damaged.

New York, June 25.—Her bows were stove in, her plates buckled and bent, and her forepeak filled with water when the British tramp steamer Puritan, from Leith, came into this port Sunday. When 1200 miles east of New York, on June 17, she was in collision with the Hamburg-American liner Arcadia, from Philadelphia for Hamburg, and that the Puritan was not sunk with all on board is due only to the fact that she was in ballast with no cargo in her holds.

Indian Fighter Commits Suicide.

New Prague, Minn., June 25.—The dead body of Major Charles M. Schaefer, until 15 years ago an officer in the regular army, was found Sunday in a cemetery here. A bullet wound in the head indicated suicide, for which, however, there is no known reason. Major Schaefer saw much service in western Indian wars before his retirement.

Miners Asphyxiated.

Champion, Mich., June 25.—Four men were killed in a Champion mine explosion Saturday evening. Of five men at the bottom of the shaft, but one escaped by climbing their hose to pure air. Gases and smoke asphyxiated the victims. The cause of the explosion was propably due to sparks from a miner's pipe.

Cyclone In Oklahoma.

Guthrie, O. T., June 25.—A cyclone passed over Beaver county, formerly known as "No Man's Land," Saturday night. Three men were killed and two fatally injured. The storm swept the country for 50 miles. Thousands of cattle were stampeded and many killed and injured. Several houses were destroyed.

Strike Situation Unchanged.

Fall River, Mass., June 25.—The eight-hour strike in this city at the beginning of the fifth week shows but little change from the situation a week ago. Master plumbers, carpenters and tinsmiths claim that there is little work going on, and that they are fully able to take care of it by working themselves.

Verdict In the Roberts Case.

Salt Lake, June 25.—In the case of B. H. Roberts, found guilty of unlawful cohabitation, the judgment of the court was that he pay a fine in the sum of $150, or in lieu thereof that he be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of 150 days.

TRANSVAAL MILITARY INCIDENTS.

Kruger's Force Estimated to Be From 15,000 to 20,000—Hamilton Occupies Heidelberg.

London, June 25.—The force now available to President Kruger is officially estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000. The Standerton correspondents assert that his sole idea is to hold out until after the American presidential election. Mr. Kruger is reported to have issued a proclamation on June 17 announcing that the Russians had declared war upon the Japanese, and that Great Britain must help Japan.

The Transvaal military incidents are summed up officially by Lord Roberts in the following message to the war office:

"Pretoria, Sunday, 11:30 a. m.—Buller reached Standerton June 22. He found a good real of rolling stock. All of the Dutch residents had left the town. The British prisoners captured since our occupation of Pretoria have been taken to Machadodorp. Ian Hamilton occupied Heidelberg Saturday. The enemy fled, pursued by our mounted men for six or seven miles. The previous day Broadwood's cavalry had a skirmish with the enemy, dispersing them completely and capturing six. Hunter's advance brigade reached Johannesburg, toward Heidelberg, June 22. The enemy attacked our post at Honingspruit and before reinforcements arrived from Kroonstad they had burned three culverts. These had all been repaired by this afternoon."

Lord Roberts and Commandant General Louis Botha are still exchanging letters.

Two hundred rebels have surrendered to General Warren at Blikfontein.

Wickedness at Gotham.

New York, June 25.—A quarrel of 17 years' standing culminated last night in the murder of France Striano, an Italian of Brooklyn, by Caslapo, his next-door neighbor. The two had fought over a girl in Italy in 1883, and when they came to this country they nursed the old grudge. They met last night and began shooting. Striano was instantly killed.

David Louis, a bartender, was fatally stabbed last night, in a row with two Italian men and an Italian woman. Louis threw the three out of the saloon, and when he went out on the street a moment later they attacked him, one of them stabbing him four times.

According to the statement given to the police by Adolph Wolf, 45 years old, of this city, his wife Anna attempted to cut his throat with a razor, and then tried to kill herself with the same weapon. He said he was sleeping when his wife did the act.

Lawrence Doyle, 55 years old, was attacked by his son, William, last night, and received a cut from a razor which probably will end fatally. Doyle, the elder, who had gone to live with an old friend and his wife, was called upon by his son, and a quarrel resulted, in which the son drew a razor across his father's throat.

Punching Up the Turks.

Constantinople, June 25.—Lloyd C. Griscom, United States charge of affairs, has presented a fresh note to the Ottoman government, insisting upon an immediate reply of the demand of the United States for a settlement of the indemnity in connection with the losses of Americans at the time of the Armenian massacres. The note is said to have been a disagreeable surprise to the porte, testifying to the intention of the United States government to pursue this matter of indemnity to the end.

But Two Exceptions.

Manila, June 25.—General MacArthur has given a formal answer to the Filipino leaders, who, last Thursday, submitted to him peace proposals that had been approved earlier in the day by a meeting of representative insurgents. In his reply he assured them that all personal rights under the United States constitution, excepting trial by jury and the right to bear arms, would be guaranteed them.

Grieved Over Wife's Death.

New London, Conn., June 25.—Kneeling on the grave of his young wife in the Catholic cemetery here, John Barbant sent a bullet through his head, and died almost instantly. Barbant was 22 years old. Mrs. Barbant died three weeks ago, and since then her husband had been despondent.

Germany Has a Cyclone.

Berlin, June 25.—Cologne was visited Sunday by a cyclone, which demolished many buildings and threw down a number of factory chimneys. Several persons were hurt.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Vernon Ramsdell, aged 32 years and married, a railway conductor, committed suicide at Lowell, Mass., by taking laudanum. Ill health is supposed to have prompted the act.

Charles A. Harrington, 69, a contractor and builder of Westboro, Mass., was asphyxiated in bed at the home of Dr. E. W. Watkins, Worcester, Mass., where he was visiting. A gas cock was found turned on and the theory is that death was accidental.

Edward Cox, 70 years old, of Brockton, Mass., was killed by an electric car at that city. He was lying on the track and was not discovered in time for the motorman to stop the car.

St. Michael's Catholic church, at Lowell, Mass., was dedicated with elaborate ceremonies. Archbishop Williams, assisted by many clergymen, officiated.

The home at Clarksburg of Grant and King was searched in the hope of finding some articles which might be used as evidence against the men. The officers state that the search revealed nothing of value as evidence. The prisoners have not yet secured counsel.

William Daggett, while at work aloft on a schooner at Rockland, Me., fell to the deck, a distance of 48 feet, breaking his back and leg. He lived only a few hours.

George Lang of Haverhill, Mass., 28 years old, was drowned at Island Pond, N. H., while bathing with his father.

Edward Sullivan, aged 11, while playing in a railroad yard at Clinton, Mass., fell under a freight car and had his leg so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. He is in a critical condition.

MAY FORM NEW PARTY

Leading Anti-Imperialists Consider the Question In Conference.

Will Await Action of Kansas City Convention.

Have Nothing to Hope For From Stand Assumed by Republicans.

New York, June 26.—Anti-imperialists to the number of 35, and coming from the principal cities of the country, met yesterday at the Plaza hotel.

The meeting was for the purpose of determining what action the followers of this line of national policy will take in the coming presidential campaign, and as a result of the conference it may be that a new party will be formed, the members of which will vote independently of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

A resolution was unanimously passed directing the executive committee of the American Anti-Imperialist league to call a general conference or convention of anti-imperialists for the purpose of considering a plan of campaign.

This call will not be issued until after the national Democratic convention at Kansas City, and, when issued, will probably be for a date in August.

The resolution states that the call is to be issued "to the end that we may carry into effect our condemnation of the imperialistic policy of the present administration."

Speaking of the conference and its result or probable result, Chairman Smith of Chicago said that it had been the sense of the meeting that no statement be made public as to the definite plans of the league members.

"We do not want to form an independent party," he said, "unless the action of the Kansas City party makes it necessary. Until the convention at Philadelphia, the Republican party had never made a party stand on the question of anti-imperialism. When they adopted their platform, we saw at a glance that we have nothing to hope for from that organization. We have no wish to take any hasty action, or to go off half cocked, consequently we will not call our general conference or convention until after we see what the Democrats will do at Kansas City.

"There are many who hope that they will give us a board, liberal plank on the question of imperialism. If such action is taken, then our general conference will probably do nothing more than ratify that plank.

"It is our wish, if possible, to unite the independent voters of the country to prevent the enactment by ballot of such a policy, and to keep the present administration from retaining its hold upon the government of our republic. There is a difference of opinion between the leading anti-imperialists as to the course to pursue to bring about this unity of the independent vote, and to make effective the opposition to the present administration.

"It is a matter of political history that the independent vote when closely united can overthrow the party in power. That has been done five times in this country. We hope to do it a sixth."

The place for the conference or convention has not been decided upon, but its seat will be named at a meeting of the executive committee to be held in Chicago in a few days. It will go to either Chicago, Cincinnati or Indianapolis.

Will Wear Straight Jacket Rest of Life.

New York, June 26.—Mrs. Margaret Banks of Greenwich, Conn., who was brought to St. Mark's hospital for surgical aid, she having broken her spinal column by a fall from the roof of her house during sleep walking, was operated on Monday. Professor Erdman, who had charge of the operation, says it was successful, although she will be compelled to wear a straight jacket all the rest of her life. The best that was hoped for was that Mrs. Banks, if her life was saved, would be a helpless paralytic. Now, however, the surgeons think even that may be avoided. Professor Erdman found three of the spinal vertebrae badly fractured, and it was necessary to remove them if the patient was to be saved.

Custom Fraud Cases to Be Prosecuted.

Havana, June 26.—Senor Andrade, the new fiscal, says that the custom house fraud cases will be brought up at once. He believes he can secure convictions in most of them. So far as the postal cases are concerned, he says that he cannot proceed until all the papers are in his hands. Consequently he is unprepared to make a statement respecting them at present, but he understands that he will receive the entire charges within the next few days.

Serious Runaway Accident.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 26.—Mrs. Jacob W. Clute, wife of former Mayor Clute, and Mrs. F. T. Rogers, wife of a Providence physician, were almost instantly killed last evening, as the result of a runaway accident. Mrs. Robert J. Landon, a daughter-in-law of Justice Judson S. Landon of the appellate division of the supreme court, remained in the carriage and stopped the runaway team.

ROBERTS CLOSING IN.

Decisive Results In the Transvaal Not Expected For Several Days.

London, June 26.—Lord Roberts' six columns are converging apparently so as to close in upon the Free Staters, although decisive results cannot be expected for several days. A number of Boers who were supposed to be within the wide-flung net have broken, or rather stolen, through General Rundle's Ficksburg-Senekal lines.

The Canadians were engaged in the Honingspruit fight last Friday. General De Wet's men first cut off a Canadian outpost of mounted rifles at dawn, two being killed, Lieutenant Triglis and four others being wounded and three being captured. The Free Staters then attacked the camp, where were 50 Canadians and two companies of Shropshires, though without much effect, as the men were well entrenched.

The foreign military attaches who were with Lord Roberts are now in Cape Town, en route for Europe. United States Consul Hay of Pretoria is going to Machadodorp in the interest of the British prisoners and to see President Kruger.

The Boers derailed a construction train near Standerton on June 24. Two trainmen were killed and four badly hurt.

A party of Brabant's horse, near Ficksburg, saw a camp of khaki-clad men and walked in, only to find themselves among the Boers. The visitors surrendered.

The Lourenzo Marques correspondent of The Times, telegraphing yesterday, says: The Boers are losing a large number of horses from the cold and from lack of food; and the survivors are in miserable condition. The inadequacy of the Boer commissariat is telling on the burghers.

Roosevelt and the Rough Riders.

Chicago, June 26.—The Times-Herald today says: Governor Roosevelt will arrive in this city Saturday and leave the same night for Oklahoma City, where he will attend the reunion of his old regiment—the rough riders. He will not come west as the Republican vice presidential candidate, but as a private citizen. On arriving in Chicago he will become the guest of Paul Morton, second vice president of the Santa Fe railroad. A year ago, when Governor Roosevelt attended the rough riders' reunion at Las Vegas, Mr. Morton placed his private car at his service, and the same was accepted. On the homeward journey from Las Vegas Mr. Morton proffered the car for use again this year, and the governor accepted the tender. His presence in Chicago is, therefore, in keeping with his promise given in June, 1899.

Relief Fund Turned Over to Envoys.

New York, June 26.—The National Boer Relief Fund association, of which Hon. W. Bourke Cockran was chairman and George W. Vansiclen secretary-treasurer, has concluded its operations and turned over its net collections to the Boer envoys, Messrs. Fischer, Walmorans and Wessels, instead of sending them to Dr. Hofmeyer at Cape Town, or to Dr. Leyds and Dr. Muller in Europe. The envoys sail on the steamer Aquitaine, Thursday, June 28.

Must Be Very Unhappy.

Philadelphia, June 26.—Broken in health and spirits, ex-Governor Taylor of Kentucky started for Niagara Falls last night. He was accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, and four detectives followed close at their heels. Two of the officers represent the state of Kentucky and bear warrants for the arrest of Mr. Taylor upon charges growing out of the assassination of Governor Goebel. The other two are employed by Mr. Taylor to guard his person.

Woman Held Up In Newport.

Newport, R. I., June 26.—One of the boldest holdups that has occurred in this vicinity for some time was reported yesterday to the police by a servant employed at one of the cottages here. She stated that while returning home from church Sunday night a man stopped her at the point of a revolver and demanded her pocketbook. She had her month's salary and some trinkets in it, and was too frightened to resist.

Case Against Ice Trust Dismissed.

New York, June 26.—The grand jury Monday failed to find an indictment against the president and directors of the American Ice company on the charges of criminal conspiracy brought by W. R. Hearst. The session of the jury was devoted to the examination of the papers in the case and to the examination of three witnesses. At the conclusion of the session the papers were marked "Dismissed."

The Uprising In Ashanti.

London June 26.—The government has received dispatches from Ashanti indicating that the relief of Kumassi should be accomplished this week. About 850 men of the British Central African native forces sailed June 22 for Shan Ashanti, where they will be employed to quell the rising. This is the first time that British Central Africa has been called upon to partake in the responsibilities of the empire.

Dewey to Have Position of Honor.

Newport, R. I., June 26.—The navy policy board, of which Admiral Dewey is chairman, will meet today at the war college for a five days' session. Nothing regarding the business to be transacted has been made public. Admiral Dewey has been invited to participate in the Fourth of July celebration, and will, if he accepts, occupy the position of honor in the big parade.

Contractors Won't Yield.

Chicago, June 26.—The building contractors yesterday rejected a proposition for peace, made by the unions, to settle the labor war in Chicago. The contractors refused to treat with the unions until after withdrawal from the Building trades council.

ANXIETY FOR LEGATIONS AT PEKIN.

No Guarantee That Foreigners There are Still Safe.

A Long and Hard Campaign Anticipated by the British.

The Chinese Army Is Large and Well Armed But Is Undisciplined.

London, June 26.—The British cruiser Terrible has arrived at Che Foo from Taku with the latest news, which is as follows:

"Eight hundred Sikhs and 200 Welsh fusiliers have effected a junction with the American, German and Russian forces, which had been cut off by the Chinese, about nine miles from Tien Tsin. It was proposed to deliver an assault upon the Chinese forces at Tien Tsin last night (Sunday night)."

It is not clear what forces united. It would seem that the relieving force, cut off, had been relieved by another. At any rate it is apparently certain that the allies arrived in sufficient force at Tien Tsin Sunday to attack the besieging Chinese.

"Foreign official opinions here," says a dispatch from Shanghai to The Daily Express, dated yesterday, "implies to believe that the worst has happened to the legations at Pekin, and to Admiral Seymour as well. Even if the legations were safe on June 19, there is no guarantee that they are safe now. The situation, in fact, grows more and more gloomy. The entire absence of reliable news from the capital seems to justify the worst construction which can be put upon it.

"Bad news comes from Nan King, where the unrest is said to be growing hourly. Viceroy Liu Kin Yih has telegraphed the British authorities that he has ordered the five Chinese cruisers which have been lying off the harbor here, to proceed to Nan King."

"General Ma's army," says a correspondent at Shan Hai Kwan, "consisting of 4000 men, left a week ago for Pekin, and General Sung Ching's forces, numbering 2500, left for the same place on June 15."

"A careful estimate of the number and armament of the Chinese troops around Pekin puts the total at 360,000, and it is calculated that these troops possess 220 7-centimetre Creusot guns, 18 Krupps and 150 Maxims. Their supply of ammunition is practically inexhaustible. It has been mainly supplied by a German firm at Carlowitz. Fully three-fourths of the Chinese forces are badly drilled, wholly undisciplined and quite unfamiliar with modern weapons."

Another Shanghai dispatch says:

"Li Ring Hang, former governor of Shan Tung, who is intensely anti-foreign, has gone to the Kiang Yin forts, on the Yang Tse. He has declared his intention of resisting the landing of British forces in that region."

According to a Hong Kong dispatch, dated yesterday, strong reinforcements of Indian police, with three Maxims, have been sent to Kow Loon on the mainland. A Che Foo message, of Monday's date, says:

"Four cannon have been added to the west fort here, where there are now 1000 soldiers permanently encamped, a further force having arrived from Ning Hai Chou. There is an uneasy feeling prevailing here, and an attack is generally anticipated. Chinese merchants are closing their offices and preparing to eave the port. All business is at a standstill.

Extensive preparations by the allies are going forward. The first regiment of British Indians, 19,000 men, embarked at Calcutta yesterday, and 853 more marines received orders to go out from English ports.

The British war office, in anticipation of a prolonged campaign, is contracting for winter clothing and fur caps.

The Amub army corps, ordered out by Russia, numbers 52,100 men, with 80 guns. Japan purposes to land 15,000 men on Chinese territory within a fortnight.

Among the minor military preparations, the Portuguese governor of Hacao, island of Hacao, at the southwest entrance of the Canton river, is sending arms to the Portuguese in Canton.

The Germans in Hong Kong have cabled Emperor William to ask if they may serve in the local forces in defense of Hong Kong.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Times sends the following, under yesterday's date:

"A military correspondent at Taku says that the operations of the allies are suffering from the want of a recognized head, defective organization and the lack of transport."

Does Not Want Vice Presidency.

Albany, June 26. — Former United States Senator Hill entertained at Wolfert's Roost Chairman Frank Campbell of the Democratic state committee. They talked over the outlines of the Democratic national convention to be held in Kansas City. Chairman Campbell afterwards said he was authorized to make the statement that Senator Hill would not be a candidate for running mate with Colonel Bryan on the Democratic national ticket under any consideration.

Will Wed a Countess.

Vienna, June 26.—It is officially announced that Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the Austrian heir apparent, will formally renounce the right of succession to the imperial throne on Thursday next. On the following day he will wed Countess Sophie Chotek, his morganatic marriage being the reason for which he will withdraw from the succession.

Verdict Will Not Be Unanimous.

South Berwick, Me., June 26.—The final meeting of the coroner's inquest in the Sprague murder case will be held here this afternoon, when it is expected a verdict will be rendered. It is now thought that it will be a dissenting one.

Colored Men Not Confirmed.

Boston, June 26.—The board of aldermen drew the color line Monday by a party vote. It confirmed the appointments of eight white deputy sealers of weights and measures and rejected two colored men. The board then reconsidered its action in refusing confirmation and laid the appointments of the colored deputies on the table, where they had reposed before the balloting.

Carter Wants a Hearing.

Chicago, June 26.—A special to The Record from Leavenworth, Kan., says: Another effort will shortly be made to obtain a re-hearing of the famous Captain Carter case. The plan is to try and bring him before a civil court on a writ of habeas corpus, and then have the case tried upon its merits.

Secretary Long Announces Selections.

Washington, June 26.—The secretary of the navy has authorized the following names for the new battleships and cruisers: Battleships, Virginia and Rhode Island; armored cruisers, Maryland, Colorado and South Dakota; protected cruisers, St. Louis, Milwaukee and Charleston.

Not a Candidate For Congress.

Chattanooga, June 26.—A letter has been received by the Chattanooga News from Commissioner of Pensions Evans, in which he denies the story pubished several days ago to the effect that he will resign as pension commissioner and run for congress.

Drowned In the Androscoggin.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all, but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

Good Afternoon.

The people of the United States are paying $1,000,000 a day for tropical products used in American manufactures, or for food and drink. Most of the articles can be produced in a more or less degree in the islands which have recently come into closes relationship with the United States. These articles comprise sugar, coffee, silk, rubber, fibres, fruits and nuts, tobacco, tea, cotton, gums, cocoa, spices, rice, cabinet and dye woods, liquorice root, indigo, cork wood, ivory, sponges, etc. As our island possessions begin to develop under American administration we shall procure more of such articles from those sources, and in return for our purchases the people of the island will buy more of the products of our farms and factories.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The President of Wellesley College is described in a Sunday paper as a veritable giantess, for a woman who is six feet in height, and of proportionate size, is fit to stand with the mighty men of her age. The description of Miss Hazard recalls Haggard's romance of "She," in many respects.—Lynn Item.

☞ There is a new word in the vocabulary of the sewer department—smellage. It was coined at a public hearing the other night, when a petitioner grew eloquent over the nuisance of a defective sewer. "The smellage is something awful," he said. And smellage has been adopted as a new and expressive word.—Lowell Citizen.

☞ The Commonwealth should pay the Legislature by the month and cease to be responsible for the salary of that body after May 1, under ordinary conditions. That would knock in the head a great deal of the artificial and superfluous business originated by members and the lobby in a volume that is becoming so extensive as to threaten an invasion of dog days.—Lynn Item.

☞ The idea of some people is that to compel children to go to church is to cause them to contract a dislike for churchgoing. This is a mistake. To let a child stay away from church is the way to give him distaste for church. The boy who is kept at home at night is the one that will love his home, that is if his home is what it ought to be. The church on Sundays and the home at night are the safeguards for boys, and nothing else will take their places.—Greenville (S. C.,) News.

Musicale.

The grounds at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crane on Revere road were brilliantly illuminated by Chinese lanterns Monday evening, and many friends assembled to a musicale by Bethany Ten, of Unity Circle of King's Daughters. There were piano solos by Mrs. Jennie Hockin Hunt, vocal solos by Mrs. Thomas and Mr. A. L. Hayden; solos by Miss McClellan, who accompanied herself on an autoharp; and readings by Mrs. E. E. Miller. Light refreshments were served.

Wollaston Fire.

The alarm from Box 52 at 12.07 this noon was for a fire in a house on Fayette street owned by John H. Dinegan and occupied by Howard Burrell.

The fire was caused by a blue flame oil stove and the fire scorched the woodwork in the kitchen somewhat and destroyed a rug. The loss will be slight.

SURPRISES FOR WARD FIVE.

Additional Appropriation for Hose House Fails to Pass City Council.

Warren Avenue Hearing Not The Bridge but The Street.

Creditors of the City Anxious About Bills of 1899 Still Unpaid.

Wollaston received a couple of surprises at the meeting of the City Council Monday evening, when the additional appropriation for its hose house failed to receive enough votes, and again when the citizens turned out en masse for the Warren avenue bridge and found it was simply a hearing to accept a portion of the street which is a private way.

Councilmen Alden, Badger, Freeman, Hill, Hogan and Hultman were absent.

The auctioneer's bond of John H. Dinegan was received and approved.

UNPAID BILLS.

The Mayor forwarded a bill from the Taunton Insane asylum for $25.-48 to January 1, 1900, including interest to April 1.

Also a letter from H. M. Taylor, stating that he had received no rent for the building adjoining the High school, used by the School Committee from Sept. 1, 1899, to Dec. 31, 1899.

Both matters were referred to the Committee on Finance.

SEWER EXTENSIONS.

The Sewer Commissioners sent a communication advising the extension of lateral sewers on Liberty, Rodman, Intervale, Centre, Arthur and Kendrick avenue at South Quincy; Goffe street at the centre, and Arlington, Beale and Belmont streets in Ward Five, and requesting an appropriation of $15,000. To Committee on Sewers and Drains.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The License committee reported favorably upon some petitions for minor licenses, and unfavorable upon others. Adopted.

NEW STREETS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for public hearings on Sept. 4, on the petition to lay out Intervale and Upland streets. Adopted.

The same committee reported an order laying out Morton street as a public way. Ordered to second reading.

LOCATIONS GRANTED.

The same committee reported favorable on the order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for poles on Howard street. Rules suspended and passed.

Also granting the same company a location on Franklin street. Ordered to a second reading.

BEALE STREET SIDEWALK.

The same committee reported favorable on order for a sidewalk on Beale street. Referred to Committee on Finance.

KENDRICK AVENUE.

The same committee reported an order for $1,000 for regrading Kendrick avenue. Referred to Committee on Finance.

LIGHTS.

The same committee reported reference to the Executive Department the petitions for lights on Avon way and Whalley road. Adopted.

The same committee reported an order granting the Electric Light Co. a location for poles on Franklin street. Ordered to a second reading.

CALENDAR.

The loan order for $2,500 took its second reading and was referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

HOSE HOUSE.

The order for $600 additional for the Wollaston hose house took its second reading.

The rules were suspended but the order failed to pass, the vote being 13 for and 3 against as follows:

Yeas—Alden, DeNormandie, Elcock, Faxon, Gassett, Johnson, McLennan, Newcomb, Nichols, Packard, Poland, Smith, Walsh and Wilson—13.

Nays—Callahan, Clevery and Nicol—3.

Absent — Badger, Freeman, Hill, Hogan and Hultman—5.

Not Voting—President Bryant—1.

The vote was then reconsidered upon motion of Councilman Poland and the order laid on the table.

GAS FOR THE COUNCIL.

Councilman Packard offered an order that the Commissioner of Public Works wire the Council chamber and Committee rooms for electric lights. He also moved to suspend the rules that the order might pass.

Councilman Poland opposed. It should go to a committee as they were considering the remodelling of City Hall.

Councilman Packard said the whole expense would be but $105, and opposed referring.

Councilman Poland still objected and thought it should go to a committee.

The motion to suspend the rules was lost and the order referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

President Bryant announced the special committee to examine the books of the Woodward Fund as follows: H. O. Fairbanks, Henry G. Fay, Fred B. Rice, Fred H. Smith, R. F. Claflin.

WARREN AVENUE HEARING.

A recess was then taken until 8.15, at which hour a public hearing was given on accepting Warren avenue between Old Colony street and the railroad track.

Herbert T. Whitman favored. If laid out a foot bridge will be asked over the railroad. There was a great demand for some way over the railroad. It would furnish easy access to Merrymount park and the shore. Now it was necessary to walk 3,800 feet over the Beale street bridge. It would not cost any money to lay out the avenue. If in the future a bridge is built it will cost $3,000.

George F. Pinkham said it was a matter of necessity. When we go to the park, now, we have to go to Beale street. Thousands, however, climb down and cross the tracks. There would be no cost to widen the street. The time will come when a bridge for carriages will be needed. Now we are only asking for a foot bridge, which could be built for $3,000. Public necessity demands it. Many people on the east side also wish it as a means of attending church.

Capt. Thomas said he lived on the east side, and saw the necessity for a crossing every day. On Sundays he crossed two or three times with his family. Every day there were from twenty-five to fifty who crossed the tracks at this point.

In reply to Councilman Packard Mr. Thomas said they expected a foot bridge.

N. G. Nickerson said Ward Five now had no playground but Merrymount park. If for no other reason than to accommodate the children the street should be extended and the bridge built.

A. D. Albee, as superintendent of a Sunday school on the hill, said he was surprised to find the number of people crossing to attend church exceeded forty. They would be directly benefited by this extension. It would save a three-fourths mile walk. On the other side they are also cut off from the park.

Mr. Rideout said his family used this crossing more or less every day. The fact that they will cross the track is a strong point in favor of the bridge.

Henry H. Faxon was glad Wollaston people went to church. He had not heard much about widening the street; it had been all bridge. He would not object if it did not cost much. He hoped the whole matter would have come up at this time, and that some one would tell him the cost of widening the street.

President Bryant called Councilman Poland to the chair and taking the floor explained.

SURPRISES FOR WARD FIVE.

We have asked for the extension of this street before it is built upon, as it can be done much cheaper. The people then intend to ask for a foot bridge. Mr. Faxon is not so ignorant as he would have us believe. If the County Commissioners had the same control over Quincy's streets as in towns they would have ordered the bridge built. The railroad agreed if we will put in the abutments so that the span will be wide enough to take in the four tracks, not to object. He believed this was the proper time to do it. In addition to the families who use this crossing there were hundreds of children when there was a ball game at the park. It was a dangerous place.

Councilman Nichols said he had conferred with the railroad and there was a thorough understanding, and a complete plan had been made which calls for a foot bridge. There was no question as to the necessity of it.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

Garden Party.

A garden party in aid of the West street table at the coming fair in aid of the building fund of St. Mary's church was held Monday evening at the residence of Miss Elizabeth E. Flavey. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the party was attended by upwards of five hundred, including guests from Stoughton, Hyde Park, Randolph and Quincy. Rev. A. F. Roche was also present.

During the first part of the evening, whist was enjoyed, in which forty tables participated. Prizes for the best scores were awarded John Duane and Miss Mary Dillon, while the consolation prize went to William Corcoran.

Aside from whist there was a musical entertainment consisting of piano solos and duets by Misses Rose and Sadie Rogers; violin solos by John Fitzgerald, banjo solo, by William Gragg; graphophone selections by Edward Heffernan.

Refreshments were served by Miss Helen Boyd, Miss Nellie Conlon, Miss Nellie Lyons, Miss Mary McGrath, Miss Lucy Lyons, Miss Annie O'Brien, Miss Annie Galvin, Miss Nellie Galvin, Miss Catherine Kelley, Miss Abbie Cocoran, Miss Annie Phelan, Miss May Collins, Miss Alice O'Brien, Miss Bridget Walsh, Miss Minnie Cashman, Miss Addie Cashman, Miss May Drohan, Miss Mary McCue, Miss Mary Dillion, Miss Augutsa Dell, Miss Mary Pititat, Miss May Cullinan.

There was also dancing on the lawn.

New Sweden Anniversary.

The 30th anniversary of New Sweden in Maine on Monday was of more than local interest. It was of interest to all our citizens who have come from Sweden and to the old country itself. It was founded by Hon. William W. Thomas, now the United States minister to Sweden. In 1870 a party of 51 Swedes arrived. At the anniversary fully 5,000 people were present. Minister Thomas came home purposely to attend the affair, and he was present in a three-fold capacity, being the special envoy of King Oscar, the representative of President McKinley and as the founder of this happy and prosperous colony in the Maine woods. There were many distinguished guests present, including Gov. Powers. The exercises were held in a beautiful grove and included addresses, music, a dinner, and other attractions.

Kincaide's Way.

He has a new "ad" in the Quincy Daily Ledger every Monday to run for one week. He doesn't try to advertise everything he has in his emporium, but makes a specialty of one thing, and tells why it

Is Superior.

It is a wonder he has not more imitators in Quincy.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

Thus there are different ways of advertising, but none more successful in Quincy than Foreigners in China.

Statistics concerning foreigners in China are contained in a report on trade relations between China and the United States just received at the State Department from Consul Fowler at Che-Foo. It is dated May 7 last.

The total foreign residents are given as in 1898, 13,421; in 1899, 17,893. The number of foreign firms was, in 1898, 773, and in 1899, 933.

The nationalities of the foreign element for 1899 are stated as follows:

	Residents.	Firms.
American,	2,335	70
British,	5,562	491
German,	1,134	115
French,	1,183	76
Dutch,	106	9
Danish	128	4
Spanish,	448	9
Swedish,	244	2
Russian,	1,621	19
Austrian	90	5
Belgium,	234	9
Italian,	124	9
Japanese,	2,440	195
Portuguese,	1,423	10
Korean,	42	0
Non treaty powers,	20	0

Russia made the greatest gain in the number of residents and Japan in the number of firms, France coming next in the latter respect. Consul Fowler says that these figures do not include the leased ports, and that it must be remembered that in the case of Great Britian, a large number of Indians and Asiastics (Chinese born in Hongkong, the straits, etc. are included. Consequently it is difficult to determine the true number of British in China. Moreover, by British law every British subject is compelled to register in his Consulate, but with Americans this registration is optional. Consul Fowler expresses the belief that the number of American residents is greatly under estimated.—New York Times.

Cheaper Gas for Hyde Park.

Hyde Park is to have the benefit of cheaper gas and we believe it is going to prove of great benefit to the town. The Dedham & Hyde Park Gas Co. has contracted with the Massachusetts Pipe Co. for a supply of its gas, manufactured in Everett. The plant at Dedham will be closed down but will be kept in condition to supply the mains in case of accident to the other line. The main 4 1-2 miles in length, is now being laid on Hyde Park avenue and it will connect with the large system at Jamaica Plain. As is well known, the price of gas here now for household purposes is $2 per thousand feet. It has seemed strange to people that a town so near the city as Hyde Park could not before now have had gas at a cheaper price. but the local company has had to pay a high freight rate on account of buying coal in small quantities and even the rise in coal the past year caused an increase of 12 cents per thousand in the cost to manufacture. It is impossible to tell at this time just how much cheaper the gas will be when the supply comes from Everett, which will be in less than three months.—Gazette.

For the Ledger.

Whiting vs. Graham.

In the above entitled case, recently tried in the Quincy Ledger, the Court, jury of one, finds that the Plaintiff's case is well sustained, and finds the Defendant guilty of not confining his case to the evidence submitted by the Plaintiff.

He further finds that the Plaintiff's case hits the nail on the head.

The court also finds that the Defendant was very prompt in denying the accusation as set forth by the Plaintiff.

The defendant is ordered to pay for the dinner for Houghs Neck crowd, including a barrel of punch and a case of Mumm's.

Of course these findings are not binding to either party, and either may appeal to the Bar of justice.

Note—If the Defendant choses, he may substitute a barrel of punch, a car-ride and cigars.

Andrew A. Meyer.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Edward Dlonan was called and he paid his fine of $5.

Alex McKay was arraigned for destroying a lot of rose bushes valued at $42, the property of Frank A. Myers at Wollaston. He was fined $25.

James E. Nolan was fined $50 for violating the liquor law at Weymouth.

MILTON.

The graduation exercises of the Tucker school were held Monday evening. Diplomas were presented to the following graduates: Emanuel Blume, Zilla M. Constable, Moses Davidson, Arthur R. Dillaway, Grace M. Eastman Timothy C. English, May E. Gage, Agnes Hardie, Philip J. Krim, Jr. Rollo W. Phister, Joseph A. Rein, Abbie E. Reynolds, Clara E. Shea, Gertrude E. Squarebrigs, Lemuel H. Wyman.

The Challenger Tashmoo.

A Beverly dispatch to the Herald says: John S. Lawrence's Tashmoo, designed by himself and intended as a challenger for the Quincy cup, was given a short trial Monday afternoon. She will sail under the colors of the Harvard Yacht Club, and like the Lookout and the Hostess, is of the extreme scow type. She is 41 feet over all and 21 feet on the water line. Her beam is 13 feet, and she draws about 5 inches of water. She is built of quarter-inch planking, covered with canvas, pot leaded. In the Tashmoo leeboards are substituted for the centreboard, and the outcome will be awaited with interest. These leeboards are about five feet long and 2 feet wide, and are raised and lowered after the style of a centreboard.

The Tashmoo will carry about 1300 feet of sail, jib and mainsail rig. The mainsail has a hoist of 22 feet, while the jib is 20 feet on the foot, 31 feet in the leach and has a hoist of 24 feet. She was built by the Bezanson Bros.

Darling a Candidate.

There is hot weather activity going on in the second councillor district, which includes the first Bristol, first and second Norfolk and seventh and eighth Suffolk senatorial districts. Councillor Davis of Roxbury is now serving his second term, and it is understood that he is a candidate for a third term. Senator Maxwell of Roxbury is a candidate and will oppose the third term movement. Both of these men have strong and influential friends in their district, and the fight in the caucuses for delegates promises to be very bitter. In the meantime Hyde Park representing Norfolk county interests will have a candidate in ex-Senator Darling, and he already has the support of influential friends throughout the district. The senator has had long experience in legislation and he is well equipped for the position of Councillor. Our town has never had this honor, and now is the time for united action in the matter. Hyde Park Gazette.

Fined Twenty-Five Dollars.

Cutting down some rose bushes at Wollaston last Saturday night cost Alex. McKay $25. McKay lived in a house of Frank A. Myer at Wollaston. On the premises were a lot of rose bushes which Myer's father gave McKay some time ago to set out. McKay had some trouble with the other family in the house, and Saturday he moved out. Before he did so he went out and cut down all but two of the rose bushes, as the plaintiff said for spite. The bushes were valued at $42, and the court before whom McKay was arraigned this morning imposed a fine of $25.

New Cat Boat.

As stated in the Ledger last week, Arthur E. Linnell's trip to the Cape meant something more than one of pleasure for a new sail has appeared in the bay at Wollaston. It is the large cat boat Neptune, which Mr. Linnell purchased at Chatham. She is roomy and very able. Her time from Chatham, though not a record breaking one was good, fourteen hours. A large number of Wollaston Yacht club members have looked her over and express themselves pleased with the acquisition of such a fine yacht to their club.

Prize for Photographs.

The Art Department of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston offers a prize of $25 for the set of a dozen photographs illustrating most effectively the disfigurement by advertisements of highways and landscapes in Massachusetts. The photographs may be accompanied by such particulars as will add to their effectiveness, e. g., the price paid to the owner of the land for its use in advertising; the opinions of residents in the neighborhood; whether the law has been infringed, etc.

These sets of photographs must be sent to the club rooms, 2 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass., by October 1, 1900. Each photograph should be mounted and labeled with the name of the sender and the locality photographed.

Whoever paints or puts upon, or in any manner affixes to any fence, structure, pole, rock, or other object, the property of another, whether within or without the limits of the highway, any words, device, trade-mark, advertisement, or notice, not required by law to be posted, thereon, without first obtaining the written consent of the owner, or tenant of such property shall, on complaint of such owner, or his tenant, or any municipal or public officer, be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars.

Any word, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice, painted, put up, or affixed within the limits of a highway in violation of the provisions of the preceding section of this act shall be deemed to be a public nuisance; and may be forthwith removed or obliterated and abated by any person.— Mass. Statute, 1898.

MURDER AT TOGUS.

A Veteran Dies From the Effects of an Assault by Unknown Parties.

Gardiner, Me., June 26.—Varnum Kimball, a veteran of company D., Eleventh Massachusetts colonels, went out on a five days' pass Saturday morning. Sunday morning he returned to the home with his face considerably battered up and bruised. When taken to the hospital he was unable to give a clear explanation and refused to talk much over the matter, other than he had been assaulted on the Augusta road by unknown parties, who pounded and kicked him about the head and body. The doctors at the hospital did everything possible for him, but he died Sunday night from the treatment he had received. He had the reputation among the soldiers as being very quiet and inoffensive. Governor Allen of the home was seen and stated that the authorities were doing all in their power to investigate the matter and will follow up every clew leading to the whereabouts of Kimball during Saturday and the company he was with. It is thought he was in a drunken row, or that an attempt was made to rob him of his pension money. Kimball was 59 years of age, and his home was in Haverhill, Mass. County Attorney Heselton has not yet been notified officially of the case and probably will not until the post mortem examination has been made.

Serious Accident In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 26.—One man was killed, another will die and two others were seriously hurt by the falling of a roof and a portion of the rear wall of the Bell Telephone exchange building, in course of construction at Seventeenth street and Alleghany avenue. The wall, which was about 40 feet high, gave way without warning. Miller had his son had just left the roof, where workmen were putting the brick cornice in shape. While they were talking in a room immediately below the roof there was a crash, and they with the other workmen were completely buried under the debris.

Won in the Sixteenth.

New York, June 26.—Before the Sampson Athletic club, Brookline, last night, George Munroe of New York was given the decision over Patsey Haley of Buffalo after 16 rounds of pretty fighting. The men met for 20 rounds at 115 pounds. The bout abounded with clever sparring. Haley was the shiftier; but Munroe's blows had the most steam behind them and he gradually wore Haley down. Haley came up for the 16th in a helpless condition, and his seconds, to avert a knockout, threw up the sponge.

Crowds Greet Dewey In Rhode Island.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., June 26.—Admiral and Mrs. Dewey were prevented from arriving at the Pier at the set time Monday afternoon as a result of a slight accident to the colonial express, which caused some delay, and the party did not reach the Pier until 8:30 o'clock Monday night. At every station from Kingston to the Pier large crowds gathered to greet the admiral, and he was cheered loudly. The admiral was met at the Pier by Mrs. Washington McLean's carriage, and he was driven to her cottage in Ocean road. A number of buildings were decorated in honor of the occasion.

TO POLL LARGE VOTE.

The Prohibitionists Hope to Make Great Gains This Year.

Kansas City Platform Will Be Like Chicago Document.

Bryan Gives a Digest of New Matters to Be Incorporated In It.

Chicago, June 26.—"There will be polled not fewer than 300,000 votes for the Prohibition national ticket this fall. The vote four years ago was approximately 130,000, a loss of nearly 150,000 from the vote of 1892. This loss was due to the money issue raised in the last campaign, and will be regained, with perhaps an increase this year."

With the national prohibition convention one day distant, Chairman Oliver W. Stewart of the national executive committee of the Prohibition party, made the foregoing statement last night. According to the same authority the Prohibitionists' convention this year will leave the solution of economic problems, except those which in their opinion can be solved by the abolition of the liquor traffic, to the other political parties.

From the reports from 35 states which have held conventions, the following digest of the platform was announced Monday:

An unequivocal demand for the legal abolition of the liquor traffic in the United States.

A demand for the suppression of the army canteen.

A plank dealing with the expansion policy of the administration solely in respect to the extension of the liquor traffic to the colonial possessions.

A tariff plank, declaring that it is more important that the American workingman should be protected from the evils of the saloon than from the competition of foreign labor and goods.

A declaration to the effect that the trusts could not exist without the saloon, through which they are able to corrupt the vote of the people.

Referring the question of woman's suffrage back to the various states, on the ground that the question is one for determination by states individually.

An Interview With Bryan.

Lincoln, Neb., June 26.—W. J. Bryan returned yesterday from his Wisconsin fishing trip and will remain here until after the Democratic national convention. He said he had been placed in a wrong position by some one who had presumed to outline his plan of campaign.

"Any statements made by anybody in regard to campaign plans are without foundation or authority," he added.

Mr. Bryan was asked whether he could say anything in regard to the platform to be adopted at Kansas City. He replied:

"No one of course can say what language will be used in getting forth the party principles. But some idea can be obtained as to the general tenor of the platform from the platforms adopted in the state conventions. As a large majority of the delegates have been elected by convntions which reaffirmed the Chicago platform, it is safe to assume that the Kansas City platform will reaffirm the Chicago platform, and will contain nothing which can be construed as a surrender or modification of the platform on the old issues.

"It is equally certain that there will be a strong and definite plank against the trusts. There is also no doubt that the plank against imperialism will be clear and explicit. Militarism will be denounced and sympathy expressed for the Boers. This much is evident from what has already taken place."

Asked if there was any truth in the rumors that a vice president will be chosen whose views on the money question will be attractive to those who opposed the ticket in 1896, Mr. Bryan replied:

"I do not care to discuss the vice presidential candidacy now, further than to say that I assume that the candidate nominated for the vice presidency will be in harmony with the platform."

Postmaster General Removes Rathbone.

Washington, June 26.—The postmaster general has issued an order removing from office Estes G. Rathbone, who had been suspended by a former order from the position of director general of posts of Cuba, and detailing Martin C. Fosnes, an inspector in the postal service, to perform the duties of director general of posts until further orders. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has been relieved from further work in Cuba and has sailed for home.

Copious Rains Wanted.

London, June 26.—The viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, cables that frequent showers have fallen in the Deccan and elsewhere, but that copious rains are wanted in order to enable the natives to engage in plowing and sowing the autumn crops. The famine situation is unaltered. The governor of Bombay wires that there were 10,277 deaths from cholera out of 15,479 cases during the week ending June 16.

Considered Sentence Unjust.

Washington, June 26.—The president has commuted to five years the sentence of life imprisonment imposed on Alphonse J. Jennings, convicted in Chickasha, I. T., in February, 1889, of train robbery. The attorney general considered the sentence of Jennings unjust, as others convicted with him at the same time received lighter sentences.

Charges Against Coler and Ice Trust.

Albany, June 26.—Attorney General Davies will visit Governor Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and confer with him on several public matters, probably the charges preferred against Comptroller Coler of New York city, and those brought against New York city officials for their connection with the ice trust.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Insufficiency of Rain Has Retarded Growth In the Interior of New England.

Boston, June 26.—The United States department of agriculture, New England section, climate and crop service of the weather bureau, issues the following bulletin for the week ending June 25:

The dry weather preceding the rain of the 22d caused widespread damage. The hay crop, in particular, suffered. In some localities the crop has been harvested and the ground seeded for fodder. It is estimated that more fields of this character have been sown than ordinarily. The heavy rains of the latter part of the week relieved the crops along the coast, but inland the conditions remain unfavorable. Farm operations have been uninterrupted. In the southern half of the section the second hoeing has been completed, while in the northern states most crops have been cultivated once.

Haying has begun in most states. Reports generally state that the crop is light, in old meadows especially the yield is below the average.

Rye continues in good condition. Oats are now heading, and in the localities where heavy rains fell are promising, elsewhere the fields are almost stationary. Corn is generally from a week to 10 days late; but little replanting has been necessary.

Reports in general state that the apple crop is heavy, though not so heavy as the blooms seemed to indicate. In Connecticut, which usually produces the greater part of New England's peach crop, the trees are full. The late frosts did these large orchards very slight damage, and with increased acreage the prospects for an abundant crop are now propitious. Strawberries suffered more from dry weather during the week than they had previously from the frosts. Blackberries, blueberries, currants and pears are in excellent condition.

Correspondents from Massachusetts and Maine confirm the report that vegetable gardens are suffering from multitudes of potato beetles. Cut worms are damaging cabbage, and the pea louse has appeared in Connecticut. Since the late rains, however, gardens have presented a better aspect.

Cut worms and dry weather have delayed the planting of the tobacco crop, but all the beds are now set, and, in general, look well. Some hoeing has been done in Connecticut.

Fall River Strikers Beaten.

Fall River, Mass., June 26.—It is generally believed in this city that the end of the eight-hour strike is in sight. Following close upon the decision of the carpenters to return to work the tinsmiths formally declared the eight-hour strike at an end Monday afternoon and will return to work as opportunity offers. The tinsmiths fought against heavy odds, being a new organization, and decided that nothing could be done now that the carpenters had yielded. The plumbers are the only men on strike now, and a decision on their part to declare the strike off is looked for. Should this decision be reached the end of the eight-hour movement, which was inaugurated four weeks ago, will have been reached for this year at least. The poor condition of the building business at this season, when usually work is plentiful, is assigned by the union men as the cause of their defeat.

No One Saw Him Die.

Laconia, N. H., June 26.—Orrin H. Dame, aged 55 years, was killed by being struck by a ladder standing against the gable of a building in the yard of the Laconia Car Works here, and blown down by the high wind. A singular feature of the accident is that no person saw the accident, although several other workmen were in the immediate vicinity. He received a fatal blow on the forehead, although the skull was intact. Mr. Dame was a well-known contractor and builder, and leaves a widow and two children.

U. S. Cannot Relax Its Efforts.

Washington, June 26.—The Chinese minister has asked an armistice in the sending of American troops to China, based on the assurances of Chinese viceroys that they can maintain order. President McKinley, while acknowledging his gratification at these assurances, has made known to the Chinese minister that the United States cannot relax its efforts to get troops to points where its officials are considered in danger.

Murderer Sentenced to Death.

Mayville, N. Y., June 26.—A verdict of murder in the first degree was reached by the jury in the case of Frank Wennerholm, at 11 o'clock last night. Justice White at once sentenced the prisoner to be electrocuted at Auburn prison during the week of July 30. Wennerholm was convicted of murdering his fiancee, Emily Adolphson, at Jamestown. He slaughtered her with a razor.

Taken From Sheriff and Hanged.

O'Brien, Fla., June 26.—Jack Thomas, a negro, who attempted an assault on Mrs. Keene, a widow living in Suwanee county, Friday night, was taken from the sheriff by a mob, near Live Oak, hanged to a tree, and riddled with bullets. He made a full confession.

Woman Kills Herself at Lowell.

Lowell, Mass.; June 26.—Mrs. Emma Kelly, a cook, committed suicide in her room Monday. Her body was found in her room, with a bullet wound in her temple, and a revolver by her side.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Rev. Father Moeller, vice chancellor of the arch-diocese of Cincinnati, has formally accepted the appointment as bishop of Columbus.

Five dollar silver certificates of the new design have made their first appearance, and taken the place of the old fives in all treasury payments from the cash room, at Washington.

The water in Moosehead lake is rapidly falling, on account of a break in the immense dam at the western outlet.

The competition for the Townsend prize of $100 in the Yale law school was held as a part of the anniversary exercises. The prize was awarded to Walter D. Makepeace, Yale, B. A., '97, M. A., '99, of the graduating class, of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Makepeace's theme was "The white man's burden."

Knew She Was Ugly.

The Duchess of Orleans, mother of the regent who governed France during the monarchy of Louis XV, was notorious for her ugliness. She wrote:

"From early youth I knew how ugly I was and hated to have people look sharply at me. I never cared for dress, as I knew that diamonds and ornaments would only attract attention to me. Once Countess Soissons asked me why I never turned to look at a mirror in passing, as every other woman did. I told her I could not endure the sight of my own face.

"As a girl I must have been very ugly. I had little, blinking eyes, a pug nose and a big mouth with thick lips. My face was broad and fat and my figure short and stumpy. Nobody would have tolerated me except for my good disposition.

"I don't suppose that there was in the whole world another pair of hands as ugly as mine. The king often told me so, and I laughed, for I was resolved always to laugh at my hideousness. I must confess that I had to laugh very often.

"What surprised me most was that any one could fall in love with me. I was notoriously the ugliest woman at court, yet I was married at 19.

"I often asked my husband if the sight of me were not repulsive and what he had seen in me that induced him to fall in love with me. I never got a satisfactory answer, but I think that I must have had some other attractions which outweighed my ugliness."

On Reading Aloud.

It is a distinct loss that reading is so badly taught and that so few people know anything about the magic of the poets in their use of sound. We read almost exclsively with the eye, although poetry is primarily intended for the ear. Shakespeare wrote almost exclusively for the ear, and we remain unmoved by the wonderful vibration of his great passages until we hear them.

Poetry ought always to be heard first and read afterward. If the best of Browning is sympathetically and intelligently interpreted by the voice, the much discussed obscurity is not in evidence. Many people find, for instance, a little difficulty in getting the clear and full significance of "The Portrait of the Last Duchess" when they read it for the first time, but it fastens itself instantly on the imagination if it is well read.

A good deal of time now devoted to commentaries and text study might profitably be given to reading the text aloud without note or comment. A work of art slowly discloses its full meaning, and familiarity with it is the first condition of comprehension.—Hamilton Mabie in Harper's Bazar.

London Bakers, 1310.

In 1310 we find the following Bow bakeresses accused of selling halfpenny loaves deficient in weight: Sarra Foting, Christina Terrice, Godiyeva Foting, Matilda de Bolingtone, Christina Prichet, Isabella Sperling, Alice Pegges, Johanna de Countebrigge and Isabella Pouyeste. One wonders why the husbands were not summoned. In a similar case in 1316, when Agnes Foting's bread was seized, it was "adjudged that her bread should be forfeited and given to the prisoners in Neugate because her husband did not come to avow (own) the bread." Are we to assume that in the absence of the husbands the bread was merely forfeited without the infliction of a fine?

An indication of the importance of the breadmaking business is also found in an enactment of the reign of Henry III to the effect that "every cart of Bremble (Bromley-by-Bow) or Stevenhethe (Stepney) that comes into the city with bread shall pay each day 1 halfpenny."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Birds and "Old" Coins.

A French physician lately had an opportunity to observe a pointe de Paris which had been lying for several days in the stomach of a child and found that the gastric juice had acted upon the smallest particles of the article, blunting the blade and point and giving the medal a brown color. In this manner might be explained the process used in Italy to produce old coins and medals. Large birds are made to swallow roughly stamped coins with the image of Tiberius or Caligula. After awhile the animals give off again the coins, upon which meanwhile an appreciable layer of patina has formed. This result is apparently due to the action of the gastric juices.—Jeweler's Circular-Weekly.

His Musical Sense.

"What is your favorite opera?" asked the foreign gentleman.

Mr. Cumrox was about to answer "The Mikado," when he observed that the eyes of his wife and daughter were upon him. Then he assumed an air of nonchalance and answered:

"Oh, I don't care particular about the names of cigars or the titles of operas. I like to change around. I just tell 'em to give me a 25 cent cigar when I feel like smoking, and when I want music I enjoy any old $5 a seat opera."—Washington Star.

The Next Best Thing.

"I trust," said the new member of the school committee, "that you do not hold out to your pupils the misleading hope that each of them may be the president?"

"No, indeed," replied the dominie, "but I do not think that I err on the side of improbability when I teach them that each has a good chance of being a presidential possibility."—Harper's Bazar.

Early and Late.

Plodder (at 6 a. m.)—Hello, Rounder! What are you doing up so early?

Rounder—Hello, old fel! What are you doing out sho late?—Philadelphia Record.

What Is It?

A man who has been running a race with steam and electricity for years, finds himself suddenly stopped. It seems as if a cold hand clutched his heart. His brain whirls; he can hardly see. "What is it?" he asks himself as the attack passes.

If his question meets a right answer, he'll be told that his seizure is a warning to pay more attention to his stomach, which is already deranged by irregular meals and rich foods.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates from the blood disease breeding poisons. It makes the blood rich and pure, and furnishes a foundation for sound, physical health.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach," writes Mr. Wm. Connolly, of 535 Walnut Street, Lorain, Ohio. "It got so bad that I had to lay off quite often—two and three days in a week. I have been treated by the best doctors in this city, but got no help. Some said I had cancer of the stomach, others catarrh, others dyspepsia. Then I wrote to you for advice. You advised the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' These medicines I have taken as directed. I commenced to get better from the start, and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I feel tip-top, and better than I have for ten years."

Keep the bowels healthy by using Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They don't gripe.

New York Court of Appeals Denies Edward Wise's Petition.

Boston Man Confessed That He Struck Fatal Blow.

New Testimony to Be Presented to Governor Roosevelt Asking Clemency.

Boston, June 27.—Edward Wise, a well-known Boston boy, has been denied a new trial by the court of appeals in New York, and he is now confined in murderers' row at Sing Sing prison, awaiting his execution, which is fixed for Aug. 6, and to be fulfilled in the electric chair, for the murder of a cab driver. Yesterday, however, some new evidence in the case was secured by Chief Inspector Watts of this city, and Representative Jerry Watson of Boston will today present to Governor Roosevelt a petition, asking that the death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. The petition is said to bear the signatures of nearly all the members of the general court of this commonwealth, and is accompanied by the sworn affidavit of a well-known South End grocer, who told Chief Watts that John Sweeny, another Boston boy, had made a confession. It is claimed he was with Wise on the night of the murder, and it is claimed that he admitted to the grocer that he, and not Wise, struck the blow which killed the man for whose death Wise is condemned to die in the chair.

Inquest at Appanoag.

East Greenwich, R. I., June 27.—The inquest in the wreck of electric cars at Appanoag, on June 10, was continued Tuesday, there being four witnesses on the stand. Michael A. Talty and Michael J. Healey, conductor and motorman respectively, testified relative to the rules for the operation of cars, and the fact that they were in charge of the car which followed the one which was wrecked, and that they were told by the station agent at Warwick that this car had stopped at that station. Mrs. Julia Franklin and Mrs. Hulda Skoglund, who were passengers on the wrecked car, testified that the car stopped at Warwick, and they alighted at that point. This evidence is contrary to that of the conductor, who maintains he made no stop at that point.

A Woman's Suspicious Death.

Whitinsville, Mass., June 27.—Deputy Sheriff Hamilton Boyd Tuesday arrested William Riley and Albert Dunn on suspicion of knowing more about the death of Mrs. Helen Barker, who died Tuesday morning at the home of Albert Dunn at Plummers, than has been revealed. The selectmen look with suspicion on the story told by Riley and Dunn, and it is very evident that Mrs. Barker received a hard blow, which it appears extremely doubtful if she received from falling on the stone doorstep. A preliminary hearing will be held before Judge Putnam of the district court within a few days. The remains of Mrs. Barker will be buried today at Saundersville.

Body Identified

Cambridge, Mass., June 27.—The body of Mrs. Joseph Kelley of 86 Huntington avenue, Boston, was found in the Charles river near the Boylston street bridge Tuesday. When the body was taken from the water there was no clue to its identity, and it was late in the afternoon before friends appeared and claimed it. Mrs. Kelley had been troubled with nervous prostration, and Monday night, when the nurse was in another room, she left her home and came to this city, where she ended her life by jumping into the river. She was about 25 years of age.

Conference of Anti-Imperialists in New York.

New York, June 27.—Members of the executive committee of the American Anti-Imperialist league held an informal conference at the office of E. M. Shepard yesterday. It was all but decided to hold a conference, about Aug. 1, next, probably in Indianapolis. The gathering will comprise both Republicans and Democrats. "No one attending the Indianapolis conference will be committed as to his political action or liberty," said Mr. Shepard.

Shot While Stealing Cherries.

Worcester, Mass., June 27.—Dennis Cremin, 17 years old, was shot at midnight while stealing cherries at 13 Shelby street, by John W. Heal, and was taken to the hospital dangerously wounded in the back. It is feared that the wound is fatal. Heal is under arrest, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Fight at Manchester.

Manchester, N. H., June 27.—William Gardner of Lowell, Mass., and Austin Rice of New London, Conn., met in a 15-round glove contest in this city last night. The men were very evenly matched and Referee Owen Kenney declared the fight a draw.

Church Destroyed by Fire.

Franklin, Mass., June 27.—St. Mary's Catholic church, one of the largest structures in town, was totally burned early yesterday evening, the vestments and service books alone being saved.

CAN'T AGREE ON VERDICT.

Jury in the Fanny Sprague Murder Case In a Bad Tangle.

South Berwick, Me., June 27.—What was believed would prove to be the final session of the coroner's jury in the Fanny Sprague murder case, was held here Tuesday afternoon, when County Attorney Matthews presented some new evidence. After going thoroughly over the evidence in the case, the jurors took a vote to ascertain how they stood in the matter, and the result showed two in favor of a verdict naming the man who, in their opinion, committed the crime, and four for rendering a verdict withholding the name of any person. At this point County Attorney Matthews was called into the jury room, and his advice was asked in the matter. He stated that he should accept nothing but a unanimous verdict, and that he should not consent to the jury's discharge by the coroner until it had reached one. The county attorney retired, and after due deliberation the jury announced to the coroner that, as they could not agree, they desired to be discharged, but he would not grant their request. County Attorney Matthews said at the close of the session that he would not recognize any but a unanimous verdict, and he did not propose to allow the jury to abandon the case in any such way; that the only method to pursue was to hold them, so that from time to time new evidence, as secured, could be presented for their consideration. He cited the holding in the Reed case for over two years and the good results, and he proposed to do likewise in this case, if necessary. The inquest adjourned, subject to the call of the coroner.

Frederick S. Gibbs In Charge.

New York, June 27.—New York in 1900, as in 1896, will be a center of the utmost activity in the Republican campaign. The New York headquarters has been placed in charge of Frederick S. Gibbs, who represents this state in the Republican national committee. Four years ago the plan of having two central headquarters for the party in a national campaign was tried for the first time. It proved successful, although some critic predicted disagreement as to details of management and resultant disaster. So far as the plans were arranged at a conference between National Committeeman Joseph H. Manley of Maine and Mr. Gibbs, they involve a repetition of two central headquarters in New York and in Chicago. Those headquarters will be connected by long distance telephone and leased telegraph wires. Every operator will be sworn to secrecy, as will every other employe. The chief center of the campaign will again be Chicago, but especial attention will be paid to eastern states and the New York headquarters will be made the source of distribution of a vast amount of campaign literature and the directing center of an army of campaign orators.

Dangerous Assault In Lowell.

Lowell, Mass., June 27.—William M. Dugan lies at the point of death as the result of a supposed assault upon him on the night of June 16. A wound behind the right ear has caused inflammation of the brain and for 11 days he has been in a dazed condition. Monday night physicians in consultation gave him up. The patient left his home, 15 West Fourth street, some time during the night of June 16, and from half intelligible mutterings addressed by him to imaginary persons it is supposed that he was set upon by highwaymen. When he returned to his home, June 17, his mind was a blank. About $30 was missing from his clothes. The case is in the hands of the police.

To Receive Degree at Harvard.

Boston, June 27.—Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, arrived in this city Tuesday, having left Washington on the Colonial express at 8:45 Tuesday morning. The distinguished visitor was unattended and came entirely unannounced. He took a cab at the south station and was driven to the Touraine, where he was met by Judge Dewey of the superior court, who entertained him during the evening. Lord Pauncefote's visit is understood to be for the purpose of receiving the degree of L. L. D. from Harvard university today. He will be a guest at Harvard commencement today and will probably speak at the dinner. He refused to discuss the Chinese question last night, saying that he had absolutely nothing to offer for publication.

Skull Fractured.

Cambridge, Mass., June 27.—Charles Smith, about 25 years of age, an employe of the Boston Elevated road, fell from an electric light pole late Tuesday afternoon, and received a fractured skull from contact with the pavement. As he fell he struck Eugene Kelley, a 5-year-old boy, and the latter had his leg and arm broken as a result of the collision. Both were taken to the Massachusetts general hospital. It is probable that Smith will die.

London, June 27.—The Gazette Tuesday announced that Victoria crosses have been bestowed on Major John Philipps Hornby, Sergeant Parker and Driver Glasscock of Q battery, Royal artillery, for conspicuous bravery in saving four of the guns from the convoy disaster at Kornspruit, Orange Free State, March 31, of the present year.

MAKING IT HOT FOR FOREIGNERS.

Probability of More Outbreaks Immediately in Southern China.

Admiral Seymour Reported to be Surrounded Near Tien Tsin.

Jesuit Fathers and Others Murdered---A Relief Party Despatched.

London, June 27.—A fresh phase of the ebullition in China is the probability of immediate outbreaks in the great southern provincial centres. The populace there is assuming an aggressive attitude towards foreigners, who perceive symptoms of a general rising, especially at Nanking, where, according to a dispatch to The Daily Express, dated Tuesday, Kang Wu, one of the most turbulent enemies of foreigners, has arrived by way of the Grand canal, armed with full powers to deal with the southern provinces. The friendly attitude of Viceroy Llu Kun Yih toward foreigners has brought him into disgrace with Prince Tuan, president of the Chinese foreign office.

The unrest at Canton is described by a dispatch from that city to The Daily Telegraph, dated Monday, via Hong Kong, yesterday:

"It is feared that we are all on the eve of a scene of bloodshed and anarchy in the two quangs only paralleled during the Taiping rebellion.

"The signs of a murderous uprising are so manifest that wealthy Chinese are hurrying from Canton and the vicinity, taking their wives, families and valuables.

"Li Hung Chang has been again peremptorily ordered to Pekin. His enemies declare that they will murder him before he can reach there. His presence alone restrains the revolutionary elements here. His departure will let loose the 'Black Flags' and 'Red Girdles.' Knowing this, Li's trusted officers are sending their families to Hong Kong.

"The viceroy himself trusts the Americans in this crisis. He says that they want no territory, and he places himself largely—almost unreservedly—in their hands. At an important conference today he reiterated this statement.

"All the missionaries have been notified of the imminent peril through confidential runners. They are leaving Canton hurriedly, and only a few are now here.

The American and British troops entered Tien Tsin, first silencing the guns of the arsenal and breaking through the Chinese lines. The foreigners were close behind. The Russians lost four killed and 30 wounded. The losses of the other nationalities were small. Admiral Seymour's force is about 10 miles from Tien Tsin. It is surrounded by Chinese troops and Boxers, and hampered by the presence of sick and wounded.

It is reported that all foreigners were sent from Pekin with a weak Chinese guard, and it is assumed that they are with Admiral Seymour.

The foreign admirals have appointed Captain Wise, commander of the Monocacy, to be commandant at Tong Ku.

The Jesuit fathers and 100 native Christians have been murdered in the southern part of the province of Chi Li. The Chinese military authorities have been discovered recruiting at Shanghai, inside the foreign settlement, and some agents have been arrested in the act of constructing entrenchments around the European concessions.

A Chinaman, connected with war purchases for the Chinese government in Europe, who has been interviewed by the London Daily Express, says that China has immense quantities of arms and ammunition, and will "stagger humanity" if driven to defend herself.

Washington, June 27.—The purpose of the government to place an adequate military force in China was made perfectly clear yesterday when orders were issued to Brigadier General Adna R. Chaffee to take command of the forces in China and to proceed at once to assume his new duties. More significant probably than the assignment itself was the wording of the formal orders to General Chaffee, issued late in the day by Acting Secretary of War Meikeljohn, directing him "to take command of the troops ordered to China," and to proceed to Pekin by way of San Francisco and Taku, accompanied by his aides. It had been expected that the military forces would be concentrated at Che Foo or some other convenient military base, but the direction to proceed to Pekin, the capital of the Chinese empire, indicated a firm determination on the part of the government authorities to have a strong military force at the seat of the Chinese government. This announcement of General Chaffee's assignment and the orders to proceed to Pekin came after the state department had declined to accede to a second proposition from six great viceroys of China that foreign troops be kept out of China until Li Hung Chang reaches Pekin. In more formal manner, with the signatures of the six viceroys representing the greater part of the empire, Minister Wu repeated yesterday his plea of Monday that the foreign troops be kept out of the country.

Secretary Hay laid the formal request of the viceroys before the cabinet meeting, but there was no disposition to vary from the president's determination, already made known by Secretary Hay to the Chinese minister, to send our forces to such points as were menaced and where our officials and citizens were in danger. While the viceroys spoke for their provinces they could not speak for Pekin, and it is to Pekin that the officials most anxiously look. Minister Conger is still silent, and the latest advices have shown that little reliance can be placed on the dispatches from Shanghai saying that the ministers and legations at Pekin were safe. For this reason the orders to General Chaffee to proceed to Pekin took on an added meaning.

Arrested For Complicity In Cobb Murder.

Louisville, June 27.—A special to The Post from Harlan Court House, Ky., says: Captain John L. Powers was arrested here Tuesday, charged with being an accessory to the murder of Governor Goebel. Powers at once instituted habeas corpus proceedings. He holds a pardon issued by Governor Taylor, while in office, and was released once before on habeas corpus proceedings in Knox county. Captain Powers is a brother of former Secretary of State Caleb Powers.

Fitchburg and Albany Leases.

Boston, June 27.—The lower branch of the legislature by an overwhelming vote of 147 to 39, with numerous pairs, passed to a third reading Tuesday afternoon the bill approving the lease of the Fitchburg railroad to the Boston and Maine railroad for a period of 99 years. The bill has still another stage in the house before going to the senate, but it is expected that the measure will become a law by Saturday night. The senate passed the Albany measure.

Hotel In Rockland, Me., Burned.

Rockland, Me., June 27.—Hotel Claremont was nearly destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. The blaze started in the attic near the chimney and spread rapidly, at one time threatening surrounding buildings. The hotel was owned by Edward E. Flagg, and had been open only two weeks. The loss is estimated at $4000. The building was insured for $4500, and the furniture for $1700.

H., and leaves a widow and daughter. He had been a member of the board of aldermen and common council, and was a member of many societies. For several years prior to 1894 he was quartermaster of the Eighth regiment.

Newport, R. I., June 27.—Tuesday evening a committee of the city council sent an invitation by telegraph to Admiral Dewey at Narragansett Pier, requesting him to occupy a place of honor in the parade on July 4, and review the parade with Rear Admiral Farquhar of the North Atlantic squadron and other naval dignaties.

Good Afternoon.

Other names are suggested for Superintendent of Schools of Quincy, and it is pleasing to note that it will not be necessary to go out of the city to secure a desirable man. The latest are Charles F. Merrick of the School Committee, and Albert Candlin, principal of the Willard school.

Mr. Merrick has been successful as principal at the Quincy school at Atlantic, and at the Willard school at West Quincy; has served as a Councilman and is a member at large on the School Committee. He is at present a sub-master at the Bennett school in Boston, and has just been selected among many applicants to have charge three summer schools of Boston.

The work of Mr. Candlin as principal of the Willard has been largely supervision. He had experience before coming to Quincy as a high school teacher and also as superintendent. He has the solid support of West Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ John D. Long side-tracked! Well, there is a day after today. Secretary Long is a young man yet. No doubt the future has a place in store for him in which he may render his country quite as good service as can be performed in the vice-president's chair. He has been in such places in the past.—Nashua Press.

☞ With a sumptuous yacht at his service, like the Mayflower, the floating palace of the late Ogden Goelet, Gov. Allen of Porto Rico has no reason to find fault with the provision made for his comfort. His visits to the various ports of the island can be made in style and under as luxurious conditions as an eastern potentate.—Brockton Times.

☞ Trade prospects are very satisfactory, although the outlook is somewhat confused by the readjustment of prices now going on. Values had been advanced much too high because of the sudden and unprecedented rush of orders. Now that these are satisfied both demand and prices are gravitating to the normal. More or less unsettlement must be expected until this period is passed, and it is quite likely that buyers will hold off for still lower prices until forced to recognize that bottom is touched. During the interval, therefore, a period of dullness may be expected that will be very discouraging in contrast with the conditions of a year ago. But this will only be temporary, for there are no signs of the recent activity having run its course. Quite the reverse; there is every reason to anticipate a good trade during the coming Fall and Winter, because enterprise and industry are alert and the execution of new projects will keep every mill busy for months to come. Overproduction is not yet in sight.—Henry Clews.

☞ A nice Jersey heifer, giving fourteen quarts of milk a day, will be sold by F. F. Crane tomorrow.

—The body found in the Charles river Tuesday morning has been identified as Mrs. Joseph Kelley of Huntington avenue and recently of New York. Her maiden name was Mary E. Penney, and she was a native of Boston.

— David W. Cushing, a well known resident of South Weymouth, died at his residence on Union street last night. He was 85 years of age.

RECEPTION TO SUPT. LULL.

Diamond Ring Presented by Teachers of City—Gold and Roses by the Children of the Coddington.

The reception tendered by the Quincy Teachers' Association to Supt. Lull on Tuesday was one long to be remembered by all present. It was held in the beautiful hall of the High school from 4 to 6 P. M. All the desks had been removed, and roses in abundance, the gift of pupils of the grammar schools of the city were everywhere present, and made the building fragrant.

The receiving party was stationed in the southerly front corner, and included Supt. and Mrs. Lull, Mr. C. E. Finch and wife, Mr. A. W. Greene and wife, Mr. C. P. Harper, and Mrs. Illsley. No introductions were necessary to these people. Supt. and Mrs. Lull heard many regrets that they had decided to go to other fields, but congratulations that their lines had been cast in the beautiful city of Newport.

For entertainment there were piano selections by Mr. Frank Gilbert; cornet solos by Abbie Greene, a pupil of the school at Atlantic, and songs by Miss Annie Hall, Miss Alice Coe and Miss Souther.

Principal Harper in a speech which was a model for brevity, and yet which boiled down considerable in a few words, presented Supt. Lull on behalf of the teachers of Quincy with a rich diamond ring. He congratulated Newport on her choice of superintendents, sympathized with Mr. Lull because of the new conquests to be made, and had regrets for Quincy in her loss of Supt. Lull. The teachers felt that they had received support from him. In closing he wished a successful future to a successful superintendent.

In response, Supt. Lull said he felt a weakness of his vocabulary to express himself. He felt like coining new words. His work in Quincy had been comparatively free from friction. He was going because of the greater resources offered. Where he would not have to worry every day over losing some teacher, or how he was to secure supplies, pencils and even ink. He knew he must reawake to win success in a new field, but he was prepared. He wished to emphasize the fact that he was not going because of the present condition of finances. A deficit was sure, but he told the teachers that the majority of the City Council were with them, and the future might be brighter.

The conditions made it easier to go. He asked the loyal support of teachers for his successor, and thanked the children of the grammar schools for the roses.

Ice cream and cake were then served, while frappe was served all the time by young ladies.

Good byes mingled with regrets were again said to Supt. and Mrs. Lull and the reception was at a close.

AT THE CODDINGTON.

Supt. Lull happened around at the Coddington school just before the session this morning, and there was a presentation and impromptu remarks. The children were assembled to march in and were quite as surprised at the turn of events as Supt. Lull. First came a salute to the flag, which the Coddington always does with spirit and reverence. Then America was sung.

Miss Dearborn, the principle, said the graduation class of today were the babies of Mr. Lull's first year as superintendent. She knew that the pupils regarded Supt. Lull as a guide, inspiration and friend, and asked him to accept from young hands a few tokens.

These included a $5 gold piece in a box tied with Coddington blue, a group picture of the graduating class, and a beautiful bouquet of roses. Supt. Lull told the children these presentations and kind words were making it hard for him to go. He spoke at length in praise of the Coddington, and promised to wear the gold piece as a watch charm and to keep the picture on his desk.

After cheers for Supt. Lull, there were brief remarks by Dr. Hallowell of the School Committee, and Frank F. Prescott of the Ledger.

With more cheers for Mr. Lull, the speakers, the Coddington, Miss Dearborn and others, the exercises were over, and the pupils marched into school.

Then came more surprises. The pupils of Miss Dearborn presented her with a beautiful clock. Miss Olmsted, her assistant, received a bust of Wagner and a Moorish vase, and other teachers were remembered. At the afternoon session the pupils were graduated from room to room.

The committee on the reception were Mr. Finch, Mr. Greene and Mrs. Illsley; on present, Miss Thayer, Miss McKay and Miss Sheahan.

Newsam—Francis.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at house of Mr. E. J. Sheldon No. 8 Winthrop avenue, Monday evening, by the Rev. Preston Gurney of the Wollaston Baptist church. The contracting parties were Mr. John F. Newsam of Boston and Miss Ida M. Francis of Wollaston. Only immediate relatives and friends were present. The bride wore orange blossoms and carried brides roses. She was dressed in a beautiful travelling suit. After a wedding supper was served, they departed amid a shower of rice and old shoes, upon a ten days' trip. Upon their return they will reside in Boston.

How They Voted.

Both Sheppard and Sprague voted in the negative on the amendment providing that the Boston & Maine shall not sublet lease of the Fitchburg without the consent of the General Court and shall not without approval of the Railroad Commissioners charge a greater sum for passenger and freight traffic on the Fitchburg than now received by the latter; and in the affirmative on the amendment making all agreements entered into by the Fitchburg binding on the Boston & Maine; and in the affirmative on the amendment providing that no passenger charge of over two cents a mile shall prevail.

THE LAWN PARTY.

A Large Gathering Last Night on Presidents' Hill.

The lawn party Tuesday afternoon and evening on President's Hill under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., was a brilliant success. A large tent, used by the 6th regiment in its campaign in Porto Rico, was erected and in this were located the booths for the sale of ice cream, cake, fruit, etc. In the evening this was illuminated with many Chinese lanterns and looked very beautiful. The outside of the tent was illuminated with numerous oil lamps.

The afternoon was for children and was quite largely attended. Seven boys from the Adams school sang coon songs and danced the cake walk.

In the evening there was an immense throng present, the grounds about the tent being black with people. They came ready and willing to spend their money, and everything in the line of salable articles was soon purchased. It was regretted that some available source of supply was not near at hand. The attraction in the evening was the City band, which gave an excellent concert and was frequently applauded. Chairs from Shaw's Coliseum were plentifully distributed about the grounds, but were hardly sufficient to accommodate all who attended.

Just how much will be netted cannot be told at present, but it will not be far from $50.

W. G. Shaw and L. E. Peters had general supervision of the grounds and deserve more than a passing notice for the manner in which they executed their duties.

The executive committee under whose general supervision the party was held were: Mrs. T. B. Pollard, Mrs. H. F. Fitts, Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Mrs. A. J. Macfarlane.

Those in charge of the several booths were:

Lemonade Well,—Miss Maude Macfarlane, Miss Clara Merrill, Miss Sadie Parker, Miss Addie Park.

Cake,—Mrs. L. E. Peters, Mrs. S. E. Hatch, Mrs. C. F. Carlson.

Pop corn fruit and peanuts,—Miss Blanche Peters, Miss Ethel Jameson, Miss Alice Sampson.

Tonics,—T. H. Parsons.

The grab-bag was in a regulation U. S. Army tent and was in charge of Miss Bumpus and Miss Babcock.

The candy table was in charge of Miss Leila Miller, Mrs. Frank Brewer and members of the Unity Circle of King's Daughters.

The ice cream was served under the direction of Mrs. Theophilus King, who was assisted by twenty young ladies.

Trees in Their Place.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

An improved and business-like appearance is observed in our city in the cleaning and caring for the old dumping ground, the place upon Valley street opposite the lower entrance of Mount Wollaston cemetery. A timely hint in lines following this work was given at the Woodward the other evening in the bright little essay of Miss Ethel Babcock.

The observer, however, differs from her in regard to a lack of shade and trees within this burial place. We do not want those whose last earthly resting place is upon the beautiful plain and slopes there, to lie under shade. Sunlight should play over their repose, and for those who go there, the beautiful picturesque distant views should be clear, while one should be able to note especial stones that mark Quincy's dead.

The shade and gloom in Mount Auburn contrasted to the cheerful brightness of Forest Hills, are an example of this.

Trees are not always desirable, but along public highways they are needful and ornamental.

While so many regretted the loss of the old elms on Coddington street, it must be remembered that they were very old indeed, and in a not long time, maples can replace them. There should be set out this fall 1900 maples, sugar maples, that take on gorgeous hues in autumn, like those front of and along the John Faxon estate corner of Beale and Hancock streets, opposite Dr. Gordon's and many others. The finest monument in maples that we have, priceless every way, are those on the Houghs Neck route set out by the late John Quincy Adams.

Another fine row, straight as an arrow strong and beautiful is on Goffe street set out by Charles Francis Adams. Woodman spare these trees, and city, make the sidewalks upon the inner side of these rows of maples letting them stand as souvenirs of two of Quincy's honored sons, and as a thing of beauty forever. Observer.

Names for Warships.

The Secretary of the Navy has authorized the following names for the new battleships and cruisers:

Battleships,—Virginia and Rhode Island.

Armored Cruisers,—Maryland, Colorado and South Dakota.

Protected Cruisers,—St. Louis, Milwaukee and Charleston.

A FOREIGN COMPANY.

Mr. Whiting Lets More Light into Street Railway Affairs.

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

If the Quincy & Boston Street Railway as a purely local corporation, endeavoring in every legitimate way to protect its own interests as well as to foster a thoughtful care for the public, the situation would be different, but the fact should be taken into consideration that this company, so far as our municipality is concerned is a "foreign" corporation. When the treasurer of the Quincy & Boston, Mr. Alonzo F. Walter, filed his annual return at the tax commissioners office at the State House on May 9, 1900, he certified that there were 5,834 shares of this stock; 29 shares are owned in Quincy 14 of these by officers of the company, and 5,805 shares are owned by parties living in other cities and towns in the state. 5,773 of these shares are owned by eleven Boston business men, ten of these hold 550 shares each, the eleventh holding 273 shares.

According to the report filed with the Board of Railroad Commissioners for the year ending Sept. 30, 1899, the "percentage of dividends paid" or in other words, the annual dividend, was declared to be seven (7) per cent.

When the Board of Selectmen of Quincy granted rights of location in this and tributory corporations in the latter years of the town regime, it was never dreamed that our narrow streets would be ultimately turned into roadbeds for a "foreign" corporation, whose holdings of stock by residents of this city would amount to one-half of one per cent. of the total issue, and would haul through these same streets 3,590,477 passengers in one year as the managers so declares in its annual report to the Railroad Commissioners for the year ending Sept. 30, 1899.

A large part of these passengers are transported in huge eight-wheel cars equipped with air brakes and shrieking whistles, nearly equaling in size the passenger coaches of the New Haven road. It seem but fair to assume that at least 2,500,000 of these were "through" passengers having no interest in our city other than to be transported from Boston to Nantasket, or similar through travel.

It is for this corporation that the city is called upon from time to time to expend thousands of dollars on street widenings. In return for this the Mayor has hard work to wrench from it free transfers within the city limits (see correspondence at City Hall,) and then one of the most important branches is excluded from its benefits, the Houghs Neck line.

Speaking of the Houghs Neck line reminds me that we summer residents there last year were so bothered by the poor connections made with trains that I inserted a mild protest in the Ledger.

At the time that I had it published I was not aware that it was seemingly the fixed policy of this corporation to brow-beat citizens who have the temerity to make a public protest. The President of the company turned the matter over to the railway's attorney, Wm. G. A. Pattee, Esq., with this result:

Quincy, Mass., June, 17, 1899.

Mr. J. S. Whiting, Boston,

Dear Sir: Your letter of June 16th has been received. If you desire to see me before further steps are taken in the matter of the claims of the Quincy & Boston street Railway Co., you must call at my office before Wednesday next, June 24th.

Yours truly,
W. G. A. Pattee.

It is unnecessary to add that I failed to confer with Mr. Pattee, and that the "further steps" which were so direfully threatened against me, were never taken.

But this is a digression from the purpose of this communication. I desire to see this city exact from this "foreign" corporation all of the valuable concessions which business teaches us should be granted. When the Quincy & Boston again comes before the Council for new locations or other favors, I hope that before they are granted that the road will be compelled to agree to grant free transfers throughout the city, including Houghs Neck, to sell six tickets for 25 cents, to light and sprinkle the streets through which the cars pass, and to keep the streets through which they traverse clear of snow.

This is a rich corporation, it has paid for some time, according to the sworn reports on file at the State House, seven per cent. annually. Our city is overburdened with taxation, a large part of it is literally due to the fact that we have been buying land to be subsequently used as road-beds by this company,—commonly known as "street widening." The company is owned by some of the wealthiest people of Boston, Lowell and Lynn. It is but fair that they should lend a helping hand.

When we consider that the city's treasury has been milked to the extent of $50,000 for the ostensible widening of Coddington and Sea streets, but in reality to furnish a new road-bed for car tracks, that an order for $20,000, for a similar purpose on Copeland street is now before the Mayor; that the company has captured caucuses; that it has threatened to sue citizens who have had occasion to respectfully protest against a few of the road's many short-comings; that it has finally descended to criminal libel in order to attempt to throttle public opinion, then it seems to me as though we should cry "Halt! For the benefits which you have conferred upon us, you have reaped a thousand-fold reward. Hereafter pay for what you want." I believe that the most drastic measures should then be taken to compel this corporation to acknowledge that above all other interests those of our own city and our own people are paramount. James S. Whiting.

Misleading.

Editors of Ledger:

I wish to contradict in part an item which appeared in yesterday's Ledger respecting the special service to Orangemen in the United Presbyterian church on Sunday. While it is true that the Orange lodge and Black Preceptory of Quincy are to attend a service in the above church, it is not true that large delegations in uniform are expected from Boston, Everett, Malden, Somerville, Cambridge, Brockton and elsewhere. So far as the Orangemen of Quincy are aware no Protestant Associations of Eastern Massachusetts are expected. Some of our own members who are absent from this city will be here and possibly a few others from Boston. By giving the above space you will oblige the Committee appointed on this matter.

W. F. McCalder.

Quincy, June 26, 1900.

Woodward Institute.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of Woodward Institute, held on Tuesday afternoon, it was voted that "a pupil shall be admitted to the Sixth class only upon presentation of a Principal's certificate of unconditional promotion to the highest grade of grammar school work, as determined by the requirements of the public schools of this city." Also "that admission to the Fifth class be granted to those girls only who present a certificate of unconditional promotion to the High School." Examinations will not be given.

By order of the Board,
Carrie E. Small, Principal.

High School Graduation.

The graduating exercises of the class of 1900 of the Quincy High school will take place this evening at the school hall. Arrangements have been made to accommodate 1200 pupils and friends yet a thousand more would like to go if they could crowd in. The class of 1900 numbers 46, and in the business course there are 41 more. Only five graduates will take individual literary parts. Music will be interspersed and there will be an address by Mr. Henry T. Bailey, agent of the State Board of Education.

Grammar Graduation.

At the High school tomorrow afternoon 311 pupils will be graduated from the ten grammar schools of the city. It is unfortunate that the hall will not accommodate the public generally and relatives and friends of the pupils, but each child could be alloted but two seats for their parents. These with the graduates will reach the limit of the seating capacity of the large hall. Singing, an address, and the presentation of diplomas will be the chief attractions. A list of the graduates will be published in the Daily Ledger.

Church Improvements.

Work building the new entrance to the Water street Presbyterian church is progressing rapidly, and will shortly be completed. It will be a great improvement over that formerly in use. Then a flight of steps on the outside led to a landing from which a door opened directly into the church. Now a door leads from the outside into a covered vestibule from which a short flight of stairs leads to the landing vestibule above.

—St. Mary's Catholic church at Franklin in this county was destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. Loss $30,000.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

DISCONTENT AT CONCORD.

One Prisoner Attempts to Make His Escape and Another Assaults an Officer.

Concord, Mass., June 27.—Carl E. Hatch, an inmate of the Massachusetts reformatory, escaped from that institution Tuesday afternoon, but within two hours he was captured and returned to more secure quarters at the reformatory. He was engaged in repairing the roof of a house outside the walls of the institution, and, in making his escape, secured about five minutes' lead of the officers and proceeded toward a section of wooded land known as Baker's woods. Twenty-five officers and many citizens soon started out to participate in the hunt, and it was nearly an hour before he was located in the woods. Several shots were fired at him before he would stop running, and he was finally captured by Officer Bugney in a meadow. None of the shots took effect, and it is probable he will now be kept in close confinement. He is 19 years of age, and was sentenced in March, 1899, for a term of two years for having counterfeit money in his possession.

This was the second indication of discontent on the part of the inmates during the past few days. On Sunday last, when the prisoners were gathered for the regular Sunday morning service, Frank Banks, colored, struck Officer Payson with a heavy piece of iron and inflicted serious injuries on his face. It is alleged that it was a murderous assault, but the officer succeeded in keeping Banks from striking a second blow. Banks is now in close confinement, and it is probable he will be brought before the court at an early day on complaint of committing the murderous assault.

Poole Talks With the Police.

Boston, June 27.—The police Tuesday had another interview with Harold Poole, the Salem sailor boy, who was found half dead from a triple fracture of the skull, in the woods of Brookline, three weeks ago last Saturday. After a prolonged period of unconsciousness, Poole was able to talk a few days ago, and he gave the police a fragmentary story of the assault, describing as the one who did the deed, a man believed to be George Champion, now in jail at Alfred, Me., charged with a four-fold murder at West Newfield, Me. Yesterday's conversation did not weaken the story told by Poole previously, but, the police say, rather strengthened it. He is unable to talk connectedly, or remember all the incidents connected with his experience, but he knows he was beaten and robbed by a man who promised to get him a job in Milton. It has developed that Poole probably never knew Champion's name. It has never been mentioned to him, neither will it be. Poole will be taken to the Alfred jail when he is fully recovered, and there brought face to face with the man, for the purpose of making an identification.

Croker to Travel by Special Train.

New York, June 27.—The executive committee of Tammany hall Tuesday afternoon settled all the arrangements for the trip to Kansas City of the Tammany delegates. Mr. Croker presided, and was present for the first time since his return from Europe. All the leaders of Tammany except Mr. Sheehan were present. It was decided to send the delegates in two trains. Friday evening a special train will leave with Mr. Croker, ex-United States Senator Murphy, James Shevlin, Leader Muller of the borough of Richmond, Secretary Thomas F. Smith, and Dr. John S. Crosby, Mr. Croker's physician.

SHARKEY IS DEFEATED.

Ruhlin Meets His Wild Rushes and Jabs Him Out.

Victor Surprised Sports by Outclassing Sailor.

The Fight Was a Fast One and Both Men Were Severely Punished.

New York, June 27.—Last night at the Seaside Athletic club Tom Sharkey was knocked out in the 15th round by Gus Ruhlin, the Akron, O., pugilist. Save in the matter of aggressiveness Ruhlin led from the face-off in every feature of the game, and at all times had the fight well in hand. Sharkey did not give up his place in the line of first-class heavyweights without a desperate struggle. No soldier ever gave more desperate battle, no man sinking to unconsciousness ever clung more determinedly to his vitality. Even at the end, when blinded by blows and dulled mentally by the battering of his foe, he clung instinctively to the massive frame of the man who was his master. The decisive battle and the unexpected result were truly a surprise for the sporting public. No line of form that could be figured gave the Ohian more than a 1 to 2 chance. Sharkey had met and at least stood off all of the leading heavyweights now in the ring. He was known to be a giant in strength, courageous to a point beyond discretion, and aggressive. Ruhlin on the other hand had never made a particularly good showing against any man of reputation, and was regarded as a second rater of a pronounced type. Hence there was apathy as to the fight, and while there was some spirited betting, Ruhlin never showed better than 10 to 7, and it was even money that he would not last 10 rounds. The management in fact decided to put the general admission down to $1. There was a big crowd on hand, and they were treated to a rattling good fight, with surprising results.

The finish was dramatic. Sharkey had struggled through the 14th round by desperate effort, and was but little revived when he came up for the 15th. He made a wild try with his left, and when he missed, Ruhlin caught him on the jaw with his left. Ruhlin sprang in and beat the Irishman down to the floor with a volley of punches. The resolute fighter struggled to his feet and when Ruhlin came in clutched him around the waist. Ruhlin shook him off and dropped him again. A thousand men frenzied in their excitement surrounded the ring, and there was a din of horse yells. Sharkey scrambled up again, and then staggered against the ropes. Ruhlin seemed unable to finish him, and that would have been charity. Sharkey went down for a third time, but with dogged determination staggered to his feet. He was blind and unsteady, and a punch put him out. Referee Johnny White stepped in and ended the contest. Sharkey was helpless. Billy Madden sponged into the ring and kissed his protege, and then aided in carrying him from the ring. He was unmarked, while Sharkey bore a number of bruises.

The building was well filled when the preliminary bout was put on. The principals were two local lads, "Itz" Ryan and "Buck" Farley, who were scheduled to go 12 rounds at 120 pounds. Ryan was too much for his opponent, and put him out in the fourth round. This bout was so short that another of six rounds was put on at catchweights between Sam Bolen, colored, and "Kid" Thomas. This went the limit.

When seen in his dressing room, Ruhlin acted like a big child. He said: "Tom's a tough, game fellow and gave me a good fight, but I hadn't any doubt as to the ending. I'm not hurt and feel fine, and whatever Billy says goes with me. If he wants me to fight I'll fight, I don't care who."

Sharkey was much down hearted, but said he had no excuses to make, but was willing to meet his conqueror again and had $10,000 to wager that there would be a different result on their next meeting.

Robbed the Wild West Show.

New Haven, June 27.—Starr L. Pixley, a ticket taker with the Buffalo Bill Wild West show; Herman J. Leonard and George W. Monell, two ticket scalpers, traveling with the show, were arrested here late last evening, charged with conspiracy. It is alleged that Pixley, who claims to be a brother of the late Annie Pixley, the actress, has been pocketing tickets and turning them over to Leonard and Monell to dispose of, and that his stealings have amounted to at least a few thousand dollars.

BREAKING UP IN SMALL BODIES.

Boers Resorting to Guerilla Operations and Harrassing the British.

London, June 27.—The Boer commandoes in the eastern part of the Orange River Colony appear to have been broken up by their leaders for the time into small parties that harass large columns of the British, incessantly cutting off scouts, sniping pickets, making a show of force here and there, and bewildering the slow moving bodies. Commandant Christian De Wet, General Steyn's principal commander, is the genius of these guerilla operations. He is the hero on the Boer side in these last days of hostilities.

Lord Roberts' columns are steadily contracting the circle of their advance.

Transvaal officials who were interviewed yesterday at Machadodorp by a correspondent of The Daily Express asserted an intention to hold out to the last. President Kruger will probably retire to Watervalconder or Nelspruit. His physician thinks his condition of health will not allow him to go to the high veldt.

The British prisoners at Nooitgedacht are now more comfortable. Large quantities of food and blankets have been forwarded to them and their enclosure is lighted by electricity.

Commandant General Botha is uncommonly active east of Pretoria. The Canadians are doing splendid outpost duty.

On the Diamond.

Boston, June 27.—Bernhardt went in for Philadelphia again yesterday, and was batted hard and often by Boston. Lewis, though wild, was effective, except in one inning, when an error, a base on balls and four hits, scored five runs for Philadelphia.

Yale lost her class day game, Tuesday afternoon, at New Haven, to Harvard, the score being 3 to 0. The game up to the seventh inning was not featured sufficiently to keep the interest of the spectators. It was pretty much a pitchers' battle up to that point, both Robinson for Yale and Stillman for Harvard being in good condition, and had their deliveries well under control.

Dresser Tenders on Strike.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 27.—Fifteen dresser tenders employed by the Blodgett & Oswell company, thread finishers, struck Tuesday afternoon, because of the employment of a non-union dresser to fill a vacancy in one of the rooms. A committee waited upon Mr. Oswell, who informed them, it is said, that he proposed to run his business without dictation from the union. A general meeting of the union, to which the strikers belong, will be held today. At a general meeting of the Lorraine mills' striking weavers last night, addresses were made by Charles Kroll, John McQuigger and Thomas McDermott, representing the Socialist Trade and Labor alliance, which has been backing the strikers in their fight. It was stated that no compromise had been arranged, and that the end of the strike was as far off as ever. It was voted to continue the strike indefinitely.

Will Pledge 1.000.000 Voters.

Chicago, June 27.—The Record today says: It developed that the Prohibitionists of the United States expect to go before the Democratic national convention at Kansas City on July 4 with a list of 1,000,000 voters pledged to support W. J. Bryan if the Democratic party will adopt a Prohibition plank in its platform. The advocates of this movement do not expect the Democrats to favor such a plank, but they believe and insist that it will be the entering wedge which will finally split one or the other of the two great parties and build up on the ruins the foundation of a new party.

A Unique Outing at Paris.

Paris, June 27.—The national commissioners to the Paris exposition, with their families, the California state commissioner, many other Californians, and a number of invited guests, a party of 100 in all, had a unique outing Tuesday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. De Young of San Francisco. They were taken by special train to a popular resort, about eight miles from Paris, where the dining rooms are located in the tops of trees and overlook a valley.

Brakeman Killed.

Salem, Mass., June 27.—As a train from Newburyport was coming through the Salem freight yard Tuesday afternoon, William S. Porter, a brakeman on a yard shifter, stepped in front of it and was struck by the engine. He was thrown several feet, receiving numerous fractures of limbs and internal injuries, from which he died last night. He leaves a wife and two children.

Degree For American Bishop.

London, June 27.—Bishop Doane of Albany goes to Dublin today. Previous to sailing for home he will receive the honorary degree of D. D. from Trinity college, which is regarded as even a higher distinction than similar honors from Oxford and Cambridge, which he has already received.

A STORY OF WEBSTER

HE WANTED SOME MARINE INFORMATION, AND HE GOT IT.

The Great Daniel Posed the Skipper of a Boston Schooner as an Expert Witness and One of the Ablest Sea Captains Out of That Port.

Old Boston schoolboys of a couple of generations ago realize that no greater change has taken place in Boston than on the wharfs, which in 1840 were all open, with no sheds built on them as at the present time. Vessels in the East India trade were docked at India wharf. W. F. Weld & Co. had their ships docked at Central wharf, Lombard's and Hemenway & Co.'s ships were at Commercial wharf. Long wharf was lined with vessels in the coasting trade. They had large canvas signs attached to the yards stating the port hailed from and the port they wanted freight for.

At that time there were no steamships, and all transportation was done by sailing craft. For instance, a sign would read, "The schooner Eagle, Captain Smith, will sail on Saturday for Bath, Gardiner and Hallowell." The wharfs were a favorite resort with the boys Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. At that time school kept Wednesday and Saturday mornings, and we had the afternoons for vacation. In the morning, after school, we would decide where we would spend the afternoon, and it was generally on the wharfs. Five out of ten boys went to sea after leaving school.

At the head of Long wharf, where the State street block now stands, was an old hulk of a vessel with a house built on its deck. It was fastened to the dock, and this was used by the Hingham Bucket company for a storehouse. On the side of the house was a sign, "Hingham Station Packet." It was a standing joke with us to ask the man who had charge of it if he was the captain and when he was going to sail, as we wanted to ship before the mast.

It was a favorite amusement with the boys to climb up the rigging of ships and "stump" one another as to who would climb the highest. There was one of these boys who could beat us all in climbing. We nicknamed him "Monkey Jack." On one of the ships the downhaul of the signal halyards broke short up to the flag at the truck. The captain, pointing to the flag, said, "I will give any boy that will bring that flag on deck a ninepence." We all started up the shrouds, but "Monkey Jack" was up to the royals before we got to the yardarm. When he left school, he went to sea and became master of one of the largest clipper ships that sailed out of Boston.

Captain Mahan of Long wharf had a fine schooner yacht in which he took parties down the harbor. He often invited the boys to take a sail with him. I remember once he told us a story about Daniel Webster, as follows: "About 5 o'clock in the morning I was on deck putting the boat in shipshape order and swabbing up the deck. I was going to take a party down sailing that day. It was raining quite hard. There was an old fellow standing on the wharf with an old cloak and slouched hat on under a large cotton umbrella. He hailed me, asked if I was the captain and said he would like to come aboard. I supposed he was some old farmer from the country who had never seen salt water before, so I said: 'Certainly. Come right aboard.' He looked over the boat a spell and after awhile came up to where I was and said, 'Captain, if you were sailing a ship down the harbor and another ship was coming up and the wind was northeast, which side would you sail of the ship that you were going to meet?' I said, 'I would put the helm hard to port and go to the windward.' He seemed to understand and asked me a great many questions. I thought he was taking up a good deal of my time and answered him rather short. He thanked me for the information I had given him and bade me goodby.

"I had forgotten all about the old country man, when one day, about a fortnight afterward, a constable came aboard and asked to see Captain Mahan, stating that I must appear in court the next day at 10 o'clock as a witness. I could not think for the life of me of any case in court that I knew anything about. You can judge my surprise when I saw Daniel Webster and recognized him as my old friend that asked so many questions. He was laying down the law to the court in great shape, using all the nautical terms in Bowditch's Navigator, and to hear him talk, boys, you'd thought he'd been to sea all his life.

"It appeared that there had been a collision in the harbor, and the owners were settling which ship was to blame in court. Webster was counsel for one of the merchants. He introduced me to the court as Captain Mahan, one of the ablest sea captains that sailed out of Boston. Well, boys, you better believe that I turned red as a lobster, as I was only a skipper of a schooner. I answered all the questions Mr. Webster asked me in regard to sailing a ship under certain circumstances."

One of the boys said, "Well, captain, who beat?"

"Why, Daniel Webster, of course!"—Boston Transcript.

Thermometer a Nursery Requisite.

A thermometer is almost indispensable in the nursery. It should, if possible, hang in the middle of the room, away from the door, window, wall and fireplace, where the mercury may be affected by the draft. If the room where the baby is obliged to sleep is very hot in the middle of the day or at night, hang a wet sheet over the window and leave the door open. Sprinkle the sheet as it dries with a whisk broom that has been dipped in cold water.—Ladies' Home Journal.

LIGHTNING'S PRANKS.

Several Persons Struck and Killed In Yesterday's Electrical Storm.

Railroad Station at Berlin Destroyed by Fire.

A Lightning Bolt Kills Two Boys In Manchester, N. H.

New Haven, June 28.—According to reports received here from different sections of the state Wednesday, the thunder storm that prevailed was an exceedingly severe one. In some cases hail accompanied the electrical storm. A number of residences were struck, and considerable damage was done by the hail to growing crops. But one fatality is reported, however, Francis F. Wall, 18 years of age, being struck by lightning after he had taken refuge under the grandstand at the driving park in Hartford. The railroad station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company at Berlin was also struck by lightning and destroyed by fire, causing an estimated loss of $10,000. This is the third time within a few years that the station has been burned. At Danbury the lightning, after striking a residence, traversed along a sewer pipe, upwards of 200 feet, until it came to the city water main, which was burst, necessitating shutting off the water supply in that section of the city.

Struck by Lightning.

Weston, Mass., June 28.—During a severe thunderstorm, between 4:30 and 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, an Italian, who sought shelter under a tree was killed, and Stephen Connelly, who drove his horse under the same tree for protection from the rain, was knocked senseless, and severely burned about the head and breast. A few moments later another bolt struck the barn of D. L. Dammon, on Wellesley street,; and it was burned, together with a quantity of provisions, causing a loss of $5000. The horses and carriages were saved. The Italian, whose name is unknown, was employed by a Boston contractor. He had just left a provision store in Central avenue when the storm began, and sought shelter under a large tree. A little later, Connelly, employed by the Buttrick Lumber company, drove under the same tree. The flash which killed the Italian rendered Connelly unconscious for over an hour, and knocked down the horse he drove.

Lightning Plays Havoc In Maine.

Waterville, Me., June 28.—The severest electric storm that has visited this section for many years occurred yesterday afternoon. Three storms appeared to centre over this section, the period being more than one hour. Lightning struck in 16 places in this city, three places in Fairfield, five places in North Sidney, three places in Winslow and one place in Vassalboro. As far as heard from there has been no considerable loss, as none of the buildings struck took fire. In this city a bolt entered the house of Fred Pooler, on Gold street, smashing a mirror in such a manner as to throw glass over the inmates of the room, injuring a woman and a man. John Fitzgerald of North Sidney was felled in the field, and has not recovered. A flock of sheep was killed in Oakland.

Two Boys Killed In Manchester.

Manchester, N. H., June 28.—During a brief but fierce shower, a lightning bolt killed two boys here Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock and seriously injured one other. The victims were Whittier Williams, aged 7 years; James Murphy, aged about 10, and Clair West Pettis, aged 6. The two former were instantly killed, but it is thought the latter will recover. The boys were playing in a one-horse dumpcart under a grape arbor at the late General Charles Williams' place during a shower. The bolt struck the Williams boy in the back of the neck and the Murphy boy showed marks of the fluid on the side of his neck. The Pettis boy was the most severely burned, but is now resting comfortably.

Much Damage Done In Belfast.

Belfast, Me., June 28.—The heaviest thunder storm for years passed over this city Wednesday afternoon and lightning struck in many places, including the foretopmast of the schooner Anna Lord Kimball, a chimney in the house of Amasa Heal, a barn owned by Henry Davidson, the house of Captain Thomas Bartlett and a large tree beside the house of Frank Coombs. The rain fall was very heavy and the roads were badly washed.

Life-Size Statue of Admiral Semmes.

Mobile, Ala., June 28.—A bronze statue, life size, of Raphael Semmes, late admiral in the Confederate navy, was unveiled last evening in Duncan Place, at the intersection of Royal street. The principal address was by William J. Sanford. Democratic nominee for governor of the state.

Two Men Killed by Explosion.

Farmingdale, N. J., June 28.—Joseph S. Chamberlain and Walter Reynolds were blown to pieces yesterday while handling dynamite. They were spreading some of the spoiled explosive on the ground as a fertilizer, when the stuff was detonated.

THE BOERS ARE BUSY.

Generals Botha and De Wet Determined Not to Surrender.

London, June 28.—General Sir Leslie Rundle had a sharp artillery and rifle skirmish near Senekal Friday with a large force of entrenched Boers. He declined to attack them. This is the only fresh fighting reported.

The Boer outposts northeast of Pretoria are busy. The telegraph wires between Standerton and Newcastle were cut Sunday and Sir Redvers Buller had to resort to heliograph.

Commandant De Wet, with 3000 men and three guns, is moving northeast in the Orange River Colony. It is understood that he and Commandant General Botha entered into a compact that neither would surrender so long as the other was in the field.

Twelve thousand rifles, all told, have been surrendered to the British.

President Kruger is still at Machadodorp.

The exposures regarding the hospitals in South Africa have made a great sensation in England. They began with three columns of restrained language in The Times yesterday from W. A. Burdett-Coutts, Conservative member of parliament for Westminster. His disclosures have been widely reproduced; and they are supplemented this morning with denunciatory telegrams and interviews from survivors and army medical men.

A news agency dispatch from Cape Town says: "Certain revelations point to malfeasance in connection with the supplies of comforts for the sick and wounded."

The Daily Express refers to the "springless, out of date ambulances" of the British and contends that the Boer ambulances are notoriously superior. Princess Christian publicly asks for volunteer nurses.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says that Lord Roberts will reply fully to the charges of Mr. Burdett-Coutts. Frederick Treves, consulting surgeon to the London hospital, who was recently at the front, says the charges came to him as an absolute shock and are quite incredible. He praises the medical department.

The Lourenzo Marques correspondent of The Times, telegraphing yesterday, says: According to Transvaal advices the Boers are entrenching in considerable force in the Middleburg hills. The Irish, Hollander and Italian corps are getting uncontrollable. They are looting stores and farmhouses.

Bar gold is a drug in the local market, owing to a suspicion that it is of an inferior quality. A large quantity of stolen gold is waiting to be smuggled out of the Transvaal.

LEGATIONS ASKED TO LEAVE.

Admiral Seymour Reported to Have Been Relieved In Nick of Time.

Already 13,000 Japanese and 7,000 Others Have Been Landed.

London, June 28.—Several thousand Japanese have left Taku for Tien Tsin, and altogether 13,000 Japanese have landed. The international troops now aggregate nearly 20,000, and Japan is prepared to send 20,000 more with American, British and other troops ordered to go. Probably 60,000 men will be available in a month.

The 2000 men who raised the investment of Tien Tsin and pushed on to help Admiral Seymour has probably saved him; but the news has not yet reached Che Foo, the nearest wire point. The last steamer arriving at Che Foo from Taku brought this message, dated Tien Tsin, Monday, June 25:

"The Russian general in command of the relief force has decided, in view of Saturday's heavy fighting and marching, that one day's rest for the troops was essential, and that the advance should not be resumed until today.

Meanwhile came Admiral Seymour's heliograph that his position was desperate, and that he could only hold out two days. The relief started at dawn today (Monday). Saturday's fighting began at daybreak. The allied forces opened with seven of the Terrible's 4.7 naval guns, six field guns and numerous machine guns, the firing being at long range. They continued to advance steadily, the Chinese artillery replying. The guns of the allies were more skilfully handled and put the guns of the Chinese out of action one by one, the Chinese retreating about noon. There was keen rivalry among the representatives of the various nations as to which should enter Tien Tsin first; and the Americans and British went in neck and neck. The Russians stormed the arsenal, thereby sustaining the largest losses.

The Tong Shang refugees and the foreign engineers at Che Foo estimate the Chinese troops now in the field as 25,000 drilled troops at Lutai, 25,000 at Shanghai Wan, 15,000 driven off from Tien Tsin and 150,000 at Pekin.

The dispatch received by the foreign office stating that the foreign legations were requested to leave Pekin within a specified time is interpreted in some unofficial quarters as tantamount to giving the ministers their passports and to a declaration of war; but as China does nothing like other countries the official opinion is that there is nothing to do but to await the course of events and to see what the ministers themselves say when they are rescued.

All the students at the foreign hospitals in Canton are leaving. Women missionaries are returning from the west river ports. There was a slight disturbance at Wochou Tuesday while the women were embarking. The crowd shouted, "Kill the foreign devils."

According to advices from Shanghai the Chinese officials, by direction of the southern viceroys, are asking the consuls to agree to conditions "ensuring," as the Chinese say, "the neutrality of Shanghai and other coast cities." They are also asking that foreign warships shall not sail or anchor near the forts, nor go to ports where there are no warships now; that their crews shall not go ashore, and that the protection of foreigners be left to the Chinese authorities. These conditions are considered at Shanghai to be virtually an ultimatum from Viceroys Liu Kung Yih and Chang Chih Tung. The consuls desire a sufficient naval and military force to back up their refusal to comply with these demands. The total naval force there now consists of 969 men, with 32 guns. The Chinese have 6000 men, with six guns, in the forts, and 10,000 men outside Shanghai with modern rifles and machine guns.

The magnitude of the arrangements Japan is making suggests provision against contingencies other than the suppression of the present disturbance in China. She has chartered 19 additional transports and now has 35 in all.

Washington, June 28.—The developments of the day respecting China were important and interesting. The Chinese minister's report of the departure of the foreign ministers and their guards from Pekin greatly relieved the officials here, who took it as the first tangible evidence that the imperial government had a full realization of the enormity of permitting the ministers to come to personal harm, and were thus undertaking as far as lay in their power to observe the amenities of international exchange.

The keenest interest is shown by the officials to learn the conditions under which the ministers left Pekin. Minister Wu's dispatch was ominously silent on that point, and though the minister himself maintains almost obstinately his confidence in the non-existence of a state of war, it is generally admitted that it will be difficult to accept his conclusion if it shall transpire that the Pekin government itself has sent the ministers away with their passports, or what may come to the same thing with a guard as safe conduct.

While Scruggs lay dying, Hillpot, with smoking pistol still in hand, fell to the ground. A bullet had entered his chest. He cannot recover, the doctors say.

Trouble at a Flag Raising.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 28.—What threatened to be a serious disturbance at a flag raising of a local Republican club Wednesday night was averted by the calling in of police officers. ☞You must expect much that you teach to pass out of the child's mind. This is the chief reason why you should teach many things, and why you should not be severe on the child when you discover the evanescent character of your teachings.—Journal of Education.

☞All of our contemporaries that we have seen yet on this subject tell us that the fighting with the Chinese "can have but one result when it really begins." Probably this is true, but some of these newspapers assume an altogether too light tone in talking about the affair. War with China is very far from being a joke or a mere excursion for the marines or the soldiers or the sailors engaged. It is going to be a hard, villanous war against swarming millions of fanatics, who will immensely outnumber the forces landed to fight them. These fanatics are not going to be easily or readily overcome, and the people ought to realize this fact and understand that, although we are not eager for war, the fact must be faced that the United States must either fight or retire absolutely from China and leave its citizens who are there at the mercy of the Chinese, to be helped by the other nations or left to die.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The usual "statistics" of crime are notoriously defective, but are nevertheless made the basis of comparisons which receive attention. Thus a recent writer in a New York journal figured out that the population of this city was more moral than that of Massachusetts, because more arrests were made there than here. The absurdity of this conclusion appears when we reflect that in Massachusetts public drunkenness is a punishable offense, without regard to accompanying disorder or breach of the peace. According to the figures given by Herbert Ward, in the Independent, there were about 100,000 arrests in Massachusetts during the year 1898, and nearly 63,000 were for drunkenness alone. Under the probation law which is now in very effective operation in that state 53,000 of these cases were referred to the probation officers in order to determine the correctness of the stories told by the prisoners, and in more than 45,000 cases these stories were found to be correct. About one-half of those arrested for drunkenness were discharged without other punishment. The number of arrests, therefore, may signify that public order is assiduously maintained, rather than any exceptional prevalence of crime. It it to be feared that if all those who got drunk in the city of New York were to be arrested, our statistics of crime would be such as to draw forth alarming reflections from all the moralists of the country.—New York Evening Post.

THE CLASS OF 1900.

Quincy High School Graduates 87 This Year.

Henry T. Bailey of State Board of Education Addresses the Classes.

Diplomas Presented by Chairman Porter of the School Committee.

"Rapiamus occasionem de die" is the motto of the Class of 1900 of the Quincy High school, and those who attended the graduation exercises on Wednesday evening realized that they must be on hand at the appointed hour, if they would keep pace with Mr. Harper's first class. Promptly at 7.45 the program commened and there were no dull moments. The motto was displayed over the platform in the class colors, gold and black. Flowers and mountain laurel were used for decoration. The assemblage filled the large study hall and adjoining class rooms to overflowing, the standing room as well as the seating capacity.

The program:

Music—The Three Knights, Howard-McLean
High School Chorus.
Director of Music—Miss Madeleine Fish.
Accompanist—Miss Mary Hunt, '01.

The individual parts showed study and familiarity with the world at large and events of today, and were bright and interesting. The musical numbers were of a high standard ard the boys improving each year in the singing; of course the young ladies as well—they always do.

Mr. Bailey of the State Board was the speaker. After making the Class of 100 hang their heads for having adopted such a motto and such class colors, he finally rallied to the support, and the ending was satisfactory to all.

The words taken individually, as translated by him, were, certainly, not very appropriate for a class motto, but with a liberal translation like "Take the opportunity each day," or "My friends, let us improve each day's opportunity," and it will be seen that the motto of 1900 has few equals.

Mr. Bailey said there is always opportunity for the building of great character. He urged each graduate to have an ideal in some person of 60 or 70 years of age, and strive to become like her or him. Seize every day the opportunity to progress.

Chairman Porter would have the graduates manly and womanly, courageous and truthful. After presenting the diplomas, he complimented the young men on their singing and urged them to cultivate it.

For Superintendent.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is with regret we learn we are to lose Mr. Albert Candlin, the master of the Willard school, whose services have been so efficient and eminently satisfatory to committee as well as parents, and we sincerely wish that we might retain him as superintendent of the schools of Quincy.

He is a man of college and normal training. He has been a superintendent of schools and a high school teacher. He knows every branch of his profession, and what is to be expected from teacher and pupil, from the primary through the high school. His four years' work in the Willard school, which is the largest in the city, has made him well acquainted with the workings of our system.

Mr. Candlin is a man of excellent qualifiations, not only as far as education is concerned, but he is a teacher in the highest and truest sense of the word. He has rare executive ability and keen judgment.

Many of our prominent men consider him as a particularly able man, and if Mr. Candlin may be secured as our superintendent, Quincy schools will continue to be indicative of success and progress, in as marked a degree as formerly. Citizen.

Quincy, June 28, 1900.

Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.

Weavers Still on Strike.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 28.—A rather stormy session of the striking weavers of the Lorraine mill was held Wednesday evening, the women insisting that a vote be taken on the question of continuing the strike. Finally, however, the recommendation of the executive committee that action be postponed until Sunday and another meeting be held then was adopted. The strike has now lasted 11 weeks, and the company claim that 500 looms out of 1196 are in operation. A meeting of the Dresser Tenders' union was held last night and a committee of three appointed to confer with the management of the Blodgett & Oswell thread mill, where the dresser tenders, without the sanction of the union, went out on strike Tuesday on account of the employment by the company of a non-union dresser tender. It is hoped this conference can be held today, and if so another meeting will be held tonight to determine whether the union will sanction the strike.

India's Awful Famine.

London, June 28.—Louis Klopsch, proprietor of The Christian Herald, of New York, after spending a week in Paris, on his way home from India, sailed for New York from Plymouth Tuesday. In an interview Mr. Klopsch said the mortality during the wet season in India which was just commencing must assume stupendous proportions. Unless 20,000,000 blankets are quickly provided, the monsoon, India's greatest blessing, will prove appallingly disastrous, and the mortality will exceed 2,000,000. He further asserts that 90 percent of the cattle in the richest farming districts have perished. One of his last acts in India was to buy 100,000 blankets for the sufferers.

Also that the transport Burnside sailed from Cienfuegos at 6 a. m. Tuesday with 51 male and 67 female teachers, and the Crook left Matanzas at 2 p. m. Tuesday with 205 male teachers. Major Sawyer will have full charge of the transports while here and will arrange for their berthing, etc.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Their National Convention Convened In Chicago Yesterday.

They Make the Liquor Traffic Their Only Issue.

Croker, Sulzer and Murphy to Confer With Mr Bryan at His Home.

Chicago, June 28.—The national convention of the Prohibition party met yesterday in three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, cleared up all business, except the nominations for president and vice president, which will be made today. The convention in point of numbers and in enthusiasm shown, is considered one of the greatest ever held by the advocates of cold water.

The party will make its national campaign this year upon a platform of a single issue, the liquor traffic, all other issues being subordinated to this one question.

Upon this platform it is probable that either Rev. S. O. Swallow, the "fighting parson" of Harrisburg, Pa., or John G. Woolley of Chicago, editor of the "New Voice," the Prohibition national organ, will be nominated for president.

A somewhat heated debate took place at the meeting of the committee on resolutions relative to the instructions to be given the sub-committee on platform.

A resolution was finally passed to the effect that it was the sense of the committee that the platform should have "no plank that did not touch upon the liquor question." This was regarded in the nature of a compromise.

At the afternoon session Samuel Dickie of Michigan was elected permanent chairman, and Colonel R. S. Cheves of Tennessee permanent secretary.

The New England delegates are:

Connecticut—F. G. Platt, New Steel.

Massachusetts—F. M. Forbush, H. S. Morley.

New Hampshire—H. G. Jackson, L. E. Richardson.

Rhode Island—H. B. Metcalf, Smith Quimby.

Vermont—C. W. Wyman, H. T. Cornings.

When the evening session was called to order the committee on platform was still debating over unsettled points, and it was not until after 9 o'clock that the platform appeared.

In the meantime the delegates listened to speeches and campaign songs.

The platform was created by Secretary Hopkins of the resolutions committee. It was entirely devoted to the consideration of the liquor question, defining the party and arraigning the opposition parties. The third plank arraigns President McKinley in these words:

"As a wine drinker at public banquets, and as a wine-serving host at the White House, he has done more to encourage the liquor business, to demoralize the temperance habits of young men, and to bring Christian practices and requirements into disrepute than any other president this republic has had."

The president is also attacked on the canteen question.

The platform was received with the wildest enthusiasm. Every sentence in condemnation of President McKinley was greeted with shouts of approval and cries of "Hit him again," the delegates standing on their chairs and yelling themselves hoarse.

"I have another resolution, recommended to the committee on resolutions," said Mr. Hopkins. He then read the following:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that the right of the ballot shall not be denied any citizen on account of sex."

It was evident that leaving the woman's suffrage plank out of the platform was distasteful to many delegates, and when Mrs. Beauchamp, president of the W. C. T. U. of Kentucky, took the platform to advocate an equal suffrage plank, she was wildly applauded. A picture of Frances E. Willard, which hung over the speaker's stand, had fallen down during the afternoon recess. It had not been replaced. Mrs. Beauchamp referred to its "removal," and in an instant a very respectable row was on.

"I protest against such shameful insinuations; it fell down," yelled one excited delegate.

"Put it up again," shouted another. It was hung up behind the speaker's desk, but this did not satisfy the delegates and the convention did not become quiet until the portrait had been hung from the gallery. After considerable discussion, a rising vote was called for, and the platform and additional resolution favoring woman's suffrage were adopted by a practically unanimous vote, amid a tempest of cheers. Some delegate started "Blessed be the ties that bind," and the whole assemblage joined in a thunderous song of praise to the Almighty, even the throngs in the hall taking up the old hymn. The convention then adjourned until 9:30 this morning.

Croker to See Bryan.

Kansas City, June 28.—Congressman William Sulzer, who is being boomed for vice president on the Democratic ticket, Richard Croker and ex-Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., of New York, will have a conference at Lincoln, Neb., with W. J. Bryan, before they come to Kansas City to attend the national convention. Mr. Sulzer hopes to be on the ticket with Mr. Bryan, and it is said the latter expressed a desire to confer with him.

The city is beginning to take on a gala appearance in anticipation of an early arrival of delegates. A good-sized contingent of eastern newspaper reporters has already arrived, but a general inflow of people is not expected till Friday. Ex-Governor W. J. Stone, national committeeman from Missouri and vice president of the national committee, is expected Friday night. On Monday the New England delegates, from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, with G. F. Williams of Massachusetts, their vice presidential candidate, will reach the city.

The greatest rush of delegations will be on Tuesday. A convention innovation, the reading of the Declaration of Independence from the platform, will be introduced at the first session on July 4, and according to the present program the music and decorations of that day will be selected with a particular idea of commemorating the national holiday.

The badges for the delegates have been received. There is an oxidized silver bar for the pin, below which hangs a silk flag about four inches long. To the flag is attached a medallion of gold and oxidized silver.

Maine Republican Convention.

Bangor, Me., June 28.—The Republican state convention here Wednesday nominated Dr. J. E. Hill of Augusta for governor by acclamation by a rising vote, his name being presented by H. M. Heath of Augusta, and the nomination seconded by H. E. Hamlin of Ellsworth and Congressman Allen of the Fifth district. A platform was adopted endorsing the national administration and reaffirming all the leading tenets of the Republican faith. Senator Frye presided, and speeches were made by Mr. Frye, Senator Hale, Congressman Littlefield, Congressman Allen and others.

Trying to Prove an Alibi.

Providence, June 28.—In the trial of Luther Williams Wednesday afternoon his landlady and a waitress at his boarding house asserted that he was there during the Sunday the assault was committed, thus making a strong point for the alibi he is endeavoring to prove.

Killed by Express Train.

Hartford, June 28.—Thomas Mitchell, 22 years old, single, was struck and instantly killed by the Springfield local express to New Haven at 10 o'clock last night, near the Broad street bridge. The body was run over by another train before being discovered. Mitchell was employed at the Union station.

Chicago, June 28.—Four persons lost their lives yesterday through the heat, and five were prostrated while on the streets or at work. The mercury reached 91 on the street level. In the government office the thermometer touched 88.

Shot by Non-Union Man.

Chicago, June 27.—James Walsh, who arrived from Philadelphia several days ago, was shot and killed yesterday by John McPherson, a non-union iron worker.

NEVIL'S UNCLE JERRY.

I am the junior partner in a firm of lawyers. One morning one of my clerks, Nevil by name, came into my office with some letters for signature, and I was struck with his woeful appearance, and it was rather natural that I should ask what was the matter with him.

"A dreadful and shameful 'oax has been played on me, Mr. 'Opkinson, sir," he said. Nevil was always erratic with his h's when "put out."

"Sit down, my man, and tell me all about it," I said, for, much as I disliked the man, I could not help feeling sorry for him, so distressed did he seem.

"You know," he continued, "that we have always looked forward to Uncle Jerry leaving some of his wealth to us or the children when the end came."

"Well, Nevil," I interrupted, "has he died?"

"No, sir; worse than that. I am afraid I would not be so cut up about that, but he has played such a dirty trick on me and mine that I am as much disgusted as disappointed."

As I saw he was bursting to tell me his sorrows, I told him to proceed with the story of his wrongs.

"You must know that Uncle Jerry last Christmas, as was his usual custom, invited all his poor relations to dine with him. I don't mean all our children, as well as the 'grown ups;' no, he did not like children well enough for that, even if his house could have held them, which it could not. No; only the parents, and there were enough of them to crowd a good sized table.

"After a satisfactory but plain dinner we disposed ourselves in little groups, some at cards and others to chat. The night passed smoothly, excepting that two cousins got excited in a political argument. These evenings wound up with a doch an doris, or speech, from our host, and then, after singing 'Auld Lang Syne,' we would separate. The speech last Christmas was a memorable one, and I remember each word burned itself into my memory as it fell from Uncle Jerry's lips.

"'My dear relatives,' he commenced, 'you will be sorry to learn, as I am to announce it, that this gathering, which it has been my pleasure as well as my duty to hold at this season of good will toward all men, is to be the last.

"'Yes, the last, I grieve to repeat. You are all, I think, aware of the sudden collapse of the company which promised to be one of the greatest and most successful undertakings of modern times. I will be brief, as the subject is to me a painful one. In that company I was foolish enough to invest my money, not so much for myself as for the benefits I could bestow upon my kith and kin. That dream has ended—as dreams do—suddenly. My riches have taken to themselves wings. I remember with pleasure the many professions of affection from you all—yes, all—without a single exception.'

"The assembled relations gasped with astonishment at the first few sentences, but before Uncle Jerry concluded his speech—and he was in no hurry, I assure you—they had recovered themselves sufficiently to applaud in the right places and to utter the usual platitudes at the end.

"'Auld Lang Syne' was sung rather hurriedly, and we drew a long breath of relief when we were outside the house. A small indignation meeting was held around the corner, but, hot as we were in indignation, the weather was too cold for outside declamation, so it was broken up as a futile waste of energy, and we dispersed to our respective homes.

"'As to myself,' continued Nevil, "I was as mad as any of them, but as my wife and I were walking along our street I was suddenly struck with the notion that it might be a 'plant.' You see, sir, I am a great reader, and in novels and those short stories which one reads in the evening papers rich old uncles have a habit of springing these surprises on their poor relations at such festive gatherings in order to test the genuineness of their professed affection."

I remarked that I had read of such tests.

"Well, sir, I stopped and danced on the pavement until my wife caught hold of my arm and said: 'Sam, are you drunk or mad? You'll have a crowd round us in a minute.'

"'Mad, Sally! Not I! I see through the artful old hypocrite's dodge. It's the old, old joke.' And I explained matters to her.

"The upshot was that I farmed Uncle Jerry for all I was worth, and more, for I had to borrow money to cover increased expenditure. I first had him to stay with us at Brixton, and then took him as part of the family to Margate when we went for our holiday, paying all his expenses and keeping him supplied with tobacco, and he smokes no small amount.

"Well, this went on for some time, and, although the others knew what I was doing, not a soul stepped forward to help the old man. Not that I cared, for I quietly chuckled at having outwitted them.

"Under proper circumstances—that is, according to novelists and story writers—I should have been rewarded by a handsome check and ultimately been his sole heir when he died, but no such luck for me.

"Suddenly one morning about a month ago Uncle Jerry said he was going to town, where he intended to take cheap lodgings and look for some work. From that day to this I have never seen him, much as I have tried.

"Today the final blow has been dealt to me. I read in this morning's paper of the marriage of Jeremiah Joskins to Susan Hobbs. No cards. No cake. No presents. Susan Hobbs is a buxom wench about 25 or 30 and is certain to have a squad of children."

Poor Nevil! I could not help laughing at him, for all he looked such a picture of misery, but Uncle Jerry was indeed a wise man, for he cleared away his relations at one swoop. Later, however, he had the good taste to send a check for £500 for Nevil's out of pocket expenses and as a solatium for any moral or intellectual damage sustained.—London Leader.

MURDER NO CRIME.

Cuban Policeman Who Kills an American Is Acquitted by the Court.

Havana, June 28.—A Cuban policeman who recently killed an American named Welsh, and against whom the evidence was apparently complete in the opinion of army officers and others who saw the whole affair, has just been acquitted by the judges in circumstances so extraordinary that Governor General Wood will order an investigation. The fiscal said the case had been completely proved and he demanded a sentence of 14 years.

Americans in Havana are very indignant over what they claim is a studied attempt to show the Cubans that it is no crime to kill an American. They refer to a case occurring some months ago, when a Cuban editor killed Mr. Smith, the American collector of customs at Gibara. On the trial the fiscal said he rose with regret to request the punishment of a Cuban for killing one of the "interventors," an act which, in his opinion, was scarcely a crime.

Sullivan Arrested For Assault.

New York, June 28.—John L. Sullivan, the old-time pugilist, was held in $500 bail by Magistrate Deuel in the Jefferson Market court yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault preferred by George H. Snyder. Sullivan had a big gash in his head, and Snyder had bruises on his face. Sullivan is manager of a saloon in Broadway, and gets a percentage of the profits. Snyder claims to be secretary of the company employing Sullivan, and says Sullivan has been drinking a good deal of late, and that he has driven many customers away from the saloon. He had given orders not to let Sullivan have any drinks at the bar. Applying for a warrant for Sullivan, he got it. When the pugilist was shut in a room at the station he cried and roared like a bull, and the doors leading to the court room had to be closed. He refused to come out with the other prisoners, and was arraigned alone. He called Snyder names and tried to hit him in the court room.

Favor Study of Dead Languages.

Philadelphia, June 28.—Yesterday's session of the convention of Roman Catholic priests and educators was devoted to a discussion of the routine workings of seminaries. As the consensus of opinion favored the retention of Latin as the language of the church, so the trend of opinion was strongly in favor of continuing to make a knowledge of Greek and Hebrew obligatory. Throughout the conferences it has been seen that the instructors of the Catholic church are not in sympathy with what is sometimes called the modern and advanced theory of education, which has been steadily away from the study of dead languages.

The Bridal Feast

Is not infrequently followed by a long, lenten period of enforced fasting and fleshly mortification. The cheek grows hollow, the eyes are dull and deep ringed, and the step is slow and languid. There is an "all dragged-out feeling," which makes life an utter burden. The great functional changes which follow marriage are not usually anticipated, or the wifely suffering might be avoided.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best friend of weak and sickly women. It cures the womanly diseases that rob the eye of brightness and the step of lightness. It tones up the system and establishes the womanly organism on a basis of sound health.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotics. Accept no substitute. There is no other medicine "just as good" for weak and sickly women.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Goss, Wayne Co., Ky. "Could not do my work part of the time. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

Young married women will find a lasting friend in Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. It contains 1008 pages and is sent free (in paper cover), on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Cloth binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

John G. Woolley of Illinois Is Their Candidate For the Presidency.

Rev. Silas C. Swallow Withdrew From the Contest.

H. B. Metcalf of Rhode Island Secures the Nomination For Vice President.

Chicago, June 29.—After the Prohibition convention had nominated John G. Woolley of Illinois for president, and Henry B. Metcalf of Rhode Island for vice president, yesterday, it adjourned sine die. The nominations in each case were made on the first ballot. Only two candidates for president were balloted for, Mr. Woolley and Rev. S. C. Swallow of Pennsylvania, Hale Johnson withdrawing his name at the last moment and throwing his strength to Mr. Woolley. This undoubtedly had a great effect on the result, as the convention earlier in the day had been nearly stampeded for Swallow by an eloquent speech of Homer L. Castle of Pittsburg, and had the friends of the Pennsylvania parson forced a ballot at that time, the result might have been different. For vice president three candidates were balloted for, H. B. Metcalf, Thomas R. Caskardon of West Virginia, and Rev. E. L. Eaton of Iowa, Mr. Metcalf receiving an overwhelming majority of the votes cast.

Immediately after the announcement of the result of the ballot for the presidential nomination, Rev. Mr. Swallow was proposed as the vice presidential nominee. The convention went wild over the suggestion, but Dr. Swallow, after a hurried conference with the Pennsylvania delegation refused to accept the nomination.

During the session Chairman Stewart of the national committee called for contributions for the campaign, and over $7000 was raised in a few minutes.

Seconding speeches were resumed at the afternoon session, Rev. Mr. Swallow's nomination was seconded by Volney B. Cushing of Maine. F. E. Britton of Michigan seconded J. G. Woolley. Other seconding speeches were also made. It was nearly 4 o'clock when the roll call of states was completed and the convention was ready to ballot. Hale Johnson of Illinois then took the platform and withdrew his name. Amid considerable confusion the balloting then began. The vote was very close throughout, and it was not until the last state had been called that Mr. Woolley's nomination was assured. When the result was announced, "Woolley, 380; Swallow, 320," a perfect tempest of cheering ensued. The nomination, amid renewed cheering, was made unanimous.

A. A. Stevens of Pennsylvania then secured the floor.

"It would make the ticket the strongest we ever had," he shouted, "to nominate S. C. Swallow for vice president."

This started the convention again. The delegates, already hoarse from shouting, lost their voices in a long-continued roar of "Woolley, Swallow," "Woolley, Swallow." Somebody started America, and the delegates and spectators joined in with thunderous accord.

Meanwhile the Pennsylvania delegation retired to consider whether or not to accept second place on the ticket for Dr. Swallow. After conference the chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation announced that Dr. Swallow would not accept the nomination. The roll call of states was then taken for nominations for the vice presidency. A. H. Morrell of Massachusetts placed Henry B. Metcalf of Rhode Island in nomination. The delegates were tired out and impatient under six hours' speechmaking, but a motion to suspend the rules and nominate Metcalf by acclamation was lost by a close vote. Dr. E. L. Eaton of Des Moines, Ia., Thomas B. Caskardon of West Virginia, and James A. Tate of Tennessee were placed in nomination.

Mr. Tate, however, withdrew his name. The roll was then called. Th result was an overwhelming vote in favor of Metcalf, he having 349 votes to 132 for Caskardon and 113 for Eaton.

Dr. Eaton's motion to make the nominations unanimous was seconded by Mr. Caskardon, and carried after resolutions of thanks had been passed and a committee appointed to formally notify the candidates of their nomination, the convention, at 6 o'clock, adjourned sine die.

A mass meeting of prohibitionists was held in the armory at night, at which Woolley and Metcalf spoke.

The Bomb Was Lighted.

Paris, June 29.—A lighted bomb, charged with powder and pieces of lead, was found last evening by the police in front of the entrance door of the residence of M. Bulot, procurator of the republic. It was at the house of M. Bulot, in the Rue De Clichy, that occurred the terrible bomb explosion in March, 1892, the author of which was the notorious anarchist Ravachol.

THE HOSPITAL SCANDALS.

The Burdett-Couts Charges Discussed In the House of Commons.

London, June 29.—The exposures regarding the hospitals in South Africa, which began with a three-column letter to The Times Monday from W. A. Burdette-Coutts, M. P., Conservative, detailing the great suffering endured by soldiers owing to mismanagement, led to a number of questions in the house of commons yesterday, in response to which the government leader, A. J. Balfour, the first lord of the treasury, made a long statement, saying that so far as the government was aware not any of the sufferings of the sick or wounded were due to insufficiency in the supplies sent out. He then proceeded to read extracts from correspondents with Lord Roberts on the subject, in which the British commander-in-chief in South Africa dwelt on the difficulties of transport owing to his rapid advance. He could quite understand that people imperfectly inexperienced in these matters were concerned at hearing of the hardships the sick and wounded had to undergo. He did not wish to shirk responsibility or screen anyone, and suggested that a committee of medical men and persons of sound common sense proceed to South Africa to investigate the charges.

Mr. Balfour also informed the house that the government agreed to the appointment of an independent committee as suggested by Lord Roberts, and he, today, would propose a nominal grant for the army medical corps, so that the house would have an opportunity to thoroughly thresh out the matter.

The war office has issued correspondence with Lord Roberts regarding the charges of Mr. Burdette-Coutts. On June 4 his attention was called in brief telegrams to the allegations and also to other complaints of a general breakdown in the hospital system. Two days later he replied in part as follows:

"The principal medical officer reported that the arrangements at Kroonstad were in all respects in good order, and Lord Methuen said they were thoroughly satisfactory. I was deeply distressed at being unable to make suitable arrangements for the sick on our first arrival at Kroonstad; but it is obvious that a certain amount of suffering is inseparable from the rapid advance of a large army into an enemy's country."

On June 20 the war office cabled Lord Roberts that disquieting reports regarding the hospitals were accumulating and asked him if anything could be done, and particularly whether more nurses were needed.

On June 25 Lord Roberts replied, saying that he did not wish to shirk responsibility or to screen the shortcomings of the medical corps, and he suggested a committee of inquiry. He said there had been an abnormal number of sick at Bloemfontein, due to the exhausting nature of the march and the terribly insanitary condition of the camp at Paardeberg, where the only water available for drinking flowed from the Boer camp, higher up, where the river was crowded with decomposing animals, and also with a considerable number of wounded after the fight on March 10.

To improvise accommodations at Bloemfontein for such a number, which had become 2000 before he left Bloemfontein, was no easy task, said Lord Roberts. No tents were carried and the public buildings had to be turned into hospitals. In three months there had been 6369 admissions to the hospital of patients suffering from enteric fever, while the deaths numbered 1370, about 21 percent. Lord Roberts observed that he did not know whether this would be an abnormal rate in civil hospitals in peace times; but, if the rate were abnormal, it was due to the exhausted state of the men and not to the neglect of the medical corps.

Change of Ministers.

Halifax, June 29.—Hon. F. G. Jones, former minister of militia, has been notified of the intention to appoint him governor of Nova Scotia in succession to the present incumbent, Sir M. B. Daly, whose term expires this month. The governor-elect is agent of the Dominion and other steamship lines in Halifax, and has been out of politics for a number of years. He is a native of Weymouth, N. S., and his ancestors were united empire loyalists from Massachusetts.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Northampton, Mass., June 29.—A terrific thunderstorm passed over this city last night, the rain falling in torrents for an hour. The streets were badly washed, the fire alarm, telegraph, telephone and electric car wires were broken all over the city, stopping some of the cars from running. A large elm tree fell upon a team driven by Edward Bakeman, a colored teamster, killing him and the horses instantly.

Cook Commits Suicide.

Boston, June 29.—William A. M. Becker, 25 years old, a lodger at 24 Batavia street, was found dead in bed Thursday afternoon with a bottle partially filled with carbolic acid, at his side. Becker was formally cook at the Algonquin club, and the police think that loss of his position led to despondency and finally to suicide.

Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.:

Gentlemen: My mamma has been a great coffee drinker and has found it very injurious. Having used several packages of your GRAIN-O, the drink that takes the place of coffee, she finds it much better for herself and for us children to drink. She has given up coffee drinking entirely. We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

Yours respectfully, FANNIE WILLIAMS.

FATE OF MINISTERS IN DOUBT

Americans, Germans and Russians Killed in Attack on Tien Tsin.

The Allied Forces Suffered Heavily in Relieving Admiral Seymour.

The Force in Now Advancing Toward Pekin, and Is Fighting Its Way.

Shanghai, June 29.—It is reported here on good Chinese authority that the government, alarmed by the foreign military preparations, has issued an edict ordering the peremptory suppression of the Boxers, and announcing a decision to protect the legations at all hazzards.

However this may be, the British consulate at Shanghai received definite information yesterday. The Daily Express correspondent says, that, while solemnly promising complete abstention from warlike preparations, the Chinese are mounting several new 6-inch guns at the Woo Sung forts.

Three British warships have sailed from Hong Kong to reinforce the allied squadron at Shanghai. The southern provinces are sending troops toward Pekin, and the exodus of Chinese of all classes from Shanghai continues at the rate of from 10,000 to 15,000 a day. Russian prestige has been injured during the recent fighting, and an anti-Russian rising in the Liau Tong peninsula, Russian Manchuria, is predicted.

The following are the losses of the international force attacking Tien Tsin: Americans—killed, 3; wounded, 2; British—killed, 2; wounded, 1; Germans—killed, 15; wounded 27; Russians—killed, 10; wounded, 37.

ish is described as "beautiful."

After the relieving force pushed on to relieve Admiral Seymour, Chinese regulars, under General Nich, says a dispatch from Shanghai, again attacked Tien Tsin fiercely, and bombarded the foreign settlement with a terrible fire.

Colonel Dornard, British, commanded the column that relieved Admiral Seymour. American marines participated in the achievement. The admiral was found entrenched and surrounded by immense masses of Chinese, who were driven off by the relieving column after a brisk fight. His men had made a brilliant resistance, never failing in courage for 15 days of continuous fighting. During 10 days the men were on quarter rations. They started with provisions for 10 days, and they could have held out a day or two longer.

The column was a few miles beyond Lofa. Deeming it hopeless to break through the hordes, Admiral Seymour essayed a night retreat toward Tien Tsin, but he came into collision with a strong force of Chinese arriving from the northwest, and could neither advance nor retreat. There was nothing to do but entrench and to stand siege. He vainly attempted heliographic communication.

Seymour's men caught several Chinese who said the legations had been burned and the ministers killed. Others said that the ministers had been imprisoned. The Chinese displayed fanatical courage in the attack.

Railway communication from Taku to Tien Tsin has been restored and the force is advancing toward Pekin. Fighting was in progress Wednesday in the vicinity of Tsechulin. Large preparations are being made to support and reinforce the Pekin relieving column. Twenty thousand troops of all arms, largely Japanese, have now been landed.

The fate of the members of the legations is still a mystery. If they are alive and unharmed in Pekin the Chinese government deserves some credit, the Shanghai correspondents think, for restraining the fanatical mob.

Washington, June 29.—Thursday's developments in Chinese affairs were meager, and the general opinion here is that the two messages received—one from Kempff and the other from Li Hung Chang—could not be accepted as settling the important question as to the fate of the foreign ministers at Pekin and their families and attaches. The secretary of the navy, by special instruction of the president, had been particular to cable Admiral Kempff several days ago to keep the navy department informed of everything that happened within the zone of disturbance in China, and it is believed that his omission to make any reference in his cablegram of yesterday morning to the whereabouts of the ministers was based on the absence of any information on that subject at Taku, where the admiral is with his flagship Newark.

A significant piece of information furnished by the navy department is the report of the sailing of the Scindia yesterday from Gibraltar for Cardiff for a cargo of Welch coal, which she is to carry back to Manila or China. The ship was on her way home from Manila via the Mediterranean route.

Administration officials are quite concerned over Chinese advices to the effect that the members of the foreign legations in Pekin are not at Tien Tsin with Admiral Seymour's relief column. The dispatches of the last two days allayed in a measure the tension existing here as to their safety, but as no word has come from Minister Conger confidence is giving way again to fear that all may not be well with them.

United States Ordering Guns.

Bethlehem, Pa., June 29.—The government has placed an order with the Bethlehem Steel company for guns, including, it is said, seven 10-inch and four 12-inch breechloading rifles and 14 12-inch breechloading mortars, and smaller ones for immediate dispatch to the Orient.

Harvard Professor Honored by Oxford.

London, June 29.—Oxford university yesterday conferred the honorary degree of D. D. on Rev. Morgan Dix of New York; the honorary degree of D. C. L. on Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard, and the honorary degree of D. S. C. on J. M. Baldwin of Princeton.

With Intent to Defraud.

Waltham, Mass., June 29.—Norman L. Chase, 26 years of age, was arrested here Thursday charged with using the mails with intent to defraud. Chase, who has been here a couple of weeks, and of whom nothing is known here, has been sending out letters saying that he had a position for a clerk at $12 per week, and that in order to secure the place the party applying must pay him $5 down. When arrested he was standing in front of the postoffice reading a letter, and five others in response to his circulars were found upon him. He will be arraigned today before the United States commissioner in Boston.

Secretary Morales in Boston.

Boston, June 29.—Edward Morales, secretary of Superintendent Alexis Frye and the advance guard of the Cuban school teachers, arrived in this city Thursday, accompanied by his wife and two children. Senor Morales has had personal charge of the details of the Cuban teachers' trip, speaks English perfectly and is thus doubly equipped for his present mission. The party was met at the train by one of the official interpreters connected with the Harvard headquarters, and in the afternoon visited Cambridge, where Senor Morales was introduced to the entire headquarters' staff. The evening was spent in conference as to the work to be done before the arrival of the transparts.

Prominent Citizen Drowned.

Fall River, Mass., June 29.—News has reached here of a drowning accident which occurred in Tiverton Wednesday evening. David Hambly, a prominent eitizen of that town, while sailing in his catboat, was precipatated into the water near the Tiverton bridge, by the capsizing of his craft. Hamby struck out for the shore, but collapsed when a few feet from land. All efforts at resusitation were of no avail. He will be buried in New Bedford.

To Aid Nationalist Candidates.

Dublin, June 29. — John Redmond, leader of the United Nationalist party; Mgr. O'Donnell, bishop of Raphoe, and Alderman O'Meara of Limerick, who were recently appointed by the Dublin convention trustees of the parliamentary fund of the Nationalist party, last evening issued an appeal to the Irish people for contributions in aid of the expenses of the Nationalist candidates at the next general election.

Drift of Opinion.

Somebody asks us how Tien Tsin is pronounced. It is not pronounced it is whistled.—Syracuse Herald.

☞ Young lawyers often go into politics, but old lawyers never do. The young lawyers wouldn't perhaps, if they had more to occupy their time. —Somerville Journal.

☞ The advice now being so freely given to graduates of schools and colleges is of the same nature that it has been ever since such counsel began to be given. There is nothing new to be said for the great story of life is ever the same, although the scenes may be different. In the majority of cases the advice is as if it had never been given, for few heed it. Each man has to work out his own salvation, and no general advice, such as he usually listens to on graduation day, can help him in the matter. Giving some suggestions is, however, a part of the show, and if it does no good it does no harm.—Nashua Telegraph.

☞ We need not go further back, in appeal to history, than the lamented Hobart, latest occupant of the vice presidency, to prove its positive and natural value to an administration—a value unreservedly recognized in his case by his chief and by the leaders of the United States senate, over which he presided and upon which he so impressed his strong personality, sound judgment and power of initiative. In one direction was found an exceedingly wise and influential counselor, and in the other a potent factor in federal legislation. What the vice presidency may mean depends upon the man, rather than the office.—New York Mail and Express.

☞ It has been suggested by Grand Army veterans that congress shall authorize the return of the battle flags taken from the Confederacy. They feel as we all do that the time will never come when we shall need to look upon these trophies of union valor for consolation or exultation. That since the sons of Federals and Confederates have fought a foreign foe side by side, it could do no possible good to keep these flags where they would be a perpetual sign of the division of the North and South. Nine out of every ten citizens in the North would say at once: "Let us avoid any action like this which might revive sectional feeling. Let us treat the Southerners like brothers."—Beverly Times.

☞ Fear is expressed lest the conditions in China should injure the prospects of Christianity in the Celestial Empire. Therefore we hear more or less excited exhortations to various courses of action, mostly of the spectacular strenuous variety, for the sake of ensuring the permanence of Gospel teachings. For the sake of the fearful, it would be well if professional Christian teachers were to return to the calm confidence which was a supreme quality of the founder of Christianity. In his day, the prospect of the acceptance of the new religion in the province of Judea was many degrees more uncertain than the prospects are in China at this moment. Yet we do not read anywhere the slightest intimation that his courage failed for a moment. Christianity has survived rougher experiences than it is having in China; it will probably survive in that country.—New Bedford Standard.

THE GRAMMAR GRADUATES.

Parents' Day at the High School Hall a Happy Event for All.

The Music and Marching Were Very Pleasing to Parents and Friends.

Addressed by Supervisor Metcalf of Boston, Supt. Lull and Chairman Porter.

Music was the charming feature at Parents' day of the Grammar school graduates of the city on Thursday at the High school hall. It was a pleasure to hear the young chorus of over 300 voices sing the inspiring songs, especially "Our Public Schools," written by Frederic Allison Tupper, which is as patriotic and loyal as it is pretty. It was not only a pleasure to hear the singing, but a source of considerable satisfaction to know that our grammar graduates are so musical.

The marching too, was excellent, and the pianists and especially the drummer added to its success.

Of course the hall was filed to its full capacity, but the oppressive heat outside did not render it so uncomfortable as some feared it might. The ventilation of the hall is nearly perfect, and by opening the doors and windows on all sides there was a good circulation of air.

The program:

March,
Pianists, Mary L. Hunt, Q. H. S., 1901, Hannah O. Litchfield, Q. H. S., 1903.
Drummer, Walter G. Field, Adams.

Chorus—a. I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills.
b. Swinging. A. B. Addison

Greeting to the Parents,
Herbert Warren Lull,
Superintendent of Schools.

Chorus—Voice from the West, Alfred Austin

Greeting to the Pupils,
Robert Comfort Metcalf, Supervisor, Boston.

Chorus—a. My Sweetheart, F. W. Lyman
b. To Thee, O Country, Julius Eichberg
c. Pledge to the Flag.

Greeting from the Committee,
Hon. Charles H. Porter,
Chairman of the Board.

Presentation of Diplomas by Chairmen of Sub-Committees.

Chorus—Our Public Schools, (Sixth Year)
Words by Frederic Allison Tupper.

Director of Music—Mrs. Laura C. F. Smith.
Pianist—Helen E. Bemis, Q. H. S., '97.

The greeting of Supt. Lull was likewise his farewell address to Quincy pupils, and was bright, witty and to the point. He was pleased that so many parents were anxious to secure a High school education for these graduates, and wished that all might go higher.

R. C. Metcalf, from his long and successful work in the Boston schools, was well qualified to extend a greeting to Quincy graduates. He complimented the singing, which he said was from the heart. Hard work was a good thing. Some find fault with the schools, and say the children don't work. Teachers should lead; but not do all the talking themselves. All who can should enter the High school. In life, don't look for the easy jobs. Both in school and in business do your best; work for your employer's interests; don't fret over a small salary; endeavor to be worth a little more than you receive, and you will get an increase. Again, excel in something, associate with your betters, contribute something to the world. (Long applause.)

Chairman Porter also had good advice when he presented the diplomas. He would have all children get as good an education as possible to better prepare them for the work of life.

Each school marched past the members of the School Committee who presented the diplomas. There should have been more interest and applause at this time but it was not until Supt. Lull offered a suggestion that friends of the pupils expressed themselves. Each of the ten grammar schools of the city has a color which is never changed. Each pupil proudly displayed his colors, and the diplomas were tied with the appropriate colors.

The colors by schools and the member to present the diplomas were:

Adams—canary— Miss Mabel E. Adams.

Coddington—blue—Dr. Henry C. Hallowell.

Gridley Bryant—royal purple—Hon. Charles H. Porter.

John Hancock—violet—Dr. Henry C. Hallowell.

Lincoln—cream white—Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting.

Massachusetts Fields—orange—Mr. Charles F. Merrick.

Quincy—light pink—Mr. Charles F. Merrick.

Washington—crimson—Mr. Fredrick H. Smith.

Willard—nile green—Dr. Thomas J. Dion.

Wollaston—rose — Dr. Wellington Record.

Some of the schools presented Supt. Lull with bouquets, and he was much pleased at the remembrance.

When the pledge to the flag was given, the flag of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., was proudly waved near the centre of the hall by Comrade Samuel B. Turner.

A list of the graduates, which numbered 311, follows:

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

HOUGHS NECK.

The season at Houghs Neck can be said to be fully under way. All of the booths for the sale of articles of all kinds are open. Practically all of the cottages have been let and a good share of them are already occupied. The transient visitors, however, do not pan out for some reason. Probably one reason is that they have been promised various things by proprietors which have not as yet materialized.

Last week a number of new families arrived.

Mr. Cannon and family of Brockton are in the Leonard cottage.

F. C. Perry, the marine artist, has gone to Watch Hill, R. I., on a yachting trip.

The little daughter of Fred Goss has been quite sick this week.

C. H. Lyons and family of Dorchester are in a cottage on Bell street.

F. A. Johnson and family of Boston are in the Highland cottage on Great Hill.

Mr. Beales and family of Stoughton are in the Snowflake cottage.

Ryden's grocery team ran away Wednesday, but fortunately did no damage.

The old bowling alley is being repaired and will be managed by J. E. Glover of Quincy.

Mrs. Lanagan and family of Boston are in the Lestelle cottage.

The Urbane Pleasure club of Dorchester have leased the Shaw cottage on Bay View avenue.

William Farrell and family of Roxbury are in the Bostonian.

William Boyle and family of Boston are in the Flint cottage.

J. E. Cavanagh, the real estate agent, reports that nearly all of his cottages have been let.

J. J. Ryan and family of Boston are in the Tucker cottage.

Mr. Sullivan and family of Boston are in the Chisholm cottage.

Arthur H. Dunham has gone into the grocery business.

J. J. O'Callahan and family of Boston are in the Belmont cottage.

Leon McGrath and family of Boston are in the Florence.

The Morey cottage has been opened this week, and Mr. and Mrs. Morey are expected next week.

Woodward Institute.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of Woodward Institute, held on Tuesday afternoon, it was voted that "a pupil shall be admitted to the Sixth class only upon presentation of a Principal's certificate of unconditional promotion to the highest grade of grammar school work, as determined by the requirements of the public schools of this city." Also "that admission to the Fifth class be granted to those girls only who present a certificate of unconditional promotion to the High School." Examinations will not be given.

By order of the Board,
Carrie E. Small, Principal.

Resident Supt. Wanted.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is expected that teachers in our public schools will instil patriotism for country and loyalty to city. That they will be well acquainted with the city—its municipal affairs; its history; and its every day life. That out of the schools as well as within, that they will be an example for children. Where the teachers are gentlemen, it is expected that they will be voters, and if tax payers, so much the better.

It, therefore, surprises me to learn that a certain principal, who is a non-resident, is mentioned for superintendent of schools. I would not go as far as some in Boston, who advocate that every teacher of Boston must be a resident of that city, but where a principal has had a home in Quincy and deliberately moves his family out the city, he has no claim for advancement. If West Quincy is not a desirable place to live; if in all of Quincy he cannot find a location or a residence to his liking, then certainly he doesn't think much of Quincy. He is not even a voter or a taxpayer of the city; he may or may not purchase his supplies here; he cannot take the place in the business, social, literary or church life of Quincy, that he would if a resident.

I would not say that a Quincy gentleman must be selected for superintendent of Quincy schools, but one who will make Quincy his home. If possible to find a desirable gentleman who has long been a resident, he should have the preference.

N'oubliez pas.

West Quincy, 28 June, 1900.

No Report.

Thursday's Herald had the following item in its financial column about the Massachusetts Electric Companies, which owns the Quincy & Boston street Railway. It is said in print that the Massachusetts Electric companies will not issue a report for the year ending Sept. 30, 1900. This company like the New England Gas & Coke Company, is without the law, which the present Legislature seems to think is all right, and being a law to itself, with none but its stockholders and its own interest to cater to, the association can consult its own judgment in the matter of issuing reports. True, the stock exchange might properly ask for information to protect dealers in the company's shares, but it rarely or never does this thing; and shareholders themselves are apt to be indifferent as to receiving knowledge of their investments, and the way is clear for the company to publish or omit an annual report. As an advertisement of the property a complete annual report would be a great thing, but it is optional with the management whether it furnishes the public with the facilities for valuing the stocks.

Teacher Remembered.

The pupils of Grade five of the Adams school gave their teacher, Miss E. C. Mitchell of 12 School street, a surprise party, Monday evening. The grounds were very prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns. Refreshments were served on the lawn. The tables being spread beneath the lanterns, made a very pretty picture. The children indulged in dancing, singing and games. During the evening Miss Mitchell was presented with a silver mounted pocket book, as a token of esteem from her pupils, she was also presented with flowers and candy. Miss Sheahan and Miss Howard teachers at the Adams school were present, also Miss F. Rown and Mr. Horace Spear. The party all spent an enjoyable evening.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of William T. Parker of Milton, for adultery, was heard and he was held for the grand jury.

Dr. Everett Against War.

Dr. Everett was the orator at the Phi Beta Kappa day at Harvard college Thursday. The Journal in its report says: "The thunder of Everett's oration was echoed by the scarcely more cynical growls outside. Darker and darker grew the theatre, until the orator was lost in the gloom of his black gown and only the white hood, oddly shaped and clasping the speaker's neck, could be seen. The thunder disconcerted Dr. Everett at times, once even forcing him to stop for a moment."

The Journal farther sums up the address as follows:

Patriotism is now held to be a paramount duty, to which every other must give way.

To this doctrine philosophy says "Hold!"

The principal expressed in "Our country, right or wrong," is sentimental nonsense.

The nation, not the land, makes the patriot.

The name "our country" includes all that it is, all that it has been, all that it ever may be.

If there is anything which philosophy must condemn it is war.

If our country is in the wrong we should not hesitate to say so.

Imperialism means enslavement.

Quincy Well Represented.

The Medfield & Medway street railway held a public opening of its new line on Wednesday. Special cars left Dedham at 12.15 and ran to Franklin Centre, a distance of twenty miles.

Returning to Westwood a clambake was served by George Pawsey of Quincy. Among those from Quincy in the party were: John F. Merrill, president of the road; John R. Graham, manager of Third Division Massachusetts Electric Co.; B. J. Weeks, Superintendent of Quincy & Boston; Brainard T. Dyer, Commissioner of Public Works C. F. Knowlton, William T. Shea, Edwin W. Marsh, Dr. F. L. Jones, Harold Graham, Robert B. Graham, A. G. Durgin, George Kingman and John A. McAloon.

—To college and business women alike, to all who must be wage-earners the practical verities appeal. Set a high value on yourself, dear toiler, and live up to your own estimate. Have before you an idea of true womanhood, and pray daily that you may not fall below it. If the precise work you wish for does not offer itself, take something else, even if you do so only temporarily.—Margaret E. Sangster, in the Ladies' Home Journal.

—The Braintree school committee, at their business meeting Wednesday, elected to the principalship of the Monatiquot school, in place of W. Stanwood Field, resigned, John Lawrence Riley of Oxford, Mass. Mr. Riley has been principal of the Oxford Centre grammar school for the past three years and Braintree is to be congratulated in securing his valuable services.

ATTENDANT OF SQUIRRELS.

Six-year-old Boy Appointed to Office In Ohio.

To gratify childish pride Governor Nash issued a commission recently to Francis Marriott, son of F. M. Marriott of Delaware, O., as "superintendent of squirrels." Of course there is no such position in law. The statehouse yard at Columbus is inhabited by a family of about 200 squirrels, which much interested the boy when he called on the governor with his father, an old lawyer acquaintance of Governor Nash and holding the position of manager of the state reformatory. But it is a commission, and it is held by the youngster, the youngest person that ever received such a document from a governor of Ohio.

The commission is handsomely engraved and bears the governor's signature. The document is highly prized by the little fellow.

Francis talked about his plans to a New York World correspondent and said: "My papa is going to get me a uniform with big brass buttons on and a badge, and I'm going to take the best care of the squirrels in the statehouse yard. I'll carry feed to them and make those big men about the yard treat the squirrels kinder and keep their little houses in the trees in better shape. I know what to feed them and am going to just make everybody know that those little animals are cared for right."

Little Francis is a favorite of Governor Nash, and when the chief executive delivered a speech in Delaware a short time ago the lad escorted the governor to the stage.

SWINBURNE'S PÆAN.

British Poet's Latest Poem on the South African War.

The London Saturday Review prints a 12 stanza poem by Algernon C. Swinburne entitled "Astræa Victrix" ("Goddess of Justice, Victress"). The seventh, ninth, tenth and eleventh stanzas read:

And now the quickening tide
That brings back power and pride
To faith and love,
Whose ensign is thy name,
Bears down the recreant lie
That doomed thy name to die.
Sons of friends and foes,
Behold thy star the same
As when it stood in heaven a sun
And Europe saw no glory left
In her sky save one.

* * * * * * *

We loosed not on these knaves
Their scourge tormented slaves;
We held the hand that fain
Had risen to smite
The torturer fast. * * *

All murderous fraud that lurks
In hearts where hell's craft works
Fought, crawled and slew in darkness.
And yet we gave not back
What righteous doom would give.

No false white flag that fawns
On faith till murder dawns
Blood red from hell,
Black treason's heart of hate,
Left ever shame's foul brand
Seared on an English hand,
And yet our pride vouchsafes
Them grace too great,
For other pride to dream of scorn
Strikes retribution silent as
The stars at morn.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

New Locomotive Turned Out at Shops In Alleghany, Pa.

The Pittsburg Locomotive works recently turned out from its Alleghany works for the Pittsburg, Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad the largest and heaviest locomotive ever constructed, says the St. Louis Republic. It is the first of two to be built for the company. The monster engine weighs 240,000 pounds without tender, has cylinders 24 by 32 inches, 240 pounds of steam pressure and 55 inch driving wheels. The engine stands 15 feet and 8 inches above the rails. The tender in working order is expected to weigh 136,000 pounds. Among the departures of this remarkable production of a Pittsburg works is the fact that the frames are made of armor plate, an idea expected to be generally adopted in locomotive construction. The boiler is made of one inch steel.

Prior to this the largest freight engine was that owned by the Illinois Central. It was built by the Brooks Locomotive company and weighs approximately 118 tons, just two tons less than the Pittsburg works' latest.

LINCOLN'S MOTHER'S GRAVE

Park to Be Made of Place Where the President's Mother Is Buried.

The commissioners of Spencer county, Ind., recently appropriated $800 for the purchase of the 16 acre tract of land on which the mother of President Lincoln was buried and which at one time comprised a part of the Lincoln farm, says an Indianapolis dispatch to the New York Sun. The grave is on the top of a steep hill, and the scenery is among the most picturesque in the state.

The tract will be converted into a park, with driveways, and will be beautified with flowers. This work will be under the direction of the Nancy Hanks Lincoln Monument association, of which Governor Mount is president, and a suitable monument will be erected over the grave of Mrs. Lincoln.

Chime of Bells For Pan-American Show.

The electric apparatus designed to ring the famous chimes of St. Joseph's cathedral at Buffalo has been tested and found to work satisfactorily. It is this carillon of 43 bells, the largest and finest in the United States, which is to be placed in a special campanile at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo next year. The apparatus for ringing the bells musically was designed by the Rev. Father Sheehan, who is an expert organist, and includes a keyboard similar to that of a piano, the keys connecting with electric wires which operate the mechanism for moving the bell hammers.

Cheap washing soaps and powders, too,
With alkali are strong;
The dire destruction which they do
Is sure to show ere long.
But Ivory Soap will never hurt

It makes short work of stain and dirt,
But no work for the mender.

Mad All the Way Through.

New York, June 29.—Governor Roosevelt was mad all the way through yesterday afternoon at Oyster Bay, L. I., when he learned that a couple of newspaper photographers had been taking surreptitious views of his children about the grounds and in bathing. "You may say," said the governor, "that I will not tolerate photographers coming here and taking pictures of my children while they are bathing. Furthermore, I will take legal steps if necessary to prohibit it and punish violaters of this rule." When asked if he had reached any decision in any of the New York cases, he said he had not, nor would there be any decision for some time yet.

On the Diamond.

Cincinnati, June 29.—Willis was in fine form yesterday, letting the Reds down with four hits. Phillips gave four bases on balls, allowed two hits, together with an error, which netted four runs in the second. Barret's fielding and Hamilton's hitting were the features.

Fatal Railroad Accident in Virginia.

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—A train on the Virginia Beach division of the Norfolk and Southern railway, on its way to Norfolk, ran into an engine and tender a mile from Norfolk depot yesterday afternoon. The engineer of the passenger engine had his hand broken, but the fireman was unhurt. Fireman Sawyer on the light engine, in jumping, fell under the wheels and died last night. A lady passenger was slightly injured. It is thought the accident was caused by misunderstanding of orders. There were a number of New England excursionists aboard.

Steamer and Schooner In Collision.

Machias, Me., June 29.—While steaming up the harbor Wednesday night, at midnight, in a thick fog, the steamer Frank Jones ran down the schooner Highland Queen, striking her on the quarter as she laid anchor near Round Island. The schooner's main boom was broken, the quarter rails carried away, a boat smashed and the stem injured. The loss to the schooner will be several hundred dollars. The steamer was uninjured.

FIRST HUSBAND ALIVE.

Salem Woman Seeks to Have Her Second Marriage Annulled.

Salem, Mass., June 29.—An interesting case was heard in the superior court, Judge Pierce, here Thursday afternoon. The story was brought out during the course of the divorce case of Lean H. Osgood of Haverhill, who prayed for a divorce from her husband, George F. Drew. In 1878, when the girl was only 16 years of age, she was married to Charles W. Osgood, who soon after went to sea. In September, 1879, the vessel on which he sailed was reported lost with all hands on board. The young bride mourned, but after waiting eight years she married George F. Drew. Nine years later she learned that Osgood had not been drowned, and she at once separated from Drew. She now brings this petition for the nullity of the marriage bonds. Osgood is living in the west at present, but has not been in communication with his wife. The case was begun yesterday morning. Eben Osgood, an uncle, testified that he knew Charles W. Osgood in February, 1889, and believed him to be living somewhere in the west. The decree desired, that of nullity of the Drew marriage, was granted, but whether Mrs. Osgood will ever find her first husband is another matter.

House and Stable Burned.

Braintree, Mass., June 29.—During a severe thunder storm in this town yesterday afternoon a barn of Warren Foss, on Pond street, South Braintree, was struck by lightning and burned completely. H. L. Brown, superintendent of the farm, was leading a horse from the barn when the bolt struck. The lightning struck the animal in the head and killed him. Mr. Brown was stunned for several minutes, and when he recovered he found the barn all on fire. With rare presence of mind, Mr. Brown rescued seven cows and saved other property. The produce on several large farms was severely damaged by the very heavy wind which prevailed during the storm.

Insurrection Becoming Formidable.

Washington, June 29.—Dispatches received here indicate that the Colombian government has finally satisfied itself that Nicaragua is responsible for the revolutionary movements on the Isthmus of Panama, directed against the Colombian government. The operations of these insurrections have become so formidable as to make it doubtful whether the Colombian government can maintain itself on the isthmus. If it shall be necessary to land a naval force to protect American interests the commander of a warship, probably the Machias, will be instructed to do so, but to take no part as between the combatants.

YALE BY SIX LENGTHS.

Harvard Beaten In Grandest Race Ever Held on the Thames.

With Crimson In the Lead Her Stroke Weakens.

Freshman Race a Surprise—Harvard Wins That and Four-Oared Race.

New London, June 29.—Yale won the 'varsity race yesterday, beating Harvard by about six lengths.

With the four-oar and the freshma races won, and handsomely won, too, and with a lead when nearing the finish in the big 'varsity event, defeat came to Harvard in a sudden and unexpected manner.

After one of the grandest struggles ever seen on the Thames the Crimson eight had, at the three-mile flag, inch by inch, put their prow to the fore. Passing this flag they seemed to be rowing strong and increasing their advantage. Harvard cheers rent the air .Guns, whistles and shouting mingled to create an awful din. Down between the parallel lines of yachts the two shells shot, each men in both straining every nerve. Approaching the 3½-mile flag Harvard was still in the lead, when suddenly her stroke oar seemed to weaken. This was Harding, who had been moved to take the place of disabled Captain Higginson. The gallant little coxswain shouted encouragement and then sprayed him with water. Harding struggled on, but his oar did not touch the water. Soon it dragged. Then the exhausted stroke fell forward in collapse and Harvard finished the last half mile with seven oars.

Meanwhile the sons of Eli made use of every moment of this disaster and shot their boat ahead, crossing the line some six lengths ahead. It was victory, but it was not joyous victory. There was Yale shouting, but it had a hollow sound.

For 3½ miles it was nerve-splitting, hair-raising, heart-breaking contest. Old boating men say they have never seen the like, not once in that distance was there half a length's difference between the two boats. Now Harvard was ahead; now Yale; then Harvard again. And when finally Harding gave way after an awful struggle to keep up the pace and his oar was seen to be dragging, the excitement increased. It was apparent that Harvard was vanquished. Never was a 'varsity race rowed in smoother water. Just after the freshman contest a big black cloud in the north, which fortunately brought no rain, knocked down the southwest wind and the river was smooth and placid as a pond.

The spectacle at the finish was magnificent. Hundreds of yachts, large and small, sail and steam, were banked on either side of the course. They flew all kinds of bunting, and altogether made a handsome picture. Both banks of the river were lined with thousands, and the big railroad bridge, just below the finish line, was black with people. The observation trains running on both sides of the river kept along with the boats and offered a fine opportunity for seeing the whole of the race.

The four-oar race, as was expected, proved rather an easy victory for Harvard. The Crimson substitutes took the lead at the snap of the pistol and had no difficulty in keeping it. The freshman contest was something of a disappointment to the New Haven men, for the Yale youngsters had been picked as winners. Instead Harvard showed them their rudder for two miles and the event was something in the nature of a procession.

Stroke Harding said after the race that he had been practically unconscious after the second mile and until they reached the three and a half mile flag.

Charles M. Sheafe was elected captain for next year. He is a second year law school man.

Mr. Talbot Didn't Commit Suicide.

Boston, June 29.—The Globe today says: The man who committed suicide by hanging at Brunswick, Me., several days ago, was not Frank Talbot of Medford, as believed by the Brunswick police at the time. The suicide had letters in his pocket with Mr. Talbot's name and former address at Jamaica Plain on them, and it was this fact which led the police to think that Mr. Talbot was the suicide. Mr. Talbot called at The Globe office Thursday and stated that the connection of his name with the case was an error; that he did not know the party who committed suicide, or how letters bearing his name and address came in the suicide's possession.

Oysterman Killed by Lightning.

Bristol, R. I., June 29.—During a thunder storm yesterday afternoon Sylvester B. Hathaway, an oysterman of Warren, while out in his steam oyster boat, Jessie, with two other men, between Warren and Bristol, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The hair was burned off his head and the metal in his watch fused. He was 34 years old, and leaves a widow and several children. Medical Examiner Williams of Bristol viewed the body.

An Armenian Shot.

Lowell, Mass., June 29.—During a row on the South Common at 10 o'clock last night Antonie Fratus, an Armenian, was shot through the thigh by a man named Vien. Fratus now lies in St. John's hospital, but his wound is not considered dangerous. Vien is locked up to await an investigation. He justifies his action on the ground of self-defense.

Fire at Plymouth.

Plymouth, Mass., June 29.—The house occupied by the help on the large estate of R. C. Symington, about three miles south of this city, was struck by lightning during the storm yesterday afternoon and burned, together with the large stable adjoining. Mr. Symington is a member of the Clark Thread company of New York. The financial loss is about $3500.

LITTLE FIGHTING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Lord Robert's Reports Two Small Skirmishes. Boers Defeated In Both.

London, June 29.—Lord Roberts has sent bulletins of two small fights, occurring on June 26 and 27, in which the Boers were defeated. In a dispatch from Pretoria, dated yesterday, he says:

"A small force of mounted troops, with two guns, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Dreiper, was attacked by the enemy under Prefers and Nel on the morning of June 26, seven miles north of Senekal. They beat off the enemy and burned their laager. Our casualties were three killed and 10 wounded.

"Hunter, temporarily commanding Ian Hamilton's column, made one march yesterday from Heidelberg toward Frankfort without meeting any opposition.

"The enemy attacked our Roodval Spruit post on the railway yesterday, but were easily beaten off by a detachment of the Derbyshire light infantry, the West Australian mounted, a 15-pounder and an armored train.

"Baden-Powell reports the capture of an influential Boer named Ray, who was endeavoring to raise a commando in the Rustenberg district. A patrol brought in over 100 rifles. More than 4000 rifles and 1000 inferior pieces have been taken during the last few days. He states that 30 Boers have arrived at Rustenberg, going to their homes, from Delarey's commando. They would have left before if they had seen the proclamation which was carefully withheld by Boer authority."

Lord Roberts says that Wednesday, June 27, was a record market day in Pretoria for Boer farmers selling produce.

Parties of Boers still hang on General Buller's flanks. F. R. Burnham, the American scout, is invalided.

The Pretoria correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch, dated yesterday, says:

"Since Sunday General French on the left, General Ian Hamilton on the right and the Eleventh division in the center, have been endeavoring to surround the enemy's position in the hills 15 miles east. There was fighting for three days, but Tuesday night the enemy decamped, going eastward. The total casualties were under 150."

Mother and Three Daughters Insane.

Boston, June 29. — Mrs. Catherine Crosby, 76, and her eldest daughter, Adelaide, 45, were Thursday committed to the state asylum at Westboro as incurably insane. Two other daughters, Alice, 36, and Olive, 26, were taken to the city hospital for curable patients at Austin Farm. The commitment of the entire Crosby family from their home at 1467 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, is a very sad story of two young women, who strove to keep their insane mother and sister at home, only to succumb themselves to the mania with which the others were afflicted.

Chief Justice Fuller's Daughter to Marry.

Bar Harbor, Me., June 29.—Mrs. Lena Fuller Aubrey, daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Melville Fuller, will be wedded this evening to Dr. Samuel Marcus Moore of Evanston, Ills. The ceremony will occur at the summer home of the chief justice at Sorrento, Me. The wedding will be a private one, and in fact the announcement comes as a surprise to many of the friends of the contracting parties, as it was expected the event would occur later in the season.

For the America Cup.

London, June 29.—Foxhall Keene, on behalf of American polo players in London, has challenged the Hurlingham club to contest for the America cup, the trophy offered by the club to promote international matches. It was last played for in 1886 in the United States, when the English team brought it to England. The challenge has been accepted and the match fixed for July 7 at Hurlingham.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The fund made up of voluntary contributions for the benefit of Mrs. Guy V. Henry, widow of General Henry, U. S. A., nets $18,546. The committee in charge has asked Mrs. Henry what she would like to do with it.

Among the fourth-class postmasters appointed is George B. Jennese at South Danbury, N. H.

Della Fox, the actress, has left the sanitarium in New York where she had been undergoing treatment for some weeks, in much better mental and physical condition.

The body of Mrs. William D. Sawtelle was found hanging from a beam in the stable at her residence late Thursday afternoon, at Rockland, Me. Deceased was 45 years of age, and insanity was undoubtedly the cause of her act of self-destruction.

An unknown woman, about 30 years of age, who was a passenger on the steamer Georgia on her trip down from Baltimore Thursday night, committed suicide by jumping overboard.

A heavy explosion of fire works in front of the store of Michael Smolleroff, a confectioner on State street, New Haven, yesterday afternoon, resulted in a $5000 fire.

Florence Le Blanc, aged 7, and Adeline Corimor, aged 6, lost their lives while walking on the bridge over the Yantic river, at Norwich, Conn, by being struck by a train.

At Winsted, Conn., Lyman Beecher, aged 65, a farmer, whose home was on Wallen's Hill, was struck by lightning during the storm and instantly killed. He was lying on a couch at the time, and the bolt came in through an open window.

The Pequoig block, which is one of the handsomest and largest blocks in Athol, Mass., was sold at auction under a foreclosure to George D. Bates for $65,000. The Ware Savings bank held a mortgage for $55,000, and Mr. Bates a second mortgage for $15,000.

Because he could not find employment and worried over financial matters, William Chandler, a shoemaker, about 30 years old, drank laudanum at Beverly, Mass. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Lightning struck and set fire to the barn of George O. Chase in Uxbridge, Mass., near the Douglas line, Thursday night during a storm, and the structure burned, together with a horse and two cows. The loss is $700.

The Social Realm.

Feathery clematis floating in air,
Light as a kiss,
Twining its arms about rose-blossoms fair—
Sweet visions this!
Clematis clings for a time on a rose,
Then fickle thing,
Throws to the wind wherever is blows
Soft arms to cling,
Light as the clematis some loves will be,
Lighter than air,
Clinging and kissing and then breaking free—
Vanishing—where?

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Clothing Found This Morning on Quincy Point Bridge.

Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning Jonathan Hayden, drawtender at the Quincy Point bridge found a straw hat and dark blue coat on the bridge near the drawer. The clothing had been evidently placed there sometime during the night, as it was noticed by Motorman Pray who runs the early car to Weymouth. Mr. Pray, however, thought it the property of some workman and paid no attention to it.

Mr. Hayden notified the police, and Inspector Ferguson, who investigated, found an assortment of articles in the coat pocket. In a bag was $9.32 in money, a gold filled watch and chain, pipe, tobacco and knife. The watch was made by the Standard Watch Co. of New York, the works being numbered 900,820, and the case 544,968. In the pockets there were also two bills from Boston fruit firms. One was from Merrill & Co. for $6.25, and the other from Conant & Beal for $5. Both bore the date of June 28, and were made out to John Restele.

Whether the man deliberately committed suicide, or whether he disrobed and lay down for a nap and fell overboard, is as yet to be determined, as at present the thing is a mystery.

The name Restele is a familiar one in Quincy, but there are none in the directory whose occupation is given as a fruit dealer.

Several of these were seen, but could throw no light on the matter.

It was learned by the police this noon that the clothing found undoubtedly belonged to John Restele, and that it was a case of suicide. Restele lives on Trafford street and run a pool room in Swingle & Falconers block at South Quincy.

He had been in poor health for sometime. He left home at 7 o'clock this morning, and nothing has been heard from him since, and as the clothing and articles found tally with those he was known to have, there is not much question but what he has committed suicide.

They wonder, however, how anyone could go onto the bridge in the vicinity of 8 o'clock and jump overboard without being seen. It was Motorman Pray's second trip when he saw the clothing and not the first trip as stated above.

The police will search the river this afternoon and try to find the body.

Restele was about 60 years of age and has a wife, two sons, and three daughters.

Parcher—Sawin.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Sawin, High street, Gardner, was elaborately decorated Wednesday night for the second wedding within a few years, it being the occasion of the marriage of their youngest daughter, Edith, to L. Herbert Parcher, of Wollaston, formerly of Gardner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parcher, High street.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the wedding march was sounded by Fred L. Wheeler, and the bridal party came down the front stairs and into the parlors. First came the flower girls, Maud and Fannie Reed, dresed in yellow and pink figured muslins. They unwound white ribbon making aisles for the entrance of the rest of the party. The ushers, William O. Rice and Walter L. Crouch were followed by the best man, Waldo B. Fay, of Wollaston, cousin of the groom, and the bridesmaid, Miss Neva Bragg, of Newburyport, cousin of the bride.

The bridesmaid wore a white muslin and carried pink roses. The bride's gown was white muslin cut en train, trimmed with Valenciennes lace. She carried Bride roses and wore a diamond brooch, the gift of the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Towne, the Episcopal service being used. During the ceremony incidental music was rendered by Mr. Wheeler. About sixty relatives and friends were present. An informal and happy reception followed, during which refreshments were served by Truman Cossaboom and Miss Grace Fairbanks.

The groom's gift to the best man was an opal pin. The bridesmaid received from the bride a brooch of opals. The gifts to the ushers were gold knot pins.

Among the many and beautiful present was a silver card receiver from the class of '99 of the Murdock school, a number of the members of the class being present to give their classmate a hearty sendoff.

Miss Sawin has been actively connected with the Baptist church and its organizations, especially as a member of the choir and superintendent of the juvenile department of the Sunday School, and her departure will be much regreted, although all her friends join in wishing her every happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Parcher left on the evening train for a short wedding trip. They will be at home at 31 Arlington street, Wollaston, after July 15.—Gardner Journal.

SEYMOUR'S MARCH.

Stubbornly Opposed by the Boxers and Imperial Troops From Pekin.

Whereabouts of Legations Remain Unknown.

An Imperial Decree Says They Were Safe In Pekin June 25.

London, June 30.—There is no word as to the whereabouts of the members of the legations, although abundant reports from Chinese sources say that they were safe a few days ago. The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"An imperial decree has been sent to all the viceroys advising them that the foreign ministers were safe in Pekin on June 25, and affirming that the government would protect them. This is authentic and reliable. I received it through a high Chinese official having means of communication from the capital to Shanghai by courier to Pao Ting Fu, and then by telegraph.

There is no doubt that the Chinese government fully recognizes what the safety of the ministers implies at the present time, and for this reason there is less uneasiness about them.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, under yesterday's date, says: Chinese officials declare they have imperial authority for stating that the foreign ministers left Pekin for Tien Tsin via Pao Tin Fu on June 26. They had passports and were escorted by a strong body of Chinese troops.

The adventures of the troops with Admiral Seymour, their reaching Anting, 12 miles from Pekin, the decision to retreat, the capture of rice and immense store of modern arms and ammunition, affording material for a strenuous defense until relieved—all this is told in a dispatch from Admiral Seymour, received by the admiralty at midnight, which runs as follows:

"Tien Tsin, June 27, via Che Foo, June 29, 10:05 p. m.—Have returned to Tien Tsin with the forces, having been unable to reach Pekin by rail. On June 13 two attacks on the advanced guard were made by the Boxers, who were repulsed with considerable loss to them and none on our side.

"On June 14 the Boxers attacked the train at Lang Yang in large numbers and with great determination. We repulsed them with a loss of about 100 killed. Our loss were five Italians.

"The same afternoon the Boxers attacked the British guard left to protect Lofa station. Reinformecents were sent back and the enemy were driven off with 100 killed. Two of our seamen were wounded.

"We pushed forward to Anting and engaged the enemy on June 13 and June 14, inflicting a loss of 175. There were no casualties on our side.

"Extensive destruction of the railway in our front having made further advance by rail impossible I decided on June 16 to return to Yang Tsun, where it was proposed to organize an advance by the river to Pekin. After my departure from Lang Yang two trains, left to follow on, were attacked on June 18 by Boxers and imperial troops from Pekin, who lost from 400 to 500 killed. Our casualties were six killed and 48 wounded. These trains joined me at Yang Tsun the same evening.

"The railway at Yang Tsun was found entirely demolished and the trains, it is not believed, moved. The force being short of provisions and hampered with wounded compelled us to withdraw on Tien Tsin, with which we had not been in communication for six days, and our supplies had been cut off.

"On June 19 the wounded, with necessaries, started by boat, the forces marching alongside the river. Opposition was experienced during the whole course of the river from nearly every village, the Boxers, when defeated in one village, retiring to the next and skilfully retarding our advance by occupying well selected positions, from which they had to be forced, often at the point of the bayonet and in the face of a galling fire difficult to locate.

"On June 23 we made a night march, arriving at daybreak opposite the imperial armory above Tien Tsin, where, after friendly advances, a treacherous heavy fire was opened while our m were exposed on the opposite river bank. The enemy were kept in check by riff fire in front, while their position was turned by a party of marines and seamen under Major Johnson, who rushed and occupied one of the salient points, seizing the guns. The Germans, lower down, silenced two guns and then crossed the river and captured them. The armory was next occupied by the combined forces. Determined attempts to retake the armory were made on the following day, but unsuccessfully.

"Found immense stores of guns, arms and ammunition of the latest pattern. Several guns were mounted in our defense and shelled the Chinese forts lower down.

"Having found ammunition and rice we could have held out for some days; but being hampered with large numbers of wounded, I sent to Tien Tsin for a relieving force, which arrived on the morning of June 25. The armory was evacuated and the forces arrived at Tien Tsin on June 26. We burned the armory.

"Casualties to date: British killed 27, wounded 75; Americans killed 4, wounded 25; French killed 1, wounded 10; Germans killed 12, wounded 62; Italians killed 5, wounded 3; Japanese killed 2, wounded 3; Austrians killed 1, wounded 1; and Russians killed 10, wounded 27."

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Distributive Trade Dull—Railroad Earnings Show Gain Over Last Year.

New York, June 30.—Bradstreet's says: Distributive trade is dull, seasonably so in most instances, and prices of manufactured products are generally weak, but exceptions to the former are found where crop conditions are exceptionally promising, and in the case of prices where the readjusting movement has been overdone on the down side. Railway earnings negative the early predictions of a widespread slump in business, showing, as they do, continued satisfactory gains over a year ago. Clearings are smaller than of late, reflecting some quieting down in speculation, but fail to show a widening unfavorable margin as compared with last year. With the exception of wheat, farm products generally are higher in price, partly because of crop damage reports, but also because of sympathy with advances in many agricultural products.

The upward rush of wheat prices culminated at the close of last week and the reactions and irregularity since, mainly due to heavy realizing, would point to the movement having been, temporarily at least, overdone.

The industrial situation has been improved at Chicago by the practical collapse of the building trades' strike after 22 weeks, during which $17,000,000 in wages have been lost by the men. The St. Louis strike is now practically a matter of history, though the boycott still continues, and the only unsatisfactory feature is the unsettled outlook as to wages in the iron and steel trade and in the southern coal industry. A rather better demand is noted for lumber at several markets.

The earnings of 61 roads for the third week of June aggregate $8,679,000, a gain of 10 percent over last year. Detailed dispatches show that relatively best reports come from west of the Mississippi and south of Minnesota. Cancellations of orders are reported numerous from the northern half of the spring wheat belt, and implement manufacturers are slow to buy iron, owing to poor demand. Money is in demand to move crops in the southwest. Minneapolis reports lumber mills closed for lack of logs.

Business is still good on the Pacific coast. At the east business in textiles is rather dull, but in boots and shoes the claim is made that early reports of dull business have been exaggerated and a more cheerful disposition is noted among jobbers.

Says He Didn't Steal Gould Jewels.

New York, June 30.—Jewels, valued at about $5000, recently stolen from the apartments o Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould in the Carlton hotel, London, have been recovered here, and the man in whose possession the jewels were found, an i who is thought to have taken them from the rooms of the Goulds in London, is under arrest. The prisoner describes himself as Charles W. Blair, 28 years old, born in Australia, unmarried, and a valet by occupation. Blair first attracted the attention of the detectives at Coney Island on Tuesday night, where he had been to witness a prize fight. He tried to dispose of some jewelry and a chamois bag, done up in plain manila paper, was found upon him. In the bag was a glittering array of gems. Several of the more expensive articles bore the mark of a prominent jewelry firm here, and a member of the firm easily identified the articles as being the property of Mrs. Edwin Gould. The prisoner has been remanded until tomorrow. He positively denies that he stole the jewels, but says th.t they were given to him by a woman whom he met at Coney Island, who asked him to dispose of them for her.

Maho y Looked Amateurish.

Chicago, June 30.—"Syracuse Tommy" Ryan easily gained the verdict over "Young Mahoney' of Philadelphia before the Dearborn Athletic club last night after six rounds of rather slow work. Ryan, who was in splendid condition, apparently completely outclassed the Philadelphia boy, whose work, though clever, looked amateurish in front of Ryan. Ryan, however, did not try for a knockout, but contented himself with out-pointing him. Mahoney weighed about 146 pounds and Ryan in the neighborhood of 150. The preliminaries were tame. Billy Kendall, the ex-amateur champion bantam weight, and Frank Brown of Chicag fought a six-round draw. Dave Barry of Toronto knocked out Jack Smith of Chicago in the second round.

Roosevelt Means to Have a Good Time.

New York, June 30.—Governor Roosevelt left the Grand Central depot Friday evening for Oklahoma. He was plainly dressed and wore a military campaign hat. The governor's companions were H. C. Pollock, Arthur F. Cosby and Dave Goodrich. At Chicago he will be joined by Sherman Bell. The latter and Pol lock will travel with the governor during the present campaign. Before leaving for the west, Governor Roosevelt said: "I lunched with Senator Platt today and at the Union league clubhouse met General Green and President Benjamin Wheeler of the University of California. I am going to Oklahoma to have a good time and shall not touch at Kansas City at all." Governor Roosevelt occupied an ordinary berth.

Claims Undue Influence.

New Haven, June 30.—In the probate court Friday, Mrs. Nellie Black of Brooklyn gave notice through her attorney that the will of the late Miss Caroline L. Smith, who died a week ago, would be contested. Mrs. Black is a niece of the deceased. Miss Smith left an estate valued at about $100,000, and more than half of this was bequeathed to Wilhelmina Pfister, who had been in her employ for many years. It is understood the contest will be made on the ground that Miss Pfister exercised undue influence.

Tool Steel Combination.

Pittsburg, June 30.—Representatives of 90 percent of the tool steel manufacturers of the country have completed arrangements for a combination of all the interests into one concern. Within 30 days the combination will be known as the Crucible Steel company of America, and will operate under a New Jersey charter, and be capitalized at $50,000,000.

THE DAY THEY CELEBRATED.

A FOURTH OF JULY ROMANCE BY PETER M'ARTHUR.

[Copyright, 1900, by P. McArthur.]

MONG the very first families to reach Ongiara for the summer season were the Greshams and the Davises. It is doubtful if either of them could tell exactly why they had closed their town houses so early, and the two who were chiefly responsible would have denied using their influence if they had been accused. And, anyway, neither would have thought of accusing the other. The Greshams and Davises lived in different cities during the winter, but it so happened that they had selected Ongiara as the choicest spot on the great lakes for their summer outing. They had tried it for the first time on the previous year, and it was in that way that Jack Gresham and Polly Davis first met. They had met only a few times, but were so congenial that all winter they had been thinking of each other, and it was due to their influence exerted on their respective families that the flitting took place as early as May. And when they met they immediately began to act as if they had known each other for years and had been in the habit of meeting every day. It is strange, but true, that people who are acquainted and think about each other a great deal find their friendship ripens just as quickly when they are apart as if they were associating daily.

Jack and Polly promptly began to enjoy the beauties of Ongiara in company. They organized botanizing parties of two, went boating and fishing, and discovered that at no time of the day is the air so invigorating or long walks so healthful as in the early evening.

But, although they were inseparable, neither of them was aware of the fact, for nothing had happened to make them study the state of their hearts. Of course they were teased by their friends, but they were so sure of the platonic character of their friendship that they didn't mind in the least. One evening about the middle of June, however, something unexpected happened.

"I have made up my mind," said Polly as she swung in the hammock that Jack kept in motion, "to celebrate the first Fourth of July in the new century by doing something unusual, though I haven't decided yet what it shall be."

"Well, you have plenty of time to make up your mind."

"Not so very much—only about two weeks."

"About a year and two weeks, you mean, don't you?" said Jack.

"Certainly not," Polly retorted, with a slight show of temper. "Now, surely you are not one of the cranks that try to prove that the new century does not begin till the beginning of the year 1901."

"Oh, I don't know that I am so particularly cranky in thinking so, and, anyway, I have the majority of the world with me."

"Well, Matthew Arnold used to say that the majority is always wrong, and it most decidedly is in this case."

"I don't see how on earth you can say so. The argument is just as clear as a pikestaff."

"Well, I'd like to have a look at that pikestaff. I suppose the argument you refer to is the one about dollars and paying them out one at a time until you have paid 100."

The tone in which this was said exasperated Jack by its condescension, and he answered in the same strain.

"Not by any means. The argument I use is much simpler and suited to any grade of intelligence."

"Indeed," said Polly. "Would you mind prattling it out?"

"Not in the least. Let us suppose that we have 100 volumes of 365 pages each and each divided into 12 chapters. The first volume would be volume 1, and so on to volume 100, and if I started to read them I couldn't say that they were all read until I had completed the three hundred and sixty-fifth page of volume 100, and in the same way a century cannot be complete until the three hundred and sixty-fifth day of its hundredth year has elapsed."

"That's no argument at all," said Polly. "Books and years are entirely different things."

"But each book represents a year."

"No, it doesn't; not any more than that cow out there on the commons does. You surely have studied rhetoric even if you haven't studied metaphysics." (Polly was rather proud of her Wellesley education.) "And you should know that you must never compare a thing that is concrete with a thing that is abstract. Time is something abstract, and the measurement of it should be compared with another abstraction."

"NO, IT DOESN'T, NOT ANY MORE THAN THAT COW OUT THERE."

"I'm sure I don't know what on earth you are talking about with your concrete and abstract."

"I didn't suppose you would. But I have a way of explaining my position that is also suited to every grade of intelligence."

"Indeed," said Jack, recalling his own angry remark and her reply to it. "Would you mind prattling it for my benefit?"

"Not in the least. I suppose you have noticed that on my bicycle there is a thing called a cyclometer. It registers the number of miles that I travel."

"Well?"

"When I travel one mile, it registers 1, and when it has registered 100 my first century is completed. In the same way when it registers 1,900 miles it means that I have completed 19 centuries, and I immediately begin my twentieth. Now, we have registered 1,900 years, and for that reason 19 centuries are complete. It is just the same with the age of a person. I was 18 on my last birthday, and I say that I am 18 years old, and the Christian era was just 1,900 years old on its last birthday."

"Oh! I suppose if one hunted around for it they could find some exception that would prove anything, but I can't see for the life of me that miles are a bit more like years than books are."

"Well, if you can't it is because you don't know any better," said Polly hotly as she jumped out of the hammock.

"Well," said Jack, with an air of lofty decision, "I may not know much about the kind of arguments that they teach in ladies' colleges, but I know more about some people than I did."

"I suppose you mean that for me, Mr. Gresham. Well, I don't know that it is any particular business of yours knowing anything about me one way or the other."

"I am glad you think so, Miss Davis, and I hope that your celebration of the last Fourth of July of the century will be a notable one."

"The first in the new century!" she snapped.

"Nonsense!"

"Idiot!"

"Woof!"

Having thus reduced their vocabularies to inarticulate sounds, they separated in high dudgeon, fully resolved that never again would they speak or recognize one another on the street. During the two weeks preceding the Fourth of July they both spent most of their time in carefully avoiding each other and for that very reason met more frequently, because one was afraid of meeting the other in their old favorite haunts and for that reason kept away from them.

"Now all my summer's fun is spoiled," Polly said to herself at least a dozen times. "And all on account of that thick headed Jack Gresham. Well, I'm glad I found him out, anyway. If we had been together all the time, there is no knowing what might have happened, and just think of having to go through life with such a stupid! But, oh, dear, I wish we hadn't quarreled just now or that there were some other young men in town that were any fun. But all the other young men are silly, and at the worst he is only stupid. Dear me, but I am lonesome!"

JACK MARCHED GRAVELY UP TO THE DAVIS COTTAGE.

Jack's meditations for the two weeks might be condensed into a paragraph about as follows:

"There is no getting around it, I was falling in love with her, but it is a good thing I found her out when I did. Whew, what a spitfire she is! And then think of having to live with a woman who thinks she knows more than you do!

"But, oh, ye lords of ladies intellectual,
Inform us truly, have they not henpecked you all?

"Guess I'll go fishing today. No, I'll be hanged if I will! I'll go botanizing. But darn botanizing anyway!"

By the 3d of July they were both lonely and very miserable, and Polly had not yet decided on her unique celebration. She had thought of exasperating Jack by buying a lot of set pieces, each putting the number 20 in some different way, and getting her little brother to set them up in some conspicuous place where Jack could not help seeing them from his home. But still that would not be so very much fun after all. Jack, on the other hand, discovered during the two weeks of the quarrel that not only had he been in danger of falling in love with Polly, but that he was in love with her, and he argued himself into the conviction that if they could only get into the new century safely they would have a hundred years ahead of them before there would be any chance of anything arising so exasperating as this end of the century dispute. After he had arrived at this conclusion an idea came to him that was remarkably bright, even Polly afterward admitted, for such a stupid fellow. On the forenoon of the Fourth of July Jack took an American flag in one hand and a flag of truce in the other and marched gravely up to the Davis cottage. Polly smiled in spite of herself and granted the armistice.

"Have you decided yet on the unusual celebration that you were thinking of for the last Fourth of July of the century?"

"For the first of the new century," said Polly.

"Never mind that," said Jack. "I don't care when the new century begins. All I know is that I will not be happy in it unless you agree to begin it with me. Why not celebrate this Fourth by getting engaged? And we can celebrate the next by getting married, and then we'll be sure of celebrating the right day."

Polly was so taken by surprise that she didn't even say, "This is so sudden!" Instead she disappeared quickly into the grape arbor, while Jack followed. When they emerged again, they had agreed thoroughly that they didn't care when any old century began, and two Fourth of July celebrations had been arranged for instead of one.

HAPPY HOURS WITH THE BIRDS.

Clifford Taylor, of the Seventh Grade of the Coddington School, Quincy's Boy Naturalist.

This year the class have studied birds together, and I enjoyed it more than I ever did before. I think I have had my eyes open more and have seen more birds than I ever did before. Although I have travelled through the woods for six years, I never kept any account of the birds I saw. This year I have a diary, so am going to tell how I have enjoyed this spring more than any other.

As soon as it grows warm in the Southern states many birds return to our Northern states to begin their summer labors. They seem to be overjoyed that they have returned to their summer residences, and at once begin the hard task of making the nest.

One of these birds who returns north and whose plumage is very beautiful is our friend the rosebreasted grosbeak. He is one of the family of grosbeaks, all of whom are fine singers, and whose plumage is beautiful. Early in May his call note "chur-r-r-peak" may be heard in the day time but toward night he may be seen sitting high in the trees singing a most beautiful song which is charming to hear.

The nest of this bird is loosely built of sticks and is lined with a few pieces of hay. So loosely built is the nest that the five pale blue eggs blotched with brown may be seen through the crevices, if standing beneath the nest. I was travelling through the woods this spring and when walking under a tree, I noticed on the ground an egg which was pale blue with brown spots on it. On looking above my head I noticed a grosbeak's nest. In it were three eggs, one of which was being held up by four straws. I climbed the tree carefully for fear the least jar of the limb would shake the egg through the nest. When I reached the limb where the nest was placed I reached over, lifted the egg gently and placed a piece of cotton batten over the hole. I then descended the tree, and watched to see what the consequence would be when the bird came back to the nest. When the bird came she seemed to be well pleased with what I had done, and at once went to the nest. In visiting the nest four weeks later I found instead of eggs four young grosbeaks. I stayed and watched the nest a few minutes and saw the old birds come to the nest with something in their mouths. In a few seconds the birds put a morsel in each of their hungry mouths, and then, flew away to a field nearby where they stole a few grains of winter rye seed to feed their young. The grosbeak if treated well can be tamed and will make a fine singer.

A FRIENDSHIP.

Early this spring I caught an old grosbeak and had it for a month. After I had had Jack, as we called the grosbeak, for about three weeks, my mother had given to her an African cockatoo, and they both soon became friends. The cockatoo would whistle and talk in bird fashion to the grosbeak, and the grosbeak would sing his song back. The two birds became fast friends, and if one was hung up in his cage above the other they would look and cock their eyes up and down in order that they might see each other. Then they would whistle to each other and would have a fine time. After our two friends had become bound together, a sad thing happened, which Polly will always remember. One day Jack got cold, and died two days later. We all missed Jack for he had become one of the family to us. Sad days now for Polly, as her only bird friend was gone. For a whole week she would not even whistle, but would sit with her head drawn back and eyes closed. Now and then she would eat a few seeds, or take a drink of water, which is always close by her. Finally her grief grew less, but I think by her actions that Polly has not forgotten her befriended bird, as at times when a chicken runs past the window, if she be whistling, she will instantly stop.

I hope Polly will not become sick over her ill-fate, as is often the case in human life.

A BIRD THIEF.

I will tell you now about a bird who is beautiful, but who is a thief. He is as you know the blue-jay, a mischievous thieving rascal who can't be trusted out of sight. In my travels through the woods this spring I have found two blue-jay's nests, and not far from them is a robin's nest.

One morning about eight o'clock Mr. Jay thought he would visit the Robin's nest and get a nice pretty egg for his mate, who had eggs of her own, not far off. Mr. Jay flew quietly to the nest while Mr. and Mrs. Robin were at a brook not far away, getting their morning meal and drink. He had alighted and had put his beak into an egg. He was just going to fly away to his mate with his bounty when, to his great surprise, Mrs. Robin came back to the nest. Then there was a scream from Mrs. Robin and almost before the jay knew what was about him, he was attacked by a pair of orioles, another pair of robins who had their nests not far away, and Mr. and Mrs. Robin themselves.

Then Mr. Jay, like a wise bird, would not face so large an enemy, so started to fly away. Mrs. Robin, who knew the male bird would not attack her, flew at the jay. In a minute all the birds were attacking the thief and for a few seconds there was a scream, and the air was full of flying feathers, which were later collected by the sparrows for their nests. Mr. and Mrs. Robin kept up the chase till Mr. Jay was safe on a limb by his mate's side. I am afraid Mr. Jay did not visit any nests for a while.

Near the other blue-jay's nest was a Wilson-Thrush's nest. This bird resembles his cousin, the brown thrush. When I found the thrush's nest there were four eggs in it. On visiting it a few days later I found in the nest two eggs with holes in them. Around the tree were three broken eggs shells and the two eggs in the nest had no yolk in them. I at once laid this to a blue-jay, as the hole was about the size of the one in the robin's egg.

As there were no thrushes to be seen, I took the nest from its natural resting place and now have it on mantle in my room. I think the other jay must have visited this nest but I rather think he did it when the owner was not at home.

THRUSH AND BLUE BIRDS.

The thrush is a beautiful singer and a very fast runner. The brown thrush and Wilson thrush are both very common in this part of the country.

Early this spring I found a blue bird's nest with two eggs in it. Later, I found another in an old stump with six eggs in it. I think I have seen more than I ever did before One Sunday, when I was out for a stroll, I saw a small flock of scarlet tanagers which had returned to an oak grove. Later in the same grove I found two scarlet tanagers nests, one containing three eggs and the other five. These beautiful scarlet birds with black tails and wings are fine singers, but are not good house makers. They build a loose nest of straw, sticks, and long strips of bark which is very soft. In it they lay fine greenish eggs blotched with brownish red.

I am always traveling through the woods looking for wild flowers or a birds' nest, so I cannot mention all the bird's I have seen, as it would take a great many pages. So I will mention a few and tell short stories about them. This year I have found more nests than I ever did before, because I have watched for them.

I will name a few birds which were interesting for me to watch and which you would find interesting if you watched long enough. Among the rarest that I have seen this year, are birds which live in the south or west. One of these is the great crested fly-catcher. He is a beautiful bird and lays one of the handsomest eggs I ever saw. Their nest is made of snake skins and a few feathers. It is placed in a hollow of a tree and in it are laid from two to five eggs. The food consists of snakes and other reptiles. This bird is very useful in this way as he eats many harmful pests.

THE WARBLER FAMILY.

The warbler family is large and many of them can be seen in this part of the country. The black-throated blue, the black-throated green, the chestnut sided yellow, and red-start warblers are all common birds of this State. The little yellow warbler, and in fact all of his family, are always on the jump moving from one limb to another in search of those harmful canker-worms. This bird is a fine singer and builder. His neat little nest is placed in a crotch of a tree or limb usually very low. Perhaps this is the reason so many of this family have rotten eggs in their nests, after the others are hatched. I found a redstart's nest a short time ago with two young ones and three rotten eggs in it. This nest was placed about a foot above the ground on a currant bush, and when the wind swung the branch, the eggs were shaken so I think that's why there were so many rotten eggs.

I once watched a yellow warbler for about an hour hopping, jumping and singing all the time. There was not a limb on the tree he did not look over. At last I saw what he was after and eating. A canker-worm dropped from the limb he was on, and in a minute he dropped from the limb in pursuit of his food. The warblers together with the orioles are a great help to man, as they live entirely on worms and insects. A few days ago I saw an oriole on the ground fly to a limb on an elm tree. Then I heard a chat and on going under a limb I saw a nest with one young one being fed.

Although warblers and orioles are great eaters, phoebe-birds, fly catchers and many others are also. They are a great help as either the oriole or warbler. If you notice the trees you will see that many of them are almost leafless. What would it be if it were not for our birds.

I have travelled through the woods and fields and have seen many birds, in fact, I cannot name all of them, but I will name a few.

In the meadows I have seen many larks and in the grain fields. I have seen bobolinks and many other birds. The robin and indigo-bunting, Maryland yellow-throat, chewink, red-winged blackbird, crow-blackbird, flicker, red-eyed vireo, cuckoo, downy woodpecker, goldfinch and black and white creepers are all common birds that inhabit this State. If I could think of them I could tell a great deal more about the birds.

I must not forget our friends the song-sparrows, for-sparrow, and their dreadful cousin the English sparrow. Perhaps the reason Mr. English Sparrow is such a fighter is because John Bull has such a strong navy and army. Of course you all know England has had a great many wars and has had excellent warriors, so maybe this is why her sparrows are such fighters. Although a frightful fighter he is easily surprised and glad to get away from his enemy the kingbird, who will attack from the smallest to the largest bird.

THEY STRUCK FOR LIBERTY

July 4, 1776, is a day to date from in the history of human progress in spite of the fact that the experiment in free government inaugurated that day was not a new thing among enlightened people. The example of ancient Athens might be called exceptional, but in the heart of Europe the Dutch republic existed for more than two centuries with rapacious monarchs all around the border and its own people divided as to the true seat of political sovereignty, whether in divine right or human. And for nearly 600 years the Swiss have maintained a republic against princely greed and the weakness of human nature.

The birth of true democracy in Athens was in the time of Solon. It was not won by fighting, but was afterward saved by the sword, especially at Marathon and Platea. Pericles, the shining light of Greece, established democracy in Athens by the overthrow of the aristocracy and afterward in the states which united with Athens in the period of her greatness. Under his influence and with a system of popular government wars were fought successfully, the arts and sciences flourished, and the common people shared fully in the general prosperity.

WASHINGTON.

LAFAYETTE.

The first great victory of the Swiss patriots was won at Morgarten, Nov. 16, 1315. That day 1,400 mountaineers defeated 20,000 Austrians and a league of four forest cantons formed a perpetual confederacy, celebrating Morgarten day as an anniversary. Later four other cantons united, and the confederacy fought for liberty against the Austrians at Sempach in 1,386 and Glarus in 1388.

Napoleon robbed the Swiss of their liberty, but after his fall the old free cantons, with new allies, adopted a constitution, which was ratified Aug. 7, 1815, the birthday of the present republic.

The anniversary which the whole English speaking race has cause to remember is Magna Charta day, June 15. On that day, 1215, the key to English liberties was wrung from King John by the nobility and the landholders. The uprising was due to the king's unparalleled cruelty, rapacity and misgovernment. After granting the great charter he attempted to subdue the patriot party, but died while taking the field with a vast army.

France was in turmoil at the time of the American Revolution. In 1774 the people demanded of Louis XVI an equable taxation, freedom of trade and manufactures and the abolition of jobbery and sinecures. The ancient state legislature, called the states general, which had been extinct 200 years, was convoked and met May 1, 1789. The mandate of this body, in which the third estate, or common people, were all powerful, was for revolution. Lafayette commanded the national guard until he was exiled by the extremists. The battle which established the constitution was fought at Almy Sept. 2, 1792.

Sympathy with the French revolution cost the people of the Dutch republic their own freedom, for Napoleon imposed the monarchy there once he was in power. The Dutch broke loose from Spain by revolution, and the republic twice defeated England. John of Barneveldt was the hero of the Netherlands. He favored a legislature superior to the executive, or stadtholder, and was martyred for his principles.

KOSSUTH.

KRUGER.

The American and French revolutions had given such an impetus to aspirations for freedom that the ancient monarchies formed the Holy Alliance to suppress liberty. The revolution in Spain in 1820, which spread to Portugal and Italy, was suppressed by the alliance, but Spain lost her American colonies in the struggle. Inspired by Kosciusko, who had fought under Washington the Poles invoked the sword in the name of liberty in 1791. The struggle was a long one, and the fate of Poland was finally sealed by the alliance of Prussia and Austria with Russia.

The French alone came out of the widespread revolution of 1848 with triumph. In Italy the patriots fought and lost. Hungary, which declared its independence of Austria April 24, 1849, fought bravely under Kossuth, but Russia joined her ancient ally in suppressing the patriots. In Germany the revolution was quickly suppressed.

Ireland's greatest rebellion was that of May, 1798, when the United Irishmen compelled England to send immense armies to the field. That of 1803 was abortive, and young Robert Emmet died on the scaffold.

Mexico and Chile took advantage of Napoleon's usurpation of Spanish power in 1810 to rebel. Mexico was reconquered, but after many revolutions against dictators and foreign powers the present republic was established in 1867.

KOSCIUSKO.

BOLIVAR.

The sword of General San Martin, the deliverer of Chile, helped also to give Peru her independence July 28, 1821. Cuba, the last of Spain's American colonies to throw off the yoke, entered upon a ten years' struggle April 10, 1869. The last uprising started Feb. 24, 1895.

Among the scores of names venerated by the republicans of South America that of Bolivar stands highest as a fighting champion of liberty. He fought for and ruled over Venezuela and Peru, founded the republic of Bolivia out of northern Peru and was president of the republic of Colombia, which included Venezuela and Granada, the last named one of his conquests.

England's declaration that the independence of the South African republics shall be destroyed gives the world a spectacle without a parallel in the history of struggles for liberty. The Boers have been free for two generations, with the exception of four years, between 1877 and 1881, when the Transvaal was annexed by England. The Orange Free State became a republic in 1854 by the voluntary action of England, but the Transvaal won its independence by fighting at Laingsnek and Majuba Hill in 1881 under a revolutionary declaration made Dec 16, 1880. This date was the anniversary of Dingaan's daag, long celebrated as the original independence day of the Boers. Paul Kruger, Pretorius and Piet Joubert conducted the government as a triumvirate until peace was established. Then Kruger was elected president.

Good Afternoon.

Glorious weather like today is all that is needed to make next Wednesday a Glorious Fourth.

No Democrat has yet said that our constitution followed our flag into China.

The Ledger is proud of its Fourth of July literature and illustrations today. We feel that young and old will be interested.

As Gov. Roosevelt's term expires January 1, 1901, and his inauguration as Vice President will not occur until March, there is no reason for him to resign the governorship.

The Kansas City platform-makers can't find a trust plank strong enough to safely carry the Tammany ice wagon across the campaign bridge.

The action of Congress, in kicking Roberts out, was vindicated by the Utah jury which found him guilty of unlawful cohabitation and fined him $150, or 150 days in jail.

An odd strike is that of the Cuban laborers employed by the Havana Electric Light Co. Their grievance is that Americans working for the company receive more wages than they do.

If the American masses support the Boer cause, as the Boer envoys claim, they do more than the Boer masses, either in the Transvaal or the Orange Free State, are doing. Over there the Boer masses, including sons of Kruger, have returned to their farms and are engaged in suppporting their families.

The Educational column which has appeared in the Saturday Ledger for several weeks, has been edited by Mr. H. W. Lull, our Superintendent of Schools. Because of the vacation season, and the fact that Mr. Lull will not continue as superintendent after September 1, he relinquishes today his duties as editor. The comments and quotations which have appeared in this department have given Ledger readers the advanced ideas along educational lines, and have been instructive as well as interesting. The department may be continued in September with another editor.

A rather remarkable essay on a boy's observation of birds in Quincy this year is printed in this issue. In the seventh grade of our public schools birds are studied, and while the work of Clifford Taylor of the Coddington school is above the average, it is surprising how much boys of this grade know about birds. It is the result of Nature study in our schools, and it is pleasing to know that pupils of today observe the things about them, and that they are so well posted; much better than the average adult who often times know very little about their every day surroundings. We should give our schools full credit for what they are doing.

The best all around Quincy gentleman thus far suggested for Superintendent of Schools seems to be Charles F. Merrick of Atlantic, now a sub-master in Boston. To his experience as principal in two of the schools of Quincy, and also in Boston, is to be added his services as a councilman of this city. None of the others mentioned have had a similar record. Mr. Merrick was elected a Councilman at large by a flattering vote and served on the Committee on Finance, and as chairman of the Committee on Ordinances. His record was economy, and when it comes to school matters he is opposed to frills. More might be said of his success as a teacher, prominence at Atlantic, and popularity generally. He has the endorsements of several teachers and prominent citizens for the election to the superintendency if he will but announce his candidacy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Promoters who have been annoyed by Gov. Crane's economica bent say he has sharpened his ax for next year, and state parks, boulevards and water works will have to sing low. Business administrations are tiresome to the boys.—Worcester Telegram.

☞ One of the most enthusiastic men who has been in Washington since the Republican convention was Mr. C. Leland, Jr., a member of the Kansas delegation. He says that President McKinley would have carried Kansas no matter who had been put on the ticket with him, but that the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt for vice-president, makes Kansas as certainly Republican as Pennsylvania. —Milford Journal.

☞ Admiral Dewey had trouble enough without his Chinese boy, to whom he is much attached, adding to the infliction by amateur attempts at playing the cornet. The would-be celestial musician, however, may be serviceable in standing off interviewers. It requires a newspaper man with nerves of steel and an ear equal to the most unearthly of noises to stand the performance of embryo cornetist.—Brockton Times.

☞ There might be some decrease in the amount of passionate eloquence devoted to upholding the right of barbarous and semi-civilized peoples and nations to govern themselves and their uninvited visitors in accordance with their own ideas, if the orators would only reflect on the fact that the coercive measures which seem so unjust to them are reproductions on a larger scale of those applied to individuals whenever urban replace rural conditions. The man far from the city cannot do quite everything he chooses on his own land, but he is vastly more independent than he is after the city spreads out and takes him in, whether he likes it or not. In the first period, he can keep pigs and cows to his heart's content; he can build wooden houses and barns if he prefers them to those of brick or stone; he can empty is ashes in the most convenient places, and he follows his own inclination in dozens of ways ruthlessly denied to the dweller in the city. A change annalogous to that which comes upon the farm without causing a single mass meeting is creeping over the whole world. The habits of savages and barbarians once troubled few people or none; now, with the shortening of distances, and the more or less nearly necessary mingling of each nation with every other, those habits have become simply unendurable. Civilization is spreading to the remotest lands, and the hitherto permissible and even sacred privileges of their natives must be and therefore will be curtailed. No man has a right to keep pigs when the pigs offend a considerable number of neighbors, and races that refuse to fall in with the prevailing notions of the time will find themselves in serious trouble. It is easy to put bitterly sarcastic quotation marks around Manifest Destiny, but opposition to it is none the less hopeless.—New York Times.

The Senate voted "to insist" yesterday on the stand it took on the Weymouth Fore River bridge bill.

All of Quincy will be included in the free postal delivery next week. At first it was the intention of the government to add only Wollaston and Norfolk Downs to the Quincy district, but Atlantic was anxious for the same privileges as the rest of the city, and by request it was announced yesterday that Atlantic would also be added at the same time as Wollaston, viz. next Monday.

Both Wollaston and Atlantic will become stations of Quincy, and it is also understood that there will be a station at Norfolk Downs.

Anecdote of Rev. Dr. Storrs.

A writer in the Rockland Standard gives the following anecdote of the late Dr. Storrs: The death of Rev. R. S. Storrs, D. D., of Brooklyn doubtless the largest patterned pulpit orator among the Congregationalists in recent years gives opportunity for relating a local anecdote of him.

The ministerial Association at which he was licensed to preach was held in the parlor of Rev. Willard Pierce, North Abington, in 1845. After the examination of the candidate was over, and the vote to approbate him had been passed, the exercises of the morning being ended, and the hour for dinner drawing on, there was a time of general good cheer and animated conversation. The father of the candidate was the celebrated Rev. Dr. Storrs of Braintee, whose long pastorate there of over fifty years is one of the notable events of the New England ministry; and of course was present, a deeply interested sharer in the proceedings.

Somehow the conversation turned onto the question whether it was advisable for parents to allow their sons to follow their own bent in choosing the course of life they would pursue. With great earnestness Dr. Storrs, the father took the negative. No, said he, not by any means; for when this young man was a boy, making a gesture toward his son, "his highest ambition was to drive a stage from Braintree to Boston," at which all the company exploded with laughter, and the question was overwhelmingly settled as he would have it.

And yet even in that "highest ambition" the boy foreshadowed the man. When that boy had that ambition, driving stage from Braintree to Boston was the largest field for the exercise of high energy in sight (for the railroad had not yet come there), and he sought, even as a boy, the highest opportunity for energetic and masterly activity that was open at the time. And that same eager energy of action was the underlying continental force that lifted him up to the eminence which he attained.

While this talk was going on, the father and son were sitting side by side on the sofa, which was placed on the east side of the room. Mrs. Eleanor W. Pierce, widow of Rev. Mr. Pierce, and the saint of North Abington told me the story; and the sofa on which the father and son sat, is now in that parlor.

Big Engine is Speedy.

Railway men of all classes are watching with much interest the tests of the "1200 series" of engines of the Rock Island road, the largest running out of Chicago in passenger service. Engine No. 1201 was given its first severe test for power and speed last week. The patrons of the Rock Island's first excursion to Colorado occupied fourteen of the largest and heaviest coaches. This was enough for two trains to be pulled by ordinary passenger engines of the day, considering the speed required. The big engine did all that was expected of it and more. Between Chicago and Rock Island it pulled that train of fourteen coaches with ease on schedule time, and when called on for a little extra effort developed a speed of over 72 miles an hour.

Engines of that class will haul all the special trains which will be used by the Rock Island in its series of Colorado excursions, at the rate of one fare plus $2.00 for the round trip. Three more excursions will be given, leaving here July 9, July 17 and August 1. The departure of the special trains will be 4.45 p. m., but on the dates named excursion tickets will also be honored on all regular trains. The special trains to be used are high class throughout. Through dining car service is provided and the run from Chicago to Colorado is made with only one night on the road. Excursion rates will be made to Colorado and Utah from all points on the line of the Rock Island between the Missouri River and Chicago.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Buying Ducks.

There are two ways of securing a duck.

The easy and cheap way is to go to the market and make your selection. The other way is to buy a gun, ammunition, shooting suit, decoys, and a dog; travel about forty miles on the train; hire a guide and a boat; slop around in the mud for thirty-six hours in a soaking down-pour, miss the only duck you see and buy one at the market on your way home.

We have all been through that experience. It's tough enough in duck shooting, but it's ghastly when you meet it in business. And you sometimes do.

AT THE SHIP YARD

A Portion of One of Large Building Erected.

Massive Punching Machines from England.

Electricity to be Largely Used for Power at Plant.

Work has progressed so far at the plant of the Eastern Dock and Construction Co. that its growth toward completion is readily noticeable, although it will be some time yet before it is ready for occupancy.

The trusses of the roof of the massive steel building are being put up, and as this building is a shell it will not be long before it is completed. In fact quite a section of the roof is already up.

A spur track has been laid to the run where the keel of the Des Moines is to be laid, and the earth now being excavated is taken by dump cars to a spot near the power house and used for filling.

Over on the point opposite New Downer Landing, a section of the wharf has been completed. Vessels loaded with lumber arrive here, and the lumber is taken from the vessel onto a run and loaded onto the cars, which transport it to the place where it is to be used.

Much of the massive machinery to be used has already arrived. The last to come was the punching machines, which were manufactured in England. These are at present on the wharf, but will be moved later to the building, where they are to be set up.

The two 125 horse power boilers for the power house, which is located just west of the machine shop, have arrived and are being put in position.

It is not perhaps, generally known, that electricity is to be largely used for power at the plant. These two boilers generate the steam that drives the motors, which will supply the power.

By using this power a large amount of shafting will be done away with, and besides, this a large amount of power usually lost by friction is saved.

The three trip hammers for the blacksmith shop have arrived, and the foundations are being made ready to receive them The largest of these strikes an eighteen ton blow. This is the second largest machine built. It takes an enormous amount of power to turn this machinery, which will readily be comprehended when it is understood that four large boilers will be required to furnish steam for this one piece of machinery. These four boilers are on the ground, and when set up will be connected together as one boiler.

The railroad tracks are now laid from the extreme eastern to the extreme western point of the plant, while numerous spur tracks run to various parts of the extensive works.

It might be said that the wharf built is only temporary. It will be enlarged from time to time as required. Much of the point of land back of this wharf will be excavated and the place utilized as slips for vessels, and a part of it will also be made into a dry dock.

If the electric car which met with such a disaster in Boston, yesterday, was running at the rate of 40 miles an hour, as reported, it is time that something was done to regulate the speed.

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

No Ledger next Wednesday.

Changeable weather last night, enlivened by a smart shower.

The bill to regulate blasting was engrossed in the Senate yesterday.

Several Wollaston boys leave next Thursday to camp on Monadnock island, Me.

The young ladies at City Hall will be the guests of Capt. Baker on the yacht Ziska this afternoon.

The Unitarian Sunday School went by barges to Randolph grove this morning for the annual picnic.

The plasterers are now at work on the interior of the new Music hall. The only change in rebuilding is a higher stage.

The choir boys of Christ church and St. Chrysostom's church will go to Cohasset next Tuesday to camp two weeks.

Miss Amelia Bumpus and sister have moved from Granite to Spear street, into the house owned by Mr. Franklin Hardwick.

Miss Ruth Hayden, the valedictorian of the class of 1900, Q. H. S., has accepted a position in the Tax Collector's office.

The Sunday school of Bethany church is enjoying its annual picnic at Hayward grove this afternoon. There is a large attendance.

F. Munroe Perry, superintendent of the Boston, Milton and Brockton street railroad is to occupy one of the new houses on Otis street, East Milton.

A fine McKinley and Roosevelt flag was thrown out to the breeze over Canton avenue, Milton on Saturday. It is probably the first campaign flag put out in the state.

The regular praise and preaching service held each Sabbath evening at 7.30 o'clock, at the Wollaston Methodist church will be continued all through the summer. The service on Sunday evening, July 1st, will be of a patriotic character.

The Bay View Loyal Orange Lodge and kindred associations of Eastern Massachusetts will attend divine worship on Sunday, July 1st, at 10.30 A. M., in the United Presbyterian church when the pastor, Rev. W. W. Dornan will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Hustler Drags Anchor.

The "Hustler" of the Quincy Yacht club had a rough time off Wollaston beach last night. She came over from Houghs Neck early in the evening to attend the Squantum Yacht club's open race, which takes place today. During the night there was a shift in the wind, it hauling to the northwest and blowing sharp from that quarter for some time. Both anchors and plenty of cable were out, but withstanding these precautions she dragged over a mile towards Hangmans island ledges. Four reefs were finally tied into her sail and she then stood off shore for a lee anchorage.

Milton Graduates.

The graduates from the Milton High school this week were: Roger W. Bradlee, Cora B. Chestnut, George F. Choate, Jr., Florence M. Dame, Harold F. Furber, Catherine L. Gallant, Mary A. Gordon, Lucy E. Lawrence, Ethel G. Lawton, Annie F. Lusk, Sarah C. McKay, Jennie L. McIntyre, Mary E. Morrissey, Ella F. Neill, Margaret A. Peden, Mary M. Quillan, Annie R. Reynolds, Jessie A. Richards, Herbert W. Sanford, Mabel S. Sias, William H. Tucker, Josephine M. Watson.

EDUCATIONAL.

"Imagination and feeling increasingly bear the brunt of shaping human opinion and human conduct. Intelligence does its organizing work and then disappears below the surface. Much of life goes on without its active co-operation, just as many of our mental reactions, first organized in the brain, come to be carried on through the spinal cord alone."

"As the century closes the soundest educational philosophy the world over teaches that the individual alone is nothing, but that the individual as a member of a society and of a race is everything. Self-hood, which can only be attained by entering into the life-history and the experience of the race, is now put in the high place which was about to be rashly filled by Selfishness.

"True individualism, which would enrich the life of each with the possessions of all, is well-nigh supreme, and sham individualism, which would set every mans' hand against his fellow, is disposed of, let us hope forever. Education rests securely upon the continuous history of man's civilization, and looks, to the nature of each individual for guidance in the best methods of conducting him to his inheritance, but not for knowledge of what that inheritance is.

"In the light of the nineteenth century no man dare prophesy what the twentieth century will bring forth. We only know that a Democracy shielded by insight into the past and armed with trained minds, disciplined will and a scientific method is as ready as man's imperfect wisdom can make it for whatever may come in the future.

"We began to learn all over this country that government should not really be what for thousands of years government has been—the work of one arbitrary will, or of a few arbitrary wills; but rather that it should be government by the people for the people. We all began to think that the right conception of government for the citizen might teach us something concerning the government of a child. It occurred to us that, if self-government was the whole object of political freedom, then self-control might be the legitimate primary object of a child's development.

"Again, home discipline began to change for the better. Family government became gentler and all these changes in socity helped wonderfully to the beneficent change in the school. There has not been a more blessed change in the world than this change in home and school discipline from fear to love, from driving to leading. Wonderful has been the fruit of this change on the temper of our people and the happiness of our homes.

"A new motive is presented in our day to the teacher, the parent, and the children—the motive of joy through achievement. The great joy in life for us all, after the domestic affections, is doing something and doing it well, getting where we want to get and bringing others where they would like to be. Give every child, we say, the joy of achievement. Do not set it to do what you know it cannot do well. Set it to do what you know it can do well, and show it how.

"That is just what goes on in a happy kindergarten, or in a successful university conference or seminary. This is the new and happy aim in modern education—joy and gladness in achievement. I need not say that freedom is necessary to this joy. Schools used to set children doing things they could not do well. That is the unparponable sin in educational administration.

"It is not for the happiness of the children only that this new motive—to increase joy has come to bless us. It brings new happiness to the teacher also. It is means of happiness for everybody throughout life. As a result of the advent of this new policy we are learning not to use with children a motive that will not work when the children are grown up. To be sure, we must admit that this doctrine condemns almost all the school discipline of the past, and much of the family discipline but the future will not mind that, if it finds the new doctrine beneficent.

"We may define our modern civilization since the discovery of America, as a borderland civilization, and Shakespeare is the poet of the borderland. There is scarcely one of his plays that does not in one or more acts take its leading characters out of the civilization into the wild Uitland (or outer land). 'As You Like it' the forests of Arden becomes the chief resort; in 'The Winter's Tale,' the wilds of Bohemia; in 'The Tempest,' the far-off island in the still vexed Bermoothes; in 'A Mid-summer Night's Dream,' a wood outside of Athens; in 'Cymbeline,' the rocky hills of South Wales. When Shakespeare was beginning to write, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Francis Drake, and the great mariners of England had begun their exploration of the borderland and their struggle with the Spanish for the mastery of the new world.

"Not a savage people but shall be put to school to learn the two lessons of civilization—first, how to conquer nature by means of machinery; second, how to unite one's own locality with all the rest of humanity, not only by commercial exchange of goods and by productive industry, but especially by inter-communication of experience and ideas."

STUDY AND TRAVEL.

Quincy Teachers Will Not Be Idle During Vacation.

To be successful teachers it is necessary nowadays for teachers to improve the summer vacation season. Summer schools and institutes are established for them, while others travel, and thus become broader and more cosmopolitan.

Not until one sees the list does he realize the extent of the travels, and the work which Quincy teachers have planned. As far as the Ledger has been able to ascertain they will spend their vacations as follows:

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of Woodward Institute, held on Tuesday afternoon, it was voted that "a pupil shall be admitted to the Sixth class only upon presentation of a Principal's certificate of unconditional promotion to the highest grade of grammar school work, as determined by the requirements of the public schools of this city." Also "that admission to the Fifth class be granted to those girls only who present a certificate of unconditional promotion to the High School." Examinations will not be given.

By order of the Board,
Carrie E. Small, Principal.

There has been made at Milford, N. H. a very simple granite stone to mark the last resting place, on the knoll, at at Northfield, Mass., of the evangelist Dwight L. Moody. Although the marker at the grave is inconspicuous, past and present students at the Northfield school are endeavoring to erect a more enduring monument to take the form of a memorial endowment fund adequate to continue the work so ably begun by Mr. Moody. It is hoped to raise at least one hundred thousand dollars and already the students are meeting with good success, Miss Annie L. Prescott has been asked to raise money in this vicinity and has received about twenty-five dollars for the cause.

By a Massachusetts law of 1899 it is unlawful to attach names of political candidates to flags.

New York Delegation Will Not Oppose 16 to 1.

Sulzer Partisans Are Distributing Broadcast Badges and Small Circulars.

Kansas City, June 30.—There are plenty of candidates for the vice presidential nomination, and not so much talk about declinations as there was at Philadelphia, and at this distance the guessing is fully as indiscriminate. There are plenty of candidates, men who want the honor, and one does not hear much about declinations as there were among the Republicans. The aggressive men are Sulzer of New York and Towne of Minnesota, while the names in the background form a basis of speculation, there being such men as Benjamin F. Shively of Indiana and Judge A. B. Parker of New York who are considered as available. The belief is general that some kind of an endorsement from Colonel Bryan would be sufficient to name the candidate. There is an impression that good politics of the situation would mean the selection of a man from New York, and if a satisfactory candidate cannot be found there, then the next best thing to do would be to go to Indiana.

If Mr. Sulzer of New York is not nominated for vice president it will not be on account of any lack of booming on the part of his friends who are here. The managers, with B. D. O'Connell at their head, are losing no opportunity of making known the fact that Mr. Sulzer is not only in the race, but that he will win if he can. Badges bearing the words "Bryan and Sulzer and victory," with portraits of the men, are being distributed to all who will wear them, while another method of campaign has been adopted in spreading broadcast a small handbill. This document contains only a few words and quotes from a speech made by Champ Clark in the house of representatives, in which the Missouri man said:

"In this distinguished presence I nominate for vice president William Sulzer of New York, who is faithful to the cause at all times, in all places and under all circumstances. I honor Mr. Sulzer for his courage, his honesty and his fidelity exhibited amid environments which would discourage, dishearten and appal a more timid man."

An interview with Mr. Sulzer, then telegraphed from Lincoln and published here, quotes him as saying that he stood with Bryan on the Boer question and every other question. He also declared that the New York delegation would do whatever is best for the party, and if the convention wants 16 to 1, the delegation will not oppose it.

The selection of presiding officers of the convention has not yet been determined. The national committee will prepare the name of the temporary chairman, who will no doubt be endorsed by the convention. Mayor D. A. Rose of Milwaukee and Charles S. Thomas of Colorado have been suggested for temporary chairman. Representative James D. Richardson of Tennessee has been suggested for permanent chairman, as he acted as permanent chairman during a portion of the Chicago convention, when Senator White's voice failed.

Late advices from Lincoln, Neb., are to the effect that Mr. Bryan will not attend the convention.

May Be No Conviction.

Havana, June 30.—Each day the probabilities increase of an acquittal of the accused in the custom house fraud cases. The Cuban papers assert that every man charged with irregularities has satisfactorily explained his position and answered all accusations. The court itself takes Collector Bliss to task in reply. The collector says that whenever he did bring a charge, however strong the evidence of guilty, even if the accused were caught red-handed, the Cuban courts always threw the case out.

Cuban Postal Fraud Hearing Adjourned.

New York, June 30.—The hearing on a writ of extradition for Charles F. W. Neely, charged with embezzling many thousands of dollars from the postal department of Cuba, moved for in the United States circuit court yesterday, was adjourned until July 23. The motion was made in accordance with the provisions of the special extradition act passed by congress during its last session. Neely, who has been locked up in default of $50,000 bail, was in the court yesterday.

Wine Makers Not Exempt.

Washington, June 30.—The commissioner of internal revenue has held that a person who buys berries or any small fruits, except grapes, and makes wine therefrom, does not come within the exempting provision of section 3246 of the revised statutes in selling such wines and is required to pay special tax as a liquor dealer for selling it, even at the place of manufacture.

New Haven Man's Court Record.

New Haven, June 30.—John McGuire, alias "Red Jack," was arrested by the police here Friday charged with theft. This is the 114th time McGuire has been under arrest in this city, according to the police, and the crimes charged against him have ranged from petty larceny to burglary. He served two terms in state prison, and numerous terms in jail.

Woman Seriously Burned.

Lawrence, Mass., June 30.—Mrs. Charles Woodcock, wife of Policeman Woodcock, was seriously injured Friday. Mrs. Woodcock was cooking food on a gas stove which exploded. She was unconscious when neighbors arrived. She sustained severe burns about the head and shoulders, and is in a precarious condition.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

Belief That It Will Take British Six Months to Subdue the Boers.

London, June 30.—Active Boer guerilla operations are reported from half a dozen points in the Orange River colony.

Boer officials reports from Machadodorp aver that part of a British convoy was captured on June 23 near Winburg.

The Lourenzzo Marquez correspondent of The Times says:

"Both the burghers and the foreigners who are arriving here profess a strong belief that it will take from three to six months to subdue the Boers."

Another dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez says:

"A consignment to a foreign firm, marked 'Dutch cheese—damaged' proved to contain army boots for the Boers. It passed the customs, nevertheless, with unusual dispatch, and the British consul is making representations to the Portuguese government."

The Daily Express has the following from Machadodorp, dated Thursday, June 28:

"There is much condemnation of United States Consul Hay for the failure of his visit. It is supposed he is with Mr. Kruger.

"The prisoners' camp at Nooitgedacht is in a terrible unsanitary state."

On the Diamond.

Cincinnati, June 30.—Nichols pitched great ball until the ninth inning yesterday, when two bases on balls and three hits gave Cincinnati three runs and the game. The locals played great ball in the field, Barrett making a wonderful catch. Breitenstein was invincible after the third inning.

Smith Whipped by Handler.

New York, June 30.—At the Broadway Athletic club last night Jimmy Handler of Newark was awarded the decision on a foul over "Mysterious Billy" Smith of New York, in the 15th round of what was to have been a 25-round bout at 148 pounds. Up to the time Referee Charlie White gave Handler the verdict it was as vicious a battle as has been witnessed in a metropolitan club in a long time, and a punch by either man would have brought it to a conclusion without the referee's interference, when the foul was committed, as both men were wabbling from the effect of right-hand smashes on the jaw. In the preliminary bout of 12 rounds, Alf Levy of New York was awarded the decison over Aleck Dunsheath of Passaic. They met at 115 pounds.

Every Boilermaker Out.

Albany, June 30.—The boilermakers and their helpers employed in the Rennselaer shops of the Boston and Albany railroad went out on a strike yesterday, and it was announced that not a boilermaker was at work on the Boston and Albany lines between Boston and Rennselaer. There is danger of the strike spreading and assuming immense proportions. The strike of the Rennselaer men is in sympathy with the Springfield strikers, who have been out for some time. The railroad officials claim that the men have no grievance. One of the main causes for the men going out is the refusal of the officials of the Boston and Albany to grant their request for time and a half for all overtime and for work on Sundays and holidays.

Fitchburg Lease Before the Governor.

Boston, June 30.—The bill ratifying the lease of the Fitchburg railroad to the Boston and Maine Railroad company, having passed all of its legislative stages, was laid before the governor for his approval at 2:35 o'clock Friday afternoon. The house at 2:15 o'clock passed the bill to be enacted by a vote of 107 yeas to 12 nays. After its vote on the bill the house adjourned. When the bill was returned to the senate it was enacted without opposition.

Tries to Murder Family.

New York, June 30.—Charles Unevericht, a longshoreman, at an early hour this morning attempted to kill his wife, Mary; his father-in-law, Charles Rockstuhle, 70 years old, and his mother-in-law, Mary, 69 years of age, by slashing them with a razor. The wife and old man were sent to Bellevue hospital, said to be mortally injured. Mrs. Rockstuhle escaped with a slight cut. Joseph H. Kuhn, who tried to interfere in behalf of the victims, received two bad cuts.

Leading Citizen of Franklin Dead.

Franklin, Mass., June 30.—Charles J. McKenzie, a retired manufacturer and one of the leading men of this town, died suddenly of heart failure yesterday afternoon, at the age of 55. He was a prominent member of the Universalist church, a trustee of Dean academy, a director of the Franklin National bank, the Benjamin Franklin Savings bank and the M. A. and W. Street Railway company. He was born in Vermont. He is survived by a widow.

Five Hundred Thrown Out of Work.

Kingston, R. I., June 30.—Notice was posted at the works of the Rodman Manufacturing company at North and South Kingston yesterday, announcing that the mills would shut down on Saturday for two months. The company manufactures doeskins and employs about 500 hands.

Another Kentucky Arrest.

Frankfort, Ky., June 30.—Robert Noakes, a railroad man, now of Bristol, Tenn., is the name of the Goebel suspect for whom a warrant of arrest was issued yesterday. The requisition was made on the governor of Tennessee instead of Virginia.

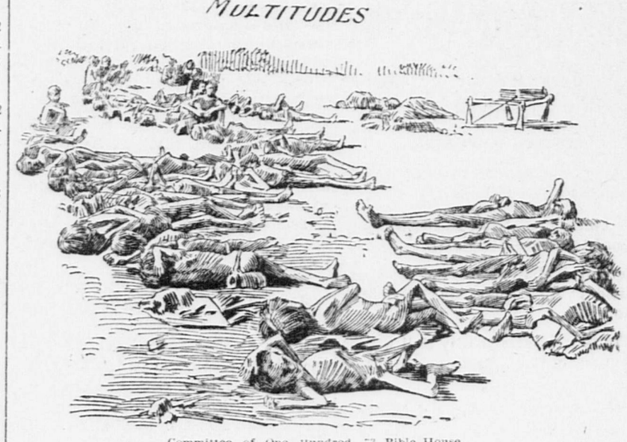

HELP FOR THE STARVING.

India Able to Do Little to Control---Sixty Million People Involved.

Some Examples of that Terrible State of Affairs in This Asiatic Country.

The extent and severity of India's present famine is without a parallel in the history of that unfortunate country, if not in the history of the world. The area of the famine is equal to all New England, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The population involved exceeds 60,000,000. The number in extreme destitution is estimated at 25,000,000. The government of India is providing for 6,000,000; yet so large is the area involved and so high is the death rate in the hundreds of native states where the Government has little or no control, that thousands must perish unless aided soon. Indeed, with all the aid sent from this country and other countries, thousands still starve to death each week.

These Are Not Dead, But Starving.

In the face of this appalling calamity we believe our citizens, one and all, are ready to share their abundance and their morsel, too, with these unfortunate millions of India whose bitter cry is being heard around the world.

DRAKE'S ODE TO OLD GLORY.

Joseph Rodman Drake's ode to "The American Flag" ranks next in popularity to "The Star Spangled Banner" as a versified tribute to Old Glory. Drake died at the age of 25, so that precocity has been justified in one instance at least. He was a poet in his childhood. In his twenty-second year he wrote "The Culprit Fay," the work upon which his reputation chiefly rests. The date of his spirited ode is not certain, but he attached little value to it. When on his deathbed, a friend brought it to his side with other fugitive pieces, and the author said, "Burn them; they are of no value." They were preserved, however, and the ode was included among others in a collection published in 1835.

While not suited for musical rendering, like Key's masterpiece, "The American Flag" contains many lofty flights of poetic imagery and gems of poetic expression. An Englishman who was comparing notes upon literature with an American cousin asked him which four lines of poetry he considered the finest in the mother tongue. The answer, given offhand, was a quotation of the first four lines of Drake's ode. After listening with breathless attention the Briton said, "Yes, I think I quite agree with you."

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the stars of glory there;
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
The milky baldric of the skies,
And striped its pure, celestial white
With streakings of the morning light;
Then from his mansion in the sun
She called her eagle bearer down,
And gave unto his mighty hand
The symbol of her chosen land.

Majestic monarch of the cloud!
Who rear'st aloft thy regal form,
To hear the tempest-trumpings loud,
And see the lightning lances driven,
When strive the warriors of the storm,
And roll the thunder-drum of heaven—
Child of the sun! to thee 'tis given
To guard the banner of the free,
To hover in the sulphur-smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blendings shine afar,
Like rainbows on the cloud of war,
The harbingers of victory!

Flag of the brave! thy folds shall fly,
The sign of hope and triumph high,
When speaks the signal trumpet tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on;
Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet,
Each soldier eye shall brightly turn
To where thy sky-born glories burn,
And, as his springing steps advance,
Catch war and vengeance from the glance,
And when the cannon-mouthings loud
Heave in wild wreaths the battle-shroud,
And gory sabers rise and fall,
Like shoots of flame on midnight's pall,
Then shall thy meteor-glances glow,
And cowering foes shall sink beneath
Each gallant arm that strikes below
That lovely messenger of death.

Flag of the seas! on ocean wave
Thy stars shall glitter o'er the brave;
When death, careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the bellied sail,
And frighted waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,
Each dying wanderer of the sea
Shall look at once to heaven and thee,
And smile to see thy splendors fly
In triumph o'er his closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's hope and home,
By angel hands to valor given;
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.
For ever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

"MY OWN SELF AGAIN."

Mrs. Gates Writes to Mrs. Pinkham, Follows Her Advice and is Made Well.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For nearly two and one-half years I have been in feeble health. After my little child came it seemed I could not get my strength again. I have chills and the severest pains in my limbs and top of head and am almost insensible at times. I also have a pain just to the right of breast bone. It is so severe at times that I cannot lie on my right side. Please write me what you think of my case."—MRS. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., April 25, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as advised and now send you a letter for publication. For several years I was in such wretched health that life was almost a burden. I could hardly walk across the floor, was so feeble. Several of our best physicians attended me, but failed to help. I concluded to write to you for advice. In a few days I received such a kind, motherly letter. I followed your instructions and am my 'old self' again. Was greatly benefited before I had used one bottle. May God bless you for what you are doing for suffering women."—MRS. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., Oct. 6, 1899.

THE CAR RAN AWAY.

Motorman Loses Control of Brakes and Electric Carries Away Front of Store.

Was Moving at the Rate of Forty Miles an Hour.

Miraculous Escape From Death of Passengers. Several of Them Injured.

Boston, June 30.—A car of the Boston Elevated road, inward bound, from the suburb of Brookline, ran away while coming down Mission hill, at Roxbury Crossing, Friday afternoon, and at the foot of the hill, while going at the rate of probably 40 miles an hour, left the tracks and struck the Olympia Market, carrying away the entire front of the building in a mass of flying glass and wood, seriously injuring Motorman Thomas H. Grady of Roxbury, and Miss Lizzie Barrett, a passenger of Brookline, and inflicting slight cuts and bruises upon 20 other passengers in the car.

Motorman Grady was at the brake when the car stopped, fully 40 feet within the market, and to his presence of mind is probably due the fact that several were not killed. None of the injuries are serious, the flying glass causing most havoc in inflicting cuts about the heads of the passengers.

The car, which was a large one, started down the steep incline of Mission hill under perfect control, as several passengers were taken on a short distance from the top. Probably by the breaking of a link of the chain, which engages the winding post and controlls the brakes, the car gained headway rapidly, and in a moment it was moving at a frightful rate toward the viaduct under the railroad bridge. It passed this in safety, but at a turn in the track, the car left the rails, rattled across the pavements, mounted the curbstone, and striking the market ploughed away 300 square feet of the building. When the car stopped it was completely buried in the market, and the motorman was vainly tugging at the brake. Ambulances and physicians were on the scene in a few moments, and the injured were taken to the city hospital, where attention was given them.

The passengers exhonorate the motorman from any blame of the affair.

Justice Fuller's Daughter's Marriage Delayed.

Bangor, Me., June 30.—A special to The News from Bar Harbor says that the wedding of Mrs. Lena Fuller Aubrey, daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, to Dr. Samuel Marcus Moore of Evanston, Ills., which was to have taken place yesterday, was postponed on account of the non-arrival of certain papers supposed to be connected with her divorce from her late husband, Mr. Aubrey. It is understood that when the divorce was granted a time limit was fixed by the courts within which Mrs. Aubrey could not remarry, and the documents which are now awaited are believed to be in the nature of a compromise, removing the time restriction. It is expected that the wedding will take place today.

Carloegro Meggiore got six years, Henry Thompson and James Whalen five years in Sing Sing, and William Green three years at Elmira. Two prisoners, who turned state's evidence, were discharged.

Accused of Being British Sympathizer.

Paris, June 30.—An exceedingly offensive attack upon Mgr. Ireland appears this morning in Le Journal. The writer, in a long article, taunts the archbishop with his British sympathies, quotes passages from speeches he delivered in England in June of last year and argues that he is not a fit representative of the American people to figure at the unveiling of the Lafayette statue.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Notices has been posted in the Stanley Manufacturing company shops at Lawrence, Mass., that beginning July 2 the working time of the men will be 54 hours. The present working schedule is 60 hours. No change will be made in the rate of wages.

An unknown farm hand, called Dave, was drowned in the river near Springfield, Mass., Friday morning. The body was recovered and awaits identification at the morgue.

Worcester, Mass., June 30.—Joseph Stone of Fitchburg, 23 years old, fireman on the Fitchburg railroad, was killed in a head-on collision about 6 o'clock last night, one mile north of this city.

Engineer Arthur S. Plummer of Fitchburg was internally injured and his left leg was broken.

The men were members of the train crew in charge of a church picnic excursion, bearing 500 people to Worcester from Gardner.

An engine, in charge of Engineer George H. Partridge of Winchenton and Fireman George H. Reynolds of Fitchburg, blocked the main track. The men on the stalled engine jumped and were uninjured. Fireman Stone remained in the cab and applied the air brakes.

Twenty excursionists were bruised. The excursion train had the right of way to Worcester, and no stops were to be made. It left Crystal Park lake in Gardner at 5:10, and continued on without delay at a fair rate of speed until the engine was run into. It is said that the engineer who took the engine from the round house had orders regarding the excursion train, notice to this effect having been posted in the round house. He was to take the 6:10 train out of Worcester, and had just reached the main line when the excursion train came around a sharp curve. Before the engineer of the single engine could get up enough speed to avoid the approaching excursion train, the collision occurred, which demolished both engines, but strangely did only slight damage to the coaches, which were loaded with passengers. It is said that if the engineer had waited for the excursion train, which was due at 6 o'cock, he would have had time to follow along to the Worcester station in season to take his train out.

A wrecking train was made up at Fitchburg, and arrived at the scene of the wreck at 9 o'clock, and was in charge of Foreman Frank Wetherbee. The tracks were not cleared for regular traffic last night, and trains came as far as the wreck, where passengers were transfered to the other side.

Held In $1000 Bail.

Boston, June 30.—Norman L. Chase, arrested in Waltham Thursday afternoon, charged with using the mails in an attempt to defraud, pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner Fiske, this afternoon. He was held in $1000 for examination today. According to the evidence against Chase, he has been advertising that he recently had been promoted by his uncle, proprietor of a factory in Waltham, and the vacancy made by his advancement was to be filled by a bright young man. Chase expected the man who was given the position to give him $5 for getting him the place, and several persons, it is alleged, sent the money, but received no further information.

Clark Will to Be Contested.

Worcester, Mass., June 30.—The will of Jonas G. Clark, the millionaire founder of Clark university, which was filed in the probate court in this city a short time ago, is to be contested by Adelphia E. Clark, daughter of Simpson Clark, now deceased, on the ground of mental incapacity and undue influence. She received a legacy of $200, while others equally of kin received many thousands. This contest may mean much to Clark university, which receives more than $1,000,000, as others of the legatees receiving small bequests may join in the contest.

It is said they had some words and the boy in an angry mood seized a knife and inflicted a cut on his step-mother's forearm, which it required several stitches to close. Henry was arrested.

OUR WOMEN IN THE REVOLUTION.

Although the women of civilized nations are treated as noncombatants and are exempt from military duty, heroines without number appear on the roll of honor, especially in popular uprisings for civil liberty.

The world knows no finer example of heroism than that displayed by the Boer women during the present strife between the South African Dutch and the British. These women are not nurses and cooks only, but are fighters as well and as brave as their brothers and husbands.

Chief among the ancient women who fought for the freedom of their people was Queen Boadicea, wife of Prasutagus. After the death of her husband, incensed by the outrages of the procurator Catus, she took up arms against the Roman colonists and their allies. Too proud to grace the promised holiday, she took poison after her capture. To the leadership of Joan of Arc Charles VII of France owed his realm. After a three months' struggle she wrested the scepter from the British and crowned him king at Reims.

One of the most famous American women soldiers in the war of the Revolution was Deborah Sampson, who joined the Continental army in 1778 under the name of Robert Shirtliffe. She served in the army for three years as a private soldier before her sex was discovered.

Dicey Langston of the Carolinas was one of Marion's most trusted scouts. Night after night, when she was supposed to be asleep in her own room, she carried news over field and swamp to the American camp. Though the British wondered how their plans were always circumvented, she was never detected.

Emily Geiger, too, was a famous army messenger of the Revolutionary times. On one occasion when she was carrying a message, the contents of which she knew, from General Greene to Sumter, she was intercepted by some Tory scouts and taken prisoner on suspicion. Left alone for a few minutes, she chewed into bits the written message that she was carrying. When searched, of course there was nothing discovered, and she was permitted to pursue her journey. She delivered to Sumter, verbally, the message, which saved the day.

On the field of Monmouth Molly Pitcher made herself famous. A shot from the enemy killed her husband, a cannoneer, at his post. The officer in command, having no one competent to fill the vacancy, ordered the gun to be withdrawn. She heard the order and, seizing the rammer, continued the fight, vowing that she would avenge her husband's death. The commission of sergeant was conferred upon her by General Washington in recognition of her bravery.

Just as all soldiers do not win personal renown, so all the army of devoted American women could not enter the lists of battle heroines, like Deborah Sampson and Mollie Pitcher; but they proved heroines in patience, in watchfulness and in patriotic spirit.

In 1768 the colonial women showed their patriotism by the spirit of self denial when in the face of the stamp act they unanimously agreed to reject Bohea, the brand of imported tea then so popular, and chose the balsamic Hyperion, a domestic manufacture prepared from the dried leaves of the raspberry plant. The ladies who thus denied themselves were known as the Daughters of Liberty.

When husbands and fathers were away in the Continental ranks in 1778, the women of Wyoming plowed, sowed and reaped, and not only that, but they made gunpowder, too, for the supply was low at the fort.

In 1780 the distress of the American army was very great on account of the lack of clothing. The women formed an association for the purpose of relieving the distress of the soldiers. Those who could gave money. The highest dames of the land labored with their needles and sacrificed their trinkets and jewelry. The ladies of Philadelphia contributed 2,200 shirts, which they had cut and sewed themselves. On each garment was the name of the maker and in a number of cases this led to courtship and marriage.

On the retreat of the Continental army from Fort Edward Mrs. Philip Schuyler, the wife of General Schuyler, rode from Albany to Saratoga, and gave orders to set fire to the extensive fields of wheat on their estates and requested the tenants to do the same rather than suffer the enemy to reap them.

During the terrible winter passed at Valley Forge, Mrs. Washington endured every privation of the camp and was busy from morning till night providing comforts for the sick soldiers. She dressed with great simplicity so that her private means could be used for the purposes of relief.

But from the tidbits of social gossip handed down in colonial annals it is evident that the lives of the women of that period were not always beclouded by stress and soberness. Smiles now and then banished the tears. Refreshed by their fragrant Hyperion beverage and inspired by noble zeal matrons and maids plied the needle and spinning wheel for the army and for liberty. One skillful needlewoman wrought an imperishable record upon the first flag given to the breezes by the new republic, and thus linked the name of Betsy Ross with that of Washington.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 1—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—When is a nation safe?—Deut. xxvi, 1-11. (A patriotic service.)

The topical reference is found among the statutes and judgments which through Moses God gave to Israel to observe to do when they should come into the land which he should give them. The immediate reference is to the presentation of the first fruits, but in a broader sense we can apply the passage to the national life of Israel in its relation to God, and can learn from a study of this reference some of the vital and essential elements of a safe nation.

1. A nation to be safe must believe in God as the true source of national life and prosperity. National faith is as essential to national safety as individual faith. The Jews fervently believed in God as a nation, and they also believed that God gave them the land which was their national home. The nation that does not believe in God will not fear and serve God. Our faith, as a nation, in God should be specially strong. We cannot doubt that He has given this land and all its blessings to us any more than Israel could doubt that Canaan was the gift of God.

2. A nation, to be safe, must acknowledge God as the author and preserver of national life and blessings. We must not only believe, but acknowledge, our faith to the world. In presenting the first fruits the worshiper was to say, "I profess this day unto the Lord thy God that I am come unto the country which the Lord sware unto our fathers for to give us." So we should profess our national faith in God to all the nations of the world. By word and deed the nations should be made to know in whom we believe. A public acknowledgment of faith is a constant safeguard against apostasy. A professed faith is not so easily broken as an unacknowledged faith.

3. A nation, to be safe, must live for God. It must consecrate its first and best fruits to Him who is the ruler of nations and kingdoms. It must not only believe in God as the King of Kings and confess its faith, but must also practice it. God has a destiny for every nation as for every individual. It should be the aim of every nation to discover its divine destiny and then to zealously carry the will of God into effect. In carrying out such a principle every nation must stand for those principles which are pleasing to God—for righteousness, justice, charity and unselfishness. The national life must aim for the moral and spiritual uplift of the people of the nation and also for the people of the world. There is no safety in a national life that disregards the great truths and principles which God has established as the foundations of prosperous and successful nations.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ez. vi, 8-10; Neh. ii, 1-5; Ps. xxxiii, 10-22; Prov. xiv, 34; Jer. xxix, 7; Math. xvii, 24-27; xxii, 15-21; Mark xii, 13-17; Rom. xiii, 7; Heb. xi, 8-16.

Confidence In the Church.

Once more the faith of honest men is governed by confidence in facts and fair conclusions from established promises. The church, which is a defender of the faith, must be fearless as to its basis and its divine forces. Let men doubt it on either point and it has ceased to command them. The despite of one honest man for any trick or trade in the tactics of the church management to retain its prestige is the beginning of its fall before the distrust and discontent of the world's jury of common sense. Their confidence is not won by emotional efforts and mystic utterances. The church that fails to show itself as brave in private as its public speech and as confident of itself before the mirror and the microscope as in its own church assemblies will lose its hold on the people. They are saying today, "Are you afraid of your basis, unwilling to face your own scholars on matters of fact?" And the people pass on—whither?—Evangelist.

To Cure Low Spirits.

Take one ounce of the seeds of resolution, properly mixed with the oil of good conscience; infuse into it a large spoonful of the balsam of patience. Distill carefully a composing plant called "others' woes," which you will find in every part of the garden of life growing under the broad leaves of disguise. Gather a handful of the blossoms of hope, sweeten them properly with a sirup made of the balm of Providence, and if you can get any of the seeds of true friendship you will then have the most valuable medicine that can be administered. But you must be careful to get the seeds of true friendship, as there is a weed which much resembles it, called self interest, which will spoil the whole composition. These ingredients, well mixed and faithfully taken, soon complete the cure.—Selected.

Consideration of Others.

Tender and considerate thoughtfulness of others is one of the most valuable of all the Christian graces. Gentleness, gentlemanliness, gentlewomanliness—note how well the two go together. Manliness and gentleness, womanliness and gentleness. Gentleness is one of the most manly and womanly things in the world. A boor may be a more craven coward by far than the most perfect gentleman or lady. In the late war some of the "dudish" regiments, made up of "gentlemen," did the very best work.—Christian Standard.

The Helpful Man.

Everybody knows the helpful man. He is ready in spirit and prompt in action. He recognizes the need and tenders the kindly word and extends aid as the case may require. He is loved, respected and honored.—Presbyterian.

Just The Blues.

Many a woman dresses to go out, feels irresolute, sits down, and falls into a fit of despondent musing. Ask her what's the matter, and she'll probably answer "Just the blues." And what are the blues? Only another name, in general, for a disordered liver and a diseased stomach. Cleanse the liver, heal the stomach, purify the blood, and there'll be no more blues. It can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine puts the diseased organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of sound health. It eliminates from the blood all impure and poisonous substances, and cleanses the clogged liver. It contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

"I had liver complaint for the past fifteen years, complicated with dyspepsia and gall stones," writes Mrs. N. Bernier, of 461 Elm St., Oshkosh, Wis. "I doctored with seven of our prominent doctors, and not one or all of them have done me the good, nor begun to do what your medicines have. I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, one vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and have gained about eighteen pounds since I first began to take these remedies."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

Just as the sun was setting last evening and the peacefulness and quiet of the twilight hour was casting its softening light over the earth one of the finest musical treats ever enjoyed in East Milton was given at the Congregational church. The artists were: Miss Emily M. Enneking, violinist, Miss Emily F. Baxter, soprano, Mr. Clarence A. Buker, basso and Mr. John H. Gutterson, organist. The ten numbers on the program and nearly as many more, given in response to appreciative encores were finely rendered and blended harmoniously with the thoughts of the twilight hour.

Castle Square Theatre.

An elaborate revival of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" will make the Castle Square theatre attraction the coming week and a repetition of the interest shown in this play, a little over a year ago, by the patrons of this popular play house, may confidently be anticipated in the coming performances. The beauty of the stage settings of the original production will be more than duplicated and a particularly strong cast has been arranged, the leading characters being assigned as follows: Gen. Kennion, J. L. Seeley; Major Burleigh, Edward Wade; Lieut. Edgar Hawkesworth, John Craig; Sergeant Dix, Lindsay Morison; Orderly McGlynn, John T. Craven; Dr. Arthur Penwick, Tony Cummings; Dick Burleigh, Little Ada Rose; Andy Jackson; William Paul; Kate Kennion, Lillian Lawrence; Lucy Hawksworth, Leonora Gnito; Wilbur's Ann, Hope Ross; Fawn-Afraid, Marian A. Chapman. Following "The Girl I Left Behind Me," on Monday, July 9, comes a revival of "A Temperance Town." The distribution of boxes of chocolate bon bons to matinee patrons of Monday and Wednesday will be continued until further notice. Plans are being made for an elaborate observance of the 2000th dramatic performance at this theatre which occurs on Friday, July 13th.

FIGURES PRODUCED.

Showing the Street Car Traffic to Houghs Neck.

Petitions Say the Time-table Don't Suit.

Believe More Would be Carried with Increased Service.

The hearing Friday evening before the City Council Committee on Streets, in relation to car service to Houghs Neck was in the nature of a fizzle. The hearing was given upon the strength of a petition to the City Council which bore the signature of but one resident, Andrew A. Meyer.

The Committee on Streets published a notice that it would give a hearing to the street railway, residents of Houghs Neck and all others interested at 8 o'clock Friday night. At that hour President Graham and Superintendent Weeks of the street railway were present, but none from Houghs Neck.

The hearing was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock by Chairman Poland, but as no one desired to be heard at 8.04, the hearing upon motion of Councilman Nichols was declared closed. Messrs. Graham and Weeks immediately left the hall.

Two minutes later Mr. Meyers and his counsel Mr. Baker and Mr. Leonard appeared.

They were informed that the hearing had closed. After a few minutes conversation with the chairman, during which Mr. Meyers said that the car he came on was five minutes late, it was decided to hear Mr. Meyers.

When it was decided to hear Mr. Meyers, word was sent to the street railway office, but neither Mr. Graham or Mr. Weeks could be found.

Councilman Newcomb then moved to reopen the hearing which was carried.

Lawyer Baker rehearsed his client's position, which was that he had demanded cars all winter, fifteen minute service, free transfers and a complete rebuilding of the road. He opposed the granting of relocation unless these were complied with. As President Graham had agreed to do many of these things, he had withdrawn his opposition. As a matter of fact the road had done only part of these things, and as they were only running on half hour time the people were not accommodated. Citizens should not be required to wait thirty minutes for a car. The hotels and other business were dependent on good service of the railroad. They should fulfill the requirements or let some one else do so. They have failed to show that it would not be profitable to do so.

Mr. Baker then asked Mr. Meyers a number of questions, but as they were for the most part foreign from the subject, the Chairman called him to order and insisted that they confine themselves to the question.

In reply to Councilman Nichols, Mr. Baker said the public was not being accommodated. Cars were overcrowded at certain times, and he understood they did not run on schedule time.

Mr. Meyers said he had asked Supt. Weeks when he was going to put a fifteen-minute time, but got no satisfaction. My opinion is that if cars are run on fifteen minute time from 33 to 50 per cent. more people will ride. Mr. Graham told the Railroad Commissioners he would put on fifteen minute cars when the road was reconstructed. He knew of no reason why the road would be at a loss to run 15 minute cars. He had no personal feeling against Mr. Graham, but as simply protecting himself. He had expended over $80,000 at Houghs Neck. His investment had been received by the railroad. I ask you to consider what I have laid out, and whether I am protecting myself or not. He would be satisfied with half hour cars in the morning, fifteen minute service between noon and 8.30, then half hour time. The cars are not run on the time advertised.

Mr. Leonard said many complaints were made as to the way the road was run. The road is in a bad condition from the Willows to the Neck. Did not think the time suited the people. The cars were small, and he often had to hold on. He did not think the cars ran on time, but could not say how often.

No on else desired to be heard and Chairmman Poland read a statement from the Quincy & Boston Company, showing the number of passengers carried on this line for the week ending June 26. These in brief were a follows:

	No. round trip.	Passengers carried during day.	Average per round trip

WEYMOUTH.

Rev. Thomas A. Hyde, rector of St. Matthias church, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been spending a vacation of six weeks in Weymouth, has returned much improved, to his work in that city, and Rev. William Hyde, who has been away on a vacation, has again taken up his duties at Trinity church Weymouth.

Last Saturday evening there was a very pleasant wedding at Trinity church Weymouth. The parties joined in wedlock, were Antonio G. Poch, and Arrilinda G. Torrey both of Braintree. The service was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. William Hyde, and the happy pair will reside in East Braintree.

The New Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. James Todd who has accepted the call of the First Presbyterian church of Quincy occupies a strong position as an organizer, and preacher in the state of Michigan. He is scholarly, tactful, and aggressive and has been eminently successful as a minister in the West. He is the author of several books and pamphlets, and a regular contributor to the religious press.

Seventeen years ago he was appointed to Manitoba as a missionary by the Colonial Committee of the Presbyterian church of Scotland. He labored there for several years with great success, and gained an exceptional experience in overseeing the missionary work of the church in that new country. While there he was appointed to the honorable position of deputy from the Synod of Manitoba to the General Assemblies of the Presbyterian churches in his native land, and commissioned by the Manitoba Government to plead the cause of the growing colony before the people of Scotland. In 1889 owing to the state of his health he came to the United States. Soon after his arrival he became Associate Superintendent of Missions in the state of Wisconsin and with that position held for one year the office of financial secretary of Gale college of which for some years he was a trustee.

He is at present chairman of the Committee on theology for the examination of candidates for the ministry, and chairman of Home Missions in his Presbytery, and he holds the same office in Home Missions for the Synod of Michigan.

He has been seven and a half years in his present charge and amid many special difficultes has drawn around him a large congreagtion, and also built up the church which recently erected a handsome modern church building at a cost of $18,000.

He received his doctor's degree from Gale college which is the Presbyterian college for the Synod of Wisconsin. Dr. Todd is in his prime and greatly beloved by his congregation.

Keith's Theatre.

Lockhart's elephant's will continue the star attraction at Keith's the week of July 2. These animals are certainly the best trained that have ever been seen in this country, the smartest workers and the most intelligent. While performing all the stock tricks made familiar by other elephants, they do many that have never been seen before, their playing of musical instruments and dancing being marvelous in the matter of correct time. The stage setting is quite appropriate and novel, and will be added to the coming week, making it resemble still more closely an indoor circus. One of the best sketches offered in the varieties last season was that called "A Stolen Kiss," which was given by Wright Huntington, a talented and well known actor, and three associates. This will be the principal dramatic offering of the coming week at Keith's, with the star in his character as a United States naval officer, W. H. Sinclair as the fiery Corsican, and Jane Irving in the role of an Italian countess. The latter is a beautiful California girl, who last season created no little comment by her acting and magnificent wardrobe in the leading part of Broadhurst's "What Happened to Jones."

BRAINTREE.

W. Stanwood Field and his young men will go to Camp Monatiquot, Weld, Maine, next Thursday, June 5.

Col. A. C. Drinkwater and Mr. T. R. Newell, delegates to the Democratic convention at Kansas city, left Braintree for the west this morning.

Rev. C. H. Pennoyer intends to attend the Harvard College Summer School of Theology in session July 5 to July 21.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern and Mrs. Sarah Tarbell returned Tuesday from Mason, New Hampshire, where they have been spending the past two weeks.

Thomas V. Uniac of the Thayer base ball team is playing on the Brown University base ball nine. That team is playing a series of games in the South.

Charles Lothrop, Philip H. Sullivan, and Frank Holbrook of South Braintree, with Moses Arnold of North Abington, went via boat Friday to Nova Scotia for a few days.

Mr. A. L. Pennock and sons have commenced on the foundation for the erection of a modern cottage on their new street. They expect to have it ready for occupancy in September.

Walter Simonds of Tremont street, met with an accident Thursday at Closson's shoe factory where he is employed. It happened during the thunder storm, as he tried to shut down a window to keep out the rain, he cut the palm of his left hand near the thumb, by broken glass. Three stitches had to be taken in the deep cut.

The officers of Antietam Camp, No. 32, S. of V., were mustered in at Grand Army hall, Tuesday evening, by Mustering Officer of the Massachusetts Department, T. W. Cazmay. Louis W. Thayer declined to serve as captain, C. E. Rice was elected to fill vacancy.

T. J. Ahern, twenty years of age, son of Daniel Ahern of Pearl street, died at his home early Tuesday morning after a short illness. He was a well known young man of South Braintree and was very popular with all who met him. He was a member of Division No. 12, A. O. H.

The Braintree band was reorganized at a meeting held in the lower Town hall last week Thursday evening, and the following officers were chosen:

President,—Will Tupper.
Vice President — Charles Woodworth.
Treasurer.—Frank Newhall.
Secretary,—Albert F. Hollis.
Director,—Will Tupper.
Committee on Music,—Will Tupper, Fred H. Lord, John W. Cuff.
Committee on By-Laws,—Arthur Vining, Ernest Thayer, Joseph Shea, Charles Woodworth, Frank Newhall, Albert F. Hollis.

At a meeting of the school committee held Wednesday afternoon in the Monatiquot school building considerable business was brought before the board. After due consideration, Alfred H. Holbrook, the successful candidate, was elected janitor of the Penniman school house at twenty-four dollars per month for eleven months of the year.

Several of the girls at the Jenkins' Manufacturing Co.'s works were considerably alarmed on Thursday by the lightning playing around the braiders, but no damage was done. In the fan shop the fluid entered on the telephone wires and ran around the room on the same, also creating quite a panic.

Mrs. Louis Hart, of East Braintree, has presented the Jonas Perkins school with a beautiful specimen of petrified wood from Arizona, a piece of Mexican onyx, and a portion of the bark of the famous redwood trees from California. We are very grateful to Mrs. Hart for the interest she manifests in all that pertains to the cause of education.

The graduating class of the Jonas Perkins school held a very enjoyable picnic at Hayward's grove on Wednesday. The members assembled at the school building about 9.30 and accompanied by Miss Viola Bicknell teacher of Grade II, proceeded to the grove with their numerous parcels. The privileges of the grounds were kindly accorded them by Mr. J. E. Hayward, and upon their arrival, each and all entered into the spirit of the occasion and prepared for a good sociable time.

The Pine Tree club have held a good many days that bordered on the "royal," but the last meeting of the season, on Wednesday, at the outing at Allerton, when fifty or sixty of the loyal sons and daughters of Maine were greeted in her usual cordial and charming manner by Mrs. George W. Caldwell at her spacious and newly painted bright red cottage by the surfside, seems to have reached a point which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to excell. The question of whether the painting of a part of the town red was for this event was answered by "perhaps." But there was no perhaps to the fact of the decided change from the torrid atmosphere of Braintree and Boston to the cool, welcome sea breezes on the broad piazzas of the twin cottages of Messrs Caldwell and Will Mayhew.

Reunion.

On Monday last the Monmouth California tourists and invited guests, to the number of thirty-one, spent a delightful day at Rockland and Nantasket. In the forenoon they gathered at the residence of the Vice President, J. S. Smith, editor of the Rockland Standard, where an hour or more was delightfully spent.

After a hearty welcome, a delicious lunch of strawberries raised by Bros. Smith and fine singing, the party was furnished a special car by A. H. Walcott, superintendent of the South Shore & Boston Street Railway Company, and a pleasant ride was enjoyed to Nantasket beach. The ride from Rockland to Nantasket is very attractive, especially through the old town of Hingham, with its wide streets, pretty residences and handsome grounds.

On arriving at the Atlantic house, one of the finest seashore resorts in the country, L. Damon's Sons, proprietors the tourist found an excellent dinner waiting them, and they knew well how to enjoy it.

After an hour spent in the cool and comfortable dining room, although it was a very warm day, the members adjourned to the balcony and transacted some business, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President,—J. S. Smith.
Vice President,—Francis Procter.
Secretary and Treasurer,—Etta M. Prescott.

After a vote of thanks to the street railway, Mr. Smith, and all others who had aided in making the reunion a delightful occasion, the party separated; some returning to Boston by steamboat, others to their homes by the street cars. It was one of those pleasant reunions that will long be remembered.

Madame Yale's
HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing.
